High Court's Vote Upholds T-H Back To Work Order

MAJOR UPSET

Tennessee Ends Bengals' Streak At 19 Games, 14-13

By FRANK BAILES
Knoxville News-Sentinel
(Special For Morning World)

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—Fired up by a 59-yard touchdown on an intercepted pass by blocking back Jim Cartwright, the first six-pointer of the year against LSU, Tennessee edged Louisiana State's proud national champions, 14-13, here Saturday afternoon in one of the year's major upsets.

The victory ended the longest winning streak in college football at 19 straight, the second time this season the Vols have performed such a feat. They ended Auburn's 24-game spree, 3-0, in the opening game.

The homecoming crowd of more that 47,000 — numbed by the 40-degree weather — forgot about the elements as Tennessee, scrambled from behind to upset the defending national champions.

..TRAILING

Tennessee, trailing 7-0 at halftime, scored two touchdowns within two minutes of each other in the third period to become the first team in 10 games to cross LSU's goal line.

Ken Sadler, Cartwright's understudy, pounced on fullback Earl Gros' fumble on the first play after the kickoff following Cartwright's electrifying jaunt. The Vols took over at the LSU 29.

After losing four yards in two plays, Glass fired a strike to end Don Leake for 19 yards and a first down at the LSU 14.

On first down, Glass called on alternate Captain Neyle Sollee on a fullback trap off left guard and the Vols opened up a hole large enough to send a truck through. Sollee Zoomed 14 yards, untouched, for the touchdown.

Cotton Letner added the extra point after both TDs to provide the margin of victory.

LSU's Billy Cannon was every bit as great as he was supposed to be. He went through the left side of Tennessee's line as though he had been shot through, racing 26 yards for a touchdown to put LSU ahead, 7-0, in the second period. He gained 125 yards for the day.

Ike Marks 3 Days For Summit Talk

Meeting Set To Begin On December 19

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower has set aside three days beginning Dec. 19 for Western summit talks in Paris on strategy for negotiations with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

The White House announced Saturday that Eisenhower will reach Paris on the night of Dec. 18-19, following a three-day Mediterranean cruise on his way back from a tour into the Middle East and southern Asia.

In another development bearing on preparations for summit talks, the White House announced Ambassador Walter C. Dowling is the new U.S. envoy to West Germany. He succeeds David K. E. Bruce, who left the post for private reasons.

KEY

Dowling's position is a key one in the development of a solid front among Western leaders on issues due to come up for negotiation with the Soviets. The U.S. ambassador at Bonn is the chief channel for exchanges of ideas between Eisenhower and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

The President's task at the Western summit session at Paris will be primarily to try to find common ground for bringing together divergent policy lines. Adenauer stands at one extreme and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan at the other. French President Charles de Gaulle and Adenauer generally favor a very tough line in dealing with Khrushchev.

Macmillan is known to be convinced that the major issue for settlement when Eisenhower, De Gaulle and he meet Khrushchev in Geneva next year is the issue of the future of West Berlin. He believes this is a negotiable issue with Khrushchev.

Eisenhower is much less optimistic about finding some way to

HELD FOR QUESTIONING — John William Mitchell, 57, is led from FBI headquarters to City Jail for further questioning after he nervously had asked a downtown Seattle bank guard to arrest him because, he told the guard, he "was going to rob the bank but I've changed my mind." He carried a paper bag with a note which said: "This is a holdup. Put the money in this bag." U. S. Attorney C. P. Moriarty said he doesn't intend to prosecute Mitchell, who repented "at some point along the line." (AP Wirephoto)

Jet Explodes In Oklahoma, Body Found

Debris Strewn, Plane's Base Is Not Known

DUNCAN, Okla. (AP)—A high flying, unidentified, jet aircraft exploded in an orange ball of fire Saturday and fell in scattered pieces within a 30-mile radius of Duncan.

Lt. Harold Hall reported searchers found one body in wreckage 12 miles west of here. But Texas search and rescue headquarters reported the main body of wreckage near Cookietown, Okla., about 30 miles southwest of here.

The plane apparently was not based in Oklahoma. Convair at Fort Worth, Tex., said one of its B58 jets was overdue, but it could not be determined immediately if this was the plane involved.

Scores of persons watched the streaking aircraft as it cut a vapor trail across southwest Oklahoma skies then suddenly exploded.

FARM

Charles A. Robinson, visiting a farm home near Fitzhugh, Okla., said he was watching the jet.

"Then, without a spit or a sputter, it just went up in one big ball of fire as big as the whole plane. I watched streamers of smoke fall to earth," said Robinson.

Curt Lambert, Chickasha, Okla., newsman, said he watched as the vapor trail moved silently over his home.

"It looked like it ended 15 miles south of town in a big orange puff. Then there were five streamers falling out of the sky. Each one left a white streamer and fell in a crazy zig-zag pattern," said Lambert.

Highway patrol dispatcher Paul Oliver at Durant said he was swamped with telephone calls describing the demise of the craft.

Oliver said Air Force search and rescue headquarters at Dallas had ordered personnel flown to the Duncan area to secure the wreckage site.

Authorities at Ft. Sill, Okla., said they would take immediate charge of the clean-up detail on the wreckage site.

Steel Mill Workers Set For Return

WASHINGTON (AP)—By a vote of 8-1, the Supreme Court Saturday upheld the back-to-work injunction in the 116-day-old steel strike.

As a result, the 500,000 steelworkers who quit work on July 15 must return to the mills for 80 days under emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act.

"The Supreme Court has spoken," said David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers Union. "As law-abiding citizens, the Steelworkers Union, of course, will comply with the court's judgment."

McDonald dispatched telegrams instructing the strikers to return to work immediately.

At the end of the 80-day cooling off period in late January, the union may call another strike. But before that can be done, workers employed by each of the major steel companies will vote by secret ballot on whether to accept or reject management's latest offer.

HOPE

President Eisenhower was informed promptly of the court's ruling. He expressed hope the steel mills will get started up again as soon as possible.

Eisenhower also hopes, press secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen, that both sides, "realizing their obligation to the United States," will continue to negotiate and reach a settlement of their differences.

Although the court's order is effective immediately, there was no prospect of an early outpouring of steel. And it may be two weeks or so before new collective bargaining sessions get under way.

Both management and union

Border Tension Hinders Search

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI) — Indian-Chinese border tension was reported Saturday to be hindering an air search for 32 members of a Japanese-led expedition missing on an attempt to scale a 23,440-foot peak in the storm-swept eastern Himalayas.

The Nepalese government dispatched ground rescue parties to the rugged Gauri Shanker peak to search for members of the mountain-climbing party feared to have been buried by an avalanche or swept away by high winds.

A Nepalese C47 aircraft flew near the peak of the mountain Saturday, circled over a spot where the missing expedition was last reported camped and returned after a two-hour flight without spotting any of the mountaineers. But Nepalese Premier

AF Satellite Whirling In Polar Orbit

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—An Air Force satellite was put into polar orbit Saturday.

Early Saturday evening, the Air Force announced that the Discoverer VII satellite launched at 3:28 p.m. EST attained an orbit.

The satellite, from which the Air Force hopes to recover a capsule Sunday, was picked up by tracking stations in Alaska at 4:57 p.m. as it neared the completion of its first circuit of the earth.

PATH

The Air Force said preliminary information indicated the satellite is traveling in a path which takes it 550 miles high at the peak, and 104 miles at the lowest point of orbit.

Amendment Set To Be Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amendment of the television industry's self-regulatory code to permit "any abuse of public trust and confidence" will be proposed at a meeting in Los Angeles on Nov. 16.

Harold E. Fellows, president of the National Assn. of Broadcasters, said the proposal in the out-growth of disclosures by a House Committee investigation of the rigging of quiz shows.

Fellows reported the industry policing move in an Oct. 28 letter to Sen. William Langer (R-ND). The letter was made public by Langer Saturday.

Langer had written Fellows that Congress may give the Federal Communications Commission more authority over TV programming if the industry "cannot do a better job of policing rigged television shows than it did in policing violent Western and crime shows on television as was promised at a 1955 Senate subcommittee hearing."

In reply, Fellows wrote that

Solon Suggests Powerful New Labor Court

WASHINGTON (AP)—A powerful new court to settle nationwide labor disputes before they can lead to costly strikes like the steel walkout was proposed Saturday by Sen. George A. Smathers (D-Fla).

Smathers suggested five members for this court, which he would designate the U. S. Court of Labor-Management Relations.

Such a court, he said in a statement, would have jurisdiction over all national industries and would be used when collective bargaining reached an impasse.

"It would be in the nature of a Supreme Court on labor-management relations, whose findings and judgments would be final and binding on both parties—a court of last resort in this field—so to speak," he said.

COURT

Members of the court would be selected in the same way as other judicial appointments are made. Nominations would be made by the president, subject to approval by the Senate. Cases would be exclusively labor-management.

Smathers said hardships from the prolonged steel strike showed a need for a better way to handle such disputes. He spoke out as the Supreme Court upheld a Taft-Hartley Act injunction ordering

Death Claims 72-Year-Old Screen Actor

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actor Victor McLaglen, a boisterous giant who lived two lives of adventure with about equal relish, died Saturday at the age of 72 .

The Academy Award - winning master of tough talk succumbed to congestive heart failure at his seaside home in Newport Beach, 40 miles south of the film capital. His son, Andy, with him at his death, said: "He never had a heart attack. It was just a matter of his heart growing old. He never had a pain."

McLaglen, a 220-pounder, 6 feet 3, won an Academy Award for the best actor of 1935 for his classic portrayal of the pathetic Gyppo in "The Informer." He was nominated for a supporting actor's award in 1952 for his performance as a terrible-tempered Irish squire in "The Quiet Man."

He was a hell raiser in many of his films, but he became a bedfellow of adventure long before he brought his enormous energy to the screen.

BORN

McLaglen was born in England, one of eight sons of the Rt. Rev. Andrew McLaglen, an Anglican clergyman. The family spent many years in South Africa,

ACTOR'S LEG AMPUTATED

Surgery Staged In N.Y. Elevator

NEW YORK (UPI)—An intern turned a garage elevator into an emergency operating room Saturday to release trapped British actor Martyn Green by amputating his crushed left leg.

Green, 60, television performer and one of the world's leading Gilbert and Sullivan baritones, remained conscious throughout the hour-long operation, in which the intern was assisted by a neighborhood doctor hastily called in.

After releasing Green from the elevator trap, where his leg had been caught between the moving car and a wall, his rescuers tried to rush him to a hospital. But the ambulance broke down and had to be pushed by a taxi and a police car.

Green's cocker spaniel, "The Gimlet," stood by during the emergency operation in the elevator and licked his master's face periodically. The dog once tried to nip a policeman who tried to comfort the actor.

The accident was the second elevator mishap to befall a leading actor in less than a year. Nine months ago, Pat Hingle, then star of the hit play "J.B.," fell from a stalled apartment house elevator when he tried to climb to the nearest floor. He was hospitalized for weeks with serious injuries and only recently has been able to return to work.

Both accidents occurred on Manhattan's upper West Side. Green's ordeal began at 12:30 a.m., when he drove his small sports car into an elevator a

Museum Boat Makes Return

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio (AP) —"Big Mama" passed downriver Saturday in what probably is her last visit to the upper Ohio Valley.

Big Mama is the slang name for the towboat Sprague, largest vessel of her kind on inland waters. She is 350 feet long and once was powered by two 1,600 horsepower steam engines.

Now a floating museum of the Ohio and Mississippi River trade, she is stationed at Vicksburg, Miss. But last summer she was loaned to Pittsburgh for a bicentennial celebration. She is being towed back.

About two decades ago Big Mama was taken out of service because later model towboats with diesel engines were cheaper to operate.

Eisenhower disclosed Saturday that his son and daughter-in-law will be members of his official party on the 20,000-mile trip, which will take him to nine countries and include a cruise on the Mediterranean. Maj. John Eisenhower, the President's son, is attached to the White House staff.

The President's wife, Mamie, will remain in this country. Eisenhower commented at his news conference last Wednesday that such a trip would be a little bit tough for her.

Barbara Jean, 31, is a tall, slim brunette with hazel eyes and a friendly smile. She spends most of the time as a homemaker and mother of four children, emerging only on holidays and other special occasions into the glamour and limelight that surrounds her in-laws.

Ike Marks 3 Days For Summit Talk

Meeting Set To Begin On December 19

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower has set aside three days beginning Dec. 19 for Western summit talks in Paris on strategy for negotiations with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

The White House announced Saturday that Eisenhower will reach Paris on the night of Dec. 18-19, following a three-day Mediterranean cruise on his way back from a tour into the Middle East and southern Asia.

Debris Strewn, Plane's Base Is Not Known

DUNCAN, Okla. (AP)—A high flying, unidentified, jet aircraft exploded in an orange ball of fire Saturday and fell in scattered pieces within a 30-mile radius of Duncan.

Lt. Harold Hall reported searchers found one body in wreckage 12 miles west of here. But Texas search and rescue headquarters reported the main body of wreckage near Cookietown, Okla., about 30 miles southwest of here.

The plane apparently was not based in Oklahoma. Convair at Fort Worth, Tex., said one of its B58 jets was overdue, but it could not be determined immediately if this was the plane involved.

Scores of persons watched the streaking aircraft as it cut a vapor trail across southwest Oklahoma skies then suddenly exploded.

Steel Mill Workers Set For Return

WASHINGTON (AP)—By a vote of 8-1, the Supreme Court Saturday upheld the back-to-work injunction in the 116-day-old steel strike.

As a result, the 500,000 steelworkers who quit work on July 15 must return to the mills for 80 days under emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act.

"The Supreme Court has spoken," said David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers Union. "As law-abiding citizens, the Steelworkers Union, of course, will comply with the court's judgment."

McDonald dispatched telegrams instructing the strikers to return to work immediately.

At the end of the 80-day cooling off period in late January, the union may call another strike. But before that can be done, workers employed by each of the major steel companies will vote by secret ballot on whether to accept or reject management's latest offer.

HOPE

President Eisenhower was informed promptly of the court's ruling. He expressed hope the steel mills will get started up again as soon as possible.

Eisenhower also hopes, press secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen, that both sides, "realizing their obligation to the United States," will continue to negotiate and reach a settlement of their differences.

Although the court's order is effective immediately, there was no prospect of an early outpouring of steel. And it may be two weeks or so before new collective bargaining sessions get under way.

Death Claims 72-Year-Old Screen Actor

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actor Victor McLaglen, a boisterous giant who lived two lives of adventure with about equal relish, died Saturday at the age of 72 .

The Academy Award - winning master of tough talk succumbed to congestive heart failure at his seaside home in Newport Beach, 40 miles south of the film capital. His son, Andy, with him at his death, said: "He never had a heart attack. It was just a matter of his heart growing old. He never had a pain."

McLaglen, a 220-pounder, 6 feet 3, won an Academy Award for the best actor of 1935 for his classic portrayal of the pathetic Gyppo in "The Informer." He was nominated for a supporting actor's award in 1952 for his performance as a terrible-tempered Irish squire in "The Quiet Man."

He was a hell raiser in many of his films, but he became a bedfellow of adventure long before he brought his enormous energy to the screen.

BORN

McLaglen was born in England, one of eight sons of the Rt. Rev. Andrew McLaglen, an Anglican clergyman. The family spent many years in South Africa,

United Givers Collection Gain Reported Here

The United Givers fund drive for 1960 reached a total of $190,558.13, yesterday ended its fifth week.

"The 100 per cent companies are really the backbone of this drive and the employes of those companies have demonstrated by their generosity the general acceptance of the united way of giving," James W. ACTOR'S LEG AMPUTATED

Surgery Staged In N.Y. Elevator

NEW YORK (UPI)—An intern turned a garage elevator into an emergency operating room Saturday to release trapped British actor Martyn Green by amputating his crushed left leg.

Green, 60, television performer and one of the world's leading Gilbert and Sullivan baritones, remained conscious throughout the hour-long operation, in which the intern was assisted by a neighborhood doctor hastily called in.

After releasing Green from the elevator trap, where his leg had been caught between the moving car and a wall, his rescuers tried to rush him to a hospital. But the ambulance broke down and had to be pushed by a taxi and a police car.

Green's cocker spaniel, "The Gimlet," stood by during the emergency operation in the elevator and licked his master's face periodically. The dog once tried to nip a policeman who tried to comfort the actor.

The accident was the second elevator mishap to befall a leading actor in less than a year. Nine months ago, Pat Hingle, then star of the hit play "J.B.," fell from a stalled apartment house elevator when he tried to climb to the nearest floor. He was hospitalized for weeks with serious injuries and only recently has been able to return to work.

Both accidents occurred on Manhattan's upper West Side. Green's ordeal began at 12:30 a.m., when he drove his small sports car into an elevator a

Museum Boat Makes Return

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio (AP) —"Big Mama" passed downriver Saturday in what probably is her last visit to the upper Ohio Valley.

Big Mama is the slang name for the towboat Sprague, largest vessel of her kind on inland waters. She is 350 feet long and once was powered by two 1,600 horsepower steam engines.

Now a floating museum of the Ohio and Mississippi River trade, she is stationed at Vicksburg, Miss. But last summer she was loaned to Pittsburgh for a bicentennial celebration. She is being towed back.

About two decades ago Big Mama was taken out of service because later model towboats with diesel engines were cheaper to operate.

GOOD WILL TOUR

Eisenhower's Kin To Make Trip Also

WASHINGTON (AP) — "My pretty little daughter-in-law."

That was the way President Eisenhower introduced her during the final days of the 1952 political campaign, and she always got a big hand.

Now Barbara Jean Eisenhower will again be traveling with the President—she calls him "dad"—on his 19-day good will trip next month to Europe, Asia and Afica.

Eisenhower disclosed Saturday that his son and daughter-in-law will be members of his official party on the 20,000-mile trip, which will take him to nine countries and include a cruise on the Mediterranean. Maj. John Eisenhower, the President's son, is attached to the White House staff.

The President's wife, Mamie, will remain in this country. Eisenhower commented at his news conference last Wednesday that such a trip would be a little bit tough for her.

Barbara Jean, 31, is a tall, slim brunette with hazel eyes and a friendly smile. She spends most of the time as a homemaker and mother of four children, emerging only on holidays and other special occasions into the glamour and limelight that surrounds her in-laws.

The short trip she made on the campaign train—a circle through Pennsylvania during the closing days of the 1952 campaign—is stirll one of her most exciting recollections. It was her first experience with roaring crowds, end-of-train

ON CROP SURPLUSES

Solon Flays View Of Administration

PENDLETON, Ore. (AP)—The Eisenhower administration has assumed that crop surpluses mean too much crop land and too much food, but this is both shortsighted and narrow, Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) said here Saturday night.

In remarks prepared for a Democratic audience in this center of wheat and pea farming, Kennedy said the world's population is increasing at a rate that "threatens to outrun the world's capacity to produce food."

Farm abundance, he said, is "a national asset, not a liability —an asset which the Communists do not and can not have."

But a policy to deal with the abundance, Kennedy said, is dependent on "a program of full employment, sound foreign trade policy, a program of assistance to needy people, both at home and abroad, and a recognition of the need for expanded domestic consumption."

What Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson complains of as a surplus could, Kennedy said, become a permanent food shortage with too few acres of crop land to feed even the expanding American population.

Moreover, he said, there is point in a farm program trying to pursuade farmers to earn less by growing less.

Kennedy's talk here ended the second of four days of campaigning through Oregon in which he has sought to advance his Democratic presidential hopes.

At a Junior Chamber of Commerce luncheon in Bend, he said a free society is at a disadvantage competing with Communist totalitarian countries unless the people show self-discipline, self-reliance and the old-fashioned Spartan devotion to duty, honor and country.

There is fear, he said, that "the slow corrosion of luxury" has begun to sap the nation's strength.

In the Korean War, Kennedy said, nearly one out of three Americans taken prisoner collaborated to some degree with their captors and there was "a geat deal of easy yielding to enemy commands and suggestions and to their own fear and despair.'

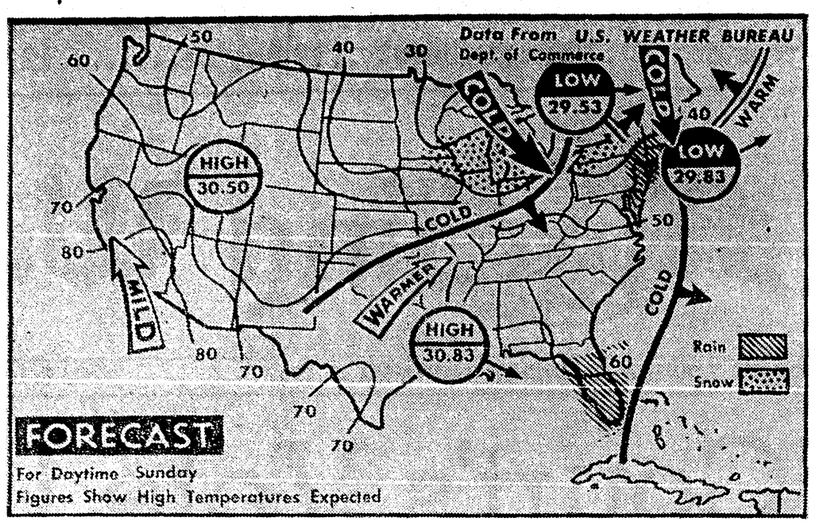
As at nearly every meeting, Kennedy was asked to justify his vote for the labor pact passed by the last Congress.

Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore), who is expected to be in Oregon's presidential primary next May as a favorite son, has gone through the state blasting Kennedy as forsaking labor on the bill and voting with the Republicans.

Kennedy said his disagreements with Morse came over procedure to be followed to prevent Senate passage of the most restrictive features of the House-passed Landrum-Griffin bill.

Kennedy said his view was supported by the AFL-CIO, by such senators as Douglas of Illinois, Magnuson and Jackson of Washington, Humphrey of Minnesota and every member of the Oregon delegation except Morse.

"If I'm wrong, I'm wrong in excellent company," Kennedy said.



WEATHER FORECAST—The outlook for Sunday is rain over parts of the middle Atlantic states and for the Florida peninsula, while light snow flurries are expected in parts of the upper Mississippi Valley and the Great Lakes area. A warming trend is due for most of Mississippi Valley and Gulf coast area up into the Ohio Valley. Elsewhere the temperatures will continue about the same as Saturday. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Ben-Gurion Stepping Up New Drive

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector (UPI) — Israeli Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion, backed by his strongest popular support in 10 years, Friday launched an intensive new campaign to abolish the proportional voting which he described as a "cancer of division."

"We must not rest until we reform the electoral system which is in deadly danger," Ben-Gurion said in an article appearing Friday in his Mapai (Labor) Party newspaper Davar.

"Though Mapai Party members have good reason to rejoice in their brilliant victory, they must not forget that we've undertaken to outroot from the body of the state the cancer of division involved . . . in the system of proportional representation," he said.

Under current Israeli election laws, voters cast their ballots for parties rather than individual candidates. Seats in the 120-seat Knesset (parliament) subsequently are assigned to political organizations on the basis of their percentage of the vote, and the parties then install as many of their candidates as they are able.

Any group of 750 citizens can enter a list of candidates. In Israel, with its diverse cultural, geographic, and lingual factions, the system has sprouted a host of splinter parties, few of them ever winning a place in Parliament. But all serve to drain away power from the main parties, thereby preventing workable control of the government.

Twenty - four parties were entered in Tuesday's general elections, in which the Mapai gathered about 38 per cent of the popular vote to reach record strength with only 47 Knesset seats, plus three for Mapai Arabs.

Canal Zone Border Quiet

PANAMA (AP) — The Panama Canal Zone border was quiet Friday and Panama's newspapers came up with a unanimous explanation of the anti-American violence that occurred there this week.

The papers said it stemmed from Panamanian resentment over American interpretation and application of treaties between the two countries.

Nationalist demonstrators clashed with U.S. troops Tuesday, Panaman's 56th anniversary of independence from Colombia. The U.S. Embassy was stoned and its flag was torn down. Protests were exchanged between the two countries.

U.S. troops guarding the Canal Zone boundary ith Panama City were withdrawn Thursday and control was returned to police. Barbed wire barricades were removed from intersections and trafic restrictions were lifted. American troops remained on duty at the border between the zone and Colon at the Atlantic end of the canal.

Panamanian complaints over the question of sovereignty in the Canal Zone date back almost to the signing of the 1903 treaty granting the United States a strip of territory for the canal in perpetuity.

Panama consistently contended that the Canal Zone was ceded for specific purposes and, although under U.S. jurisdiction, the territory is Panamanian.

The dispute over sovereignty has been intensified by recent Panamanian accusations that the United States is not fulfilling provisions of the 1955 treaty giving Panamanians equal treatment and equal employment opportunities in the Canal Zone. Panama contends lower wages scales still prevail for Panamanians working for the canal administration.

Another recurrent Panamanian complaint is that the canal administration discriminates against Panamanina businessmen in its purchsing.

Twenty Years' Service Noted By Cleaners

The staff of Unique Cleaners this week is noting 20 years of service to customers in the Twin Cities, according to Charles P. Chisholm, owner.

The business began in a small building on Cypress Street in West Monroe with Chisholm and three other persons representing the entire working force. In 1943, the business moved to larger quarters at 401 Cypress Street, home of the present West Monroe headquarters.

As the Monroe-West Monroe area grew, Unique expanded its facilities. Now there is a College Town location at 3800 DeSiard and another Monroe location in the Forsythe Shopping Center. West Monroe locations include those at 1301 Cypress, 401 Coleman and the newest location at 2940 Cypress.

The management attributes the growth of the business to continuous, prompt service and quality. Chisholm pointed out Unique kept up its policies of service and quality even during the war years.

The establishment with its drive in service locations and self service laundry stations has become one of the Twin Cities' larger businesses.

Sen. Kennedy To Visit With Harry Truman

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy will visit Harry S. Truman in Independence, Mo., when he arrives here Nov. 19.

The Massachusetts senator, potential candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, will speak at a luncheon here that day and a statewide dinner of Kansas Democrats that evening at Wichita.

Rep. Newell A. George (D-Kan), chairman of the Kansas City, Kan., luncheon, said Kennedy would go to Independence to call on the former President soon after his arrival here that morning.

George said Truman had written he woud be very happy to meet Kennedy. Truman has not announced his choice for the Democratic nomination.

AF Firm On Missile Locations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force Friday upheld the practice of locating intercontinental ballistic missile sites in the general area of existing air bases.

It said this does not materially increase the danger that enemy attacks on those sites might endanger populations of cities in the general region.

A spokesman was asked about the protest of Dr. James E. McDonald, of the University of Arizona, against building ICBM launching sites near major population centers.

McDonald contends that this means creation of prime targets for enemy attack and that fallout from nuclear detonations in the attack would endanger the populations of cities in the areas.

Most of the ICBM bases are being built on or near existing airdromes—which already are targets. One reason is that the supplying and operation of the launching sites can be done from the central existing military bases.

In some instances, the land on which launching sites are being built already is owned or controlled by the Air Force as part of the existing base facilities.

The selection of a main support base for missile facilities and the location of launch sites is made only after thorough consideration of all factors, the spokesman said. One of these factors is the safety of residents in the areas and of the military personnel operating the missile bases.

Referring to suggestions that the launching sites should be located far from populated regions, the spokesman said several factors, including money, are involved.

"It must be noted," he said, "that the construction of completely new, self-sufficient missile facilities in such areas as isolated sections of the Rocky Mountains would not be feasible in terms of initial costs, time of construction, high costs of support facilities and other factors of this nature.

"Where costs are reasonable and it is in the best interests of the government, missile facilities are being located at highly selective sites in the Rocky Mountain area. Examples of these are the missile facilities being or to be constructed at Mountain Home, Idaho; Spokane, Wash.; Denver, Colo.; Cheyenne, Wyo.; and Rapid City, S.D."

Ben-Gurion Stepping Up New Drive

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector (UPI) — Israeli Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion, backed by his strongest popular support in 10 years, Friday launched an intensive new campaign to abolish the proportional voting which he described as a "cancer of division."

"We must not rest until we reform the electoral system which is in deadly danger," Ben-Gurion said in an article appearing Friday in his Mapai (Labor) Party newspaper Davar.

"Though Mapai Party members have good reason to rejoice in their brilliant victory, they must not forget that we've undertaken to outroot from the body of the state the cancer of division involved . . . in the system of proportional representation," he said.

Under current Israeli election laws, voters cast their ballots for parties rather than individual candidates. Seats in the 120-seat Knesset (parliament) subsequently are assigned to political organizations on the basis of their percentage of the vote, and the parties then install as many of their candidates as they are able.

Any group of 750 citizens can enter a list of candidates. In Israel, with its diverse cultural, geographic, and lingual factions, the system has sprouted a host of splinter parties, few of them ever winning a place in Parliament. But all serve to drain away power from the main parties, thereby preventing workable control of the government.

Twenty - four parties were entered in Tuesday's general elections, in which the Mapai gathered about 38 per cent of the popular vote to reach record strength with only 47 Knesset seats, plus three for Mapai Arabs.

Canal Zone Border Quiet

PANAMA (AP) — The Panama Canal Zone border was quiet Friday and Panama's newspapers came up with a unanimous explanation of the anti-American violence that occurred there this week.

The papers said it stemmed from Panamanian resentment over American interpretation and application of treaties between the two countries.

Nationalist demonstrators clashed with U.S. troops Tuesday, Panaman's 56th anniversary of independence from Colombia. The U.S. Embassy was stoned and its flag was torn down. Protests were exchanged between the two countries.

U.S. troops guarding the Canal Zone boundary ith Panama City were withdrawn Thursday and control was returned to police. Barbed wire barricades were removed from intersections and trafic restrictions were lifted. American troops remained on duty at the border between the zone and Colon at the Atlantic end of the canal.

Panamanian complaints over the question of sovereignty in the Canal Zone date back almost to the signing of the 1903 treaty granting the United States a strip of territory for the canal in perpetuity.

Panama consistently contended that the Canal Zone was ceded for specific purposes and, although under U.S. jurisdiction, the territory is Panamanian.

The dispute over sovereignty has been intensified by recent Panamanian accusations that the United States is not fulfilling provisions of the 1955 treaty giving Panamanians equal treatment and equal employment opportunities in the Canal Zone. Panama contends lower wages scales still prevail for Panamanians working for the canal administration.

Another recurrent Panamanian complaint is that the canal administration discriminates against Panamanina businessmen in its purchsing.

Twenty Years' Service Noted By Cleaners

The staff of Unique Cleaners this week is noting 20 years of service to customers in the Twin Cities, according to Charles P. Chisholm, owner.

The business began in a small building on Cypress Street in West Monroe with Chisholm and three other persons representing the entire working force. In 1943, the business moved to larger quarters at 401 Cypress Street, home of the present West Monroe headquarters.

As the Monroe-West Monroe area grew, Unique expanded its facilities. Now there is a College Town location at 3800 DeSiard and another Monroe location in the Forsythe Shopping Center. West Monroe locations include those at 1301 Cypress, 401 Coleman and the newest location at 2940 Cypress.

The management attributes the growth of the business to continuous, prompt service and quality. Chisholm pointed out Unique kept up its policies of service and quality even during the war years.

The establishment with its drive in service locations and self service laundry stations has become one of the Twin Cities' larger businesses.

Sen. Kennedy To Visit With Harry Truman

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy will visit Harry S. Truman in Independence, Mo., when he arrives here Nov. 19.

The Massachusetts senator, potential candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, will speak at a luncheon here that day and a statewide dinner of Kansas Democrats that evening at Wichita.

Rep. Newell A. George (D-Kan), chairman of the Kansas City, Kan., luncheon, said Kennedy would go to Independence to call on the former President soon after his arrival here that morning.

George said Truman had written he woud be very happy to meet Kennedy. Truman has not announced his choice for the Democratic nomination.

AF Firm On Missile Locations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force Friday upheld the practice of locating intercontinental ballistic missile sites in the general area of existing air bases.

It said this does not materially increase the danger that enemy attacks on those sites might endanger populations of cities in the general region.

A spokesman was asked about the protest of Dr. James E. McDonald, of the University of Arizona, against building ICBM launching sites near major population centers.

McDonald contends that this means creation of prime targets for enemy attack and that fallout from nuclear detonations in the attack would endanger the populations of cities in the areas.

Most of the ICBM bases are being built on or near existing airdromes—which already are targets. One reason is that the supplying and operation of the launching sites can be done from the central existing military bases.

In some instances, the land on which launching sites are being built already is owned or controlled by the Air Force as part of the existing base facilities.

The selection of a main support base for missile facilities and the location of launch sites is made only after thorough consideration of all factors, the spokesman said. One of these factors is the safety of residents in the areas and of the military personnel operating the missile bases.

Referring to suggestions that the launching sites should be located far from populated regions, the spokesman said several factors, including money, are involved.

"It must be noted," he said, "that the construction of completely new, self-sufficient missile facilities in such areas as isolated sections of the Rocky Mountains would not be feasible in terms of initial costs, time of construction, high costs of support facilities and other factors of this nature.

Restaurant Group Sets General Meet

The Northeast Chapter of the Louisiana Restaurant Association will hold its first general meeting tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the Mirror Room of the Frances Hotel, it was announced yesterday.

Congressman Otto E. Passman will address the group also J. C. Berry of New Orleans, vice president of the organization. Members of the group said all Northeast Louisiana restaurant operators and their wives were invited to attend the meeting.

Davis Cites Past Record As Platform

BERNICE Special — Former Gov. Jimmie H. Davis said Saturday that he intends to be governor of all citizens of the state when elected, regardless of past political alignments. He called for an end to political factionalism in the state.

Speaking with Davis were the following candidates: C. C. "Taddy" Aycock, for lieutenant governor; Rufus D. Hayes, commissioner of insurance; Jack. P. F. Gremillion, attorney general; Ellen Bryan Moore, register of state lands; Roy R. Theriot, state comptroller and Jimmy Fontenot, independent candidate for custodian of voting machines.

PAST

"What your politics have been in the past and whom you voted for is no concern of mine," Davis said. "When I am elected governor I intend to serve all of the people of the state without prejudice and without partiality. I am campaigning on the Jimmie Davis record and the Davis-Aycock platform and I am soliciting the support of voters in all walks of life, without regard to previous political alignments."

Davis cited his record as governor from 1944-48 and said his accomplishments would not have been possible without the atmosphere of peace and harmony prevailing at the time. He looked forward to the time when citizens of the state can work together again "to realize the full potential of Louisiana."

Aycock outlined his qualifications for the post of lieutenant governor, pointing to his record in the house of representatives. He said he supported every single piece of legislation designed to preserve segregation in the state.

Hayes told his audience as commissioner of insurance he worked toward passage of legislation restricting the sale of bogus insurance stocks in the state.

Gremillion blasted the tactics of the civil rights commission in "terrorizing and intimidating" voter registrars in Louisiana and pledged an all - out fight against the federal government for states rights and state ownership of the tidelands.

Mrs. Moore asked for support of her own candidacy and for the members of the Davis - Aycock ticket. She said the ticket is the best qualified in the current race.

Theriot pointed to his election to a second term as mayor of Abbeville as proof of his administrative ability. He said during his term a central purchasing agency was established, representing savings to the town's taxpayers.

Sunday Davis and members of the Davis - Aycock ticket are scheduled to speak at Church Point at 11 a.m.; Rayne, 1:30 p.m.; Lawtell, 4 p.m. and Part Barre, six p.m.

Observance Of Education Week Slated

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 39th annual observance of American Education Week begins Sunday.

Lawrence G. Derthick, U.S. commissioner of education, reminded Americans Saturday they will have a special opportunity during the week to learn what their schools and colleges are doing for them and for their children.

The main theme for the observance is "Praise and appraise your schools."

Derthick cited statistics showing U.S. educational progress since 1920 which included:

"School and college enrollments in that year (1920) totaled 24 million. Today they are 46½ million.

"Secondary schools of today have about four times as many students as the high schools of 1920. Colleges and universities today enroll six times the number of students at the college-university level of 1920."

Derthick said that when American Education Week was launched, children in public schools went to school 162 days a year and that now the school term length is about 179 days.

For each child in attendance at school in 1920, the average annual expenditure was $64 compared to about $460 now, he said.

ROBERT DOUGHERTY

Monroe Man To Lead State Polio March

Robert P "Bob" Dougherty of Monroe has been named Louisiana State Chairman for the 1960 March of Dimes by Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation.

Mr. Dougherty is Personnel Manager of the Forest Products Operations of the Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation.

The new Louisiana Chairman is a veteran of The National Foundation program and served as Arkansas State Chairman for the March of Dimes in 1954, and as a dedicated leader in this field, he declared:

"It is my intention, no matter where I am, to carry on the fight against polio until it is wiped out as a crippling and death-dealing threat to persons of all ages. Vaccination with the Salk vaccine for every man, woman and child will help towards this end, but, in the meantime, we have to provide funds for treatment and rehabilitation for those for whom the vaccine came too late and those who came too late for the vaccine."

Expressing confidence that the people of Louisiana will continue their support of the March of Dimes, Mr. Dougherty revealed plans for a tour of the state to discuss the present polio incidence, vaccination status of the people and rehabilitation of polio patients stricken in previous years, as well as the care for the acute cases.

Mr. Dougherty is married to the former Suzanne Tetley. They have three sons: Bobby, 8; Tommy, 5; and Kenny, 2.

He is a lay-reader in the Episcopal Church and former director of the Area Girl Scout Council in Monroe. A veteran of World War II he still maintains his military status as a Major in the United States Air Force Reserves.

Hindu God Claims Peak As Home

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP)—Legend says the Hindu god of destruction and his wife live atop the 23,440-foot Himalayan peak where a 32-member Japanese mountain climbing expedition vanished last month.

No mountaineer ever has been atop Mt. Guari Shankar, 75 miles east of here on the Nepal-Tibet frontier. Shankar is another name for the Hindu god Shiva. Gauri is his wife.

Officials fear the expedition led by Japanese statistician Hideko Kato perished in recent avalanches on the unconquered peak. But some Alpinists here still speculate that the group may have tried to climb the mountain's northern face in Tibet and been taken prisoner by Communist Chinese troops that probably occupy the area.

In 1954, Swiss Alpinist Raymond Lambert, who unsuccessfully tried to scale the blizzard-swept mountain, said it could not be climbed above 21,000 feet on the Nepali side and suggested climbers try it from Tibet.

A Nepalese aerial search Saturday failed to find any trace of the expedition. Flying at 19,000 feet, a plane circled six times around the area where Kato, his two Japanese companions—Moriake Abe and Mitsuharu Oishi, a Nepalese college student, two Sherpa guides and 26 porters were last heard of after leaving their base camp 13,000 feet up Mt. Gauri Shankar more than three weeks ago.

Although the plane was unable to fly higher, the passengers, including Nepalese Transport Minister Ganeshman Singh, could scan the upper slopes of the mountain. They were accompanied by two Japanese physicians and the Sherpa runner who brought news Friday that the climbers were missing.

Ganeshman said the mountain was clearly visible, "but there was no trace of any living being."

He said the runner located the place where the base camp was pitched, but "a very high wind and dangerous air pockets prevented us from attempting a flight across the ravines, where land search parties may be useful."

Prime Minister B. P. Koirala sent out ground search parties, but they are not expected to report back for 10 days.

32 Persons Gone After Climb Try

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Thirty-two persons — three Japanese alpinists and 29 Nepalese porters—have vanished in an attempt to climb the forbiding face of Mt. Gauri Sankar.

Two runners brought word Friday that the expedition disappeared in mid-October, when avalanches swept the Himalayas in the region of that 23,340-foot peak, and no trace has been found in a three-week hunt.

Premier B. P. Koirala ordered all soldiers and guides in the area to carry on the search.

The 32 men were last reported camped at the 20,000-foot level and cut off by blizzards from a supply base 2,000 feet below them.

Avalanches about the same time carried away two women of an all-woman climbing epedition on Mt. Cho Oyu, farther west.

Two themes dominated speculation here:

1. The entire expedition may have been buried by avalanches on Gauri Sankar, which marks the frontier of Nepal and Tibet about 35 miles west of 29,002-foot Mt. Everest, the world's highest mountain.

2. The men, finding tough going on the Nepalese slopes that experts have described as unclimable, may have tried the Tibetan side and been arrested by Red Chinese troops.

The expedition leader was Hieki Kato, 38, a veteran mountaineer and statistican for the Fukuoka prefectural goverment, who wished to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the founding of Fukuoka University, his alma mater.

His Japanese companions were Moriaki Abe and Mitsuharu Oishi. The three were reported to have started their trek from Katmandu Nepal's capital, two months ago with four guides and 51 porters.

One of the women lost on Mt. Cho Oyu, Mrs. Claude Kogan of France, declared in 1956 that Mt. Gauri Sankar could not be climbed from the Nepakese side, though it possibly could be from the Tibetan side. This opinion was shared by a Swiss guide, Raymond Lambert.

Idle Total Climbing In Nation

DETROIT (UPI)—General Motors announced plans Friday to lay off another 8,100 workers, boosting the total idled for the duration of the steel strike to 212,865.

The total did not include 50,000 to 55,000 Ford Motor Co. employes who were "furloughed" for the rest of the week as Ford sought to conserve its steel supplies and avoid "duration layoffs."

An undetermined number of Chrysler Corp. employes also were aided for short periods under three- and four - day work schedules and were not included in the total.

Included, however, were 5,850 Chrysler Corp. employes who have been laid off for the duration of the steel strike.

Most of those laid off for the duration were General Motors employes. GM said it has sent home 200,215 employes and will send home at least another 6,800 within the next week.

Only three GM divisions had cars or trucks rolling off the assembly lines. Chevrolet Division said it was still producing Corvairs at two plants and Chevrolet trucks at eight. Production of full-sized Chevrolets was limited to one plant which also was turning out Corvairs.

A trickle of cars was still coming off the Buick assembly line at Flint, Mich., and GMC Truck and Coach Division was producing a limited number of trucks and buses.

Chrysler Corp. scheduled short work weeks at all except two of its plants and Ford maintained full output only at Lorain, Ohio, and Kansas City plants turning out Falcons.

American Motors and Studebaker-Packard had enough steel to continue full operations. S-P scheduled five - day operations while AM scheduled six-day operations at its plant in Kenosha, Wis.

Veterans' Day Celebrations Announced Here

Plans for the observance and celebration of Veterans' Day, Wednesday, November 11, were completed at the last meeting of the L. B. Faulk Post No. 13 of the American Legion in Monroe.

Saul Adler, outstanding Monroe legionnaire, was appointed chairman of the Grand Bar-B-Que event which will be held at the Post Home on Wednesday between the hours of 6 and 9 p.m. Adler and his committee have completed plans to decorate the Home especially for this observance of the signing of Armistice after World War I. For years this commemoration was known as Armistice Day, but after the Korean War the name was changed to Veterans' Day.

Adler reported that this year's observance will be the largest event of late, and is expected to attract many distinguished persons from the area.

Ed Skoog, Jr. is in charge of other special ceremonies in connection with Veterans' Day.

Red Rumors Dubbed As Fairy Tales

CHICAGO (AP) — Rumors that the Soviet Union has developed an experimental atomic-powered airplane and locomotive are simply fairy tales, a top Soviet atomic scientist said Saturday.

Prof. Vasily S. Emelyanov, head of the main administration for utilization of atomic energy in the U.S.S.R., also denied that the Soviets are using small, controlled nuclear explosions to blast out new harbors and improve their watersheds.

"I have never heard of it. It is not being done," he told a news conference.

Emelyanov and eight other Soviet nuclear scientists and engineers are inspecting various atomic power plants and other atomic installations in the United States.

Their tour marks the first mass inspection by Soviet scientists of U. S. peacetime atomic accomplishments. It followed a similar tour of various Soviet atomic installations last month by a delegation of American atomic scientists headed by John A. McCone, chairman of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission.

Arrangements for the reciprocal visits were made during the recent visit of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to the United States.

Emelyanov, spokesman for the visitors, held a news conference during a tour of the Argonne National Laboratory in suburban Lemont. The laboratory, specializing in atomic research, is operated for the Atomic Energy Commission by the University of Chicago.

The Soviet scientist declined to express an opinion as to whether the Soviet Union leads or lags the United States in the development of atomic energy for peaceful uses.

"I have never been to the races myself and I don't think science is like a race," he said.

It is too early, he said, to know whether Soviet scientists are near some breakthrough or developing atomic - fueled electrical power which can compete with conventional coal-fueled electrical power.

He said that both the United States and Soviet Union stand to gain from a program of mutual cooperation in atomic research.

Family Gets Money Offer For Baby

TIMPERLEY, England (AP)—Sheila Winkley said Saturday night she is considering giving her unborn baby to an American family whose offer included $1,000.

Mrs. Winkley said the offer was cabled in the name of Mrs. Robert Anderson of Upper Montclair, N.J. The cable was sent from Jacksonville, Fla.

"It's the most favorable offer we've had so far," said the 27-year-old blonde Mrs. Winkley. She says she will give her fifth baby away because she dislikes washing diapers and thinks the child will have a better upbringing in the United States.

Mrs. Winkley said the cable read:

"Best possible home love and college for baby. Payment 1,000 dollars from us to help your own children and hospital bills. Will come for baby. Letter following."

The message was one of a number Mrs. Winkley and her husband Roy, 29, unemployed engineer, received from the United States.

The Winkleys have two children—David, 8, and Annette, 5—living with them in their neat little house here. A third, Christine, 4, is in a welfare home for special medical attention.

Last year they created a nationwide storm by announcing they were expecting their fourth child and would give it away because they didn't like the job of looking after babies. The child was adopted by an English couple.

This time the Winkleys say baby No. 5, expected in March, will go to an American couple.

"There are better opportunities for children there," Mrs. Winkley said.

Bad Check Artist Jailed

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—A 36-year-old commercial artist who said he wrote bad checks to finance counterfeiting experiments was jailed Saturday on a federal charge.

Secret Service agent in charge LeRoy M. Letteer said Paul Richard Turner had used 20 to 30 aliases while touring 43 states perfecting his technique for making bogus $5 and $20 bills.

Letteer quoted Turner, who has served three prison terms for forgery, as saying, "I knew I couldn't go on forever writing bad checks so I was looking to the future."

Turner was charged with possessing equipment to manufacture counterfeit money. Officers seized a camera, offset printing supplies and plates.

Letteer said Turner had designed a counterfeit bill that was "quite good."

32 Persons Gone After Climb Try

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Thirty-two persons — three Japanese alpinists and 29 Nepalese porters—have vanished in an attempt to climb the forbiding face of Mt. Gauri Sankar.

Two runners brought word Friday that the expedition disappeared in mid-October, when avalanches swept the Himalayas in the region of that 23,340-foot peak, and no trace has been found in a three-week hunt.

Premier B. P. Koirala ordered all soldiers and guides in the area to carry on the search.

The 32 men were last reported camped at the 20,000-foot level and cut off by blizzards from a supply base 2,000 feet below them.

Avalanches about the same time carried away two women of an all-woman climbing epedition on Mt. Cho Oyu, farther west.

Two themes dominated speculation here:

1. The entire expedition may have been buried by avalanches on Gauri Sankar, which marks the frontier of Nepal and Tibet about 35 miles west of 29,002-foot Mt. Everest, the world's highest mountain.

2. The men, finding tough going on the Nepalese slopes that experts have described as unclimable, may have tried the Tibetan side and been arrested by Red Chinese troops.

The expedition leader was Hieki Kato, 38, a veteran mountaineer and statistican for the Fukuoka prefectural government, who wished to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the founding of Fukuoka University, his alma mater.

His Japanese companions were Moriaki Abe and Mitsuharu Oishi. The three were reported to have started their trek from Katmandu Nepal's capital, two months ago with four guides and 51 porters.

One of the women lost on Mt. Cho Oyu, Mrs. Claude Kogan of France, declared in 1956 that Mt. Gauri Sankar could not be climbed from the Nepakese side, though it possibly could be from the Tibetan side. This opinion was shared by a Swiss guide, Raymond Lambert.

Border Tension Hinders Search

B. P. Koirala ordered the search intensified. The Premier himself was reported going to a checkpoint to supervise the rescue efforts.

REPORTED

At the same time, the government was reported to have requested New Delhi authorities to lend it some Indian Air Force planes that would fly over the expedition's base camps on the mountain in an effort to spot the missing climbers.

New Delhi reports said that the Indian government had agreed to provide the planes for the search but specified that the aircraft could not fly over Gauri Shanker peak because it touched the frontier with Communist China.

The reports said, however, the Nepalese government was seeking to get the Peiping regime's permission for Indian Air Force planes to fly over the border peak.

There was no immediate indication whether permission would be granted by the Communists in view of the deteriorating Indian-Chinese Communist relations stemming from intrusions by Red troops along the disputed border.

News of the apparent tragedy was brought to Katmandu Friday by two porters who climbed from the foot of Gauri Shanker to the 18,000-foot base camp seeking news of the missing expedition, said to have arrived at that level early in October.

The two men reported they had found two porters from the Japanese-led party who had been left behind while the 32 other members of the group climbed up toward the 20,000-foot level.

A Swiss mountaineer, Raymond Lambert, who had made an attempt to scale Gauri Shanker in 1954., declared that the peak was "unclimable" above the 21,000-foot level.

The missing Japanese expedition, organized by Fukuoka University's mountaineering department, was headed by Hideki Kato, 38, and included two other Japanese, one Nepali liaison officer, two Sherpa guides and 26 porters.

of the Florida peninsula and the Florida Keys, tiny islands that string out from the lower coast like stepping stones of a garden path.

Three U.S. Air Force C119 cargo planes and an SA16 searched the wild Everglades which sprawl across the lower portion of the Florida peninsula.

By 5 p.m. the Air Force reported that the Keys had been thoroughly scanned and all of the lower mainland had been criss-crossed except the lonely and watery southwest tip.

The search was then discontinued until Sunday.

Cuban exiles in Miami were electrified by the news of Cienfuegos' disappearance and there was speculation that he had defected from Castro's revolutionary regime like the Air Force Commander, Maj. Pedro Diaz Lanz, who charged that Cuba had been infiltrated by Communists.

Solon Suggests Powerful New Labor Court

the strikers back to work for an 80-day cooling off period.

What is needed, Smathers' statement said, is a court with powers as great as the Supreme Court's to step in and settle major Labor - Management disputes before a strike develops.

The proposed court's authority should come into play, he said, when it becomes obvious that a collective bargaining impasse has been reached.

He said either side should have the right to call in the court to end the deadlock. The five judges then would hear the testimony and hand down a decision from which there would be no appeal.

Somewhat similar proposals have been advanced before, and have run into heated criticism. Opponents contend the issues are too complex in a free economy. Some Latin-American and European countries do have labor courts. The critics say among other things a settlement invariably must raise the question of price fixing, and that price fixing except in wartime is repugnant to the American way. They also speak of political pressures to which such a court might be subjected.

Smathers, however, said the public is entitled to the protection he believes his plan would provide, and that both employers and employes would benefit.

Steel Mill Workers Set For Return

will be busy for some time with work involved in reopening the long-idle mills.

Joseph F. Finnegan, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said he hopes to know by Monday when contract negotiations will be resumed. They have been suspended pending outcome of the Supreme Court appeal.

Steel officials estimated it will take up to six weeks to get production back to 90 per cent of capacity. They figure it will take three weeks to get new steel rolling in an important way.

Arthur J. Goldberg, union counsel who waged a losing battle to have the back-to-work injunction set aside, said he was naturally disappointed by the ruling.

"From the Supreme Court the only appeal is to God," he was quoted as telling the National Broadcasting Co.

Goldberg said no purpose would be served by trying for a rehearing.

Justice William O. Douglas was the high court's lone dissenter.

The eight other members — Chief Justice Earl Warren and Justices Hugo L. Black, Felix Frankfurter, Tom C. Clark, John M. Harlan, William J. Brennan Jr., Charles E. Whittaker and Potter Stewart—concurred in a five-page unsigned opinion upholding the injunction.

It was the first time the court ever had ruled on the validity of Section 208 of the Taft-Hartley Act, passed in 1947.

This is the section which authorizes the government to seek "coolin-off" injunctions in strikes which "if permitted to occur or to continue, will imperil the national health or safety."

Fifteen times the government has asked a U.S. District Court to issue an injunction under this section. Each time the request has been granted.

In the majority opinion, the Supreme Court rejected all contentions the union made in urging that the injunction be struck down. Among other arguments, the union said Section 208 was unconstitutional on the ground it attempted to confer upon federal courts nonjudicial functions.

"We are of the opinion," said the court, "that the provision in question as applied here is not violative of the constitutional limitation prohibiting courts from exercising powers of a legislative or executive nature."

To the union's argument that the statute was invalid because it does not set up standards of lawful or unlawful conduct on the part of labor or management, the majority said: "But the statute does recognize certain rights in the public to have unimpeded for a time production in industries vital to the national health or safety. It makes the United States the guardian of these rights in litigation."

The majority said Congress, in passing Section 208, was not concerned with the merits of the positions of either side in a labor dispute or with their conduct of negotiations.

"Its basic purpose seems to have been to see that vital production should be resumed or continued for a time while further efforts were made to settle the dispute," the court said.

"To carry out its purposes, Congress carefully surrounded the injunction proceedings with detailed procedural devices and limitations," the opinion said.

"The public report of a board of inquiry, the exercise of political and executive responsibility personally by the president in directing the commencement of injunction proceedings, the statutory provisions looking toward and adjustment of the dispute during the injunction's pendency, and the limited duration of the injunction, represent a congressional determination of policy factors involved in the difficult problem of national emergency strikes.

"This congressional determination of the policy factors is of course binding on the courts."

The Justice Department, acting upon instructions from Eisenhower, obtained the injunction from Judge Herbert P. Sorge in U.S. District Court in Pittsburgh Oct. 21. The U.S. 3rd Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia upheld the action six days later. Effectiveness of the back-to-work order was stayed until the high court acted.

The union said Sorge's findings that the continuation of the strike would imperil the national health and safety were unsupported by the evidence.

The union insisted "national health," as used in the act, meant physical health; the government contended the term comprehends the country's general well-being, its economic health.

"We need not resolve this question, for we think the judgment below was amply supported on the ground that the strike imperils the national safety," the Supreme Court said. "Here we rely upon the evidence of the strike's effect on specific defense projects; we need not pass on the government's contention that 'national safety' in this context should be given a broader construction and application."

In his 14-page dissenting opinion, Justice Douglas said the case should be returned to District Court "for particularized findings as to how the steel strike imperils the 'national health' and what plants need to be reopened to produce the small quantity of steel now needed for the 'national safety.'"

"I am unwilling to take judicial notice that it requires 100 per cent of the workers to produce the steel needed for national defense when 99 per cent of the output is devoted to purposes entirely unconnected with defense projects," Douglas said.

"If 1,000 men, or 5,000 men, or 10,000 men can produce the critical amount the defense departments need, what authority is there to send 500,000 men back to work?" Douglas wrote.

The 116-day strike, longest industrywide shutdown in steel history, has cost an estimated more than six billion dollars in wage and production losses.

More than 350,000 workers in steel-related industries were laid off, resulting in additional wage and production losses running into millions.

satisfy Khrushchev's demand for ending the Western occupation of Berlin and at the same time protecting the freedom of the city through the continued presence of Western forces here.

At the other extreme Adenauer has said he thinks the Western powers should negotiate for a disarmament agreement in the summit meeting. In other words he does not favor negotiations on West Berlin.

Eisenhower has laid down a requirement that anything the West agrees on with Khrushchev must be acceptable to the people of West Berlin.

Eisenhower's travel schedule disclosed that on his swing into Asia he will be accompanied by his son, Maj. John Eisenhower, and daughter-in-law, Barbara Eisenhower. Mrs. Eisenhower will not make the trip.

Eisenhower, the formal schedule showed, will take a rest during his trip by making the portion of the journey from Athens to Paris by U.S. Navy cruiser and by train. He will board the cruiser late on Dec. 15, debark at Toulon, France, on Dec. 18 and arrive at Paris by train around midnight that night.

The schedule published Saturday generally confirmed dates which had become known unofficially earlier in the week. Still not disclosed was the precise detail as to what Eisenhower will do in each place he visits.

Within a space of three weeks beginning shortly before midnight Dec. 3 he will fly from Washington, visit nine capitals, confer with a number of national leaders including India's Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru and the Western European allies, and return in time for Christmas.

He will be in Rome from late Dec. 4 until noon Dec. 6. While there he will have an audience with Pope John XXIII.

On Dec. 6 he will fly to Ankara and spend the afternoon and evening visiting with Turkish officials.

The next morning he will take off for Karachi, Pakistan, arriving late in the day. He will spend the night of Dec. 7 and all the next day and night at Karachi, leaving there on Dec. 9 for a flight to New Delhi, India, by way of Kabul, Afghanistan. He will reach Kabul the morning of Dec. 9 and leave there in the afternoon, landing at New Delhi late that day.

Leaving New Delhi, Eisenhower will fly to Tehran for a 5½-hour visit Dec. 14 and then go to Athens where he will spend the night and most of the following day, until he boards the cruiser. After the Paris meeting Eisenhower will fly home by way of Rabat, Morocco, leaving Paris early Dec. 22 back from his home.

The elevator is operated by pulling a cable to get it started. Green got out of his car and pulled the cable. Then he stooped to examine a tire. As he bent over, he lost his balance and his left leg was caught between the moving elevator car and the wall.

As the elevator rose slowly, it tore Green's leg: He screamed for help and tried to halt the elevator, but it kept moving until it stopped automatically at the second floor.

Daniel Sabia, 39, a garage attendant, heard Green's agonized cries and rushed upstairs.

"My leg is caught," Green gasped.

Sabia called police who summoned an ambulance from Knickerbocker Hospital. Dr. P. Shamsuddin, 25, of Madras, India, who has been at the hospital for four months as an exchange doctor, arrived aboard the ambulance 15 minutes later.

Shamsuddin examined Green, who was in great pain, and told him "the leg will have to be amputated."

A policeman asked the doctor to wait. The intern stepped back and policemen used heavy iron bars to try to pry Green's leg free. The attempt failed.

"All of the bones in your leg are shattered, Mr. Green," the doctor said. "It is hanging only by some torn muscle. I must amputage."

The doctor told Green that he faced the danger of infection.

"Under those circustances, doctor," Green said, "you have my permission."

For the sixth time, Air Force planes will be waiting aloft to try to snatch the parachuting capsule from the sky near Hawaii.

The capsule contains no animal life but a duplicate of it is expected to carry monkeys into orbit later in the Discoverer series.

Discoverer VII blasted away from its pad on the beach shortly after noon (PST).

Atop the first stage Thor booster was a 19-foot second stage made by Lockheed Aircraft Corp. After separation, the second stage is supposed to rocket into orbit on its own power, circling the earth every 90 minutes.

It may be two or three hours before the Air Force announces whether the second stage, carrying the highly instrumented 300-pound capsule in its nose, achieved orbit.

NOT HAPPY

Steelworker Tells Reaction To Ruling

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — "The government can force me back to the mills, but no one—not even President Eisenhower or the courts—can make me say that I'm happy about it."

That was the reaction of steelworker John Iskat to the announcement that the United States Supreme Court had upheld a Taft-Hartley injunction ordering the strikers back into the nation's steel mills for 80 days.

Iskat called the injunction a "one-sided affair"—favoring the steel companies.

"It's not going to mean much to us. Maybe it'll be a couple of bucks but you can bet they'll really work us during those 80 days. The companies will stockpile and will have enough when we go back on strike," said Iskat, a pipe fitter at U.S. Steel's Edgar Thomson works in Braddock, Pa.

Eddie Pavlan, a craneman at Braddocks' open hearth department, said the injunction was "just a shrewd move to try to break the union."

"After a while, steelworkers get used to really scrimping on everything. So what happens now? He (President Eisenhower) tells us we can have some bread in our mouths for a couple of weeks, but then we'll have it taken right out in 80 days. It's senseless."

Pavan thought the President should have acted sooner—"before everyone suffered so much."

"Eisenhower sure took a long time to make up his mind. He waited three months. Why didn't he wait three years?"

Many steelworkers believe the 80-day cooling off period would not accomplish much.

"What's the common steel laborer to get out of it? Nothing—with a capital 'N'," insisted Harry Miller, who works as a stockman in the tin tempering department at U.S. Steel's Irvin works in West Mifflin, Pa.

"This is a pro-industry move if I ever saw one."

Miller was eating lunch at union headquarters when queried by United Press International.

"Do you see this soup line? it's not going to end for a while. We won't get a check for at least a month. Then we'll get off the soup line for a while, and be right back on after this ridiculous 80 days runs out," he said.

CD Officials Give Comment On Fallout

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Civil Defense office said Saturday the problem of providing radioactive fallout protection in metropolitan areas "is certainly not beyond reach, either physically or financially."

Reporting on the first community survey completed by the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, Director Leo A. Hoegh said the findings are encouraging. He added that they "provide sound guidelines for the solid planning and action that is demanded by the thermonuclear age."

Hoegh said the community study conducted in Tulsa, Okla., shows that "significant protection" is offered by existing structures. He listed these other findings:

1. Existing business district shelter capacities can be increased at moderate cost.

2. There is need for additional higher-grade shelter.

3. Added shelter can be developed at least cost in areas of greatest need.

4. Shelter surveys can be made in larger cities at reasonable cost.

Hoegh said these major conclusions are valid even though the Tulsa figures cannot be used for other cities. In fact, he said nearly complete findings from surveys in Montgomery City and County, Ala., and Contra Costa County, Calif., showed wide variations in the percentages of the various qualities of protection.

Hower, he said the major conclusions will be further checked through a fourth survey in Milwaukee, and others to be made.

Demo Council Scores Ike's Leadership

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Democratic Advisory Council blamed Eisenhower administration domestic economic policies Saturday for the nation's unfavorable balance of international trade.

Dr. John K. Galbraith, chairman of the council's economic committee, told a news conference that the administration's tight money policy and what he said were restrictions on investments have caused a drop in exports.

Galbraith said committee members agreed unanimously that there should be no doubt about the soundness of the American dollar—an issue which has worried Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson in connection with the unfavorable trade balance.

He said that the committee agreed the postwar objective of foreign aid and other expenditures abroad was to develop a more competitive international system under which other nations would strengthen their currencies in comparison with the dollar.

"Now that that policy is beginning to become successful, there is no reason to take fright about the stability of the dollar," Galbraith said.

He said the advisory council believes the situation can be met by expansion of international markets, revision of the foreign aid responsibility to bring other countries into the contributing class, and elimination of waste in military and civilian aid.

Galbraith disagreed with Anderson's contention that an unbalanced budget would contribute to weakening the dollar.

Budgetary factors don't contribute importantly to currency stability Galbraith said.

"We are much less concerned with budget balancing than the Republicans are as long as the national economy is operating so much below capacity," he added.

Galbraith said his group is opposed to the "buy America" policy laid down by Anderson for development loans to other countries.

Khrushchev 'Demoted' By President

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower "demoted" Nikita Khrushchev Saturday but it didn't mean a thing.

Eisenhower sent greetings on the anniversary of the founding of the Soviet Union 42 years ago to President Klementi Y. Voroshilov.

He thus treated Voroshilov as the chief of state of the Soviet Union. Less than two months ago he treated Khrushchev the same way.

Khrushchev came to the United States by his own decision as the man in whom Soviet sovereignty rests—comparable to a president or a king.

Such rank entitled him to the full red carpet treatment under the rules of international protocol. He got 21-gun salutes when he arrived and when he left, a state dinner at the White House, and presidential reception at the airport—all the trappings which custom decrees for a visiting sovereign.

Everybody who was interested knew, however, that there was in the formal sense a considerable degree of pretense in all this. Khrushchev's position was and is that of the chairman of the Council of Ministers which gives him the Westernized title by which he is generally known in the outside world, that of "premier"

While Khrushchev is recognized in fact as the real boss and chief of the Soviet government, as well as the huge sprawling Communist empire under Soviet domination, Voroshilov is accepted in world capitals as the formal head of the Soviet Union. This gives him the top rank though he has little if any power. Formally, he is the chairman of the President of the Supreme Soviet.

Amendment Set To Be Proposed

"most assuredly, we share your concern and distress over the unfortunate episode in broadcasting which has occurred in connection with the rigging of certain television quiz shows."

"I believe the fact that the broadcasting industry in general was as surprised at these revelations as was the general public, goes without saying. I can assure you that neither the Television Code Review Board nor I was aware of these behind-the-scenes manipulations," he wrote.

"I realize that some, with the benefit of 20-20 hindsight, will regard this naivete as unbelievable, but these are the facts."

Fellows said that recent statements on the part of both the National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting System indicate their recognition that action is necessary "to assure against any repetition of these unfortunate events."

He continued that the two networks do not agree on the exact approach to the problem, "one choosing to cancel all such quiz shows and the other choosing to be more meticulous in its policing of the shows."

"I believe there is a similar division of opinion both within the industry and among the viewing public as to the best course of action to be taken under the circumstances," he added.

He said he could assure Langer, however, that programs which fall into the quiz category and which could be rigged will be subject to careful study by the networks, the stations, and the board.

Fellows also said, in reference to Langer's complaint about violent Western and crime shows, that the board is doing its best to curtail "excessive violence" in TV programming.

Fall

The fall seems to have landed here. Two days and nights of severe cold, Friday with low temperature of 30 degrees and Saturday morning when at Selman field the lowest reading stood at 27 degrees created havoc with many flower beds. Among the flowers seemingly most delicate were the banana plants and also those plants that boast glorious yellow candle—like flowers. An unkindly temperature ended their seasonal flowering in a few hours time, Friday and Saturday.

Farm-City

In conjunction with "Farm-City Week" in this state, November 20-26, the Monroe Chamber of Commerce Agricultural Committee is offering certain clubs an opportunity to stage a special farm program furnished by the chamber.

Efforts are being made for the Monroe Civitan club to hold a program of this nature, provided a date can be arranged.

A pancake and sausage supper will be held this evening from 5 to 9 at the Gordon Avenue Methodist Church, 2960 Gordon Ave. The proceeds will be used to pay for central heating in the Educational Building. Tickets may be obtained by calling the Church office.

Child Star Ends Jaunt

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Evelyn Rudie completed her cross-country jaunt Saturday when she flew home from Baltimore.

The 9-year-old television actress faces a police inquiry about the circumstances of her departure from Hollywood last Wednesday, but she didn't seem worried when she stepped off her plane at Los Angeles International Airport.

"How do you like my coat?" she asked her mother, Mrs. Emery J. Bernauer.

"And look at my boots! I bought them with my own money and they're imported from Italy."

After mother and child embraced, Mrs. Bernauer said she would not reprimand the child for taking the trip.

Evelyn said earlier she took the trip to visit Mamie Eisenhower, figuring the First Lady might be able to help her get a good part in a movie or television series. Evelyn previously has played the "Eloise" role in a TV series.

She never did get to see Mrs. Eisenhower, spending her time instead at the home of friends in Chevy Chase, Md., near Washington.

But her mother said that since the trip she has received invitations to appear on the Jack Parr and Steve Allen TV shows.

A member of the police department's juvenile bureau is expected to talk to Evelyn Monday. There is nothing wrong with pulling a publicity stunt, but filing a false police report is illegal.

Police Chief William Parker said: "We have a signed missing-person report, and we are reconstructing the course of events which preceded the girl's flight."

This suggested that police want to find out if the girl's plans to fly East were known when the report was filed Wednesday.

Evelyn said she broke open her piggy banks to get enough money to take the trip.

Her mother said: "We are not angry with Evelyn. It's only that we're disturbed by the trouble she caused by not letting us know. Evelyn has never gone anywhere out of the house before without asking me. That's why it was such a shock to us."

Death Claims 72-Year-Old Screen Actor

where his father became bishop of Clermont.

Victor, when he was only 14, followed the lead of an older brother and went to London to enlist in the King's Life Guards during the Boer War. His father discovered his whereabouts three years later and brought him home because he was still under age.

But Victor later got permission to go to Canada, where he prospected for gold, worked as a railway policeman, and became a prizefighter. It was while he was boxing that he acquired his flattened nose.

In 1909, McLaglen fought an exhibition with heavyweight champion Jack Johnson and was floored in the sixth round. Victor never really took boxing seriously.

He turned to vaudeville—impersonating sculptured marble masterpieces in one act—and toured the old Orpheum circuit.

When World War I broke out, he got a lieutenant's commission in the British army and served in Mesopotamia, where he was cited for bravery, and twice wounded.

Back in London after the war, he was offered a role in the movie "The Call of the Road." He made several more pictures in Britain, then came to Hollywood in 1924 to play the lead role in "The Beloved Brute" at the request of director J. Stuart Blackton.

This was followed by many successes.

McLaglen won great acclaim for his portrayal of the brawling Capt. Flagg in "What Price Glory," a story of the Marines.

In 1933, he became a U. S. citizen.

His first wife, Enid Lamont McLaglen, whom he married in London in 1918, died in 1942. He married Suzanne Brueggeman, his former secretary, in 1943. Divorce ended this marriage, and in 1948 McLaglen married Margaret Pumphery of Berkeley, Calif. She along with Andy, and a daughter, Sheila, were with him when he died. Andy McLaglen is a television producer.

McLaglen played relatively few roles in the last several years, but he expressed surprise when he heard some people thought he had retired.

"I've never stopped," he said. "I've been 37 years acting, and there's always been at least one picture a year."

His last picture, "Sea Fury," was made in England and has not been released yet in the United States.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at Forest Lawn Memorial Park.

Long Search Fails To Find Judge's Body

CHICAGO (AP)—A search of a mile-long portion of Lake Michigan by more than 100 skin divers failed Saturday to turn up the body of Judge W. Lynn Parkinson of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Judge Parkinson, 57, has been missing since Oct. 26 when he was last seen near Oak Street Beach, the area covered in Saturday's underwater search.

Four divers were taken from the icy water with cramps during the six-hour hunt along the lake bottom. None was seriously affected.

Sheriff Frank Sain who organized and directed the underwater search said he was convinced Parkinson's body is not in the area covered but may have been carried away by currents. Authorities involved in the search say they are convinced Judge Parkinson drowned in the lake.

About 150 divers volunteered for the search but only about 100 entered the water. The others, including at least 15 women drivers, stood on the shore along with hundreds of spectators as a police boat and a Coast Guard utility boat aided the divers.

The lake area searched is directly across the street from the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals where Judge Parkinson served.

Earlier, police scourged the Douglas Park area on Chicago's West Side after a man answering Judge Parkinson's description was reported seen in a restaurant having breakfast. No trace of the man was found.

Three diners in the restaurant and a counterman told police the man closely resembled an artist's sketch of the judge that appeared in a morning newspaper. His clothing, however, was of a different type and color than that worn by the judge when he disappeared.

Lake Charles Man Rescued From Shrimper

TEXAS CITY, Tex. (AP)—A 65-year-old Lake Charles, La., man was rescued Saturday after having been stranded on his grounded shrimp boat for two days.

Five members of the Texas City rescue squad found J. L. Kift aboard the 35-foot shrimper Sue Ann about noon some 100 yards from the entrance to the Intracoastal Canal. The rescue party included Kift's son, J. L. Kift Jr., of Texas City.

The elder Kift said he left Lake Charles alone Thursday to visit his son here. Late that day the boat's steering mechanism broke and the vessel drifted out of the channel and in low tide went aground.

He said he flew a distress flag and waved to passing vessels but "most of them just causally waved back and continued on their way."

Rescuers said Kift apparently suffered no ill effects of his experience.

IN KENTUCKY, COLORADO

Sen. Johnson Makes Big Gain

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas picked up support in Kentucky and Colorado last week, and Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts made some hay in California's sunshine.

These two Democrats, among all those eager or willing to be nominated for president, made the most obvious gains.

The big news among the Republicans — although it surprised nobody—was that Vice Peesident Richard M. Nixon will be entered in the New Hampshire presidential primary.

This primary, March 8, will be the first in the nation. It should formally open Nixon's campaign for the nomination.

Coming up this week is an almost incredible West Coast invasion by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York. Few men would do what he plans: pack 35 public appearances into four days.

What Rockefeller learns in this outing could be a big factor in making up his mind whether to run against Nixon for the GOP nomination.

Johnson's good news from Kentucky came in the winning of the governorship by Democrat Bert T. Combs. Combs was sponsored by a Johnson pal, former Sen. Earle C. Clements, and the outcome could mean a chunk of 1960 convention votes for Johnson.

Kentucky's present governor, A. B. (Happy) Chandler, had supported Combs' opponent in the primary and had his own bright eye on the state's 31 votes in the convention.

The Colorado support for Johnson came in a demonstration by former Sen. Ed C. Johnson (no kin) of how to be polite to everybody and still get your point across.

Listen to Ed C. as he endorsed Lyndon B.:

"He is as self-confident and enthusiastic as Jack Kennedy, as liberal as Hubert Humphrey, as articulate as Adlai Stevenson, as adroit as Gov. Brown, as well-balanced in economics as Stu Symington, and as personable as Happy Chandler."

Lyndon Johnson, after a series of speeches in which he conquered Texas like the Dutch conquered Holland, set his sights on the Midwest. He arranged meetings with fellow Democrats in Kansas City and Iowa Dec. 7-9.

Among those who agreed that Kennedy had done well in his California appearances was California's Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown. And Brown would like to have the last word himself on who gets California's 81 convention votes.

"He had a big success," Brown said. "I admire him very much."

Big crowds, warmly responding, turned out for Kennedy in California, and he hoped for more of the same on his current invasion of Oregon.

Oregon's Sen. Wayne Morse, who has been throwing brickbats at Kennedy, eased off to the extent of promising that if Kennedy does win the presidential nomination, "I shall not campaign against him."

Nixon, visiting homefolks and politicians in California, would not comment when reporters asked him whether he'd welcome Rockefeller into the California primary next June. He did say it was a good idea for party leaders to get around the country.

Nixon also probably annoyed former President Harry S. Truman—almost anything Nixon does annoys HST—by copying a couple of Truman stunts.

The vice president (1) sat down at the piano and played "The Missouri Waltz" and (2) took a "hello, there, folks" stroll around Beverly Hills, joshing with one and all.

Nixon's fellow Californians were indeed glad to see him. At one point, a swarm of autograph seekers so overwhelmed him he had to take refuge in a ladies' rest room.

Results of last week's scattered elections were interpreted by both parties, as usual, as indicating both can be confident about the future. Hopeful, anyhow.

An independent appraisal: The Republicans are hurting in the cities.

The Pennsylvania election disclosed that President Eisenhower is not 100 per cent successful in getting out the vote: He flew up to Gettysburg and voted, But Mrs. E. stayed here.

In New Jersey, the Republicans staved off a Democratic bid for control of the State Senate, which could hurt national prospects for Democratic Gov. Robert B. Meyner.

This could be an aesthetic loss for the public, too, since Mrs. Meyner is a beauty. Women in politics, informed sources report, all too often are dowdy or leathery.

The energetic Sen. Humphrey of Minnesota put in a bid for the PTA vote. He told Des Moines teachers: generous federal aid to schools is inevitable.

Also, friends of Humphrey said they'd enter him in the District of Columbia Democratic primary May 3 in a bid for the District's nine convention votes.

Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill) said the Southern outlook on civil rights plus his oil and gas connections, made Sen. Johnson unacceptable to the North as a presidential candidate.

Another Northern liberal gunning for Johnson, Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis), complained that most of the important Senate business is in the hands of committee chairmen "who hail from the 11 states of the old confederacy." He spelled it with a small "C", too.

Amendment Set To Be Proposed

"most assuredly, we share your concern and distress over the unfortunate episode in broadcasting which has occurred in connection with the rigging of certain television quiz shows."

"I believe the fact that the broadcasting industry in general was as surprised at these revelations as was the general public, goes without saying. I can assure you that neither the Television Code Review Board nor I was aware of these behind-the-scenes manipulations," he wrote.

"I realize that some, with the benefit of 20-20 hindsight, will regard this naivete as unbelievable, but these are the facts."

Fellows said that recent statements on the part of both the National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting System indicate their recognition that action is necessary "to assure against any repetition of these unfortunate events."

He continued that the two networks do not agree on the exact approach to the problem, "one choosing to cancel all such quiz shows and the other choosing to be more meticulous in its policing of the shows."

"I believe there is a similar division of opinion both within the industry and among the viewing public as to the best course of action to be taken under the circumstances," he added.

He said he could assure Langer, however, that programs which fall into the quiz category and which could be rigged will be subject to careful study by the networks, the stations, and the board.

Fellows also said, in reference to Langer's complaint about violent Western and crime shows, that the board is doing its best to curtail "excessive violence" in TV programming.

Fall

The fall seems to have landed here. Two days and nights of severe cold, Friday with low temperature of 30 degrees and Saturday morning when at Selman field the lowest reading stood at 27 degrees created havoc with many flower beds. Among the flowers seemingly most delicate were the banana plants and also those plants that boast glorious yellow candle—like flowers. An unkindly temperature ended their seasonal flowering in a few hours time, Friday and Saturday.

Child Star Ends Jaunt

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Evelyn Rudie completed her cross-country jaunt Saturday when she flew home from Baltimore.

The 9-year-old television actress faces a police inquiry about the circumstances of her departure from Hollywood last Wednesday, but she didn't seem worried when she stepped off her plane at Los Angeles International Airport.

"How do you like my coat?" she asked her mother, Mrs. Emery J. Bernauer.

"And look at my boots! I bought them with my own money and they're imported from Italy."

After mother and child embraced, Mrs. Bernauer said she would not reprimand the child for taking the trip.

Evelyn said earlier she took the trip to visit Mamie Eisenhower, figuring the First Lady might be able to help her get a good part in a movie or television series. Evelyn previously has played the "Eloise" role in a TV series.

She never did get to see Mrs. Eisenhower, spending her time instead at the home of friends in Chevy Chase, Md., near Washington.

But her mother said that since the trip she has received invitations to appear on the Jack Parr and Steve Allen TV shows.

A member of the police department's juvenile bureau is expected to talk to Evelyn Monday. There is nothing wrong with pulling a publicity stunt, but filing a false police report is illegal.

Police Chief William Parker said: "We have a signed missing-person report, and we are reconstructing the course of events which preceded the girl's flight."

This suggested that police want to find out if the girl's plans to fly East were known when the report was filed Wednesday.

Evelyn said she broke open her piggy banks to get enough money to take the trip.

Her mother said: "We are not angry with Evelyn. It's only that we're disturbed by the trouble she caused by not letting us know. Evelyn has never gone anywhere out of the house before without asking me. That's why it was such a shock to us."

where his father became bishop of Clermont.

Victor, when he was only 14, followed the lead of an older brother and went to London to enlist in the King's Life Guards during the Boer War. His father discovered his whereabouts three years later and brought him home because he was still under age.

But Victor later got permission to go to Canada, where he prospected for gold, worked as a railway policeman, and became a prizefighter. It was while he was boxing that he acquired his flattened nose.

In 1909, McLaglen fought an exhibition with heavyweight champion Jack Johnson and was floored in the sixth round. Victor never really took boxing seriously.

He turned to vaudeville—impersonating sculptured marble masterpieces in one act—and toured the old Orpheum circuit.

When World War I broke out, he got a lieutenant's commission in the British army and served in Mesopotamia, where he was cited for bravery, and twice wounded.

Back in London after the war, he was offered a role in the movie "The Call of the Road." He made several more pictures in Britain, then came to Hollywood in 1924 to play the lead role in "The Beloved Brute" at the request of director J. Stuart Blackton.

This was followed by many successes.

McLaglen won great acclaim for his portrayal of the brawling Capt. Flagg in "What Price Glory," a story of the Marines.

In 1933, he became a U. S. citizen.

His first wife, Enid Lamont McLaglen, whom he married in London in 1918, died in 1942. He married Suzanne Brueggeman, his former secretary, in 1943. Divorce ended this marriage, and in 1948 McLaglen married Margaret Pumphery of Berkeley, Calif. She along with Andy, and a daughter, Sheila, were with him when he died. Andy McLaglen is a television producer.

McLaglen played relatively few roles in the last several years, but he expressed surprise when he heard some people thought he had retired.

"I've never stopped," he said. "I've been 37 years acting, and there's always been at least one picture a year."

His last picture, "Sea Fury," was made in England and has not been released yet in the United States.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at Forest Lawn Memorial Park.

Long Search Fails To Find Judge's Body

CHICAGO (AP)—A search of a mile-long portion of Lake Michigan by more than 100 skin divers failed Saturday to turn up the body of Judge W. Lynn Parkinson of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Judge Parkinson, 57, has been missing since Oct. 26 when he was last seen near Oak Street Beach, the area covered in Saturday's underwater search.

Four divers were taken from the icy water with cramps during the six-hour hunt along the lake bottom. None was seriously affected.

Sheriff Frank Sain who organized and directed the underwater search said he was convinced Parkinson's body is not in the area covered but may have been carried away by currents. Authorities involved in the search say they are convinced Judge Parkinson drowned in the lake.

About 150 divers volunteered for the search but only about 100 entered the water. The others, including at least 15 women drivers, stood on the shore along with hundreds of spectators as a police boat and a Coast Guard utility boat aided the divers.

The lake area searched is directly across the street from the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals where Judge Parkinson served.

Earlier, police scourged the Douglas Park area on Chicago's West Side after a man answering Judge Parkinson's description was reported seen in a restaurant having breakfast. No trace of the man was found.

Three diners in the restaurant and a counterman told police the man closely resembled an artist's sketch of the judge that appeared in a morning newspaper. His clothing, however, was of a different type and color than that worn by the judge when he disappeared.

Nobel Winner Sees China With Bomb

LONDON (UPI)— Philip Noel - Baker, winner of the 1959 Nobel Peace Prize this week for his work on disarmament, said Saturday Red China may develop an atomic bomb in the next two years.

He appealed for immediate, total disarmament "to save my grand children from fear of war."

Noel-Baker, a Laborite member of Parliament, said in an interview that Soviet scientists told him they had seen "vast nuclear plants in Red China where hundreds of Chinese Communist scientists are being trained.

"It is estimated Communist China may have the bomb in two years," Noel-Baker said. "It could take longer. But this is not the point.

"If Red China should get the atomic bomb, she would constitute a terrible menace to the world."

(During the Big Four Foreign Ministers Conference in Geneva last May, authoritative sources told United Press International Red China was working on a nuclear weapon and hoped to have it perfected and tested in a relatively short period.)

Noel-Baker said China's drive for membership in the "nuclear club" was one of two major reasons why world disarmament is "most immediate, most urgent now."

He said the other reason was that scientists may soon learn to hide missile launching sites underground to escape "even foolproof detection schemes."

The 70-year-old Nobel Prize winner, who has spent a lifetime in the cause of peace and disarmament, said advances in chemical, and germ warfare techniques demanded immediate world disarmament because controlling such weapons once they are made "could be an insurmountable task."

He said Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev told him in Moscow last December that Red China "would definitely endorse" any world-wide disarmament plan.

Noel-Baker said he favored disarmament by progressive treaties.

The first such treaty would reduce the size of armed forces and ban nuclear weapons tests as well as the manufacture of nuclear armaments. This, he said, would cut American and Soviet armed forces to between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000 men apiece.

"Then a second treaty should be signed as soon as possible, further cutting conventional forces and weapons and aiming toward abolition of all atomic weapons... and then a third treaty and a fourth if necessary.

"Only by eliminating all weapons can we be sure of peace, he said.

Russians March On Anniversary

MOSCOW (UPI)—A half-million Russians, mostly civilians, marched in Red Square on the 42nd anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution Saturday in a parade stressing peace and prosperity.

The military portion of the parade was the smallest in the history of the celebration.

White doves, symbols of peace, flew over the vast square where Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and other Soviet leaders watched the 3 1-4-hour ceremony. The military display took only 26 minutes and there were no planes, missiles or tanks shown. The only new weapon paraded was a four - wheeled army rocket launcher. It was a far cry from the massive military muscle-flexing of past anniversaries.

Later, Khrushchev gave a reception in the grand palace of the Kremlin attended by Soviet and foreign dignitaries.

The speaker of the day, Defense Minister Marshal Rodion Malinovsky, omitted the usual statement that the Red army was prepared to crush aggressors. He said only that the armed forces were ready to fulfill their duty, if necessary.

In his 15-minutes address Malinovsky said the armed forces had to be prepared for "the reliable protection" of the country as long as foreign (American) bases ring Russia.

In the framework of the current "spirit of Camp David" resulting from Khrushchev's visit to the United States, Malinovsky also stressed "the most important events of the recent past" including Soviet space rockets and the launching of the atomic-powered ice-breaker Lenin."

The vast Red Square, freshly mopped and swept by an army of elderly women, was ablaze with portraits of Lenin, banners proclaiming Soviet desires for peace and models of Sputniks and Luniks.

Banners carried by marchers in the cold, autumn weather proclaimed "victory in the cosmos," "increase corn production," "steel production—109 percent of the quota," and "crush the ice of the cold war." Some marchers carried pictures of Lenin. A few portraits of Stalin were seen, but only a few.

Khrushchev and the other officials atop the Lenin-Stalin mausoleum overlooking the square were dressed in heavy overcoats and wore snap-brim western-style hats rather than the traditional Russian fur hats.

Rows of gymnasts dressed in bright blue paraded past, doing arm exercises.

Auto Industry Expects Little Quick Relief

DETROIT (AP) — Two auto industries, with more than 250,000 of its workers idled by a steel shortage, expected little immediate relief from the Supreme Court decision which will send the nation's steelworkers back to their jobs.

General Motors, hardest hit by the 116-day old steel strike, said it plans no immediate recall of some 200,000 workers who have been idled by the strike.

Ford which produces 50 per cent of its own steel, also said it planned no immediate production changes. Some 50,000 Ford workers have been idled as dwindling steel stocks hit suppliers.

Chrysler said it plans normal production into the second half of November. But company officials said it appears likely Chrysler's steel supplies will run out before the nation's steel mills can make new deliveries.

The industry's Big Three declined comment on the Supreme Court decision.

Auto production suffered its worst setback this week since the start of the 1960 model run. Production dropped to 67,195 cars and 13,699 trucks from 101,616 cars and 16,185 trucks produced the previous week.

Nobel Winner Sees China With Bomb

LONDON (UPI)— Philip Noel - Baker, winner of the 1959 Nobel Peace Prize this week for his work on disarmament, said Saturday Red China may develop an atomic bomb in the next two years.

He appealed for immediate, total disarmament "to save my grand children from fear of war."

Noel-Baker, a Laborite member of Parliament, said in an interview that Soviet scientists told him they had seen "vast nuclear plants in Red China where hundreds of Chinese Communist scientists are being trained.

"It is estimated Communist China may have the bomb in two years," Noel-Baker said. "It could take longer. But this is not the point.

"If Red China should get the atomic bomb, she would constitute a terrible menace to the world."

(During the Big Four Foreign Ministers Conference in Geneva last May, authoritative sources told United Press International Red China was working on a nuclear weapon and hoped to have it perfected and tested in a relatively short period.)

Noel-Baker said China's drive for membership in the "nuclear club" was one of two major reasons why world disarmament is "most immediate, most urgent now."

He said the other reason was that scientists may soon learn to hide missile launching sites underground to escape "even foolproof detection schemes."

The 70-year-old Nobel Prize winner, who has spent a lifetime in the cause of peace and disarmament, said advances in chemical, and germ warfare techniques demanded immediate world disarmament because controlling such weapons once they are made "could be an insurmountable task."

He said Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev told him in Moscow last December that Red China "would definitely endorse" any world-wide disarmament plan.

Noel-Baker said he favored disarmament by progressive treaties.

The first such treaty would reduce the size of armed forces and ban nuclear weapons tests as well as the manufacture of nuclear armaments. This, he said, would cut American and Soviet armed forces to between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000 men apiece.

"Then a second treaty should be signed as soon as possible, further cutting conventional forces and weapons and aiming toward abolition of all atomic weapons... and then a third treaty and a fourth if necessary.

"Only by eliminating all weapons can we be sure of peace, he said.

Delhi Firm To Begin On Road Work

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Green-Snider Construction Co. of Delhi has received a $118,606 Louisiana Department of Highways contract for 3.9 miles of blacktopping along the Bastrop-Southeast Hwy., State Rt. 3051, in Morehouse Parish.

Highway Director R. B. Richardson said plans call for grading, drainage structures, aggregate type or soil cement base course and bituminous surface treatment 20 feet wide.

JUNCTION

The project begins at the junction of State Rt. 2 and U. S. 165, three-tenths of a mile east of the east city limits of Bastrop and runs southeast to the junction with State Rt. 138.

Work has already begun and will require five months for completion, the Highway Department said.

The contractor will not be required to provide for and maintain through traffic; however, he shall conduct his operations in such a manner as to cause the least possible interference with traffic at junctions with existing traveled roads.

Fred M. Hill of Monroe is the member of the State Board of Highways from the Fifth Congressional District, in which the project is located.

Richardson said Asa M. Ray of Monroe has been assigned as project engineer, under supervision of Wayne H. Huckaby, Highway Department district engineer at Monroe.

Steel Leader Says Union Will Comply

PITTSBURGH (AP) — United Steelworkers President David J. McDonald Saturday called the Taft-Hartley injunction a strike-breaking order. But he said the union members would comply with it and end the 116-day steel strike.

McDonald called a news conference shortly after the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the Taft-Hartley injunction to end the strike for 80 days.

"I see absolutely no benefit from this 80-day injunction. The companies wanted it and now they've got it. I hope they demonstrate good faith and engage in collective bargaining," he told newsmen.

McDonald, who seeks a new contract for 500,000 basic steelworkers, said the USW and its members will "comply with the law of the land." He told the strikers "to resume work forthwith."

The union's decision-making 171-member Wage Policy Committee will meet in the next couple of days to determine a further course of action in negotiations, McDonald said.

Asked if the workers might engate in slowdowns during the 80-day injunction period, McDonald flushed angrily and replied:

"The steelworkers are loyal citizens and will comply with the law."

McDonald said no negotiating meetings are presently scheduled with the industry. The Federal Mediation Service in Washington said both union and industry negotiators will be contacted soon regarding new meetings.

Shortly after the Supreme Court decision was handed down the USW sent telegrams to all local presidents instructing them to remove picket lines from mills gates and resume work.

Asked if the strike would be resumed at the end of the 80-day injunction period, McDonald said that decision woud halve to be made by the Wage Policy Committee.

"Of this, I am certain. The members have demonstrated devotion to their union and will remain firm, determined and united in seeking a fair agreement," he added.

Discoveries Told About Gravitation

PARIS (AP) — New discoveries of variations in gravitation were described Saturday by Prof. Maurice Allais, who has been conducting experiments in an underground laboratory at St. Germain En-laye near Paris.

Allais told an audience of scientists and civil engineers that he had perfected an improved pantheon pendulum, which was invented by French physicist Leon Foucault (1819-1868) to follow the movement of the earth's rotation.

The improved pendulum, suspended on ball bearings, had made 220,000 tests at St. Germain. The tests have shown, he claimed, that graviy is neither constant nor always oriented in the same direction.

There were variations at the interval of each 24 hours and 50 minutes, which could not be explained by any cause yet known, he said. The nature of these variations were not detailed.

Allais, 48, is a member of the New York Academy of Sciences and a graduate of Johns Hopkins University. He has spent most of his career as a mining engineer and considers his studies of theoretical physics a hobby. He was born in Paris.

Youth Foils Intruder With Bow And Arrow

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Michael Tarrants, 13, has seen an Indian fight or two on television, and he knew what to do when he saw an arm thrust through a broken kitchen window early Saturday.

Michael grabbed his bow and shot an arrow into the arm.

The arm's owner, James Thomas, 37, proceeded into the house. A neighbor boy who had been watching television with Michael ran out and flagged down the car of Dep. Sheriff John Powell.

When Powell came galloping to the rescue, Michael and his brother were busy throwing hot water on the startled intruder.

Worker Glad To Return To Plant

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "It's a wonderful thing to be back at work. I was at the bottom of the barrel and I hope we don't have to go back out again."

That was George Urda talking Saturday as he chipped away at some rust on a blast furnace at the Edgar Thomson works of U.S. Steel Corp. in suburban Braddock.

Urda was among a handful of men called back to work Saturday afternoon—only hours after the Supreme Court upheld a Taft-Hartley injunction halting the steel strike for at least 80 days.

"I hope they get this thing settled during the 80-day period," said William Rothrauff as he helped prepare the No. 2 blast furnace for producing pig iron again.

"I got a few odd jobs during the strike and paid some debts and stalled off others. Getting enough money to eat was a big thing for our family. My wife took the telephone call from the plant today to tell me to come back. I thought she was kidding when she said 'Bill come here and eat and get going.' I got going in a hurry, let me tell you!"

A few feet away from Rothrauff, another maintenance man —Pete Gresko—took time out to say:

"Sure, I feel good to be back at work. Why not? But the idea of this 80-day injunction does not appeal to me. I wish the whole thing was settled now."

"Yes, it does not mean a great deal if we have to go on strike again," chimed in Philip Antrilli.

Harry Heller, a pipefitter with a big grin, smiled and said:

"You can quote me as saying I was ready to come back long ago."

The maintenance men arrived one, to, three at a time. A U.S. Steel spokesman said the back to work call must be on an orderly basis and that workers would be summoned as needed.

Donald Brinkey, a ruddy-faced father of seven, was just a little out of breath as he arrived. Donald, who weighs about 230 and has the cheerfulness which some people associate with fat men, declared with a laugh:

Steel Leader Says Union Will Comply

PITTSBURGH (AP) — United Steelworkers President David J. McDonald Saturday called the Taft-Hartley injunction a strike-breaking order. But he said the union members would comply with it and end the 116-day steel strike.

McDonald called a news conference shortly after the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the Taft-Hartley injunction to end the strike for 80 days.

"I see absolutely no benefit from this 80-day injunction. The companies wanted it and now they've got it. I hope they demonstrate good faith and engage in collective bargaining," he told newsmen.

McDonald, who seeks a new contract for 500,000 basic steelworkers, said the USW and its members will "comply with the law of the land." He told the strikers "to resume work forthwith."

The union's decision-making 171-member Wage Policy Committee will meet in the next couple of days to determine a further course of action in negotiations, McDonald said.

Asked if the workers might engage in slowdowns during the 80-day injunction period, McDonald flushed angrily and replied:

"The steelworkers are loyal citizens and will comply with the law."

McDonald said no negotiating meetings are presently scheduled with the industry. The Federal Mediation Service in Washington said both union and industry negotiators will be contacted soon regarding new meetings.

Shortly after the Supreme Court decision was handed down the USW sent telegrams to all local presidents instructing them to remove picket lines from mills gates and resume work.

Asked if the strike would be resumed at the end of the 80-day injunction period, McDonald said that decision woud halve to be made by the Wage Policy Committee.

"Of this, I am certain. The members have demonstrated devotion to their union and will remain firm, determined and united in seeking a fair agreement," he added.

Discoveries Told About Gravitation

PARIS (AP) — New discoveries of variations in gravitation were described Saturday by Prof. Maurice Allais, who has been conducting experiments in an underground laboratory at St. Germain En-laye near Paris.

Allais told an audience of scientists and civil engineers that he had perfected an improved pantheon pendulum, which was invented by French physicist Leon Foucault (1819-1868) to follow the movement of the earth's rotation.

The improved pendulum, suspended on ball bearings, had made 220,000 tests at St. Germain. The tests have shown, he claimed, that graviy is neither constant nor always oriented in the same direction.

There were variations at the interval of each 24 hours and 50 minutes, which could not be explained by any cause yet known, he said. The nature of these variations were not detailed.

Allais, 48, is a member of the New York Academy of Sciences and a graduate of Johns Hopkins University. He has spent most of his career as a mining engineer and considers his studies of theoretical physics a hobby. He was born in Paris.

Youth Foils Intruder With Bow And Arrow

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Michael Tarrants, 13, has seen an Indian fight or two on television, and he knew what to do when he saw an arm thrust through a broken kitchen window early Saturday.

Michael grabbed his bow and shot an arrow into the arm.

The arm's owner, James Thomas, 37, proceeded into the house. A neighbor boy who had been watching television with Michael ran out and flagged down the car of Dep. Sheriff John Powell.

When Powell came galloping to the rescue, Michael and his brother were busy throwing hot water on the startled intruder.

Worker Glad To Return To Plant

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "It's a wonderful thing to be back at work. I was at the bottom of the barrel and I hope we don't have to go back out again."

That was George Urda talking Saturday as he chipped away at some rust on a blast furnace at the Edgar Thomson works of U.S. Steel Corp. in suburban Braddock.

Urda was among a handful of men called back to work Saturday afternoon—only hours after the Supreme Court upheld a Taft-Hartley injunction halting the steel strike for at least 80 days.

"I hope they get this thing settled during the 80-day period," said William Rothrauff as he helped prepare the No. 2 blast furnace for producing pig iron again.

"I got a few odd jobs during the strike and paid some debts and stalled off others. Getting enough money to eat was a big thing for our family. My wife took the telephone call from the plant today to tell me to come back. I thought she was kidding when she said 'Bill come here and eat and get going.' I got going in a hurry, let me tell you!"

A few feet away from Rothrauff, another maintenance man —Pete Gresko—took time out to say:

"Sure, I feel good to be back at work. Why not? But the idea of this 80-day injunction does not appeal to me. I wish the whole thing was settled now."

"Yes, it does not mean a great deal if we have to go on strike again," chimed in Philip Antrilli.

Harry Heller, a pipefitter with a big grin, smiled and said:

"You can quote me as saying I was ready to come back long ago."

The maintenance men arrived one, to, three at a time. A U.S. Steel spokesman said the back to work call must be on an orderly basis and that workers would be summoned as needed.

Donald Brinkey, a ruddy-faced father of seven, was just a little out of breath as he arrived. Donald, who weighs about 230 and has the cheerfulness which some people associate with fat men, declared with a laugh:

Steel Strike Price Tag Comes High In Dollars

Editor's Note — What has the steel strike done to the national economy and the country's wage earners? The following article outlines what the effects have been.

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The price tag on the steel strike comes high. It reads big in dollars, in individual budget pinching, in corporate losses, in bitterness. It has hurt many outsiders and messed up the business boom.

A lot of innocent bystanders are out of work—and many will continue to be for some time to come. Still others will be laid off later because their factories will be running out of metal parts for the things they make.

Consumers may find shortages in goods using metal, from autos to toasters, for some time. Merchants may find this a big Christmas for soft goods and a poor one for hard goods in small supply. In unemployment - ridden areas it could be just a poor Christmas, period.

Steelworkers and others out of work because of the strike will have their hands full for a long time straightening out their personal budgets.

True, as soon as the steel furnaces are heated again, the 500,000 strikers, who have been losing wages at around 70 million dollars a week, will be back on the payroll.

The 20,000 idle coal workers and 60,000 furloughed railway men will follow them back on the job, too. Iron ore barges will be racing the ice in the Great Lakes.

But the auto workers and the appliance and other employes can't work full time until the steel supply lines are filled again.

Here is how the economy was hurting when the Supreme Court ruled:

Most painful is unemployment. Each family has its own problems—some better prepared for the pinch than others—but all set back by the loss of income.

This goes for the strikers, who will have a long time catching up after the paychecks start coming again.

And it's just as rough on families whose income was cut off because idle steel mills don't want what they had been hired to produce, or because they couldn't produce goods for consumers after steel supplies ran out.

The pain stretches out along the nation's economic nerves far beyond this.

Many families are taking a second look at heir budgets because they fear their jobs, too, may be in peril until adequate steel supplies can be assured.

Some merchants report this has already shown up at the sales counters. Some manufacturers say they're beginning to see it in smaller orders from nervous merchants.

And everywhere people are wondering how much bitterness has been engendered by the strike. how long this will carry over, how far it will spread among other workers. For the fight has been over principles — over working rules and who should decide them.

Industrial planning has changed in the last month. There are the questions: When can we be sure to get steel if we go ahead with plans to build? When can we expect delivery if we hire new equipment, if the makers are short of steel? Should we expand now if our earnings are being clipped and our sales prospects for the immediate future dimmed?

At the level of consumer trade the matter is largely regional.

Some sections with few, if any, steel mills; or with few, if any, large payrolls depending on consumption of steel are booming right along. In these areas merchants report trade still good, and predict a big Christmas.

This is far from being a picture of the nation as a whole.

The total of industrial output—previously rising headily — has dropped, and with it the total of individual incomes. The Gross National Product — the dollar measure of all the goods and services produced—has fallen when it was billed to rise.

The strike has put a much more tangible break on the business boom than any effort of the money managers to make money tight to avert a runaway and further inflation.

The boom was supposed to have scaled new heights this month and next. Only the most optimistic now think industry can get on its feet and bring good times to a new pitch before mid-1960.

October saw the point of no return. After that most of the escape hatches were jammed.

Here is why: In the spring most industrialists expected a steel strike in the summer. Users ordered all they could. Many felt the strike might last till Labor Day and planned accordingly. The more cautious put Sept. 30 as deadline. Those in the best positions to lay in stocks got still more and are able to operate—for a time longer.

But since Oct. 1 the layoffs and shutdowns have come ever faster.

And the worst is yet to come. Steel mills can't turn out finished products in quick order. They can't rebuild inventories before the first quarter of next year — and many think it will be well into the second quarter before everything could be normal again.

Imports have climbed this year. Some think foreign steel will hold some of its new market. Others say foreign mills haven't the capacity to supply many needs and much of their output isn't of the special types U.S. manufacturers want. Rising prices of foreign steel haven't set too well. Besides, Europe has been wanting more of its own output and hasn't too much to export.

But steel substitutes have had a big chance to ease in. Aluminum and plastics have taken over some markets. Some users have learned to do with less steel. One example that looks small, but adds up: 17 states don't put out new steel auto plates each year but use small validation tags to change the date on old ones. More states are considering it.

The strike upset the U.S. budget as well as consumers' buying plans. Treasury revenues are trimmed as corporate and individual incomes fall. The budget may slip back into the red after brave attempts to get it into the black. Effects of tha will spread ino he financial markes, especially bonds, including your own school disrict, and could put pressure under more inflation.

Fog Brings Highway Deaths

LONDON (AP) — Bone-chilling fog brought death to four people on British highways Saturday and snarled road, rail and air traffic throughout southern and central England. In London, at least 14 were injured when two electric trains collided in the densest fog of the season so far.

Horse racing at Windsor was called off when the fog settled so thickly spectators couldn't see the back stretch. At London Airport, hundreds of passengers killed time in lounges and tea rooms waiting for the fog to lift. Flights to Paris, Athens, Brussels and Frankfurt were canceled.

Crutchfield's Pay Not Governmental

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charles L. Critchfield, newly named director of the Pentagon's space agency, will be the seventh defense official whose pay comes from outside the government.

Among them is the acting comptroller of the Pentagon, Asst. Secretary of Defense John M. Sprague. The Pentagon supplied the names Saturday in response to a reporter's inquiry.

They hold their defense positions under provision made by Congress in 1951 which permits the Defense Department to employ not more than 10 persons of outstanding experience and ability without compensation by the government.

These officials are barred from acting on any government contracts with private companies with which they are connected or from which they receive salaries. This was done to make possible exemption from conflict of interest laws.

Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy announced earlier this week Critchfield's appointment as director of the Advanced Research Projects Agency. Critchfield is director of scientific research for the Convair Division of General Dynamics Corp.

In Los Angeles Friday, Rep. Chet Holifield (D-Calif) said the staff of his House Government Operations subcommittee is studying a possible conflict of interest in the appointment of Critchfield.

Holifield said "my staff is looking into the picture to find out what all the facts are."

Sprague came to the Pentagon from the Carter Oil Co., of which he was a vice president. As acting fiscal chief of the Pentagon, Sprague was in a budget-making session with McElroy and other top officials Saturday aboard a Navy Yacht in the Potomac River.

Others serving in Pentagon official positions without federal pay are:

Edwin Paxon, assistant director for tactical weapons in the Office of Research and Development whose private position is with Rand, a nonprofit corporation organized for scientific and other technical research;

Dr. Hector Skifter, an assistant director for air defense in the Office of Research and Development and president of Airborne Instruments Laboratories, a division of Cutter-Hammond, Inc.;

John R. Townsend, a special assistant for fuels and materials in the Research and Development Office, who comes from Bell Telephone Laboratories;

George P. Sutton, chief scientist for ARPA, who is a member of the Institute for Defense Analysis, another nonprofit corporation;

Dr. Charles A. Boyd, research director for the Pentagon's weapons systems evaluation group, also a member of the Institute of Defense Analysis.

Dissenting Leader Tells Viewpoint

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice William O. Douglas, dissenting from the eight other justices of the Supreme Court who upheld the steel injunction, favored returning the case to District Court "for particularized findings as to how the steel strike imperils the 'national health' and what plants need to be reopened to produce the small quantity of steel now needed for the national 'safety.'

"There would be open for inquiry and findings any questions pertaining to 'national health' in the narrow sense in which the act uses those words." Douglas said.

He said he thought that when Congress used the words "national health" in emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act, it was "safeguarding the heating of homes, the delivery of milk, the protection of hospitals and the like."

Douglas said he did not feel the broad injunction could be sustained when it rested solely on "national safety."

"I am unwilling," Douglas said, "to take judicial notice that it requires 100 per cent of the workers to produce the steel needed for national defense when 99 per cent of the output is devoted to purposes entirely unconnected with defense projects."

He said that President Eisenhower, in invoking the Taft-Hartley injunctive procedures, construed the word "health" to include the material well-being or public welfare of the nation.

Douglas said the lower courts also construed "national health" to include the economic well-being or general welfare of the country. Then he declared that to read "welfare" into "health" gives that word such a vast reach that the court should do this only under the most compelling necessity.

In a footnote to the majority opinion, Justices Felix Frankfurter and John M. Harlan said that they intended to file an amplification of their views on the case. They said that while they agreed with the majority decision, they could not prepare their explanatory opinions "within the time limitations imposed by the necessity of a prompt adjudication of this case."

Area Woman Says Healing 'Due To God'

RUSTON (Special) — "All the credit belongs to God." This was a mother's comment on her son's remarkable recovery from cancer.

Mrs. F. E. Mayerle, 415 North Homer St. in Ruston, informed the Morning World yesterday that the subject of a picture appearing in the Saturday World was her son. Joseph W. Mayerele of Bremerton, Wash., was pictured with his family, including a three-week-old son, whom doctors said he would never live to see.

Mayerle was discovered to have lung cancer in April and the condition was so bad that physicians said he had less than a few months to live.

But, according to the Associated Press picture, there is no trace of the cancer left and he has gained 30 pounds.

Mrs. Mayerle said that only God could be responsible for such an amazing recovery from the usually- fatal cancer.

Mayerle, his wife, Betty, and two daughters, Wanda, 13, and Denise, 9, were shown with the new members of the family, Joe, Jr.

Dissenting Leader Tells Viewpoint

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice William O. Douglas, dissenting from the eight other justices of the Supreme Court who upheld the steel injunction, favored returning the case to District Court "for particularized findings as to how the steel strike imperils the 'national health' and what plants need to be reopened to produce the small quantity of steel now needed for the national 'safety.'

"There would be open for inquiry and findings any questions pertaining to 'national health' in the narrow sense in which the act uses those words," Douglas said.

He said he thought that when Congress used the words "national health" in emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act, it was "safeguarding the heating of homes, the delivery of milk, the protection of hospitals and the like."

Douglas said he did not feel the broad injunction could be sustained when it rested solely on "national safety."

"I am unwilling," Douglas said, "to take judicial notice that it requires 100 per cent of the workers to produce the steel needed for national defense when 99 per cent of the output is devoted to purposes entirely unconnected with defense projects."

He said that President Eisenhower, in invoking the Taft-Hartley injunctive procedures, construed the word "health" to include the material well-being or public welfare of the nation.

Douglas said the lower courts also construed "national health" to include the economic well-being or general welfare of the country. Then he declared that to read "welfare" into "health" gives that word such a vast reach that the court should do this only under the most compelling necessity.

In a footnote to the majority opinion, Justices Felix Frankfurter and John M. Harlan said that they intended to file an amplification of their views on the case. They said that while they agreed with the majority decision, they could not prepare their explanatory opinions "within the time limitations imposed by the necessity of a prompt adjudication of this case."

Area Woman Says Healing 'Due To God'

RUSTON (Special) — "All the credit belongs to God." This was a mother's comment on her son's remarkable recovery from cancer.

Mrs. F. E. Mayerle, 415 North Homer St. in Ruston, informed the Morning World yesterday that the subject of a picture appearing in the Saturday World was her son, Joseph W. Mayerele of Bremerton, Wash., was pictured with his family, including a three-week-old son, whom doctors said he would never live to see.

Mayerle was discovered to have lung cancer in April and the condition was so bad that physicians said he had less than a few months to live.

But, according to the Associated Press picture, there is no trace of the cancer left and he has gained 30 pounds.

Mrs. Mayerle said that only God could be responsible for such an amazing recovery from the usually- fatal cancer.

Mayerle, his wife, Betty, and two daughters, Wanda, 13, and Denise, 9, were shown with the new members of the family, Joe, Jr.

STEEL

Mixed Sentiments Greet Work Order

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "What good will it do to go back for 80 days and walk back out in the middle of winter?" "I'm tired of loafing." "Nobody likes to be ordered back to work this way." "This should give us a lift for the holidays."

Those were the mixed sentiments expressed by striking steelworkers across the nation on learning the Supreme Court ordered them back to the mills for an 80-day cooling-off period—halting at least temporarily the 116-day steel strike.

David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers Union, issued a statement saying "the Supreme Court has spoken. As law-abiding citizens the Steelworkers Union, of course, will comply with the court's injunction. I have accordingly dispatched telegrams to our striking members directing them, in accordance with the court's order, to resume work forthwith."

But on the picket lines at Buffalo, N. Y.; Homestead, Pa.; Cleveland, Ohio; Worchester, Mass.; Chicago; Atlanta, Ga., and elsewhere the general reaction indicated the 80-day period will not contribute toward settlement of the negotiation deadlock.

"How would President Eisenhower like it if they told him he couldn't play golf for 80 days," a Buffalo striker said.

In Cleveland, Williard Taubee, 52, Republic Steel Corp. employe, remarked: "I'm as tired of loafing as anyone but the order is wrong. It should have been settled once and for all."

Melvin Hampton, 39, employed at Republic for 14 years and the father of seven children, said: "The companies seem to be going all out to break the union but the union is no weaker for the strike. Nobody likes to be ordered back to work this way."

At Homestead, Pa., Joe Dudas, employed at the Homestead works of U. S. Steel Corp., was shopping with his wife, Veronica, and their 7-year-old son, Larry.

"What good will it do to go back for 80 days?" he asked.

"Well at least the children will have something for Thanksgiving and Christmas," interjected his wife.

Charles C. Mathias, union regional representative whose Atlanta locals had some 100 men on strike, said: "The Supreme Court has ruled and that's it."

At Gary, Ind., the union's Philip Murray Hall was crowded with workers early asking how soon they could report back for work.

In the steel capital of Pittsburgh, the order caught many workers in the woods for the small-game season. In Minnesota, the deer season opened.

While pickets and officials of Local 1272 on Pittsburgh's South Side talked over the injunction, a young couple strolled into the union hall, rented for their wedding reception.

Robert Handlovitch, a former steelworker had found other work —and a bride.

Tony Amantea, 56, of Pittsburgh, a motor inspector at the U.S. Steel Corp. Homestead works, said he will be glad to get back to work.

"The old bankroll needs it more than anything else," said Amantea. "I wish we were going back on a new contract, though. With the injunction, we'll just be getting warmed up and we'll have to quit again."

"I'm glad because it will give us a chance to catch up. We have three kids to feed and other steelworkers have even more. After all, half a loaf of bread is better than none at all," Mrs. Amantea said.

Mike Mihalov, 25, of U.S. Steel Clairton works, wasn't happy about the court order.

"I'd rather have a set contract. This injunction gives the steel companies an unfair advantage. Sure I'm glad to have a bank account for 80 days, but what happens after the 80 days are up? The companies are happy but we aren't," Mihalov said.

Jim Peterson, also of the Clairton works just said he'll do what the union wants him to.

"I can use the money," said Peterson. "But I'm not too pleased with the way things went."

A parking lot operator in midtown Pittsburgh said "The government should have gotten that Taft-Hartley injunction earlier. Those poor strikers and their families need some money and need it quick."

A retired advertising man picked up an extra edition of a newspaper and said: "Well, I didn't think this would come until Monday. I guess the court acted today because the stock market wasn't open."

A clerk hurrying to work in a midtown department store said: "Boy, this should give us a lift for Christmas."

A policeman on a busy street corner said: "Sure I'm glad to see the fellows go back to work but I'm wondering if this will really settle anything. You can't settle strikes by injunctions. I hope those negotiators get some sense and get together."

GOVERNMENT QUESTIONS CAMERA-TRICKERY

Is the F.C.C. guilty of allowing camera-trickery to be used on TV commercials? "I'm doing it just to get rich", says Darren McGavin, when asked why he is doing two TV series at the same time. McGavin, star of "Riverboat" (6:00 PM, Channel 10) and "Mike Hammer", thinks money will give him freedom to direct and produce his own stories. Darren's guest tonight is Richardo Montalban, brother - in - law of Loretta Young. A recent episode of "Riverboat" was written by a man and wife team from Eureka Springs, Arkansas. Sunday's special is a two-hour telecast of Ludwig van Beethoven's opera, "Fidelio", which will be sung in English (3:00 PM, Channel 10). "Variety-that's what we want to give", comments NBC on their new color special, "Sunday Showcase" (7:00 PM, Channel 10). In five weeks they have given you just that—a play, a two-part Hollywood drama, an hour with Milton Berle, and a day in the life of Thomas Jefferson. Tonight number six gives a view of man after he has conquered space. Ever been to a rodeo—watched a cowboy rope a wild bull—or seen bareback bronc riding? Imagine this with a good old western square dance, and you'll have a treat as Roy Rogers and Dale Evans' top rodeo performers compete for the championship on "The Chevy Show" (8:00 PM, Channel 10). Swirling, beautifully dressed Loretta Young makes no social engagements when filming "The Loretta Young Show" (9:00 PM, Channel 10). But Loretta, an intense perfectionist, becomes gay, relaxed and gregarious when the filming is completed. Tonight she is both hostess and star for "A New Step". Charlie Price, channel 10's Louisiana represtative, wife Janet, and even their little David, like to end a pleasant weekend relaxing to the music of Lawrence Welk (9:30 PM, Channel 10). Incidentally, Lawrence has been beseiged with requests for Alice Lon's return as "Champagne Lady". Will he listen to fans and patch up their misunderstanding? We now take a station break for this paid advertisement.

Tony Amantea, 56, of Pittsburgh, a motor inspector at the U.S. Steel Corp. Homestead works, said he will be glad to get back to work.

"The old bankroll needs it more than anything else," said Amantea. "I wish we were going back on a new contract, though. With the injunction, we'll just be getting warmed up and we'll have to quit again."

"I'm glad because it will give us a chance to catch up. We have three kids to feed and other steelworkers have even more. After all, half a loaf of bread is better than none at all," Mrs. Amantea said.

Mike Mihalov, 25, of U.S. Steel Clairton works, wasn't happy about the court order.

"I'd rather have a set contract. This injunction gives the steel companies an unfair advantage. Sure I'm glad to have a bank account for 80 days, but what happens after the 80 days are up? The companies are happy but we aren't," Mihalov said.

Jim Peterson, also of the Clairton works just said he'll do what the union wants him to.

"I can use the money," said Peterson. "But I'm not too pleased with the way things went."

A parking lot operator in midtown Pittsburgh said "The government should have gotten that Taft-Hartley injunction earlier. Those poor strikers and their families need some money and need it quick."

A retired advertising man picked up an extra edition of a newspaper and said: "Well, I didn't think this would come until Monday. I guess the court acted today because the stock market wasn't open."

A clerk hurrying to work in a midtown department store said: "Boy, this should give us a lift for Christmas."

A policeman on a busy street corner said: "Sure I'm glad to see the fellows go back to work but I'm wondering if this will really settle anything. You can't settle strikes by injunctions. I hope those negotiators get some sense and get together."

GOVERNMENT QUESTIONS CAMERA-TRICKERY

Is the F.C.C. guilty of allowing camera-trickery to be used on TV commercials? "I'm doing it just to get rich", says Darren McGavin, when asked why he is doing two TV series at the same time. McGavin, star of "Riverboat" (6:00 PM, Channel 10) and "Mike Hammer", thinks money will give him freedom to direct and produce his own stories. Darren's guest tonight is Richardo Montalban, brother - in - law of Loretta Young. A recent episode of "Riverboat" was written by a man and wife team from Eureka Springs, Arkansas. Sunday's special is a two-hour telecast of Ludwig van Beethoven's opera, "Fidelio", which will be sung in English (3:00 PM, Channel 10). "Variety-that's what we want to give", comments NBC on their new color special, "Sunday Showcase" (7:00 PM, Channel 10). In five weeks they have given you just that—a play, a two-part Hollywood drama, an hour with Milton Berle, and a day in the life of Thomas Jefferson. Tonight number six gives a view of man after he has conquered space. Ever been to a rodeo—watched a cowboy rope a wild bull—or seen bareback bronc riding? Imagine this with a good old western square dance, and you'll have a treat as Roy Rogers and Dale Evans' top rodeo performers compete for the championship on "The Chevy Show" (8:00 PM, Channel 10). Swirling, beautifully dressed Loretta Young makes no social engagements when filming "The Loretta Young Show" (9:00 PM, Channel 10). But Loretta, an intense perfectionist, becomes gay, relaxed and gregarious when the filming is completed. Tonight she is both hostess and star for "A New Step". Charlie Price, channel 10's Louisiana representative, wife Janet, and even their little David, like to end a pleasant weekend relaxing to the music of Lawrence Welk (9:30 PM, Channel 10). Incidentally, Lawrence has been beseiged with requests for Alice Lon's return as "Champagne Lady". Will he listen to fans and patch up their misunderstanding? We now take a station break for this paid advertisement.

Billy Lewis Takes Headline Letter At Light Box

Modern High School Print Shop

Hot Off The Press

By TOMMY PARKS
Staff Writer

"Looks fine, men. Let's make a couple of thousand more copies."

With these words, the first newspaper was rolled from the press of Louisiana's only complete public high school print shop, located at Neville High school in Monroe.

The print shop, established at the beginning of this semester, resulted from a great deal of research, study and discussion by school officials, including school board members, high school principals and teachers.

The final reasoning was this: A high school print shop could save the entire school system a great deal of money normally spent on commercial printing, as well as furnish a laboratory for school students who wanted "on the job" training.

SAVINGS

At an estimated total cost of around $10,000, the complete, ready-to-go printing department was installed throughout two rooms in the second floor. School officials watched the installation closely, because they figured the shop would eventually pay for itself.

So far, the money - saving and student - training project has "come through with flying colors," school officials say.

In addition to printing the monthly Neville High school newspaper, "The Sizzler," with a circulation of 2,000, the print shop also turns out practically all office forms, letter heads, and other printed materials needed by the city school department.

"And that," commented Sammy Danna, public relations director and head of the print shop, "entails quite a lot of work when you consider that we're printing material for thirteen different schools."

COMMENDED

Sidney Seegers, principal of Neville, noted that the print shop thus far has done "a wonderful job in living up to every expectation and purpose for which it was created."

However, the shop is not expected to print all materials needed by the school system, he pointed out. "Since this is the first semester for the shop to operate, we naturally are trying to go slow with the work. Later, after the project begins to roll smoothly, more work can be turned out by the press."

He explained that the primary purpose of the project was to establish a printing department to serve the growing needs of the city school system. He emphasized, however, that the setup will also serve as an excellent "proving ground" for students to learn the art of the writing and printing industry.

"Although the educational aspects of the idea were not foremost in determining its acceptance, the benefits for the students certainly were not disregarded in considering the project," he pointed out.

BEGINNING

"Already, I understand that some of our students have become pretty adept and efficient with the printing machinery, and this is just the beginning," he said.

Most enthusiastic over the project seems to be the students themselves. "They keep this place buzzing," the shop director said.

"Most of the operations in the shop are very intricate and require skilled operators with plenty of know-how," Danna explained. "And so far, students have rushed in to tackle every process of the printing department. Some are already showing about as much skill as experienced workers, and all of them are improving their work just about every day."

Five completely different steps are necessary before any printed product is completed in the shop.

COPIED

After the initial news or material is written on paper, it is copied on a special machine called a varityper, which is similar to a regular typewriter in appearance.

"Appearance is about as far as the similarity goes," Danna commented. "There's about $3,000 difference in the price of the two."

The varityper automatically sets correct margins as the news material is typed on the paper. In doing so, it saves much valuable time — time which is important in the newspaper business.

After the material is typed on the varityper paper, in any one of six different sizes of print, it is taken to the "light box," a wooden box - like affair with a glass top which makes up the second important process of printing in the shop.

LIGHT BOX

"Our light box was made especially for us by one of the industrial art classes here at school, saving us about $500," Danna said.

At the light box, the printed material from the varityper is pasted evenly on a large make-up sheet. On this same sheet, any larger letters or illustrations used for headlines, etc., are pasted onto the sheet.

After the entire page is set, or pasted, exactly the way it is to appear in the finished form, it is taken to the photography department next door, where a photograph of the entire page is taken.

"The darkroom is the oldest part of our printshop," one of the students explained. "It has been in use at the high school for about 20 years."

DARKROOM

It is also a very complete darkroom, with enough supplies and equipment to process practically any photographic job needed. Included in the equipment are two professional graphic cameras, two electronic flash units, an enlarger, and a special vertical copy camera, which was reported to be valued at about $2,000.

After the finished full - page negative is completed in the darkroom, it is taken back into the print shop and exposed to flouorescent lights in another special piece of equipment called the plate - burning machine. These lights transpose the image, or the picture, on the negative to an ultra - thin aluminum plate sensitized to the light rays. This entire process, which lasts only a few minutes, takes place in a vacuum created by the machine.

REVERSE

This plate, which has a reverse picture of the page transformed on one side, is then de-sensitized to light.

Following this, the final step goes into operation: the actual printing from the press.

For this final step, the metal plate is placed on a special roller of the press, with ink passing onto the thin aluminum where letters, illustrations, etc., appear.

Then, after a number of "trial runs," during which sample copies are checked once more for any mistakes or imperfections.

Then, the presses roll, leafing out pages of printed copy at the rate of five to nine thousand copies per hour.

Report From Pioneers

Editor's note — Remember the 59ers, the doughty band of Michigan pioneers who set out to homestead in Alaska last spring? Here's a report on how they're getting along.

By WILLIAM TOBIN

TALKEETNA, Alaska (AP)— Generous supplies of home-canned food, including porcupine, caribou and moose meat, line the shelves.

There are 65 stacks of home-grown potatoes on hand and plenty of green vegetables.

Snow will soon blanket three newly built cabins of hand - cut birch logs and a handful of other homes—converted Quonset huts and worn house trailers with canvas lean-to extensions.

This is homestead country, where the Michigan 59ers—what remains of them — are buttoning up for their first Alaskan winter of 35 below zero temperatures.

HOPE

"If I'm real good," says pretty Bertha Donaldson, wistfully, "I'm going to get a new washtub and an ax for Christmas."

Ten adults and three children are left from the original group of 42 persons who arrived last March from Michigan to carve new lives in Alaska.

The modern day pioneers attracted nationwide attention on their trouble-plagued motor caravan to the 49th state. Now, after six months, how do they feel?

"No regrets — not yet," says Mrs. Marino Sik, whose husband is head of the remaining group.

After initial troubles in settling on a location, the 59ers took homestead land 10 miles west of here, across the ice - choked Susitna River 80 miles north of Anchorage. About 20 other settlers also live in the area.

No bridge spans the wide river. There is no electric power — the only light in midwinter darkness will come from lanterns and candles. No telephones serve the homesteaders.

Dynamite blasts are the only means of signalling for aid in case of emergency. The explosions, heard in Talkeetna, alert bush pilot Don Sheldon, who has flown several missions for the 59ers.

The homestead settlement is a far cry from the car-clogged expressways the pioneers left back home in the Detroit area. Their homes are spread for 16 miles along a single gravel road running west from the river. After the last homestead comes a 7½-mile stretch to a roadhouse. The road ends 50 miles from where it begins at the Cache Creek gold mine.

Sometimes the only traffic on the road is Bertha Donaldson's bicycle, as she visits her neighbors carrying vegetables in buckets hanging from the handlebars. She feels the clanking buckets keep away any black bears that might come ambling along the road.

Mrs. Donaldson's husband, Gerald, 46, a carpenter, is working on a 28 by 24-foot cabin. Meanwhile they live in a housetrailer sparingly heated with an oil stove. Fuel costs $16.50 a barrel plus $7.50 air freight. A wood stove is used for cooking.

But life is easier since Donaldson dug a well. "It's good to have water," says his wife. "We melted snow for so long at first."

Machinist Raymond Kula, 44, his wife and their son, Francis, 14, already are in their birch log home—a big, sturdy one - room cabin. Kula had to go 40 feet deep for water when he dug his well by hand.

His wife, who helps Francis with his correspondence courses for school, is happy to be homesteading.

"I'm glad to get away from the city," she says. "I got tired of being on the go. The only thing I'd like is a washing machine. The men here get their clothes so dirty it's hard to get them clean by hand."

Bill Orzechowski, 45, a plumber, feels homesteading has been good for his health. His wife and son, William Jr., plan to join him next summer.

Sik, 32, his wife, Carol, and their 14-month-old daughter live in a trailer with a canvas lean-to. Sik has finished a flat-roofed log barn for his livestock—12 chickens, a goose, two horses and a cow.

"I get a little lonesome now and then," says Mrs. Sik. "But my parents are coming up in the spring. If they stay, I won't regret anything."

Also looking forward to the spring breakup is Steve Pankewicz, 46, who is waiting until then to have his wife and two grown sons join him. He has no regrets about life in Alaska—"Not at all. I got away from the rat race."

Pankewicz is living in the Quonset hut of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Rubino, 59ers who moved to Talkeetna for the winter while their 11-year-old son goes to school. Rubino, who cleared land and provided for his bull and two cows, will work at a hotel in Talkeetna.

Two other members of the Michigan party, bachelors Bob Watkins and Eric Eklund built cabins, then had to leave for military service. Both said they plan to return.

Another family of 59ers is at Talkeetna, but not homesteading. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Hoffman, parents of one child, bought into ownership of the Fairview Inn, a roadhouse and hotel, and have taken up permanent residence in this community on the Alaska Railroad.

"Sometimes we do find homesteading a little rough," Mrs. Rubino says, "but I don't know of a single family that wants to give up and go home."

A few of the original 59ers did return to Michigan after initial discouragements over finding suitable land to start new farming careers.

Others settled in the more populous Homer area, on the Kanai Peninsula south of Anchorage. Others became residents of Anchorage, taking up routine city occupations.

OLD SETTLER

An older settler, C. W. (Shorty) Bradley, has been the 59ers' biggest benefactor. He and his wife, Florence, have been homesteading in the area for six years, and on a large spread—a big log house, farmland, livestock and poultry. Bradley gave the newcomers use of two or three acres this summer to grow their first crops of feed and vegetables, helped them out with tools and counseled them on pioneering farm problems.

The final reasoning was this: A high school print shop could save the entire school system a great deal of money normally spent on commercial printing, as well as furnish a laboratory for school students who wanted "on the job" training.

SAVINGS

At an estimated total cost of around $10,000, the complete, ready-to-go printing department was installed throughout two rooms in the second floor. School officials watched the installation closely, because they figured the shop would eventually pay for itself.

So far, the money - saving and student - training project has "come through with flying colors," school officials say.

In addition to printing the monthly Neville High school newspaper, "The Sizzler," with a circulation of 2,000, the print shop also turns out practically all office forms, letter heads, and other printed materials needed by the city school department.

"And that," commented Sammy Danna, public relations director and head of the print shop, "entails quite a lot of work when you consider that we're printing material for thirteen different schools."

COMMENDED

Sidney Seegers, principal of Neville, noted that the print shop thus far has done "a wonderful job in living up to every expectation and purpose for which it was created."

However, the shop is not expected to print all materials needed by the school system, he pointed out. "Since this is the first semester for the shop to operate, we naturally are trying to go slow with the work. Later, after the project begins to roll smoothly, more work can be turned out by the press."

He explained that the primary purpose of the project was to establish a printing department to serve the growing needs of the city school system. He emphasized, however, that the setup will also serve as an excellent "proving ground" for students to learn the art of the writing and printing industry.

"Although the educational aspects of the idea were not foremost in determining its acceptance, the benefits for the students certainly were not disregarded in considering the project," he pointed out.

BEGINNING

"Already, I understand that some of our students have become pretty adept and efficient with the printing machinery, and this is just the beginning," he said.

Most enthusiastic over the project seems to be the students themselves. "They keep this place buzzing," the shop director said.

"Most of the operations in the shop are very intricate and require skilled operators with plenty of know-how," Danna explained. "And so far, students have rushed in to tackle every process of the printing department. Some are already showing about as much skill as experienced workers, and all of them are improving their work just about every day."

Five completely different steps are necessary before any printed product is completed in the shop.

COPIED

After the initial news or material is written on paper, it is copied on a special machine called a varityper, which is similar to a regular typewriter in appearance.

"Appearance is about as far as the similarity goes," Danna commented. "There's about $3,000 difference in the price of the two."

The varityper automatically sets correct margins as the news material is typed on the paper. In doing so, it saves much valuable time — time which is important in the newspaper business.

After the material is typed on the varityper paper, in any one of six different sizes of print, it is taken to the "light box," a wooden box - like affair with a glass top which makes up the second important process of printing in the shop.

LIGHT BOX

"Our light box was made especially for us by one of the industrial art classes here at school, saving us about $500," Danna said.

At the light box, the printed material from the varityper is pasted evenly on a large make-up sheet. On this same sheet, any larger letters or illustrations used for headlines, etc., are pasted onto the sheet.

After the enitre page is set, or pasted, exactly the way it is to appear in the finished form, it is taken to the photography department next door, where a photograph of the entire page is taken.

"The darkroom is the oldest part of our printshop," one of the students explained. "It has been in use at the high school for about 20 years."

DARKROOM

It is also a very complete darkroom, with enough supplies and equipment to process practically any photographic job needed. Included in the equipment are two professional graphic cameras,two electronic flash units, an enlarger, and a special vertical copy camera, which was reported to be valued at about $2,000.

After the finished full - page negative is completed in the darkroom, it is taken back into the print shop and exposed to flourescent lights in another special piece of equipment called the plate - burning machine. These lights transpose the image, or the picture, on the negative to an ultra - thin aluminum plate sensitized to the light rays. This entire process, which lasts only a few minutes, takes place in a vacuum created by the machine.

REVERSE

This plate, which has a reverse picture of the page transformed on one side, is then de-sensitized to light.

Following this, the final step goes into operation: the actual printing from the press.

For this final step, the metal plate is placed on a special roller of the press, with ink passing onto the thin aluminum where letters, illustrations, etc., appear.

Then, after a number of "trial runs," during which sample copies are checked once more for any mistakes or imperfections.

Then, the presses roll, leafing out pages of printed copy at the rate of five to nine thousand copies per hour.

Report From Pioneers

Editor's note — Remember the 59ers, the doughty band of Michigan pioneers who set out to homestead in Alaska last spring? Here's a report on how they're getting along.

By WILLIAM TOBIN

TALKEETNA, Alaska (AP)— Generous supplies of home-canned food, including porcupine, caribou and moose meat, line the shelves.

There are 65 stacks of home-grown potatoes on hand and plenty of green vegetables.

Snow will soon blanket three newly built cabins of hand - cut birch logs and a handful of other homes—converted Quonset huts and worn house trailers with canvas lean-to extensions.

This is homestead country, where the Michigan 59ers—what remains of them — are buttoning up for their first Alaskan winter of 35 below zero temperatures.

HOPE

"If I'm real good," says pretty Bertha Donaldson, wistfully, "I'm going to get a new washtub and an ax for Christmas."

Ten adults and three children are left from the original group of 42 persons who arrived last March from Michigan to carve new lives in Alaska.

The modern day pioneers attracted nationwide attention on their trouble-plagued motor caravan to the 49th state. Now, after six months, how do they feel?

"No regrets — not yet," says Mrs. Marino Sik, whose husband is head of the remaining group.

After initial troubles in settling on a location, the 59ers took homestead land 10 miles west of here, across the ice - choked Susitna River 80 miles north of Anchorage. About 20 other settlers also live in the area.

No bridge spans the wide river. There is no electric power — the only light in midwinter darkness will come from lanterns and candles. No telephones serve the homesteaders.

Dynamite blasts are the only means of signalling for aid in case of emergency. The explosions, heard in Talkeetna, alert bush pilot Don Sheldon, who has flown several missions for the 59ers.

The homestead settlement is a far cry from the car-clogged expressways the pioneers left back home in the Detroit area. Their homes are spread for 16 miles along a single gravel road running west from the river. After the last homestead comes a 7½-mile stretch to a roadhouse. The road ends 50 miles from where it begins at the Cache Creek gold mine.

Sometimes the only traffic on the road is Bertha Donaldson's bicycle, as she visits her neighbors carrying vegetables in buckets hanging from the handlebars. She feels the clanking buckets keep away any black bears that might come ambling along the road.

Mrs. Donaldson's husband, Gerald, 46, a carpenter, is working on a 28 by 24-foot cabin. Meanwhile they live in a housetrailer sparingly heated with an oil stove. Fuel costs $16.50 a barrel plus $7.50 air freight. A wood stove is used for cooking.

But life is easier since Donaldson dug a well. "It's good to have water," says his wife. "We melted snow for so long at first."

Machinist Raymond Kula, 44, his wife and their son, Francis, 14, already are in their birch log home—a big, sturdy one - room cabin. Kula had to go 40 feet deep for water when he dug his well by hand.

His wife, who helps Francis with his correspondence courses for school, is happy to be homesteading.

"I'm glad to get away from the city," she says. "I got tired of being on the go. The only thing I'd like is a washing machine. The men here get their clothes so dirty it's hard to get them clean by hand."

Bill Orzechowski, 45, a plumber, feels homesteading has been good for his health. His wife and son, William Jr., plan to join him next summer.

Sik, 32, his wife, Carol, and their 14-month-old daughter live in a trailer with a canvas lean-to. Sik has finished a flat-roofed log barn for his livestock—12 chickens, a goose, two horses and a cow.

"I get a little lonesome now and then," says Mrs. Sik. "But my parents are coming up in the spring. If they stay, I won't regret anything."

Also looking forward to the spring breakup is Steve Pankewicz, 46, who is waiting until then to have his wife and two grown sons join him. He has no regrets about life in Alaska—"Not at all. I got away from the rat race."

Pankewicz is living in the Quonset hut of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Rubino, 59ers who moved to Talkeetna for the winter while their 11-year-old son goes to school. Rubino, who cleared land and provided for his bull and two cows, will work at a hotel in Talkeetna.

Two other members of the Michigan party, bachelors Bob Watkins and Eric Eklund built cabins, then had to leave for military service. Both said they plan to return.

Another family of 59ers is at Talkeetna, but not homesteading. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Hoffman, parents of one child, bought into ownership of the Fairview Inn, a roadhouse and hotel, and have taken up permanent residence in this community on the Alaska Railroad.

"Sometimes we do find homesteading a little rough," Mrs. Rubino says, "but I don't know of a single family that wants to give up and go home."

A few of the original 59ers did return to Michigan after initial discouragements over finding suitable land to start new farming careers.

Others settled in the more populous Homer area, on the Kanai Peninsula south of Anchorage. Others became residents of Anchorage, taking up routine city occupations.

OLD SETTLER

An older settler, C. W. (Shorty) Bradley, has been the 59ers' biggest benefactor. He and his wife, Florence, have been homesteading in the area for six years, and on a large spread—a big log house, farmland, livestock and poultry. Bradley gave the newcomers use of two or three acres this summer to grow their first crops of feed and vegetables, helped them out with tools and counseled them on pioneering farm problems.

Television Fraud Laws

When shocking events of any kind, such as the TV quiz show scandals, occur the public reaction always seems to be, "There ought to be a law."

The amusing or pathetic part of this constantly-recurring demand for new laws is that it is made even when there are plenty of adequate laws covering the situation or when the laws themselves might be more objectionable than the condition they were intended to remedy.

One of the newest revelations in the TV quiz show scandal was a statement by District Attorney Frank Hogan in New York that possibly 100 persons had lied when questioned by a grand jury investigating the charges. He said perjury charges would be considered.

It is hardly likely that any laws providing more severe penalties for TV show deceptions than for perjury could be enacted. Most states provide stiff penalties for perjury and this is doubtless true in New York. Thus the necessary law for punishing people for lying under oath already exists. The only question there is whether perjury was committed in a way harmful enough to justify prosecution and fine or imprisonment. Therefore, we don't need any new laws for false testimony under oath.

Revelations of an avalanche television deceptions have been so shocking that President Eisenhower said the department of justice will make recommendations to congress at the next session and that the federal trade commission is studying the question of whether quiz shows involved fraud in advertising.

Aside from the quiz shows, there have been published reports recently that either the federal trade commission or the congressional oversight subcommittee or both may investigate what some consider phony or misleading medical advertising on television.

Investigations under present laws regarding fraud and perjury and under regulations pertaining to the legitimate operation of television networks seem appropriate now in view of the huge fraud, in the sense of entertainment, that has been perpetrated upon the TV-viewing public. There has been no monetary fraud against the people, since they put up no money, and there may have been no monetary fraud against anyone, as there has been testimony that there was collusion between the sponsors, the promoters of the shows and the "actors," which the contestants recently have been labelled.

The contestants undoubtedly are guilty morally because of their conspiracy to deceive the public but apparently only those who testified falsely under oath are guilty of violating the law in such a way as to face possible prison sentences.

Law, in the sense of federal control and regulation of business, should be approached with extreme caution and should be avoided as much as possible.

The proper step is self-policing by the business concerned.

Television has done a little self-policing already on medical advertising and now is engaged in a great deal more on rigged quiz shows.

Frank Stanton, president of Columbia Broadcasting System, said a few days ago that his organization accepted responsibility for "assurance to the American people that what they see and hear on CBS programs is exactly what it purports to be." That is the course that should be followed wherever there is trouble involving deception of the public.

Chairman Earl W. Kintner of the federal trade commission pointed to the values of self-policing as opposed to stringent federal regulation or control in a speech a few days ago before the Audit Bureau of Circulation. This is the organization of advertisers, advertising agencies and publishers which certifies circulations of newspapers and periodicals so that the advertisers know just what they are buying when they take space in any type of publication. This type of self-policing provides better protection for the buying public, the advertisers and the publishers than any federal laws and regulations could offer.

Television has a big job on its hands as a result of the TV revelations but it should be able to do an effective job of self-policing, without the enactment of laws which would hurt the public, the advertisers and the network.

Panama Gets Bolder

Last week's anti-United States uprising in Panama show a bolder approach than was used by persons of similar sentiments in that country several months ago.

The recent disorders — which went so far as to include stoning the American Embassy and injuring a number of persons — appear to have been organized within Panama. It will be recalled the "invasion force" which moved into Panama last spring was trained in Cuba by members of the Castro organization.

At that time, President Ernesto de la Guardia flushed out the insurrectionists shortly after they landed. It was clear his own government was just as high priority target as the U. S. policed Canal Zone.

But this time, President de la Guardia jumped on the anti-American bandwagon and denounced U.S. control of the Canal Zone in a "state of the nation" speech. The more outspoken contenders for the office, perhaps because they were on the "outside," felt their popularity would soar if thy could go beyond the anti-American views expressed by de la Guardia.

So Opposition Party deputy Aquilino Boyd, former foreign minister Ernesto Pimentel and perhaps other factions organized what was termed an Independence Day march into the 10-mile wide zone. They urged that no laws be broken and that as many persons as possible walk or drive into the zone carrying the national flag of the Republic of Panama.

With the fiery nature of the Latin Americans much in evidence in such cases, no one could expect the march into the Canal Zone to be carried out in a peaceful, "orderly fashion" as the leaders had proposed.

Throughout Central and South America, anti-U. S. feelings have grown steadily for the past 10 years. The reception given Vice President Nixon on his trip to Venezuela proved to be far more hostile than any heckling he got in Russian territory. Panama has all this feeling plus the 10-mile belt of territory running across it which the United States calls a possession The big question now being raised in Panama is just how binding is the Treaty of 1903 under which the United States constructed, and set up provisions to operate and maintain the canal.

The United States pays the Republic of Panama $1,930,000 annually for use of the zone. This is the principle source of dollar credits possessed by Panama since that country has let its own agriculture and other money-making resources backslide.

While the government in power seems to realize it has a "good thing" economically in U. S. rentals and sellings to Americans living in the Canal Zone, talk of "nationalizing" the canal persists among parties trying to gain quick favor with the public.

Smith Memorial Dinner

Politicians Place Themselves In Awkward Position Of Exhibiting Wares On Same Platform

Comparisons are odious, until politicians place themselves in the awkward position of exhibiting their wares on the same platform. The Al Smith Memorial dinner, at the Wadorf-Astoria, is not a political enterprise; it exists to raise about $250,000 a year for a hospital and is attended by the principal people in New York. Among them are the Republican and Democratic leaders of New York State which sends the largest delegations to both national conventions. It is also probable that important politicial personalities will be there from other states, particularly Connecticut and New Jersey.

The speakers are usually political persons, the governor of the State of New York, the mayor of New York City and one other. This time all three speakers are candidates for President or Vice President and the audience was as excited for the competition as before a prize fight.

The first speaker was Mayor Robert Wagner of New York City who delivered an address on Al Smith that was well organized, well spoken and made a good impression. He said all there is to say about Al Smith in one evening and were it not that political speakers write and read what they have to say, which they usually send to the newspapers in advance, the other speakers would have turned to other subjects. Some day, we shall discover a public man in this country who dares to speak without a manuscript and we shall applaud him for his courage in saying what is truly in his mind.

* * *

The diners at the Al Smith Memorial dinner were not so fortunate. Governor Nelson Rockefeller having a really great opportunity, missed it. His speech was written in the style of Adlai Stevenson, a kind of exhibitionistic essay-writing, with long sentences and long words and a wearisome intellectual projection of fancied-up platitudes. Whoever prepared that particular speech need not ever try his hand at speech-writing again. That style went out with Macaulay and need not be resurrected in these days of microphones and baby-sitters.

The American people are accustomed to speeches and styles in oratory constantly change. But one quality about speeches never changes; they must never be dull. Americans like to laugh; they like banter; they prefer a speech to be punctuated by applause at fortunate moments. They prefer a speaker who quickly discovers the terminal point and does not miss it. Herbert Hoover once counted 11 missed terminal points in another speaker.

* * *

Rockefeller's speech had some sound wisdom in it, particularly his emphasis on the need and morality of political participation, but it was overlaid by unnecessary verbiage, supported by rhetorical cliches. While he carries conviction by his personality, his speech wandered.

The audience had eaten too much; the Grand Ballroom was becoming stuffy; the cigars were long and the smoke none too friendly to weary eyes. Rise-Stevens sang three or four songs with an unnecessary microphone to spoil her beauty. Then Cardinal Spellman introduced Senator John Kennedy "from the small State of Massachusetts." Kennedy came on after the seventh inning and there had been no opportunity to stretch. He stole the show.

* * *

Apparently he threw away his manuscript or most of it. At any rate, he looked his audience square in the eye without constantly lowering his head to see if the word he said was exactly the word he read. He bantered and joked and got his ideas across. His surprise paragraph on the candidate who lost practically every state, including his own, was truly startling. Everybody expected him to say Al Smith, Catholic, but it turned out to be Alf Landon, Protestant. At that sally, he woke up the audience, who applauded him 10 times in 9 minutes and the show was on the road again.

* * *

Here was an old campaigner, who understood his audience, realized that it was a tired, weary audience, gave a grand show, said many things that will be remembered and repeated. It reminded one of Harry Truman when he was fighting to win an election which was surely, positively lost —and Harry won.

Oratory is not wisdom nor does one speech make a victory. But what Kennedy did was impressive. He displayed quickness of wit, self assurance in a difficult situation, a sharp mind with keen and good humor. He stopped when the going was still good. It was a smart performance.

Upset Hits Budget

Big Appropriations And Steel Strike To Throw It Out Of Balance

President Eisenhower and his fiscal advisers are examining into two serious budget measures at once. The double exposure to trouble is on the 1960 budget, now in the process of spending, and the 1961 budget now in the process of readiness for presentation to Congress.

* * *

The 1960 budget would be in balance narrowly the Administration estimated when it was submitted to Congress. Many things have occurred since. First, figures by Budget Director Stans show, Congress raised the appropriations a net of $597,000,000 above the amount asked by the President and the amount asked by the President did not constitute penny-pinching.

Then came the unexpected and upsetting long steel strike, which has just about banished any hope of a 1960 balanced budget. Lay-off of workers in steel and industries making heavy use of steel and lessened corporate profits make it almost certain that revenue losses will again put the Treasury in the red.

* * *

The 1961 outlook is equally if not more unpromising. As a result the Administration has announced that a hard look is being taken at our foreign aid outlay and a study is being made in an effort to trim American dollar expenditures abroad, including military expenditures.

Even should the cheeriest estimates the Budget Director can conjure up come true, the Eisenhower Administration now realizes that is going into the record books as the spendingest Administration in the nation's history.

How galling this must be to President Eisenhower can be imagined from two episodes of the 1952 Presidential campaign. There was first the famous Morningside Heights Conference between General Eisenhower and Senator Robert A. Taft in New York city on September 12.

When it was finished Senator Taft, speaking for both himself and General Eisenhower, set an immediate party goal of a $70,000,000,000 Budget a year, which by fiscal year 1955 would be reduced to $60,000,000,000. He said they (Eisenhower and Taft) hoped to slash drastically overall expenses. In a typical campaign speech at Columbia, South Carolina on September 3, 1952, General Eisenhower asked:

"Isn't it time we had in Washington an administration which knows how to keep expenditures down; which will put an end to waste; which believes that an unbalanced Federal budget is dangerous to every one of us — and moves to bring that Budget into balance?"

* * *

The record has been startlingly different. All Administrations in the 156 years from George Washington through Franklin D. Roosevelt colected taxes totaling $244,100,000,000! Harry S. Truman in seven years and nine months as President collected $342,200,000,000 in taxes.

Tax collectors during President Eisenhoer's eight years will have reached into the pockets of the taxpayers for an estimated total of $562,400,000,000. This would be just $23,900,000,000 — somewhat below 4 months of tax collections at the present rate — less than the total tax take of $586,300,000,000 for all the Presidents who preceded him in the 184 years from Washington through Truman.

Japanese Rearm

Hold That 'Self-Defense' Forces Are Allowed Under Constitution

AIR - BORNE IN PACIFIC — Adult education, as every traveling correspondent knows, begins with the un-learning of misconceptions, such as:

That the missile age is Occidental. Far from being the sole product and concern of the Western half of the world, pilotless aircraft and guided projectiles are much on the mind of the Orient. The Japanese are rearming with "self-defense" forces, holding that this interpretation falls within their Constitution which forbids war-making.

* * *

But Jap officials, now about to exchange their F-86 fighter planes for something more modern, are caught on the fence. Shall they take American advice and invest heavily in new planes, such as the F-100 series or even a French or British model? On the other hand, the Japs want to know why they shouldn't rearm from the skin out — with nothing but missiles. To do this would in the years ahead, give Japan the best air power in the Pacific area. But to do this it would also mean that in the immediate future Japan would continue to be an increasingly prosperous protectorate of American military power.

How do we want it? And how, with Japan feeling the oats of independence, can we get what we want?

That superior equipment decided the 1958 battle of Taiwan Strait in favor of the Chinats or Nationalist Chinese. The word in Washington was that the decisive equipment which turned the battle was the American - made Sidewinder rocket with its heat-seeking guidance system taking the weapons up the tailpipes of the Communist jets. Not so! A careful study by Air Force intelligence reveals that the Sidewinder did its duty but was not the victory factor. Chinat pilots scored a kill - rate of 30 to 3 over the Chinese Communists or Chicoms. But only three or four of the 30 shoot - downs were scored by Sidewinders.

Training did the trick. That and a derring - do spirit in the Chinats, born of their confidence in their American backers. Air Force intelligence says that our equipment was not markedly superior to that which the Russians supplied for the Chicoms, but that the training was. This augurs well for the big hopes we are placing in military assistance programs for Asia. It raises the question of whether the Red Chinese leaders are getting disillusioned about their military partnership with Russia.

That the Korean conflict was an unmitigated loss. It was certainly an American catastrophe in statesmanship and battlefield casualties, but as the Orient closes around a traveler he can sense some other aspects of the tragedy. Out of all the anguish and frustration for our side, there has emerged a not - to - be-doubted, not - to - be - shaken respect for American leadership.

When the fighting reached its climax in Korea and approached the point where the Communists had clearly had enough, the champion of the field was the brilliant American Eighth Army. It was put together by Matt Ridgway and later led by Jim Van Fleet. In the opinion of military writers and experts, this Army was certainly the finest fighting force in action, and may have been the best that our country ever put in the field. Despite the stalling at Panmunjom and the inglorious terms of cease - fire, the Korean war ended in many military minds on the glowing membory of American ability to recover from defeat and to slug it out under the worst possible conditions with the best that Russia and China could throw into the fray. There can't be much doubt in Oriental minds that the American soldier, however he misbehaves back home, is a very tough hombre in battle, and that his field leaders — MacArthur. Ridgway, Walker, Dean, Van Fleet — are wonderful men.

That the aims of Red China and Red Russia are identical. This is the same sort of fallacy-by-overstatement which caused many people to believe that Hitler was out to conquer "the world." Hitler's aim, of course, was the consolidation of Europe, much as we are trying to accomplish today. He had no intent and no capacity to attempt global conquest.

Neither have the Communist Chinese. Their threat of expansion is confined to Asia. It may take them southward where they are now pushing, eastward toward the American - held periphery, westward against the Russian border. In any event, it is a mistake which leads to miscalculations and misunderstandings to treat the two Communist giants alike. If they should ever fall out, which is not now indicated in any way, the split would probably be over a question of timetable and priority. This gives us a hope, not of a lucky war between China and Russia, but of a chance to fight them separately, if we must, rather than in unison.

SYLVIA PORTER

Cost Of Living Up

Gentle 'Wave' Likely To Continue Move To Higher Levels

Between now and the end of the year, the cost of living in our nation is likely to creep upward, to continue moving in a gentle "wave" toward the highest levels ever recorded.

By December 1959 the government's consumer price index — the yardstick by which we measure our cost of living — probably will be around 1½ per cent higher than it was in December 1958.

Through the first year of the new decade of the '60s the cost of living is slated to creep upward still more.

The key assumption is that there will be no event in our country or in the world to blow the lid off prices in 1960. On this assumption, the probability is that the consumer price index will be up another 1¼ to 1½ per cent in 1960 to even loftier peaks.

Over the two-year period, therefore, the odds at this date are that the level of prices for goods and services we need and want to live will be up 3 per cent. What it cost you $10 to buy in the market-place in early 1959 will cost you about $10.30 to buy in early 1961.

* * *

And this assumes that the forces now operating to hold down prices keep operating to prevent another upspiral.

"Maybe the rise over the 24-month period will be a little more or a little less," said one of the nation's top experts on price trends when I interviewed him at length on the outlook this week. "But on the basis that 'steel' doesn't start another spiral, there is no farm disaster and no world upheaval, our considered judgment is for a price rise of this degree through 1960"

The flatness of the forecasts for a rise in the 1½ percent range each year may startle you. So here's the background.

Just the relentless climb in the cost of services we are using on an ever-expanding scale is pushing the price index constantly upward. Even during the sharp slump of 1957-58 there was no interruption in the rise in the cost of medical care, repairs, personal services, household operation, etc., et.. There is still no sign of any reversal.

Just the inexorable increase in sales taxes imposed by cities, states, the Federal Government is constantly nibbling at our pocketbooks. These higher taxes show up in price tags on meals, gas, cigarets, hundreds of items we must have or want. There is only one direction for these taxes: UP.

Just the steady advance in the cost of public transportation — rail, subway, bus fares — is constantly adding to living costs. These expenses aren't going down; we're lucky when they stay steady.

Right now, seasonal factors and the steel strike are making a price rise to the year-end a virtual certainty. This is a time of year when we almost always pay "regular" prices for clothing, cars, appliances, furnishings, the like. The markdowns come later. And the shortages artificially created by the steel strike have eliminated the chance for price markdowns on many things for months.

The great offset to a big upswing in living costs has been and is the trend of food. As Labor Statistics Commissioner Ewan Clague put it a few days ago, "There is a good prospect that a reduction in the prices of food market basket for the average family will offset to some extent increases in other retail prices."

Note, though, that Clague used the words "offset to some extent increases in other retain prices." That's an honest appraisal.

At this point ask yourself a vital question that experts the nation over are asking:

Is what we're now having REASONABLE price stability?

Although you'll reach your own conclusion, I submit that compared with the price hikes that hit us in the early postwar years, it certainly is "reasonable". It definitely isn't "galloping" inflation.

And no matter what Government officials say publicly, I submit that the Administration will be delighted if the price increase stays within these limits in the next 15 months.

Television Fraud Laws

When shocking events of any kind, such as the TV quiz show scandals, occur the public reaction always seems to be, "There ought to be a law."

The amusing or pathetic part of this constantly-recurring demand for new laws is that it is made even when there are plenty of adequate laws covering the situation or when the laws themselves might be more objectionable than the condition they were intended to remedy.

One of the newest revelations in the TV quiz show scandal was a statement by District Attorney Frank Hogan in New York that possibly 100 persons had lied when questioned by a grand jury investigating the charges. He said perjury charges would be considered.

It is hardly likely that any laws providing more severe penalties for TV show deceptions than for perjury could be enacted. Most states provide stiff penalties for perjury and this is doubtless true in New York. Thus the necessary law for punishing people for lying under oath already exists. The only question there is whether perjury was committed in a way harmful enough to justify prosecution and fine or imprisonment. Therefore, we don't need any new laws for false testimony under oath.

Revelations of an avalanche television deceptions have been so shocking that President Eisenhower said the department of justice will make recommendations to congress at the next session and that the federal trade commission is studying the question of whether quiz shows involved fraud in advertising.

Aside from the quiz shows, there have been published reports recently that either the federal trade commission or the congressional oversight subcommittee or both may investigate what some consider phony or misleading medical advertising on television.

Investigations under present laws regarding fraud and perjury and under regulations pertaining to the legitimate operation of television networks seem appropriate now in view of the huge fraud, in the sense of entertainment, that has been perpetrated upon the TV-viewing public. There has been no monetary fraud against the people, since they put up no money, and there may have been no monetary fraud against anyone, as there has been testimony that there was collusion between the sponsors, the promoters of the shows and the "actors," which the contestants recently have been labelled.

The contestants undoubtedly are guilty morally because of their conspiracy to deceive the public but apparently only those who testified falsely under oath are guilty of violating the law in such a way as to face possible prison sentences.

Law, in the sense of federal control and regulation of business, should be approached with extreme caution and should be avoided as much as possible.

The proper step is self-policing by the business concerned.

Television has done a little self-policing already on medical advertising and now is engaged in a great deal more on rigged quiz shows.

Frank Stanton, president of Columbia Broadcasting System, said a few days ago that his organization accepted responsibility for "assurance to the American people that what they see and hear on CBS programs is exactly what it purports to be." That is the course that should be followed wherever there is trouble involving deception of the public.

Chairman Earl W. Kintner of the federal trade commission pointed to the values of self-policing as opposed to stringent federal regulation or control in a speech a few days ago before the Audit Bureau of Circulation. This is the organization of advertisers, advertising agencies and publishers which certifies circulations of newspapers and periodicals so that the advertisers know just what they are buying when they take space in any type of publication. This type of self-policing provides better protection for the buying public, the advertisers and the publishers than any federal laws and regulations could offer.

Television has a big job on its hands as a result of the TV revelations but it should be able to do an effective job of self-policing, without the enactment of laws which would hurt the public, the advertisers and the network.

Panama Gets Bolder

Last week's anti-United States uprising in Panama show a bolder approach than was used by persons of similar sentiments in that country several months ago.

The recent disorders — which went so far as to include stoning the American Embassy and injuring a number of persons — appear to have been organized within Panama. It will be recalled the "invasion force" which moved into Panama last spring was trained in Cuba by members of the Castro organization.

At that time, President Ernesto de la Guardia flushed out the insurrectionists shortly after they landed. It was clear his own government was just as high priority target as the U. S. policed Canal Zone.

But this time, President de la Guardia jumped on the anti-American bandwagon and denounced U.S. control of the Canal Zone in a "state of the nation" speech. The more outspoken contenders for the office, perhaps because they were on the "outside," felt their popularity would soar if thy could go beyond the anti-American views expressed by de la Guardia.

So Opposition Party deputy Aquilino Boyd, former foreign minister Ernesto Pimentel and perhaps other factions organized what was termed an Independence Day march into the 10-mile wide zone. They urged that no laws be broken and that as many persons as possible walk or drive into the zone carrying the national flag of the Republic of Panama.

With the fiery nature of the Latin Americans much in evidence in such cases, no one could expect the march into the Canal Zone to be carried out in a peaceful, "orderly fashion" as the leaders had proposed.

Throughout Central and South America, anti-U. S. feelings have grown steadily for the past 10 years. The reception given Vice President Nixon on his trip to Venezuela proved to be far more hostile than any heckling he got in Russian territory. Panama has all this feeling plus the 10-mile belt of territory running across it which the United States calls a possession The big question now being raised in Panama is just how binding is the Treaty of 1903 under which the United States constructed, and set up provisions to operate and maintain the canal.

The United States pays the Republic of Panama $1,930,000 annually for use of the zone. This is the principle source of dollar credits possessed by Panama since that country has let its own agriculture and other money-making resources backslide.

While the government in power seems to realize it has a "good thing" economically in U. S. rentals and sellings to Americans living in the Canal Zone, talk of "nationalizing" the canal persists among parties trying to gain quick favor with the public.

Smith Memorial Dinner

Politicians Place Themselves In Awkward Position Of Exhibiting Wares On Same Platform

Comparisons are odious, until politicians place themselves in the awkward position of exhibiting their wares on the same platform. The Al Smith Memorial dinner, at the Wadorf-Astoria, is not a political enterprise; it exists to raise about $250,000 a year for a hospital and is attended by the principal people in New York. Among them are the Republican and Democratic leaders of New York State which sends the largest delegations to both national conventions. It is also probable that important politicial personalities will be there from other states, particularly Connecticut and New Jersey.

* * *

The speakers are usually political persons, the governor of the State of New York, the mayor of New York City and one other. This time all three speakers are candidates for President or Vice President and the audience was as excited for the competition as before a prize fight.

The first speaker was Mayor Robert Wagner of New York City who delivered an address on Al Smith that was well organized, well spoken and made a good impression. He said all there is to say about Al Smith in one evening and were it not that political speakers write and read what they have to say, which they usually send to the newspapers in advance, the other speakers would have turned to other subjects. Some day, we shall discover a public man in this country who dares to speak without a manuscript and we shall applaud him for his courage in saying what is truly in his mind.

* * *

The diners at the Al Smith Memorial dinner were not so fortunate. Governor Nelson Rockefeller having a really great opportunity, missed it. His speech was written in the style of Adlai Stevenson, a kind of exhibitionistic essay-writing, with long sentences and long words and a wearisome intellectual projection of fancied-up platitudes. Whoever prepared that particular speech need not ever try his hand at speech-writing again. That style went out with Macaulay and need not be resurrected in these days of microphones and baby-sitters.

The American people are accustomed to speeches and styles in oratory constantly change. But one quality about speeches never changes; they must never be dull. Americans like to laugh; they like banter; they prefer a speech to be punctuated by applause at fortunate moments. They prefer a speaker who quickly discovers the terminal point and does not miss it. Herbert Hoover once counted 11 missed terminal points in another speaker.

* * *

Rockefeller's speech had some sound wisdom in it, particularly his emphasis on the need and morality of political participation, but it was overlaid by unnecessary verbiage, supported by rhetorical cliches. While he carries conviction by his personality, his speech wandered.

The audience had eaten too much; the Grand Ballroom was becoming stuffy; the cigars were long and the smoke none too friendly to weary eyes. Rise-Stevens sang three or four songs with an unnecessary microphone to spoil her beauty. Then Cardinal Spellman introduced Senator John Kennedy "from the small State of Massachusetts." Kennedy came on after the seventh inning and there had been no opportunity to stretch. He stole the show.

* * *

Apparently he threw away his manuscript or most of it. At any rate, he looked his audience square in the eye without constantly lowering his head to see if the word he said was exactly the word he read. He bantered and joked and got his ideas across. His surprise paragraph on the candidate who lost practically every state, including his own, was truly startling. Everybody expected him to say Al Smith, Catholic, but it turned out to be Alf Landon, Protestant. At that sally, he woke up the audience, who applauded him 10 times in 9 minutes and the show was on the road again.

* * *

Here was an old campaigner, who understood his audience, realized that it was a tired, weary audience, gave a grand show, said many things that will be remembered and repeated. It reminded one of Harry Truman when he was fighting to win an election which was surely, positively lost —and Harry won.

Oratory is not wisdom nor does one speech make a victory. But what Kennedy did was impressive. He displayed quickness of wit, self assurance in a difficult situation, a sharp mind with keen and good humor. He stopped when the going was still good. It was a smart performance.

Upset Hits Budget

Big Appropriations And Steel Strike To Throw It Out Of Balance

President Eisenhower and his fiscal advisers are examining into two serious budget measures at once. The double exposure to trouble is on the 1960 budget, now in the process of spending, and the 1961 budget now in the process of readiness for presentation to Congress.

* * *

The 1960 budget would be in balance narrowly the Administration estimated when it was submitted to Congress. Many things have occurred since. First, figures by Budget Director Stans show, Congress raised the appropriations a net of $597,000,000 above the amount asked by the President and the amount asked by the President did not constitute penny-pinching.

Then came the unexpected and upsetting long steel strike, which has just about banished any hope of a 1960 balanced budget. Layoff of workers in steel and industries making heavy use of steel and lessened corporate profits make it almost certain that revenue losses will again put the Treasury in the red.

* * *

The 1961 outlook is equally if not more unpromising. As a result the Administration has announced that a hard look is being taken at our foreign aid outlay and a study is being made in an effort to trim American dollar expenditures abroad, including military expenditures.

Even should the cheeriest estimates the Budget Director can conjure up come true, the Eisenhower Administration now realizes that is going into the record books as the spendingest Administration in the nation's history.

How galling this must be to President Eisenhower can be imagined from two episodes of the 1952 Presidential campaign. There was first the famous Morningside Heights Conference between General Eisenhower and Senator Robert A. Taft in New York city on September 12.

When it was finished Senator Taft, speaking for both himself and General Eisenhower, set an immediate party goal of a $70,000,000,000 Budget a year, which by fiscal year 1955 would be reduced to $60,000,000,000. He said they (Eisenhower and Taft) hoped to slash drastically overall expenses. In a typical campaign speech at Columbia, South Carolina on September 3, 1952, General Eisenhower asked:

"Isn't it time we had in Washington an administration which knows how to keep expenditures down; which will put an end to waste; which believes that an unbalanced Federal budget is dangerous to every one of us — and moves to bring that Budget into balance?"

* * *

The record has been startingly different. All Administrations in the 156 years from George Washington through Franklin D. Roosevelt colected taxes totaling $244,100,000,000! Harry S. Truman in seven years and nine months as President collected $342,200,000,000 in taxes.

Tax collectors during President Eisenhoer's eight years will have reached into the pockets of the taxpayers for an estimated total of $562,400,000,000. This would be just $23,900,000,000 — somewhat below 4 months of tax collections at the present rate — less than the total tax take of $586,300,000,000 for all the Presidents who preceded him in the 164 years from Washington through Truman.

Japanese Rearm

Hold That 'Self-Defense' Forces Are Allowed Under Constitution

AIR - BORNE IN PACIFIC — Adult education, as every traveling correspondent knows, begins with the un-learning of misconceptions, such as:

That the missile age is Occidental. Far from being the sole product and concern of the Western half of the world, pilotless aircraft and guided projectiles are much on the mind of the Orient. The Japanese are rearming with "self-defense" forces, holding that this interpretation falls within their Constitution which forbids war-making.

* * *

But Jap officials, now about to exchange their F-86 fighter planes for something more modern, are caught on the fence. Shall they take American advice and invest heavily in new planes, such as the F-100 series or even a French or British model? On the other hand, the Japs want to know why they shouldn't rearm from the skin out — with nothing but missiles. To do this would in the years ahead, give Japan the best air power in the Pacific area. But to do this it would also mean that in the immediate future Japan would continue to be an increasingly prosperous protectorate of American military power.

How do we want it? And how, with Japan feeling the oats of independence, can we get what we want?

That superior equipment decided the 1958 battle of Taiwan Strait in favor of the Chinats or Nationalist Chinese. The word in Washington was that the decisive equipment which turned the battle was the American - made Sidewinder rocket with its heat-seeking guidance system taking the weapons up the tailpipes of the Communist jets. Not so! A careful study by Air Force intelligence reveals that the Sidewinder did its duty but was not the victory factor. Chinat pilots scored a kill - rate of 30 to 3 over the Chinese Communists or Chicoms. But only three or four of the 30 shoot - downs were scored by Sidewinders.

Training did the trick. That and a derring - do spirit in the Chinats, born of their confidence in their American backers. Air Force intelligence says that our equipment was not markedly superior to that which the Russians supplied for the Chicoms, but that the training was. This augurs well for the big hopes we are placing in military assistance programs for Asia. It raises the question of whether the Red Chinese leaders are getting disillusioned about their military partnership with Russia.

That the Korean conflict was an unmitigated loss. It was certainly an American catastrophe in statesmanship and battlefield casualties, but as the Orient closes around a traveler he can sense some other aspects of the tragedy. Out of all the anguish and frustration for our side, there has emerged a not - to - be-doubted, not - to - be - shaken respect for American leadership.

When the fighting reached its climax in Korea and approached the point where the Communists had clearly had enough, the champion of the field was the brilliant American Eighth Army. It was put together by Matt Ridgway and later led by Jim Van Fleet. In the opinion of military writers and experts, this Army was certainly the finest fighting force in action, and may have been the best that our country ever put in the field. Despite the stalling at Panmunjom and the inglorious terms of cease - fire, the Korean war ended in many military minds on the glowing membory of American ability to recover from defeat and to slug it out under the worst possible conditions with the best that Russia and China could throw into the fray. There can't be much doubt in Oriental minds that the American soldier, however he misbehaves back home, is a very tough hombre in battle, and that his field leaders — MacArthur. Ridgway, Walker, Dean, Van Fleet — are wonderful men.

That the aims of Red China and Red Russia are identical. This is the same sort of fallacy-by-overstatement which caused many people to believe that Hitler was out to conquer "the world." Hitler's aim, of course, was the consolidation of Europe, much as we are trying to accomplish today. He had no intent and no capacity to attempt global conquest.

Neither have the Communist Chinese. Their threat of expansion is confined to Asia. It may take them southward where they are now pushing, eastward toward the American - held periphery, westward against the Russian border. In any event, it is a mistake which leads to miscalculations and misunderstandings to treat the two Communist giants alike. If they should ever fall out, which is not now indicated in any way, the split would probably be over a question of timetable and priority. This gives us a hope, not of a lucky war between China and Russia, but of a chance to fight them separately, if we must, rather than in unison.

SYLVIA PORTER

Cost Of Living Up

Gentle 'Wave' Likely To Continue Move To Higher Levels

Between now and the end of the year, the cost of living in our nation is likely to creep upward, to continue moving in a gentle "wave" toward the highest levels ever recorded.

By December 1959 the government's consumer price index — the yardstick by which we measure our cost of living — probably will be around 1½ per cent higher than it was in December 1958.

Through the first year of the new decade of the '60s the cost of living is slated to creep upward still more.

The key assumption is that there will be no event in our country or in the world to blow the lid off prices in 1960. On this assumption, the probability is that the consumer price index will be up another 1¼ to 1½ per cent in 1960 to even loftier peaks.

Over the two-year period, therefore, the odds at this date are that the level of prices for goods and services we need and want to live will be up 3 per cent. What it cost you $10 to buy in the market-place in early 1959 will cost you about $10.30 to buy in early 1961.

* * *

And this assumes that the forces now operating to hold down prices keep operating to prevent another upspiral.

"Maybe the rise over the 24-month period will be a little more or a little less," said one of the nation's top experts on price trends when I interviewed him at length on the outlook this week. "But on the basis that 'steel' doesn't start another spiral, there is no farm disaster and no world upheaval, our considered judgment is for a price rise of this degree through 1960"

The flatness of the forecasts for a rise in the 1½ percent range each year may startle you. So here's the background.

Just the relentless climb in the cost of services we are using on an ever-expanding scale is pushing the price index constantly upward. Even during the sharp slump of 1957-58 there was no interruption in the rise in the cost of medical care, repairs, personal services, household operation, etc., et.. There is still no sign of any reversal.

Just the inexorable increase in sales taxes imposed by cities, states, the Federal Government is constantly nibbling at our pocketbooks. These higher taxes show up in price tags on meals, ga., cigarets, hundreds of items we must have or want. There is only one direction for these taxes: UP.

Just the steady advance in the cost of public transportation — rail, subway, bus fares — is constantly adding to living costs. These expenses aren't going down; we're lucky when they stay steady.

Right now, seasonal factors and the steel strike are making a price rise to the year-end a virtual certainty. This is a time of year when we almost always pay "regular" prices for clothing, cars, appliances, furnishings, the like. The markdowns come later. And the shortages artificially created by the steel strike have eliminated the chance for price markdowns on many things for months.

The great offset to a big upswing in living costs has been and is the trend of food. As Labor Statistics Commissioner Ewan Clague put it a few days ago, "There is a good prospect that a reduction in the prices of food market basket for the average family will offset to some extent increases in other retail prices."

Note, though, that Clague used the words "offset to some extent increases in other retain prices." That's an honest appraisal.

At this point ask yourself a vital question that experts the nation over are asking:

Is what we're now having REASONABLE price stability?

Although you'll reach your own conclusion, I submit that compared with the price hikes that hit us in the early postwar years, it certainly is "reasonable". It definitely isn't "galloping" inflation.

And no matter what Government officials say publicly, I submit that the Administration will be delighted if the price increase stays within these limits in the next 15 months.

What It Will Do

Labor Measure

By ROGER GREENE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's new labor reform law swings into high gear this week with the federal government towering like a giant watching over the labor - management field.

The controversial statute, which may have widespread repercussions in the 1960 elections, affects literally millions of workers and thousands of employers.

Designed to blast hoodlums, crooks and racketeers out of corruption - ridden labor unions — and simultaneously curb anti-union activities by some employers — the new law in effect sounds this warning: "Uncle Sam is watching you."

Like the 1932 Lindbergh law which threw the power of the federal government into the fight against kidnaping, the new law mobilizes the same formidable weapons into a nationwide clean-up drive on the labor-management front.

Experts say the injection of federal law enforcement authority into the situation is perhaps the most important phase of the labor - reform legislation.

Much of the past trouble, they say, has arisen from a breakdown in local law enforcement.

Under the new law, the goons, extortionists and crooked union officials will figuratively have FBI agents breathing down their necks.

For the first time, the statute makes it a federal crime to embezzle union funds.

For the first time it sets up severe federal criminal penalties —ranging up to a maximum $10,000 fine and 20 years in prison— for extortion, violence, terrorism and other offenses which have blackened the labor-management picture in the last decade.

Top labor leaders have assailed the law as "union busting" legislation which they say will cripple labor's legitimate functions—they particularly dislike the new crubs on picketing—and open the door to further legislative assaults on the trade union movement's hard-won gains.

The first major challenge to the new law—probably the first of many—was raised by Harry Bridges, left-wing San Francisco labor leader, who rejected Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell's request for a report on Communists and ex-convicts in Bridges' International Longshoremen's Union.

The law bars convicted felons and Communists from holding union office within five years after they left prison or quit the Red party.

Bridges said the law violates the First freedom of speech and Fifth protection against self-incrimination amendments to the U. S. Constitution.

Business leaders, while grumbling over some aspects of the new law, say its union-curbing restrictions are long overdue.

Amid the hubbub, Secretary Mitchell says: "No honest trade union or employer has cause to fear this legislation. It will not be used to bust unions or harass management. It will be used only to help labor and management clean their ranks of corrupt elements."

Threats of retaliation at the polls in the nationwide 1960 elections have already been fired by some top - ranking union chieftains.

AFL-CIO Vice President James B. Carey, head of the International Union of Electrical Workers, has called publicly for ballot-box revenge against congressmen who supported the so-called tough Landrum-Griffin bill which formed the backbone of the new law.

The bill was jointly sponsored by Rep. Phil M. Landrum D-Ga. and Rep. Robert M. Griffin R-Mich. Sen. John F. Kennedy D-Mass., currently a front runner for the Democratic presidential nomination, co-sponsored a somewhat milder Senate version.

Technically known as the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959, the law is so complex that it has already been dubbed the "lawyers' refueling act."

Unquestionably it will take years of court tests to determine exactly what the law means. And it will require the services of umpteen thousand lawyers to advise both labor unions and management on how to keep from running afoul of the new statute.

One thing is certain. The new statute will touch off one of the greatest blizzards of paperwork in history. The Labor Department estimates that detailed annual reports will be required from 55,000 labor organizations, 500,000 union officials, and more than 100,000 employers or corporation officials.

Labor unions are required to submit financial statements to the labor department covering all expenditures, receipts, salaries and any conflict - of- interest transactions by union officers and employes.

On the other side of the fence, the law requires employers to report any money paid to union officials and to their own employes, aside from wages.

This is designed to expose so-called "sweetheart" contracts involving a company bribe to union officials to accept substandard working conditions. It is further aimed at discouraging attemps by employers to set up "no union" committees, hire labor spies, or otherwise influence workers against exercising the right of collective bargaining.

The new law is specifically framed to wipe out the much-criticized "no man's land" which left small businessmen and individual union members without any remedy in cases which were deemed too small for the National Labor Relations Board to handle.

Effective next Friday, Nov. 13—60 days after President Eisenhower signed the new law on Sept. 14 — are some of the act's most highly controversial features. These include tight curbs on secondary boycotts, "hot cargo" agreements, and recognition and organizational picketing.

Secondary boycotts, long a thorn in the side of industry, have the effect of dragging an employer who has no direct quarrel with a union into the union's dispute with another company.

The law sets an outright ban against "hot cargo" pacts in which a trucker, for example refuses to handle cargo from another trucker if the union labels it "hot" or forbidden cargo.

The statute further outlaws extortion or blackmail picketing where a union agent, using the picket line as a weapon, attempts to shakedown an employer for personal gain.

It also prohibits an outside union to picket in an attempt to organize workers — 1. where another union has already been lawfully recognized, 2. where the outside union has lost a collective-bargaining election in the last 12 months, and 3. where picketing has been conducted for "a reasonable period" not exceeding 30 days and no election has been asked.

However, the law says a union may picket longer than 30 days without an election if the picketing doesn't halt deliveries to the picketed company, or if the company has entered into a collusive "sweetheart" contract with another union.

The over-all goal is to substitute peaceful persuasion for violence, threats and coercion on both sides.

On Going To College

Are You Smart?

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Purely in the interests of science—and because the boss told me to—I took a test to see whether I'm smart enough to go to college.

It was a gruesome experience.

About 100,000 high school seniors will take the same test next Saturday. How they fare will play a part in determining whether they can get into the college of their choice next fall.

Frankly, I don't see how anybody gets into college these days. The test was that tough.

The test I took was put togther by Science Research Associates of Chicago for the American College Testing program. The ACT program is new this year, but like the long-established college Entrance Examination Board, its tests will help colleges determine in advance which students are best quaified for admission.

The test took three hours—180 of the longest minutes I've ever spent—and covered English, Social science, natural science and mathematics. It was given under maximum security conditions (cheating was impossible) by a gentleman named Paul Kosaik. Kosaik is a delightful fellow, but he's nobody's friend when he's giving a test.

The questions are top secret, at least until the high school students take the test next Saturday. I swore not to disclose the questions, and Science Research Associates promised not to reveal my score.

But I was given some samples for your amusement and edification. All the questions are multiple choice, which means if you don't know the answer you can take a wild guess.

For instance, in the mathematics section:

1. How many digits are there to the left of the decimal place in the square root of 692038.42753? (A) 3; (B) 4; (C) 5; (D) 6; (E) 8.

2. When added to both the numerator and denominator of 13-20, what number makes the resulting ratio equal to ¾? (A) 4; (B) 5; (C) 7; (D) 8; (E) 10.

3. Two oil wells pump oil continuously. The first produces 4,000 barrels of oil a day, which is 33 1-3 per cent more than the second. What is the total daily production for oth wells? (A) 5,333 1-3; (B) 6,666 2-3; (C) 7,000; (D) 8,333 1-3; (E) 9,000.

4. If a car travels "A" miles in "B" seconds, how long will it take to travel "C" miles? (A) CB over A; (B) C over A; (C) AB over C; (D) C over B; (E) C over AB.

We'll get to the answers to these questions a little later on.

One of the actual test questions —which I'm allowed to use here because I can't even remember it properly—had to do with finding the area of a right triangle on which two of the sides measured five feet.

A section of the English test involved reading a passage in which parts are placed within parentheses and numered. The test is to pick the suggested answer that makes the numbered portion grammatically correct.

A sample:

"I was born an American: I will live an American; I shall die an American: and I intend to perform the duties (1. incumbent) upon me in that character to the end of my career. I mean to do this with absolute disregard of personal consequences. What are the personal consequences? What is the individual (2. man with all the good or evil that may betide him in) comparison with the good or evil which may befall a great country, and in the midst of great transactions which concern that (3. countries') fate?"

1. (A) no change; (B) recumbent, (C) inherent) (D) implict

2. (A) no change: (B) man, with all the good or evil that betide him, in; (C) man, with his good and evil, in; (D) man with his good and evil in

3. (A) no change; (B) countrie's) (C) country's; (D) countrys'

To test yourself in the social studies, read the following passage and answer the question about it.

"Your oldest heirlooms are the words you see in everyday conversation for familiar things—sun, moon, water, stars, father, mother. These have been handed down from a tiny, nameless, and forgotten tribe which 5,000 or 6,000 years ago, was the ancestor of our speech today.

"Heirloom words make us the speech cousins of more than a billion people of all races living today in Europe, India, South Africa, and the Pacific Isles, for they use almost the same words spoken and writtten in the Americas,"

On the basis of the above two paragraphs, complete this sentence:

Scholars believe the history of languages indicates that

A All words developed as modifications of Indian words.

B Persian and Swedish have a common origin.

C Sanskrit is the basis of all modern tongues.

D Languages in different parts of the world developed independently.

In the actual test, the passages are much longer and there are 4 or 5 questions at the end. I don't recall a single one that I was sure I had answered correctly.

Students taking the ACT test next Saturday will gather at 80 test centers in 14 states. Those who didn't register in time will be given another chance next Feb. 7, with a different form covering the same fields.

Oh, yes, the answers to those questions above. Mathematics: A, D, C, A. English: A, B, C. Social studies: B.

Story Of Week

By LEON BURNETT

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A clean-cut young man took the counsel of his conscience this week and dredged up from his well-trained memory some very unpleasant facts about himself.

"I have deceived my friends," he said, "and I have millions of them."

By teletype and the airwaves, the news went out to his friends: Charles Van Doren, former invincible man of the isolation booth, won TV fame and a pile of money by cribbing.

Since 1957, he had been carrying this secret guilt. Now he poured out all the details to a House investigating subcommittee.

In his appearances on the old "21" television quiz show, he said, Producer Albert Freedman had coached him on the answers and taught him to act as though he were having to wrestle information from his memory.

Not only that, Van Doren said, Freedman persuaded him to go though with this deception in the first place — convincing him that success on the show would strengthen the cause of education.

The subcommittee heard similar testimony from other witnesses earlier in the fall, and is continuing its investigation. But Van Doren's appearance provided the real drama. For he was the hero of heroes in quizland.

Suspense had built up, too. Up to this climactic moment, Van Doren had insisted to everyone who asked that he had no knowledge of "21" being fixed.

When his moment came on Monday, the soft-spoken scholar opened with a prepared statement disclosing how his first quiz victory had been planned, how he was equipped behind the scenes to vanquish subsequent challengers — and finally how his defeat was mapped out.

He showed little emotion as he was sworn in, took a drink of water and delivered his recital. Later, when subcommittee members were questioning him, the tears came.

Facts On Storm That Rocked Bahamas

THE LIFE AND DEATH OF SIR HARRY OAKES. By Geoffrey Bocca. Doubleday. $3.95.

On July 8, 1943, there broke in Nassau, the Bahamas, a murder story so sensational that it filled countless first-page columns usually reserved in those days for the exploits of Americans fighting for their country all around the world.

In his palatial home, Westbourne, Sir Harry was killed by some bludgeon or projectile that left holes in his skull; his body was rolled on his bed; it was soaked in gasoline and set afire. Weather balked the flame, and there remained enough evidence, or so it seemed, to indict the victim's son-in-law, Alfred de Marigny, for the crime. One of the world's richest gold mines, sedate Bowdoin, Syracuse and Bennington, the Duke and Duchess of Widsor, slapstick gumshoe cops, and assorted characters innocently involved or uncrupulously implicated formed a strikingly varied background.

Sir Harry was a Maine boy who set out, he said, to be a millionaire. Graduate of Bowdoin, medical student at Syracuse, he left the effete East at the lure of the Klondike. For 14 years he prospected in this country, Australia and Canada where at last he garnered fabulous wealth from the Lake Shore Mine. When the United States threatened to tax him, he gave up citizenship and moved to Canada; the same threat drove him to Nassau, which Harold Christie was developing as a resort. Whatever his character as a boy, Bocca calls the hardened man "surly, foul - mouthed, suspicious" and charges him with "lack of humility, consideration, understanding," and "absence of grace and insulting manners."

When the Windsors went to Nassau, they lived in Oakes' Westbourne while the government house was being readied. Oakes and the Duke were golfing partners; Marigny, the unwelcomed husband of daughter Nancy, had little respect for either man; when the murder was discovered by Christie, the Duke slapped on censorship — though only after the Associated Press got news of the story to the outer world and took what Bocca brands as the "disastrous" step of calling in two detectives from Miami, Melchen and Barber. By this account, they fouled up fingerprints, ignored evidence that did not seem to incriminate the unpopular Marigny, and did their best to get him a death sentence. The judge finally reprimanded them severely, rebuked the prosecutor for some unethical procedure, and scored local police for inaccurate testimony. Marigny was freed, but ordered out of the Bahamas.

Bocca says Sir Harry "asked to be killed." He supposes the killer is still alive, and is disturbed at the failure of Nassau authorities to press for a solution, indeed, at their antagonism to efforts to find the murderer—two attempts were made later on Marigny's life, and violent deaths have been linked to the case.

The suspenseful story gets you all stirred up. These names and some of these faces are familiar; you take sides, you hiss the Keystone cops, you clap for the loyal wife, you tremble at the lynch mob, you help the crowd lift the acquitted Marigny triumphantly to its shoulders.

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

The state gospel singing convention in West Monroe kicked off a fortnight in the fall musical season which is otherwise loaded with opera and string quartet music.

Monday, the Goldovsky Opera Theatre will present "Rigoletto," at Tech's Howard Auditorium on the La. Tech series. Two performances are scheduled at 2:15 and 8:15 respectively.

Wednesday, the Julliard String quartet will play a recital at Brown Hall on the Northeast campus as the third feature of the college's concert series. The program will get underway at 8:15 p.m.

Down the levee in the Crescent City, the New Orleans Opera House association will give two performances of Puccini's "La Boheme" on Thursday and Saturday of this week.

SAME BREATH

This moves the culture season statewide along at a breathtaking pace which brings to mind the above reference to gospel and string quartets in the same breath.

The remark is not too out of place since the two radically different types of foursomes have taken turns — 200 years apart — at being close to their audiences.

The string quartet of 1760 played close to the listeners and reflected their tastes and requests before moving into the ivory tower a century later. The appeal was emotional as well as intellectual and the latter feeling finally held sway.

Gospel singing — especially in the audience participation programs as last week's state convention in the West Monroe High School auditorium—features professional quartets which also reflect the tastes and requests of a following which has mushroomed in size for the past 25-30 years. The appeal is at once emotional mixed with a strong feeling of belonging since the audience, divided into sopranos, altos, tenors and basses, often sings the same gospel hymns which the pros record or sing before the group.

Videt Polk, master of ceremonies at the convention here, had a pleasant, "let's sing it, folks" manner which brought fine cooperation from the local singers and leaders. About every fourth number, he turned the spotlight on visiting professional quartets for specialties and encores.

Most energetic group of the quartets was the Lone Star group from Texas. Others heard were the Mid-South Gospel Singers and the Blackwood Brothers Stamps quartet.

While these combos are not masters of traditional art of choral singing, they score high in places where more serious music seems to have forgotten it ever went. Gospel music seeks a level of understanding of its public and heads into it with a gusto. It also seeks a strong measure of religious blessing which too many of the arts of a higher brow forget they will perish without.

In meeting the listeners halfway for more than a generation, the gospel song is important historically; in that each one shows influences of styles which have been in and out of vogue for that many years.

The rhythm of the camp meeting song and the spiritual, the spirit of the old-fashioned revival, the barber shop quartet, the free wheeling pitch of the crooner, the sentiment of the popular ballad with a few touches of ragtime and jazz tossed in — all elements are rolled into the gospel song.

And while its loose standards may keep it out of the "art music" category, its keep it within the realm of well - behaved recreation. With so many other ill-directed forms of music, dancing and parked-car recreation loose in the land, it is an encouraging sign of the times to see gospel music audiences bursting out the backs of big auditoriums all over the South and Mid-West.

Lindbergh The Hero; How He Was Made And Unmade

THE HERO: Charles A. Lindbergh and the American Dream. By Kenneth S. Davis. Doubleday.

It was still the days when newspapers published extras, and still the time of the crystal radio sets — and by one means or the other, millions of ecstatically thankful Americans learned that "Lucky" Lindbergh landed the Spirit of St. Louis at Le Bourget airport outside Paris late Saturday evening, May 21, 1927.

Some men had already flown the Atlantic; others died trying to; other planes were being readied at the very moment Lindbergh took off; but he was the first to fly nonstop New York to Paris and he did it alone — it was "We," he said, including the plane itself — and won the $25,000 Orteig prize. But he won also a fabulous, an incredible, an unimaginable reputation as a flier. If in this century the American people have idolized, apotheosized, adulated and salaamed to any single figure, it was Lindy.

Here for the first time, by the experienced biographer of the much less baffling personalities of both Eisenhower and Stevenson, his story is told in full. He was born in Detroit, Feb. 4, 1902, and brought up in Little Falls, Minn., where his father was Congressman. Dour was the word for the whole family. Graduated from high school in 1918, tall and lanky, he entered the University of Wisconsin; his interests were his motorcycle, and any and all machinery, and he experienced, says Davis, " a growing compulsion toward danger." He learned the hard way to fly, joined the Air Force, barnstormed and stunted, parachuted several times to save his life, flew the mail, and became a phenomenally skilled airman. He had a prodigious appetite; he was an insufferable practical joker; he had nothing to do with girls. He was, that is, 100 per cent pure flier.

Up in the air over Illinois one dark night it occurred to him to fly on and on, to Chicago, New York, London, Paris — and the coveted prize. St. Louis money backed him, he supervised the construction of his own single-motor craft at the Ryan airlines, in San Diego. He flew to St. Louis, then to Long Island, and took off, just missing wires and treetops, from Roosevelt Field.

Within a week after his achievement, offers totaling over five million dollars had been made to him, and were all rejected. He came home in a battleship, was a guest of President Coolidge, met Dwight Morrow and Anne whom he would marry.

But already there had developed the germ of reaction, criticism and opposition. Newsmen with whom he would not cooperate got their stories in spite of him. He followed not the radical social path of his father in America and an earlier forebear in Sweden, but the conservative economics of his father-in-law, helping to make avaition big business, and incidentally collecting a $250,000 check for his services to TAT airline.

After the kidnaping of his son, he withdrew with his family to England. He said some good words for Hitler's air force, some critical ones of the Russians', he accepted the Service Cross of the German Eagle from Goering, and the press reported he might settle in Berlin in apartments made available by the "recent abandonment of many Jewish homes." He opposed Roosevelt and every move toward war, resigned his Air Force commission, was branded pro - Nazi and anti-Semitic — Willkie rated his Des Moines speech in September, 1941 "the most un-American talk made in my time by any person of national reputation." Davis writes: "That was the end of the hero."

He served valiantly after Pearl Harbor, both on the home front and in enemy skies.

Davis sees here some "latent anti - intellectualism," and a dangerous drive to power, a man in effect touched by the amorality of the machinery he mastered. The admirably detailed documentation may not spare this book from the ill temper of dissenters, but it should. This is an unflinching scrutiny of the intricate composition of a hero, how he's made and unmade, and who's to praise and who's to blame.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
OUACHITA PARISH LIBRARIAN

"My Friends, the Miss Boyds" is the title of the new book by Jane Duncan. It is an engaging account of life in a small corner of Rossshire, in the highlands of Scotland. It presents a delightful picture of family life and is one which can be recommended to all readers. "French Leave" by P. G. Wodehouse is another of his delightful accounts of life in high society. If you like Wodehouse, and a great many do, you will certainly want to read "French Leave." "Flight from Ashiya" is the title of a new novel by Elliott Arnold. It is a story of love and heroism, written out of the author's intimate knowledge of the Air Rescue Service of the U. S. Air Force. It makes exciting reading and will appeal especially to men. "The Strong Men" by John Brick is another of his novels dealing with the historical background of our country. This one is concerned with the men who survived the horrors of Valley Forge. This book enlivens the details of a long ago war and makes it live again. "Moura" is a story with an Irish setting written by Virginia Coffman. It is a story which chills the spine, but many people like this type of reading.

"Ada Dallas" by Wirt Williams is certain to be popular, for it is concerned with Louisiana politics. Many of the figures are recognizable and it is certainly a timely book. "Log Jam" by Leslie Turner White has for it's background the logging industry of the west. It is an exciting story which will appeal especially to men and boys. Readers of Paul Gallico will welcome a new book from his pen. It's title is "Too Many Ghosts" and it is a book which you will not want to put down. A new mystery story is "Hit and Run" by Roger Creasey. It is very well done.

Several new novels for adults are in this week's additions. "Drag Strip" by William Campbell Gault has for it's background the sport of drag racing. "Three Is A Family" by Edna Pettigrew is a beguiling novel about a happy Southern family. "Voyagers West" by Margaret Alison Johansen is a good frontier story and "Copy Girl" by Cecil Jane Richmond is an excellent career book.

Bennett Cerf has many admirers who will welcome his new collection of stories, called "The Laugh's On Me." Lawrence Durrell has written a very humorous account of life in the English diplomatic service which he calls "Stiff Upper Lip." He is the author of a number of other books which are very popular and his public will avidly read this one. An interesting collection of short stories is "Best Short Stories from the Paris Review" by William Styron. This is a literary event and should be well-received. An interesting account of life in far away places is "The Frisbies of the South Seas" written by Johnny Frisbie, the daughter of Robert Dean Frisbie. An interesting contribution to the modern history collection is "The Communist Subversion of Czechoslovakia" written by Josef Korbel. It has a lesson for all of us and is worth our reading time.

Several interesting new biographies are among this week's additions. "Family Gathering" is the title of the autobiography of Kathleen Norris and will be avidly read by all her fans. One of the unexplained mysteries of modern times is the death of Sir Harry Oakes. Geoffrey Bocca has written an account of this amazing man, which he calls "The Life and Death of Sir Harry Oakes." It makes very interesting reading. An interesting account of the life of one of the gunmen of the old West is "Fast-Draw Tilghman" written by Dale White. It should have a ready market among the many readers of this type of story.

Your Sins And Mine Excellent, Unusual Book

YOUR SINS AND MINE By Taylor Caldwell (Caxton, $3). Here, in a story dramatically real, you will read of the end of the world as we know it and of the beginning of a new world none of us will ever live to see. Written by the world's most widely read woman novelist, you will learn of the earth's rebellion against the follies and the greed of man, of the shriveling up of the land and every living thing, While the sun shone cloudless in the sky, the rivers dropped, the seas shrank and the creeks and brooks dried up, and the mountains seared and the valleys yellowed all over the world.

Violators, exploiters of the faithful, gentle land, the land decided that all mankind must die, all innocent living things. The land hated us. Our wars and our hatred had finally sickened the wise earth and we stood indicted as the irreconcilable enemy of all life.

In this novel there is a strongly religious theme. It is, indeeed, an allegory depicting the world as it is, nearly in ruins because of the wars in which we have been engaged, and now restored to vigor and beauty through the power of prayer and the sincere repentance of mankind. While people stood in the fields among the rank, tearing weeds which had engulfed the earth, they watched in silence as a drift of vapor moved over them, thickened, spread, and consumed the weeds, making way for a misty green which soon began to cover the brown earth.

Harsh, Critical Look At Small Town In U.S.A.

A MIDWEST STORY. By Augusta Walker. Dial. $4.95.

With the head of the family dead, four women and a boy are left to face life in the mid-American town called Mapleville: Mrs. Curtis the mother, her three daughters Enid, Sue and Penny, and the son Mark.

There's a little money—that's no problem; there is a sound family tradition; there are conventions; there even are men. Penny is the first to pick a husband, Don Creey. Sue meets Ivan. Enid, deciding that men aren't going for her, goes for them and makes the acquaintance of Otto in a bar. Mark returns to Paris.

The steps they all take, the expectable and correct ones to be sure, lead nevertheless to unforeseen results. A woman with a husband can be wretched, or can make him wretched; a woman can be just as wretched if out of a simple - minded propriety she can behave deplorably and be happy. It takes Mark and his Erica together to point out that as soon as people become "sage, they don't understand any more what life is about." He advocates a goal, a purpose and total immersion in life.

This woman author concentrates here on woman's problems and, generously enough, lets a man solve them. I liked her first novel, "Around a Rusty God," and this, her third, though it runs perhaps longer than necessary, shows a decided progress in scope and craft. It does not flatter the American small town, it disapproves of the desire for security. On the positive side, it hails the nonconformist and rebel; it is an invitation to be our own free selves.

Truth About Travel Is One You'll Enjoy

The Truth About Travel By Al Murdock (Vantage, $3.95.)

The truth about travel, according to the author, is that there's no place like home . . . but it's tremendous fun to decide that for yourself by exploring every possible nook and cranny of the planet Earth.

The author and his wife have been everywhere. They have helped push a river boat up the Yukon; they have crossed the Atlantic on a ship still wobbling from the empact with an iceberg; they have encountered what seemed to be the world's largest half - starved cat, which slithered over their Moscow hotel room windowsill in search of food.

In this book is zany, irreverent fun. It's down-to-earth talk from a realistic, affectionate cynic.

What It Will Do

Labor Measure

By ROGER GREENE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's new labor reform law swings into high gear this week with the federal government towering like a giant watching over the labor - management field.

The controversial statute, which may have widespread repercussions in the 1960 elections, affects literally millions of workers and thousands of employers.

Designed to blast hoodlums, crooks and racketeers out of corruption - ridden labor unions — and simultaneously curb anti-union activities by some employers — the new law in effect sounds this warning: "Uncle Sam is watching you."

Like the 1932 Lindbergh law which threw the power of the federal government into the fight against kidnaping, the new law mobilizes the same formidable weapons into a nationwide clean-up drive on the labor-management front.

Experts say the injection of federal law enforcement authority into the situation is perhaps the most important phase of the labor - reform legislation.

Much of the past trouble, they say, has arisen from a breakdown in local law enforcement.

Under the new law, the goons, extortionists and crooked union officials will figuratively have FBI agents breathing down their necks.

For the first time, the statute makes it a federal crime to embezzle union funds.

For the first time it sets up severe federal criminal penalties —ranging up to a maximum $10,000 fine and 20 years in prison— for extortion, violence, terrorism and other offenses which have blackened the labor-management picture in the last decade.

Top labor leaders have assailed the law as "union busting" legislation which they say will cripple labor's legitimate functions—they particularly dislike the new crubs on picketing—and open the door to further legislative assaults on the trade union movement's hard-won gains.

The first major challenge to the new law—probably the first of many—was raised by Harry Bridges, left-wing San Francisco labor leader, who rejected Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell's request for a report on Communists and ex-convicts in Bridges' International Longshoremen's Union.

The law bars convicted felons and Communists from holding union office within five years after they left prison or quit the Red party.

Bridges said the law violates the First freedom of speech and Fifth protection against self-incrimination amendments to the U. S. Constitution.

Business leaders, while grumbling over some aspects of the new law, say its union-curbing restrictions are long overdue.

Amid the hubbub, Secretary Mitchell says: "No honest trade union or employer has cause to fear this legislation. It will not be used to bust unions or harass management. It will be used only to help labor and management clean their ranks of corrupt elements."

Threats of retaliation at the polls in the nationwide 1960 elections have already been fired by some top - ranking union chieftains.

AFL-CIO Vice President James B. Carey, head of the International Union of Electrical Workers, has called publicly for ballot-box revenge against congressmen who supported the so-called tough Landrum-Griffin bill which formed the backbone of the new law.

The bill was jointly sponsored by Rep. Phil M. Landrum D-Ga. and Rep. Robert M. Griffin R-Mich. Sen. John F. Kennedy D-Mass., currently a front runner for the Democratic presidential nomination, co-sponsored a somewhat milder Senate version.

Technically known as the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959, the law is so complex that it has already been dubbed the "lawyers' refueling act."

Unquestionably it will take years of court tests to determine exactly what the law means. And it will require the services of umpteen thousand lawyers to advise both labor unions and management on how to keep from running afoul of the new statute.

One thing is certain. The new statute will touch off one of the greatest blizzards of paperwork in history. The Labor Department estimates that detailed annual reports will be required from 55,000 labor organizations, 500,000 union officials, and more than 100,000 employers or corporation officials.

Labor unions are required to submit financial statements to the labor department covering all expenditures, receipts, salaries and any conflict - of- interest transactions by union officers and employes.

On the other side of the fence, the law requires employers to report any money paid to union officials and to their own employes, aside from wages.

This is designed to expose so-called "sweetheart" contracts involving a company bribe to union officials to accept substandard working conditions. It is further aimed at discouraging attemps by employers to set up "no union" committees, hire labor spies, or otherwise influence workers against exercising the right of collective bargaining.

The new law is specifically framed to wipe out the much-criticized "no man's land" which left small businessmen and individual union members without any remedy in cases which were deemed too small for the National Labor Relations Board to handle.

Effective next Friday, Nov. 13—60 days after President Eisenhower signed the new law on Sept. 14 — are some of the act's most highly controversial features. These include tight curbs on secondary boycotts, "hot cargo" agreements, and recognition and organizational picketing.

Secondary boycotts, long a thorn in the side of industry, have the effect of dragging an employer who has no direct quarrel with a union into the union's dispute with another company.

The law sets an outright ban against "hot cargo" pacts in which a trucker, for example refuses to handle cargo from another trucker if the union labels it "hot" or forbidden cargo.

The statute further outlaws extortion or blackmail picketing where a union agent, using the picket line as a weapon, attempts to shakedown an employer for personal gain.

It also prohibits an outside union to picket in an attempt to organize workers — 1. where another union has already been lawfully recognized, 2. where the outside union has lost a collective-bargaining election in the last 12 months, and 3. where picketing has been conducted for "a reasonable period" not exceeding 30 days and no election has been asked.

However, the law says a union may picket longer than 30 days without an election if the picketing doesn't halt deliveries to the picketed company, or if the company has entered into a collusive "sweetheart" contract with another union.

The over-all goal is to substitute peaceful persuasion for violence, threats and coercion on both sides.

Graduated from high school in 1918, tall and lanky, he entered the University of Wisconsin; his interests were his motorcycle, and any and all machinery, and he experinenced, says Davis, " a growing compulsion toward danger." He learned the hard way to fly, joined the Air Force, barnstormed and stunted, parachuted several times to save his life, flew the mail, and became a phenomenally skilled airman. He had a prodigious appetite; he was an insufferable practical joker; he had nothing to do with girls. He was, that is, 100 per cent pure flier.

Up in the air over Illinois one dark night it occurred to him to fly on and on, to Chicago, New York, London, Paris — and the coveted prize. St. Louis money backed him, he supervised the construction of his own single-motor craft at the Ryan airlines, in San Diego. He flew to St. Louis, then to Long Island, and took off, just missing wires and treetops, from Roosevelt Field.

Within a week after his achievement, offers totaling over five million dollars had been made to him, and were all rejected. He came home in a battleship, was a guest of President Coolidge, met Dwight Morrow and Anne whom he would marry.

But already there had developed the germ of reaction, criticism and opposition. Newsmen with whom he would not cooperate got their stories in spite of him. He followed not the radical social path of his father in America and an earlier forebear in Sweden, but the conservative economics of his father-in-law, helping to make avaition big business, and incidentally collecting a $250,000 check for his services to TAT airline.

After the kidnaping of his son, he withdrew with his family to England. He said some good words for Hitler's air force, some critical ones of the Russians', he accepted the Service Cross of the German Eagle from Goering, and the press reported he might settle in Berlin in apartments made available by the "recent abandonment of many Jewish homes." He opposed Roosevelt and every move toward war, resigned his Air Force commission, was branded pro - Nazi and anti-Semitic — Willkie rated his Des Moines speech in September, 1941 "the most un-American talk made in my time by any person of national reputation." Davis writes: "That was the end of the hero."

He served valiantly after Pearl Harbor, both on the home front and in enemy skies.

Davis sees here some "latent anti - intellectualism," and a dangerous drive to power, a man in effect touched by the amorality of the machinery he mastered. The admirably detailed documentation may not spare this book from the ill temper of dissenters, but it should. This is an unflinching scrutiny of the intricate composition of a hero, how he's made and unmade, and who's to praise and who's to blame.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
OUACHITA PARISH LIBRARIAN

"My Friends, the Miss Boyds" is the title of the new book by Jane Duncan. It is an engaging account of life in a small corner of Rossshire, in the highlands of Scotland. It presents a delightful picture of family life and is one which can be recommended to all readers. "French Leave" by P. G. Wodehouse is another of his delightful accounts of life in high society. If you like Wodehouse, and a great many do, you will certainly want to read "French Leave." "Flight from Ashiya" is the title of a new novel by Elliott Arnold. It is a story of love and heroism, written out of the author's intimate knowledge of the Air Rescue Service of the U. S. Air Force. It makes exciting reading and will appeal especially to men. "The Strong Men" by John Brick is another of his novels dealing with the historical background of our country. This one is concerned with the men who survived the horrors of Valley Forge. This book enlivens the details of a long ago war and makes it live again. "Moura" is a story with an Irish setting written by Virginia Coffman. It is a story which chills the spine, but many people like this type of reading.

"Ada Dallas" by Wirt Williams is certain to be popular, for it is concerned with Louisiana politics. Many of the figures are recognizable and it is certainly a timely book. "Log Jam" by Leslie Turner White has for it's background the logging industry of the west. It is an exciting story which will appeal especially to men and boys. Readers of Paul Gallico will welcome a new book from his pen. It's title is "Too Many Ghosts" and it is a book which you will not want to put down. A new mystery story is "Hit and Run" by Roger Creasey. It is very well done.

Several new novels for adults are in this week's additions. "Drag Strip" by William Campbell Gault has for it's background the sport of drag racing. "Three Is A Family" by Edna Pettigrew is a beguiling novel about a happy Southern family. "Voyagers West" by Margaret Alison Johansen is a good frontier story and "Copy Girl" by Cecil Jane Richmond is an excellent career book.

Bennett Cerf has many admirers who will welcome his new collection of stories, called "The Laugh's On Me." Lawrence Durrell has written a very humorous account of life in the English diplomatic service which he calls "Stiff Upper Lip." He is the author of a number of other books which are very popular and his public will avidly read this one. An interesting collection of short stories is "Best Short Stories from the Paris Review" by William Styron. This is a literary event and should be well-received. An interesting account of life in far away places is "The Frisbies of the South Seas" written by Johnny Frisbie, the daughter of Robert Dean Frisbie. An interesting contribution to the modern history collection is "The Communist Subversion of Czechoslovakia" written by Josef Korbel. It has a lesson for all of us and is worth our reading time.

Several interesting new biographies are among this week's additions. "Family Gathering" is the title of the autobiography of Kathleen Norris and will be avidly read by all her fans. One of the unexplained mysteries of modern times is the death of Sir Harry Oakes. Geoffrey Bocca has written an account of this amazing man, which he calls "The Life and Death of Sir Harry Oakes." It makes very interesting reading. An interesting account of the life of one of the gunmen of the old West is "Fast-Draw Tilghman" written by Dale White. It should have a ready market among the many readers of this type of story.

Your Sins And Mine Excellent, Unusual Book

YOUR SINS AND MINE By Taylor Caldwell (Caxton, $3). Here, in a story dramatically real, you will read of the end of the world as we know it and of the beginning of a new world none of us will ever live to see. Written by the world's most widely read woman novelist, you will learn of the earth's rebellion against the follies and the greed of man, of the shriveling up of the land and every living thing, While the sun shone cloudless in the sky, the rivers dropped, the seas shrank and the creeks and brooks dried up, and the mountains seared and the valleys yellowed all over the world.

Violators, exploiters of the faithful, gentle land, the land decided that all mankind must die, all innocent living things. The land hated us. Our wars and our hatred had finally sickened the wise earth and we stood indicted as the irreconcilable enemy of all life.

In this novel there is a strongly religious theme. It is, indeeed, an allegory depicting the world as it is, nearly in ruins because of the wars in which we have been engaged, and now restored to vigor and beauty through the power of prayer and the sincere repentance of mankind. While people stood in the fields among the rank, tearing weeds which had engulfed the earth, they watched in silence as a drift of vapor moved over them, thickened, spread, and consumed the weeds, making way for a misty green which soon began to cover the brown earth.

Harsh, Critical Look At Small Town In U.S.A.

A MIDWEST STORY. By Augusta Walker. Dial. $4.95.

With the head of the family dead, four women and a boy are left to face life in the mid-American town called Mapleville: Mrs. Curtis the mother, her three daughters Enid, Sue and Penny, and the son Mark.

There's a little money—that's no problem; there is a sound family tradition; there are conventions; there even are men. Penny is the first to pick a husband, Don Crecy. Sue meets Ivan. Enid, deciding that men aren't going for her, goes for them and makes the acquaintance of Otto in a bar. Mark returns to Paris.

The steps they all take, the expectable and correct ones to be sure, lead nevertheless to unforeseen results. A woman with a husband can be wretched, or can make him wretched; a woman can be just as wretched if out of a simple - minded propriety she can behave deplorably and be happy. It takes Mark and his Erica together to point out that as soon as people become "sage, they don't understand any more what life is about." He advocates a goal, a purpose and total immersion in life.

This woman author concentrates here on woman's problems and, generously enough, lets a man solve them. I liked her first novel, "Around a Rusty God," and this, her third, though it runs perhaps longer than necessary, shows a decided progress in scope and craft. It does not flatter the American small town, it disapproves of the desire for security. On the positive side, it hails the nonconformist and rebel; it is an invitation to be our own free selves.

Truth About Travel Is One You'll Enjoy

The Truth About Travel By Al Murdock (Vantage, $3.95.)

The truth about travel, according to the author, is that there's no place like home . . . but it's tremendous fun to decide that for yourself by exploring every possible nook and cranny of the planet Earth.

The author and his wife have been everywhere. They have helped push a river boat up the Yukon; they have crossed the Atlantic on a ship still wobbling from the empact with an iceberg; they have encountered what seemed to be the world's largest half - starved cat, which slithered over their Moscow hotel room windowsill in search of food.

In this book is zany, irreverent fun. It's down-to-earth talk from a realistic, affectionate cynic.

ACTORS' EQUITY DONATES

NEW YORK (AP) — Actors' Equity has donated $150,000 toward construction of the new home at Englewood, N. J., of the Actors' Fund of America.

The Actors' Fund, which provides for the welfare of needy theatrical veterans, is building the center at an estimated cost of $750,000.

On Going To College

Are You Smart?

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Purely in the interests of science—and because the boss told me to—I took a test to see whether I'm smart enough to go to college.

It was a gruesome experience.

About 100,000 high school seniors will take the same test next Saturday. How they fare will play a part in determining whether they can get into the college of their choice next fall.

Frankly, I don't see how anybody gets into college these days. The test was that tough.

The test I took was put togther by Science Research Associates of Chicago for the American College Testing program. The ACT program is new this year, but like the long-established college Entrance Examination Board, its tests will help colleges determine in advance which students are best quaified for admission.

The test took three hours—180 of the longest minutes I've ever spent—and covered English, Social science, natural science and mathematics. It was given under maximum security conditions (cheating was impossible) by a gentleman named Paul Kosaik. Kosaik is a delightful fellow, but he's nobody's friend when he's giving a test.

The questions are top secret, at least until the high school students take the test next Saturday. I swore not to disclose the questions, and Science Research Associates promised not to reveal my score.

But I was given some samples for your amusement and edification. All the questions are multiple choice, which means if you don't know the answer you can take a wild guess.

For instance, in the mathematics section:

1. How many digits are there to the left of the decimal place in the square root of 692038.42753? (A) 3; (B) 4; (C) 5; (D) 6; (E) 8.

2. When added to both the numerator and denominator of 13-20, what number makes the resulting ratio equal to ¾? (A) 4; (B) 5; (C) 7; (D) 8; (E) 10.

3. Two oil wells pump oil continuously. The first produces 4,000 barrels of oil a day, which is 33 1-3 per cent more than the second. What is the total daily production for oth wells? (A) 5,333 1-3; (B) 6,666 2-3; (C) 7,000; (D) 8,333 1-3; (E) 9,000.

4. If a car travels "A" miles in "B" seconds, how long will it take to travel "C" miles? (A) CB over A; (B) C over A; (C) AB over C; (D) C over B; (E) C over AB.

We'll get to the answers to these questions a little later on.

One of the actual test questions —which I'm allowed to use here because I can't even remember it properly—had to do with finding the area of a right triangle on which two of the sides measured five feet.

A section of the English test involved reading a passage in which parts are placed within parentheses and numered. The test is to pick the suggested answer that makes the numbered portion grammatically correct.

A sample:

"I was born an American: I will live an American; I shall die an American: and I intend to perform the duties (1. incumbent) upon me in that character to the end of my career. I mean to do this with absolute disregard of personal consequences. What are the personal consequences? What is the individual (2. man with all the good or evil that may betide him in) comparison with the good or evil which may befall a great country, and in the midst of great transactions which concern that (3. countries') fate?"

1. (A) no change; (B) recument) (C) inherent) (D) implict

2. (A) no change; (B) man, with all the good or evil that betide him, in; (C) man, with his good and evil, in; (D) man with his good and evil in

3. (A) no change; (B) countrie's) (C) country's; (D) countrys'

To test yourself in the social studies, read the following passage and answer the question about it.

"Your oldest heirlooms are the words you see in everyday conversation for familiar things—sun, moon, water, stars, father, mother. These have been handed down from a tiny, nameless, and forgotten tribe which 5,000 or 6,000 years ago, was the ancestor of our speech today.

"Heirloom words make us the speech cousins of more than a billion people of all races living today in Europe, India, South Africa, and the Pacific Isles, for they use almost the same words spoken and writtten in the Americas,"

On the basis of the above two paragraphs, complete this sentence:

Scholars believe the history of languages indicates that

A All words developed as modifications of Indian words.

B Persian and Swedish have a common origin.

C Sanskrit is the basis of all modern tongues.

D Languages in different parts of the world developed independently.

In the actual test, the passages are much longer and there are 4 or 5 questions at the end. I don't recall a single one that I was sure I had answered correctly.

Students taking the ACT test next Saturday will gather at 80 test centers in 14 states. Those who didn't register in time will be given another chance next Feb. 7, with a different form covering the same fields.

Oh, yes, the answers to those questions above. Mathematics: A, D, C, A. English: A, B, C. Social studies: B.

Story Of Week

By LEON BURNETT

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A clean-cut young man took the counsel of his conscience this week and dredged up from his well-trained memory some very unpleasant facts about himself.

"I have deceived my friends," he said, "and I have millions of them."

By teletype and the airwaves, the news went out to his friends: Charles Van Doren, former invincible man of the isolation booth, won TV fame and a pile of money by cribbing.

Since 1957, he had been carrying this secret guilt. Now he poured out all the details to a House investigating subcommittee.

In his appearances on the old "21" television quiz show, he said, Producer Albert Freedman had coached him on the answers and taught him to act as though he were having to wrestle information from his memory.

Not only that, Van Doren said, Freedman persuaded him to go though with this deception in the first place — convincing him that success on the show would strengthen the cause of education.

The subcommittee heard similar testimony from other witnesses earlier in the fall, and is continuing its investigation. But Van Doren's appearance provided the real drama. For he was the hero of heroes in quizland.

Suspense had built up, too. Up to this climactic moment, Van Doren had insisted to everyone who asked that he had no knowledge of "21" being fixed.

When his moment came on Monday, the soft-spoken scholar opened with a prepared statement disclosing how his first quiz victory had been planned, how he was equipped behind the scenes to vanquish subsequent challengers — and finally how his defeat was mapped out.

He showed little emotion as he was sworn in, took a drink of water and delivered his recital. Later, when subcommittee members were questioning him, the tears came.

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

The state gospel singing convention in West Monroe kicked off a fortnight in the fall musical season which is otherwise loaded with opera and string quartet music.

Monday, the Goldovsky Opera Theatre will present "Rigoletto," at Tech's Howard Auditorium on the La. Tech series. Two performances are scheduled at 2:15 and 8:15 respectively.

Wednesday, the Julliard String quartet will play a recital at Brown Hall on the Northeast campus as the third feature of the college's concert series. The program will get underway at 8:15 p.m.

Down the levee in the Crescent City, the New Orleans Opera House association will give two performances of Puccini's "La Boheme" on Thursday and Saturday of this week.

SAME BREATH

This moves the culture season statewide along at a breathtaking pace which brings to mind the above reference to gospel and string quartets in the same breath.

The remark is not too out of place since the two radically different types of foursomes have taken turns — 200 years apart — at being close to their audiences.

The string quartet of 1760 played close to the listeners and reflected their tastes and requests before moving into the ivory tower a century later. The appeal was emotional as well as intellectual and the latter feeling finally held sway.

Gospel singing — especially in the audience participation programs as last week's state convention in the West Monroe High School auditorium—features professional quartets which also reflect the tastes and requests of a following which has mushroomed in size for the past 25-30 years. The appeal is at once emotional mixed with a strong feeling of belonging since the audience, divided into sopranos, altos, tenors and basses, often sings the same gospel hymns which the pros record or sing before the group.

Videt Polk, master of ceremonies at the convention here, had a pleasant, "let's sing it, folks" manner which brought fine cooperation from the local singers and leaders. About every fourth number, he turned the spotlight on visiting professional quartets for specialties and encores.

Most energetic group of the quartets was the Lone Star group from Texas. Others heard were the Mid-South Gospel Singers and the Blackwood Brothers Stamps quartet.

While these combos are not masters of traditional art of choral singing, they score high in places where more serious music seems to have forgotten it ever went. Gospel music seeks a level of understanding of its public and heads into it with a gusto. It also seeks a strong measure of religious blessing which too many of the arts of a higher brow forget they will perish without.

In meeting the listeners halfway for more than a generation, the gospel song is important historicall; in that each one shows influences of styles which have been in and out of vogue for that many years.

The rhythm of the camp meeting song and the spiritual, the spirit of the old-fashioned revival, the barber shop quartet, the free wheeling pitch of the crooner, the sentiment of the popular ballad with a few touches of ragtime and jazz tossed in — all elements are rolled into the gospel song.

And while its loose standards may keep it out of the "art music" category, its keep it within the realm of well - behaved recreation. With so many other ill-directed forms of music, dancing and parked-car recreation loose in the land, it is an encouraging sign of the times to see gospel music audiences bursting out the backs of big auditoriums all over the South and Mid-West.

MISSISSIPPI OIL

Results Disappointing At Pike County Wildcat

He will be in direct charge of his hospital. His staff will be comprised, at the beginning, with Mrs. Murlene Reeves, registered nurse; Mrs. Sue Blackwell, X-ray and laboratory technician; Mrs. Louise Rainey and Mrs. Gertrude Haygood. The hospital is ideally located on spacious grounds with ample parking space.

Maria Callas Scores Hit

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Maria Callas, scored a hit here Friday night with her role in "Lucia di Lammermoor," and set a new record for box office receipts for opera in Dallas.

The capacity audience of 4,100 paid $35,000 to see the first-night performance with top seats going at $15. The previous high was $29,747 grossed by Metropolitan Opera's 1958 "Rigoletto."

Miss Callas' third act "mad scene" was termed by John Rosenfield of the Dallas Morning News as "finer than New York ever heard in her Metropolitan Opera Days."

While both Rosenfield and Eugene Lewis of the Dallas Times Herald noted she smeared her high notes, they praised her overall performance.

"Callas on the stage is always fascinating. Everything she does is touched with intensity and conviction."

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS

Democrats Launch Drive On Quotas

WASHINGTON (AP) — A financially hard - pressed Democratic National Committee began putting the heat on state party organizations Saturday that are behind in their campaign contribution quotas.

National Chairman Paul M. Butler called the roll on the slow payers, including 30 states and territories he said have not paid a cent toward their 1959 quotas. He said the delinquents will be penalized in seating and housing at the 1960 national convention in Los Angeles if they do not pay up.

In a memorandum to party leaders in every state, Butler said state delegations to the convention will be seated and assigned hotel accommodations on the basis of their states' record of financial support of the national committee during 1957, 1958, 1959 and up to April 1, 1960.

The threat of penalties was expected to be received with something less than enthusiasm in some states, particularly the South where Butler has been under attack for his civil rights views.

Georgia's Democratic state chairman, John Sammons Bell, said only last Thursday that his state's quota of $27,000 for 1959, on which nothing has been paid, would be paid in full within one month after Butler's resignation as chairman.

Butler's memorandum, plus listings of the state rankings, went to members of the national committee, state chairmen and vice chairmen. He also sent a separate memorandum to these leaders and to Democratic governors, senators and representatives.

Tabulations issued by Butler showed the 54 states and territories had contributed only $1,987,282 toward their combined quotas of $3,257,000 for 1957 and 1958 and the first 10 months of 1959.

Ony four of the 54—Maryland (167.4 per cent), the District of Columbia (119.3), South Dakota (118.4) and Nebraska (104.2) have paid their quotas in full for the 34-month period.

Ranked fifth was Idaho (99.9), followed by New Jersey (98.3), California (97.6), Pennsylvania (94.1), Massachusetts (93.6).

In 30th place was New York (49.6). Illinois was 46th (36.6) and Ohio 47th (32.7). South Carolina was in last place (9.9).

As for 1959 quotas alone, a separate table showed only three paid in full. Maryland, Nebraska and the District of Columbia exceeded their quotas.

Thirty states, including Illinois, Missouri, New York, Ohio and eight Southern states, have paid nothing.

Betty Chisum Sweetheart Of FFA Chapter

JONESVILLE (Special) — At the regular meeting of the Sicily Island Chapter of FFA York Sheppard was guest speaker. Sheppard gave an inspiring talk on the value of vocational agriculture in high school in later life.

He emphasized that many jobs today other than farming need boys with farm background. In addition, he said that youth should keep their bodies physically as well as spiritually fit.

Another highlight of the meeting was the election of a Chapter Sweetheart. Miss Betty Chisum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Chisum, was elected as the Sicily Island Chapter Sweetheart. Betty will represent the Sicily Island Chapter at the next annual meeting of the Louisiana Association of FFA.

Billy Barron who recently returned from the National Convention, in Kansas City gave a report on the trip.

The meeting was then adjourned with refreshments served to the members and guest speaker.

Fine Distinction Made In Law

SEATTLE (AP)—Making a fine distinction in a point of law, U.S. Atty. Charles P. Moriarty declined to prosecute a man who had entered a bank with a holdup note on his person, then asked a guard to arrest him.

It started when a man later identified as John W. Mitchell, 57, an unemployed fry cook, walked into a downtown bank Friday with a paper bag in one hand.

The man stood nervously inside the bank door for a few minutes, then walked up to bank guard Clarence Lincoln and asked to be arrested.

"I was going to rob the bank but I've changed my mind," the man told Lincoln.

Lincoln whisked the man to a corner of the bank and looked into the paper bag. It contained only a note, which said "This is a holdup. Put the money in this bag."

Moriarty said Friday night he would not prosecute.

He explained: "The only statute that was possibly involved makes it a crime to enter a bank with intent to rob it. The man obviously had prepared the note beforehand, so he had the intent — at the time he wrote the note.

"But at some point along the line he reached what we call 'the place of repentance,' when he changed his mind.

"There was no damage done. The people win and justice was done."

Jury Declares Negro Guilty Of Murder

CROWLEY, La. (UPI) — A 33-year-old Negro showed no emotion early this morning when he heard an all-white jury declare him guilty of the first degree murder of a policeman, a verdict that carries a mandatory death sentence.

Court-appointed attorneys for Edward Davis said they would appeal. Davis was charged with the shotgun slaying of 53-year-old Ezra Foreman.

The jury delivered its verdict at 1:20 a.m. today after deliberating more than two hours.

Police said Davis shot Foreman with a 20-gauge shotgun while Foreman was answering a routine peace disturbance call. Davis pleaded not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity.

A key point in the prosecution's case was admission of written and a tape-recorded confessions into evidence over defense objections.

The defense held the killing was in self defense. Davis said he not know he was shooting at an officer. He claimed he was frightened and saw lights flashing around his home.

Davis' insanity plea suffered by a lunacy commission report that it found him sane.

New Clinic In Jonesville Opens Monday

JONESVILLE (Special) — The newly constructed modern Nasif Clinic-Hospital in Jonesville will open on Monday, Nov. 9, according to Dr. N. G. Nasif, owner.

The 10-bed hospital is the most modern of its size in the entire State of Louisiana according to Charles Gage, director of the Louisiana State Hospital association, who made an inspection of the building this week.

Constructed of brick veneer on the outside, the building is finished inside with glazed tile. All window frames are of aluminum. The rooms are spacious including a large reception. The building has a six - inch insulation and is air - conditioned and centrally heated throughout.

In addition to the consulation room there is a spacious examination and treatment room. The X-ray and laboratory is of modern design and equiped with the most modern equipment. There is an uptodate nurse's station complete with chart racks and a patient's buzzer and light system.

Dr. Nasif, who has had a long time practice in Catahoula parish and surrounding area, recently served three and one-half years on the staff of the V. A. Hospital in Shreveport. He will be in direct charge of his hospital. His staff will be comprised, at the beginning, with Mrs. Murlene Reeves, registered nurse; Mrs. Sue Blackwell, X-ray and laboratory technician; Mrs. Louise Rainey and Mrs. Gertrude Haygood. Mrs. Reeves is a graduate of the St. Francis hospital, Monroe.

The modern building was constructed by Oma C. McGuffee of Monroe, with Don Knight as foreman. Serving as architect was Louis Little of Jonesville.

The hospital is ideally located on spacious grounds with ample parking space.

Maria Callas Scores Hit

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Maria Callas, scored a hit here Friday night with her role in "Lucia di Lammermoor," and set a new record for box office receipts for opera in Dallas.

The capacity audience of 4,100 paid $35,000 to see the first-night performance with top seats going at $15. The previous high was $29,747 grossed by Metropolitan Opera's 1958 "Rigoletto."

Miss Callas' third act "mad scene" was termed by John Rosenfield of the Dallas Morning News as "finer than New York ever heard in her Metropolitan Opera Days."

While both Rosenfield and Eugene Lewis of the Dallas Times Herald noted she smeared her high notes, they praised her overall performance.

"Callas on the stage is always fascinating. Everything she does is touched with intensity and conviction."

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS

Democrats Launch Drive On Quotas

WASHINGTON (AP) — A financially hard - pressed Democratic National Committee began putting the heat on state party organizations Saturday that are behind in their campaign contribution quotas.

National Chairman Paul M. Butler called the roll on the slow payers, including 30 states and territories he said have not paid a cent toward their 1959 quotas. He said the delinquents will be penalized in seating and housing at the 1960 national convention in Los Angeles if they do not pay up.

In a memorandum to party leaders in every state, Butler said state delegations to the convention will be seated and assigned hotel accommodations on the basis of their states' record of financial support of the national committee during 1957, 1958, 1959 and up to April 1, 1960.

The threat of penalties was expected to be received with something less than enthusiasm in some states, particularly the South where Butler has been under attack for his civil rights views.

Georgia's Democratic state chairman, John Sammons Bell, said only last Thursday that his state's quota of $27,000 for 1959, on which nothing has been paid, would be paid in full within one month after Butler's resignation as chairman.

Butler's memorandum, plus listings of the state rankings, went to members of the national committee, state chairmen and vice chairmen. He also sent a separate memorandum to these leaders and to Democratic governors, senators and representatives.

Tabulations issued by Butler showed the 54 states and territories had contributed only $1,987,282 toward their combined quotas of $3,257,000 for 1957 and 1958 and the first 10 months of 1959.

Ony four of the 54—Maryland (167.4 per cent), the District of Columbia (119.3), South Dakota (118.4) and Nebraska (104.2) have paid their quotas in full for the 34-month period.

Ranked fifth was Idaho (99.9), followed by New Jersey (98.3), California (97.6), Pennsylvania (94.1), Massachusetts (93.6).

In 30th place was New York (49.6). Illinois was 46th (36.6) and Ohio 47th (32.7). South Carolina was in last place (9.9).

As for 1959 quotas alone, a separate table showed only three paid in full. Maryland, Nebraska and the District of Columbia exceeded their quotas.

Thirty states, including Illinois, Missouri, New York, Ohio and eight Southern states, have paid nothing.

Betty Chisum Sweetheart Of FFA Chapter

JONESVILLE (Special) — At the regular meeting of the Sicily Island Chapter of FFA York Sheppard was guest speaker. Sheppard gave an inspiring talk on the value of vocational agriculture in high school in later life.

He emphasized that many jobs today other than farming need boys with farm background. In addition, he said that youth should keep their bodies physically as well as spiritually fit.

Another highlight of the meeting was the election of a Chapter Sweetheart. Miss Betty Chisum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Chisum, was elected as the Sicily Island Chapter Sweetheart. Betty will represent the Sicily Island Chapter at the next annual meeting of the Louisiana Association of FFA.

Billy Barron who recently returned from the National Convention, in Kansas City gave a report on the trip.

The meeting was then adjourned with refreshments served to the members and guest speaker.

Fine Distinction Made In Law

SEATTLE (AP)—Making a fine distinction in a point of law, U.S. Atty. Charles P. Moriarty declined to prosecute a man who had entered a bank with a holdup note on his person, then asked a guard to arrest him.

It started when a man later identified as John W. Mitchell, 57, an unemployed fry cook, walked into a downtown bank Friday with a paper bag in one hand.

The man stood nervously inside the bank door for a few minutes, then walked up to bank guard Clarence Lincoln and asked to be arrested.

"I was going to rob the bank but I've changed my mind," the man told Lincoln.

Lincoln whisked the man to a corner of the bank and looked into the paper bag. It contained only a note, which said "This is a holdup. Put the money in this bag."

Moriarty said Friday night he would not prosecute.

He explained: "The only statute that was possibly involved makes it a crime to enter a bank with intent to rob it. The man obviously had prepared the note beforehand, so he had the intent — at the time he wrote the note.

"But at some point along the line he reached what we call 'the place of repentance,' when he changed his mind.

"There was no damage done. The people win and justice was done."

Jury Declares Negro Guilty Of Murder

CROWLEY, La. (UPI) — A 33-year-old Negro showed no emotion early this morning when he heard an all-white jury declare him guilty of the first degree murder of a policeman, a verdict that carries a mandatory death sentence.

Court-appointed attorneys for Edward Davis said they would appeal. Davis was charged with the shotgun slaying of 53-year-old Ezra Foreman.

The jury delivered its verdict at 1:20 a.m. today after deliberating more than two hours.

Police said Davis shot Foreman with a 20-gauge shotgun while Foreman was answering a routine peace disturbance call. Davis pleaded not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity.

A key point in the prosecution's case was admission of written and a tape-recorded confessions into evidence over defense objections.

The defense held the killing was in self defense. Davis said he not know he was shooting at an officer. He claimed he was frightened and saw lights flashing around his home.

Davis' insanity plea suffered by a lunacy commission report that it found him sane.

UNDER CRITICAL EYE

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Preston has a special reason for keeping his lead portrayal in "The Music Man" full of zest.

Having been in the part two years, Preston finds himself "in the funny position of competing with myself."

He explains: "Some people are seeing the show for the fourth or fifth time, and they compare my performances on different occasions. And I can't fall down, because audience response is always so enthusiastic."

LITTLE THEATRE

Things are buzzing around the Selman Field Playhouse, as rehearsals for our next play, "The Caine Mutiny Court-Martial" get underway. This Pulitzer Prize novel, heralded by critics a "Best sea story" and "Best World War II novel" has been adapted by the author, Herman Wouk, in his version which is superior to the novel "in the artfulness of its craftsmanship" — New York Times. It is "a shrewd and shattering condensation of the heart of the novel, presenting one of the most naked revelations of character to have stunned Broadway in years."—New York Herald Tribune. "Enormously exciting it is the modern stage at its best," said the World Telegram and Sun; "Magnificent theatre" echoed the Mirror and Journal American."

This play is built around the court-martial proceedings against a young naval lieutenant, who relieves his captain of command during a crisis on the grounds that the captain was psychopathic and would surely destroy the ship. As the witnesses and experts, some serious, some unwittingly comic, cross the scene of the trial, a devastating picture of the captain is revealed. It bears repeating: "The modern stage at its best!"

Dell Moore is serving as stage manager for the current production and Jo Ann Barber is assistant to the director.

Ivan is still in need of uniforms, uniforms, uniforms. He needs every kind — captains through lieutenants junior grade, and also ensign's uniforms. If you have one or know where any are available, please call Ivan.

The play sounds so exciting I can hardly wait for opening night! But until then, wouldn't you like to hear of some of the goings on in and among the Little Theaterites?

Mrs. Frances McHenry is in New York at this writing, and we know she was excited about her first jet flight. She will see some plays and return to Monroe by way of Louisville, where she will stop over for a visit with her daughter.

Lallage Feazel, Katherine Sloan and Frances Ritter spent the weekend in Dallas, where they enjoyed Cole Porter's "Leave It To Me" at the Margo Jones Theatre on Saturday night. The highlight of the trip, however; was to hear Maria Callas singing "Lucia di Lammermoor" on Sunday afternoon. They report that she is as wonderful as you have heard.

Judy and Bob Evans recently returned from New York where they saw "J. B." and also "The Marriage Go Round." They loved "The Marriage Go Round" in which Charles Boyer and Claudette Colbert are the stars.

Attending "Sabrina Fair" in El Dorado on Friday night, produced by the El Dorado Little Theatre were: Bob and Judy Evans, Mary Gill, Myrtle Carter, Julius Cahn, George and Jo Brian, Lallage Feazel, and Ruth Shipman. Our theatre will produce this play as our next, so everyone is interested in seeing other productions.

Our thanks and appreciation go out this week to a very special Little Theatre member, Grandpa Nobes. He has always been a staunch supporter of Little Theatre, and headed the list this year in selling memberships. Congratulations!

Plans for our new Strauss Playhouse have been approved and bids will be opened within a few weeks. Ground will be broken for the new theatre and construction will begin some time around the first of December. Isn't it exciting!

HUDSON, DAY

'Pillow Talk' Is Rollicking Comedy

The nation's two No. 1 boxoffice stars are united for the first time in "Pillow Talk," the new romantic comedy now showing at the Jim theatre. The picture brings together Doris Day, voted by the theatre owners as the top box-office star of her sex, and Rock Hudson, honored similarly among male stars. As another "first" it also presents Hudson in his first comedy role.

A joint venture of Arwin Productions, Miss Day's independent film company, and of Universal-International "Pillow Talk" is the rollicking story of a career girl and a happy bachelor who share a party-line telephone, but no other interests, and in the process of disliking each other because one is always interrupting the other on the party line, fall in love. Tony Randall and Thelma Ritter are co-starred, Michael Gordon directed the picture, and Ross Hunter and Martin Melcher, Miss Day's husband, are the producers. It was photographed in CinemaScope and color. Six songs are woven through the production, with three of them, including the title song, featuring Miss Day's voice.

Unknown except as a dance band singer prior to 1948, Doris Day today is the top feminine box-of ice attraction of motion pictures. A favorite with disk jockeys from coast to coast, her Columbia recordings are always among the best sellers.

An impressive screen test at Warner Bros. got Doris a contract there, first starring in "Romance on the High Seas." In 1954, after eight years of picture making at that studio, she made her first outside picture as the star of "Love Me Or Leave Me," the story of Ruth Etting. This was followed by the co-starring role with James Stewart in Alfred Hitchcock's "The Man Who Knew Too Much."

Non - singing roles in recent screen - starring performances by Doris Day include "Teacher's Pet" and "Tunnel of Love." She has headlined in more than twenty of Hollywood's top musical film productions.

FAITHFUL FINANCIERS

NEW YORK (AP) — Playwright William Gibson has faithful financial backers.

The production costs of two Gibson projects this season are being underwritten by the same group that backed his initial success, "Two for the Seesaw."

The twin new ventures are "The Miracle Worker," a drama hit of the new Broadway season, and "Dinny and the Witches," which is getting an off-Broadway showcasing.

NEWSPAPERMAN — Jack Webb stars as a newspaperman in the excitement hit "-30-" coming November 19th to the Paramount Theatre.

Joe Marsala Transferred To N. Orleans

Joe Marsala, assistant manager of the Paramount Theatre, was transferred recently to the Saenger Theatre in New Orleans, it was announced by Kermit Carr, President of Paramount Gulf Theatres, Inc.

Marsala has been employed the past year as assistant manager of the Parmount where he trained under the local manager Ted Hatfield. He is a graduate of St. Mathews High School and attended Northeast State College. He has been active in the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce and local church groups. Marsala recently assisted in planning activities for Monroe's first world premiere of the motion picture, "Hound Dog Man".

Marsala is married to the former Miss Bea Bruscato of Monroe. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Marsala of Monroe.

UNDER CRITICAL EYE

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Preston has a special reason for keeping his lead portrayal in "The Music Man" full of zest.

Having been in the part two years, Preston finds himself "in the funny position of competing with myself."

He explains: "Some people are seeing the show for the fourth or fifth time, and they compare my performances on different occasions. And I can't fall down, because audience response is always so enthusiastic."

LITTLE THEATRE

Things are buzzing around the Selman Field Playhouse, as rehearsals for our next play, "The Caine Mutiny Court-Martial" get underway. This Pulitzer Prize novel, heralded by critics a "Best sea story" and "Best World War II novel" has been adapted by the author, Herman Wouk, in his version which is superior to the novel "in the artfulness of its craftsmanship" — New York Times. It is "a shrewd and shattering condensation of the heart of the novel, presenting one of the most naked revelations of character to have stunned Broadway in years."—New York Herald Tribune. "Enormously exciting it is the modern stage at its best," said the World Telegram and Sun; "Magnificent theatre" echoed the Mirror and Journal American."

This play is built around the court-martial proceedings against a young naval lieutenant, who relieves his captain of command during a crisis on the grounds that the captain was psychopathic and would surely destroy the ship. As the witnesses and experts, some serious, some unwittingly comic, cross the scene of the trial, a devastating picture of the captain is revealed. It bears repeating: "The modern stage at its best!"

Dell Moore is serving as stage manager for the current production and Jo Ann Barber is assistant to the director.

Ivan is still in need of uniforms, uniforms, uniforms. He needs every kind — captains through lieutenants junior grade, and also ensign's uniforms. If you have one or know where any are available, please call Ivan.

The play sounds so exciting I can hardly wait for opening night! But until then, wouldn't you like to hear of some of the goings on in and among the Little Theaterites?

Mrs. Frances McHenry is in New York at this writing, and we know she was excited about her first jet flight. She will see some plays and return to Monroe by way of Louisville, where she will stop over for a visit with her daughter.

Lallage Feazel, Katherine Sloan and Frances Ritter spent the weekend in Dallas, where they enjoyed Cole Porter's "Leave It To Me" at the Margo Jones Theatre on Saturday night. The highlight of the trip, however; was to hear Maria Callas singing "Lucia di Lammermoor" on Sunday afternoon. They report that she is as wonderful as you have heard.

Judy and Bob Evans recently returned from New York where they saw "J. B." and also "The Marriage Go Round." They loved "The Marriage Go Round" in which Charles Boyer and Claudette Colbert are the stars.

Attending "Sabrina Fair" in El Dorado on Friday night, produced by the El Dorado Little Theatre were: Bob and Judy Evans, Mary Gill, Myrtle Carter, Julius Cahn, George and Jo Brian, Lallage Feazel, and Ruth Shipman. Our theatre will produce this play as our next, so everyone is interested in seeing other productions.

Our thanks and appreciation go out this week to a very special Little Theatre member, Grandpa Nobes. He has always been a staunch supporter of Little Theatre, and headed the list this year in selling memberships. Congratulations!

Plans for our new Strauss Playhouse have been approved and bids will be opened within a few weeks. Ground will be broken for the new theatre and construction will begin some time around the first of December. Isn't it exciting!

HUDSON, DAY

'Pillow Talk' Is Rollicking Comedy

The nation's two No. 1 boxoffice stars are united for the first time in "Pillow Talk," the new romantic comedy now showing at the Jim theatre. The picture brings together Doris Day, voted by the theatre owners as the top box-office star of her sex, and Rock Hudson, honored similarly among male stars. As another "first" it also presents Hudson in his first comedy role.

A joint venture of Arwin Productions, Miss Day's independent film company, and of Universal-International "Pillow Talk" is the rollicking story of a career girl and a happy bachelor who share a party-line telephone, but no other interests, and in the process of disliking each other because one is always interrupting the other on the party line, fall in love. Tony Randall and Thelma Ritter are co-starred, Michael Gordon directed the picture, and Ross Hunter and Martin Melcher, Miss Day's husband, are the producers. It was photographed in CinemaScope and color. Six songs are woven through the production, with three of them, including the title song, featuring Miss Day's voice.

Unknown except as a dance band singer prior to 1948, Doris Day today is the top feminine boxoffice attraction of motion pictures. A favorite with disk jockeys from coast to coast, her Columbia recordings are always among the best sellers.

An impressive screen test at Warner Bros. got Doris a contract there, first starring in "Romance on the High Seas." In 1954, after eight years of picture making at that studio, she made her first outside picture as the star of "Love Me Or Leave Me," the story of Ruth Etting. This was followed by the co-starring role with James Stewart in Alfred Hitchcock's "The Man Who Knew Too Much."

Non - singing roles in recent screen - starring performances by Doris Day include "Teacher's Pet" and "Tunnel of Love." She has headlined in more than twenty of Hollywood's top musical film productions.

FAITHFUL FINANCIERS

NEW YORK (AP) — Playwright William Gibson has faithful financial backers.

The production costs of two Gibson projects this season are being underwritten by the same group that backed his initial success, "Two for the Seesaw."

The twin new ventures are "The Miracle Worker," a drama hit of the new Broadway season, and "Dinny and the Witches," which is getting an off-Broadway showcasing.

Pain Killers Among Plants

By MARY JARDINE

KATHERINE M. FOSTER, M.D.
Guest Writer

Paging Dr. Kevin! Emergency Room! There Dr. Kevin finds one of the leading citizens with crushing chest pain which he immediately relieves with an injected pain killer. Behind the doctor are thoughts of the ancient Chinese who accidentally discovered that a very beautiful wild poppy (Papave somniferum) had these pain relieving properties which made his patient feel comfortable.

More than 3,000 medicinal plants are listed in Dr. Materia Medica a pharmocopeia compiled in the first century A. D. by Dioscorides, a Roman physician. About five hundred of the plants he recommended are still of some medical importance. And so from the flowers that bloom in the spring, Dr. Kevin treats his patients with heart failure, asthma, high blood pressure, gout, and schizophrenia.

OTHER PLANTS

Among the medicinal plants listed today by the United States government, are many with odd names and infrequent use — Apple of Sodom (Solanum carolinense), Bad Man's oatmeal (Conium maculatum), and old maids nightcap (Geranium maculatum).

Better known and more frequently used, beside the opium poppy, are foxglove (Digitalis pupurea), Belladonna (Atropa belladonna), American falase hellebore (Veratrum viride) and autumn crocus (Colchicum autumnale).

Foxglove, better known in the medical circles as digitalis has other familiar names such as fairy fingers, lady's glove, lion's mouth. In England before the Norman conquest it was used as a household remedy for dropsy. In 1775 an English physician, Witherine, learned of its medical properties and introduced it as a diuretic. Today it is used in the treatment of heart failure. Foxgloves are beautiful hardy biennials easily raised from seels, and produce flowers shaped and spotted like gloxina. They are very showy and used both in beds and borders.

Belladonna, or deadly night shade plant is perennial herb, not a garden subject due to the fact all of the plant is poison except roots and leaves used for medicinal purposes. The blooms are dull purple flowers on intense green stalk reaching height of three feet. This was brought into this country from Europe specially to be cultivated as a medicinal plant. Since World War II, when sufficient quantities of the drug could not be imported, commercial supplies of belladonna have been grown in California. The leaves are smoked in pipes to relieve asthma. It is used to relieve spasm of the intestinal and urinary tract.

American Flase Hellebore is one of North America's contributions to pharmacognosy, a plant that grows wild in swampy places from eastern Canada to Georgia. Veratum used to treat hypertension is obtained from rootstock of the plant. The American Indians and Europeans used it to treat acute inflammation. The plant is a herbacious perennial with greenish or purplish flowers in panicles at the top of the staik, the leaves are claspin and ribbed.

TROPICAL TREE

Rawolfia serpentina, genus of tropical tree and shrubs have been used in South America, Africa, Asia as a source of arrow poison, and also presently used in the treatment of certain neuropsychiatric disorders as well as hypertension. This was recognized as useful medicinal plant in 1954 by Muller.

Colchicum, better known as autumn crocus, the unusual hardy bulb which blooms in September without soil or water is today the source of the drug of choice for gout. Its name was derived from the island of Colchis, in the Black Sea, where folklore says the witch Medea discovers its pharmacologic properties while looking for a new poison. It has a vogue with Arabian physicians as a treatment for gout, then abandoned during the Middle Ages until the nineteenth century. The magic Colchicums can also be grown outdoors four inches deep and they will bloom every fall for years.

The age of pharmacognosy has not passed. Drugs may yet be isolated from other plants used in folk remedies, perhaps even from the apple of Sodom, old maids night cap, sweet william or the delphiniums. Think about beauty plus science when you are planting this fall to have the flowers that bloom in the spring.

Publicity-district meeting Nov. 11 in Bastrop. Mrs. M. B. Sotham of Jackson, Mississippi, will do a demonstration program on Christmas arrangements throughout the house. Make your reservations with Mrs. W. P. Stephenson, Cypress St., Bastrop.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Shade Houses Help Plants

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Perhaps you have noticed, when visiting some nursery, the good condition of the plants growing underneath the artificial shade of the nursery's "slat house". These structures provide almost ideal conditions for growing plants of many kinds. Camellias bloom, unmolested by the extremes of winter weather, and the foliage of almost all the plants under the "shade" is perfect.

Slat houses are not difficult or expensive to put up. They are very practical for the home gardener. If you will build a small one for yourself, you will never again be without one. The structure can be fitted right into your house or garden plan so that it is a part of either one. In the garden, it can be located in the same places where you might put a grape arbor. Attached to the house, it can be made a part of most kinds of architecture as has been shown by many photographs in gardening and home magzines.

NEARLY IDEAL

In the nearly ideal conditions of the shade house, we in the South can grow plants that, in the open, succumb to the extremes of our climate. Delphiniums grow beautifully under the shade where they never are exposed to the heat and blazing sunshine we have here. Out in the garden, they last only a season or two, but under the shade house, they are permanent. The sudden and extreme changes of our winter weather kill off many very choice plants which many of us would like to grow. Gerbera is one of these. Many people cannot keep gerberas very long in the open garden, but they are permanent under the shade house. The shade house tempers all the extremes of climate. It reduces the blazing sun of summer. It slows down the violent wind. In winter, when the sudden cold winds sweep in on us with a drop of temperature of as much as ten degrees per hour, the shade house gives just the right amount of protection to plants of many kinds. In heavy rains and hail storms, the slats break the fall of rain and hail and save flowers from damage or destruction.

CAMELLIAS

Many camellia growers have discovered that they get a rich harvest of perfect flowers from their bushes in winter when they grow them under shade houses. The only problem with growing camellias under thees structures lies in the fact that the bushes soon get to be very large, especially under such ideal conditions, and the house has to have its roof raised.

We in the South are just beginning to discover the benefits of shade houses. We used to call them "lath houses" because we made them by nailing the wooden laths used in plastering on the main structures. Architects have improved their designs for us in the last few years, and we shall soon be gardening in the cool shade of these pleasant places.

Distress Calls Received From Gulf Trawlers

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—Several trawlers broadcast distress calls Friday as the first severe norther of the season kicked up stormy conditions in the Gulf of Mexico.

The tugs Pike and Barbara George, out of Galveston and towing an oil barge to Puerto, Mexico, reported a seaman aboard one of the tugs is seriously ill. The Coast Guard was considering sending a flying boat from St. Petersburg, Fla., to evacuate the man.

Waves at the tugs' location 160 miles south of Galveston, were 10 feet high.

The shrimp trawler Butchie Boy of Port Isabel, Tex., was disabled 210 miles south of Port Isabel with a broken steering gear. Another trawler, Laguna, 4, ran hard aground near Port Isabel last night after its pilot house was smashed by heavy seas. All aboard are safe.

The trawler Martha made Port Isabel with Coast Guard assistance after seas smashed the windows in the pilot house.

THE HOME SHIFT

Preparations For Holidays

By MILDRED SWIFT

When November arrives, we really start counting the days until Christmas. Frosty mornings remind us its time to make preparation for both Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays.

The garden needs to be kept clean if it's to have a holiday look. Leaves will be falling for a month or more and that will keep you busy. But — there are other jobs to do.

Amaryllis can be planted now and on into spring. A raised bed provides good drainage and this bulb likes neutral soil. Some sand worked in the soil will help to give good drainage. Work bone meal in the bed and plant the amaryllis bulb with its nose out of the ground. If you plant deep you encourage bulb rot. Mulch such as pine straw is good protection.

Amaryllis will thrive in some shade or full sun. The blossoms fade less if there is some shade. When growing amaryllis in pots, soak the empty pots from 12 to 24 hours in water to thoroughly saturate them. Regular feeding every two weeks, with a balanced fertilizer dissolved in water, helps the potted bulbs. If you plant now, begin this feeding in January. Amaryllis multiply, so a handful of bulbs can afford a lot of garden pleasure.

DAHLIA ROOTS

It is not desirable to dig dahlia roots until the tops are destroyed by frost. Then they should be cut down to within 6 inches of the ground and lifted. In lifting be careful not to injure the roots by bruising or by breaking them from the crown. Care should also be used in removing as much soil as possible from the roots with a pointed stick, allowing them to dry in the air for a few hours; then store in a dry, cool, frostproof place. If the atmosphere of the storage room is very dry, the clumps should be packed in berrels or boxes in peat moss or sand, or wrapped in newspaper. These also can be hung in old stockings from the ceiling in a dark room. The packing material should be dry when used. It will then tend to take up water from the clumps at first and reduce the tendency to dry out at the end of the storage period. Varieties differ in behavior in storage, some shriveling and others remaining firm under like conditions.

You can plant seeds of Belles of Ireland, anytime. This is a beautiful plant for arrangements in the fresh state, or dried.

Let me remind you again that the white red bud (cercis canadensis van alba) is a beautiful sight in early spring. One small branch makes a spectacular arrangement.

This is a repition but maybe you want to be reminded that it's time to plant bulbs; prune dead wood from trees and shrubs; vtransplant spring blooming perennials (like daisies); plant Easter lily bulbs) put out pansy and calendula plants; plant seed of all early blooming annuals (consult your seed man.)

When broadcasting winter rye grass seed, be careful not to let them fly over in the shrubbery or annual beds. They'll be a headache and give you a backache later on when the grass has to be dug and lifted, bodily.

WATERING

At the time I'm writing this the soil is very dry. Remember plants need water in winter as well as summer. If we were to get a freeze, now, many plants would be completely dehydrated because there is so little moisture in them and in the ground. If we've had a good rain, you're all right.

The susanquas are beginning to bloom and they do add so much at this time of year. There are many new varieties. See them in bloom in the nurseries.

A susanqua needs the same soil and care as a camellia. They're all in the same family. Of course, you know that means acid soil (humus), good loamy soil with lots of humus and water during very dry spells.

A young flower enthusiast, Joe Allen Boothe, transplanted a red cockscomb to a pot and it is growing and blooming nicely. You have no idea what a lovely house plant it makes. I've never seen one brought inside and I thought you'd like to know about this. You can do likewise. We're waiting to see how it is going to thrive, since this plant likes lots of sun and warm weather. We'll keep you informed.

SAFETY FIRST

We all know the old superstition about not walking under a ladder. It's probably safer to walk under a ladder than it is to climb one—unless you're mighty careful.

Here are some safety rules from the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners: When propping a ladder against a wall, be sure the base of the ladder is no farther than a quarter of its length from the wall. Thus a 12 foot ladder should rest about 3 feet from the wall.

Be sure the ladder has a secure footing. By all means avoid using a ladder in front of a door, inside or out, unless the door is locked. Never go above the third rung from the top of a straight ladder.

Never try to work with one foot on the rung of a ladder, and the other foot on a windowsill, table or other object. Don't burden yourself with a lot of tools when going up or down a ladder. You need both hands for holding on. Be sure there's no oil or grease on the soles of your shoes or on the ladder rung.

SHOES

Many of the new walking shoes have stacked leather heels, and no matter what your age or occupation, there is a perfect elevation for you. One company showed a very thin, very high stacked heel on an evening pump of rich moire! The season is full of shoe surprises.

No part of the human anatomy gets less of a break than our feet. They contain one fourth of all our bones. The average salesgirl covers the distance from Juneau, Alaska to Honolulu, Hawaii during her year's work.

So — why not give your feet a regular break? We find coffee breaks relaxing and refreshing, so why not adapt shoe breaks? You rotate the tires on your car —why not rotate the shoes you wear — several times during the day?

If you're a housewife, a "shoe break" will do wonders to make your next task seem less back breaking. Four shoe breaks a day give feet and spirits a lift, cut down fatigue, at no cost and very little time spent.

ELEGANT LOOK

The elegant look for late afternoon and evening has been given an added emphasis with brocades. These brocades that spark the after dark scene are luxurious. Newest are the jewel toned silk brocade suits. The dress may be low necked and often sleeveless and can be worn without the jacket, which often boasts a fur collar.

Many of these brocades are made long sleeved and sheath. Some are shirtwaist with three quarter sleeves flaunting jewel cuff links and matching buttons.

Have you noticed how velveteen now is taking over the daylight fashion scene in new sportswear? Some are in separates that can be paired together. Even velveteen raincoats cut in chesterfield and trench coat styles are at ease in the daytime.

Long gloves no longer are designed almost exclusively for evening wear. This fall they're very much in the daytime picture. This is probably due to the fact so many coat sleeves recede all the way up to mid arm.

Evening gloves are more beautiful and more elaborately trimmed than ever. Some are 24 button lengths. Pink and blue kid and black suede also are popular tones for formal gloves.

Your Open House programs for next week are: Monday, Jackie Mitchell will show flower containers fashioned from ordinary objects around the house; Tuesday, Betty Jane Hodgkins will make a cape from three - quarters of a yard of material; Wednesday and Thursday I'll be with you with marketing and food preparation; Friday a cotton style show with lovely models. See you next Sunday.

STAMPS

The sixth of the United States "Champions of Liberty" stamps will honor Thomas G. Masaryk, founder and first president of Czechoslovakia. As in the past, these stamps will be issued in two denominations — 4 cents for first class domestic postage and 8 cents for first class international surface mail.

The Masaryk stamps will be placed on sale at Washington, D. C., on March 7, 1960, the 110th anniversary of Masaryk's birth. Details as to design and colors will be announced in this column soon.

Masaryk's movement for Czech independence dates back to World War I. In 1918 he was chosen that nation's first president and remained in that capacity until 1935.

Said Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield: "These stamps commemorating Thomas G. Masaryk as a 'Champion of Liberty' will thus mark not only the strong friendship of the peoples of the United States and Czechoslovakia, which Masaryk symbolized, but also their common aspirations for freedom."

Previous "Champions of Liberty" have been Ramon Magsaysay (1957), Simon Bolivar and Lajos Kossuth (1958) and Jose de San Martin and Ernst Reuter (1959).

The famed British Commonwealth collection of H. M. Spencer Lewin of Montreal, Canada, was sold for more than $23,000 in a two - day auction in New York recently. The top price went for a Mauritius No. 4, earliest impression of the 1848 2-pence with frame line cut at top right. It sold for $1,050.

Brazil has issued a 2.50-cruzeiros stamp to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the city of Londrina in the State of Parana. This green and white airmail was issued to help publicize the first jet flight of Brazil's airlines. Another airmail is expected soon to honor the inauguration of its first jet flight route.

The postal administration of the Belgian Congo and Ruanda - Urundi each will issue a series of 12 postage stamps. The stamps will show protected animals of the Belgian Cingo and Ruanda-Urundi. ....

Fall Pruning, Trimming Time

By AUDREY DAWSON

Last call for saving those caladium bulbs — better get them out of the ground. Dry them, with leaves left on, and store in dry warm place during winter months. It is too late to get them after frost. Even though your bulbs were small ones this year they are worth saving and too you will have bigger bulbs and plants for next year.

PRUNING

Begin now to clean up your trees and shrubs. Prune and cut out all dead, diseased or broken limbs on all plants and trees.

Another job that is needed at this time in the garden to make a better appearance (if your's is anything like yours truly at this season it needs some attention to look better). Cut back all the annuals and perennials that have finished blooming — this will really give a lift to the bed.

I have never seen the susanquas bloom more beautifully than this season. Now is a good time to make your selection at your nurserymen to be sure to get the color you want. I have never heard so many homemakers comment that they just had to get some susanquas for their garden. I find this plant most satisfying. It grows fast, is an evergreen and fits well into most plans. The only trouble is scale and now that we have Malathion this is easily controlled, so if you need a plant for your garden, I believe you will find this one most satisfying.

Now is an excellent time to collect seed pods from the garden to be used in dried arrangements. Beautiful material might also be found on ditch banks. Material that can be collected now that is fine for arrangements is okra pods, pine cones, cattails, dock, corn shucks and tassels.

SOMETHING NEW

A new seasoning, minced green onion ready for use whenever green onion or chives is required, has been introduced to the food industry. This new product is made from a specially grown variety of onions with a green bloom rather than the usual white on the inside of the onion top. It is flaked, dehydrated and packaged in a cylindrical glass jar that is compact and decorative for the seasoning shelf. One teaspoon of the minced green onion added to an equal amount of water and allowed to stand for five minutes will equal 1 tablespoon of fresh chives. If added to food that contains liquid they need not be reconstituted but can be added directly.

VACUUM CLEANER

Every homemaker is interested in saving money and one way for you to do it is to get extra years of life from your vacumn cleaner. Here are some simple suggestions that can mean money in your pocket by adding some extra years of service to your cleaner: Replace the filter when it becomes clogged; pick up sharp objects like pins, glass and tacks before running over them with the cleaner; always detach the cord from the outlet by pulling on the plug, not by yanking the cord; if the motor requires oiling, follow directions being careful to use the right kind and amount of oil — and don't forget — read the instruction book which comes with the cleaner.

The Music World

NEW YORK (UPI)—The musical exchanges between the United States and Russia are running pretty hot when the newest composition of Russia's leading composer is played in the United States less than a month after its first performance in Russia.

And played by the leading Russian musician for whom it was composed and who was the first to play it at home, what's more. The piece is a 'Cello Concerto' by Dimitri Shostakovich. Mstislav Rostropovich played it with the Philadelphia Orchestra in Philadelphia Friday and Saturday nights.

He gave the concerto its world premiere in Leningrad Oct. 4 and played it again, in Moscow, on October 9. That's tremendous speed for music and especially for a musician attached to the music, to get around. It is evident that musical "cultura exchanges" now run on well-greased slides.

Americans admired the music of Shostakovich even at the height of the cold war, of course, and they have come to admire the playing of Rostropovich since his first American performances, in 1956. One is among the most impressive of living composers; the other is a profound master of his instrument and its music, as any one can tell by listening.

But music never was an issue anyway, and Russia had great composers and great musicians whom Americans admired before there was a Soviet. So soon this newest work of Shostakovich will be on records, (with Rostropovich the soloist, no doubt) and every musical person will be listening to it without giving any thought to non-musical implications.

But musical exchanges now are on a much larger scale than single compositions and single musicians. The New York Philharmonic concertized in Russia late in the summer, and in January and February the Moscow State Symphony will concertize across the United States.

It is the Russian match for America's big and firmly established orchestras, like those in Boston, New York, Philadephia, Cleveland, Chicago, and so on. It has 120 musicians and will bring two conductors Konstantin Ivanov and Kiril Kondrashin who is already known here because Van Ciburn imported him to accompany his playing of the piano concertos with which he won his Russian prize. It will give 34 concerts in all, over a period of six weeks.

This week's concerts of the New York Philharmonic, in New York, offered sentiment as well as music. Robert Casadesus, the French pianist who now is as well known to Americans, played Beethoven's 4th concerto. It was his silver anniversary — he gave his first American performance (of Mozart's "Coronation" concerto) on the same platform with the same orchestra 25 years ago. He is now 60 years old.

Tree Planters Check Spades In Early Fall

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

CHAPPAQUA, N.Y. —Falling leaves are the signal for tree planters to get to work.

Putting in shade or fruit trees in the fall gives them a good start over the winter for spring-time leafing. But there are some important precautions:

Be sure of the location. Many people forget that today's little acorn is tomorrow's giant oak. Consider future growth and don't plant a tree that will cut off light and air for the house or sunshine to a vital spot in the garden.

Once you've invested in a tree, put it to use. Sensible planting means it can shade an outdoor eating area, a children's playyard or pool.

Don't put a $50 tree in a 50 cent hole—give it room to grow. The hole must be deep enough and wide enough for the whole root system without overcrowding.

When you dig the hole for a tree or shrub, pile the top soil in one place and the subsoil in another. At the bottom of the hole, break up the soil where the roots will be and mix in a quantity of peat moss.

If the tree is balled and wrapped in burlap, set it in as is, then just loosen the burlap around the trunk. Don't remove it — it will keep the soil packed around the roots for the initial growing period and eventually rot away.

If your tree or shrub has bare roots, spread them carefully, pressing them into the soil, then pack earth in to prevent air pockets.

When you refill the hole, put in the top soil first. Halfway up water generously, letting the dirt settle.

Put in the rest of the soil and tamp it down gently but firmly around the trunk. Then water again.

Brace the tree against winter winds with a length of wire pegged into the ground. Loop it around the trunk with a length of old garden hose or folded rags as a pad against cutting or chafing the bark.

Remember to water newly planted trees, evergreens or shrubs if rainfall is not adequate. The soil should be kept moist until the ground freezes.

This is also the time to give your chrysanthemums pre-winter care. In the changeable autumn weather, protect the plants against early frosts and you'll be rewarded with many more weeks of bloom.

Old sheets, sacks and plastic sheeting make good frost guards. Put the coverings on your plants in late afternoon when frost is forecast or when the temperatures drop sharply.

After the first hard freeze, dig up clumps with a generous amount of soil, cut down the tops to two or three inches and dust the plants with insecticide.

Then set the mums in a cold frame or in a protected area along a house foundation. Mulch with straw, salt hay, dried grass clippings or other porous material.

Pain Killers Among Plants

By MARY JARDINE

KATHERINE M. FOSTER, M.D.
Guest Writer

Paging Dr. Kevin! Emergency Room! There Dr. Kevin finds one of the leading citizens with crushing chest pain which he immediately relieves with an injected pain killer. Behind the doctor are thoughts of the ancient Chinese who accidentally discovered that a very beautiful wild poppy (Papave somniferum) had these pain relieving properties which made his patient feel comfortable.

More than 3,000 medicinal plants are listed in Dr. Materia Medica a pharmocopeia compiled in the first century A. D. by Dioscorides, a Roman physcian. About five hundred of the plants he recommended are still of some medical importance. And so from the flowers that bloom in the spring, Dr. Kevin treats his patients with heart failure, asthma, high blood pressure, gout, and schizophrenia.

OTHER PLANTS

Among the medicinal plants listed today by the United States government, are many with odd names and infrequent use — Apple of Sodom (Solanum carolinense,) Bad Man's oatmenal (Conium maculatum), and old maids nightcap (Geranium maculatum).

Better known and more frequently used, beside the opium poppy, are foxglove (Digitalis pupurea), Belladonna (Atropa belladonna), American falase hellebore (Veratrum viride) and autumn crocus (Colchicum autumnale).

Foxglove, better known in the medical circles as digitalis has other familiar names such as fairy fingers, lady's glove, lion's mouth. In England before the Norman conquest it was used as a household remedy for dropsy. In 1775 an English physician, Witherine, learned of its medical properties and introduced it as a diuretic. Today it is used in the treatment of heart failure. Foxgloves are beautiful hardy biennials easily raised from seels, and produce flowers shaped and spotted like gloxina. They are very showy and used both in beds and borders.

Belladonna, or deadly night shade plant is perennial herb, not a garden subject due to the fact all of the plant is poison except roots and leaves used for medicinal purposes. The blooms are dull purple flowers on intense green stalk reaching height of three feet. This was brought into this country from Europe speciiically to be cultivated as a medicinal plant. Since World War II, when sufficient quantities of the drug could not be imported, commercial supplies of belladonna have been grown in California. The leaves are smoked in pipes to relieve asthma. It is used to relieve spasm of the intestinal and urinary tract.

American Flase Hellebore is one of North America's contri'butions to pharmacognosy, a plant that grows wild in swampy places from eastern Canada to Georgia. Veratum used to treat hypertension is obtained from rootstock of the plant. The American Indians and Europeans used it to treat acute inflammation. The plant is a herbacious perennial with greenish or purplish flowers in panicles at the top of the stalk, the leaves are claspin and ribbed.

TROPICAL TREE

Rawolfia serpentina, genus of tropical tree and shrubs have been used in South America, Africa, Asia as a source of arrow poison, and also presently used in the treatment of certain neuropsychiatric disorders as well as hypertension. This was recognized as useful medicinal plant in 1954 by Muller.

Colchicum, better known as autumn crocus, the unusual hardy bulb which blooms in September without soil or water is today the source of the drug of choice for gout. Its name was derived from the island of Colchis, in the Black Sea, where folklore says the witch Medea discovers its pharmacologic properties while looking for a new poison. It has a vogue with Arabian physicians as a treatment for gout, then abandoned during the Middle Ages until the nineteenth century. The magic Colchicums can also be grown outdoors four inches deep and they will bloom every fall for years.

The age of pharmacognosy has not passed. Drugs may yet be isolated from other plants used in folk remedies, perhaps even from the apple of Sodom, old maids night cap, sweet william or the de'phiniums. Think about beauty plus science when you are planting this fall to have the flowers that bloom in the spring.

THE HOME SHIFT

Preparations For Holidays

By MILDRED SWIFT

When November arrives, we really start counting the days until Christmas. Frosty mornings remind us its time to make preparation for both Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays.

The garden needs to be kept clean if it's to have a holiday look. Leaves will be falling for a month or more and that will keep you busy. But — there are other jobs to do.

Amaryllis can be planted now and on into spring. A raised bed provides good drainage and this bulb likes neutral soil. Some sand worked in the soil will help to give good drainage. Work bone meal in the bed and plant the amaryllis bulb with its nose out of the ground. If you plant deep you encourage bulb rot. Mulch such as pine straw is good protection.

Amaryllis will thrive in some shade or full sun. The blossoms fade less if there is some shade. When growing amaryllis in pots, soak the empty pots from 12 to 24 hours in water to thoroughly saturate them. Regular feeding every two weeks, with a balanced fertilizer dissolved in water, helps the potted bulbs. If you plant now, begin this feeding in January. Amaryllis multiply, so a handful of bulbs can afford a lot of garden pleasure.

DAHLIA ROOTS

It is not desirable to dig dahlia roots until the tops are destroyed by frost. Then they should be cut down to within 6 inches of the ground and lifted. In lifting be careful not to injure the roots by bruising or by breaking them from the crown. Care should also be used in removing as much soil as possible from the roots with a pointed stick, allowing them to dry in the air for a few hours; then store in a dry, cool, frostproof place. If the atmosphere of the storage room is very dry, the clumps should be packed in barrels or boxes in peat moss or sand, or wrapped in newspaper. These also can be hung in old stockings from the ceiling in a dark room. The packing material should be dry when used. It will then tend to take up water from the clumps at first and reduce the tendency to dry out at the end of the storage period. PRUNING

Begin now to clean up your trees and shrubs. Prune and cut out all dead, diseased or broken limbs on all plants and trees.

Another job that is needed at this time in the garden to make a better appearance (if your's is anything like yours truly at this season it needs some attention to look better). Cut back all the annuals and perennials that have finished blooming — this will really give a lift to the bed.

I have never seen the susanquas bloom more beauti ully than this season. Now is a good time to make your selection at your nurserymen to be sure to get the color you want. I have never heard so many homemakers comment that they just had to get some susanquas for their garden. I find this plant most satisfying. It grows fast, is an evergreen and fits well into most plans. The only trouble is scale and now that we have Malathion this is easily controlled, so if you need a plant for your garden, I believe you will find this one most satisfying.

Now is an excellent time to collect seed pods from the garden to be used in dried arrangements. Beautiful material might also be found on ditch banks. Material that can be collected now that is fine for arrangements is okra pods, pine cones, cattails, dock, corn shucks and tassels.

SOMETHING NEW

A new seasoning, minced green onion ready for use whenever green onion or chives is required, has been introduced to the food industry. This new product is made from a specially grown variety of onions with a green bloom rather than the usual white on the inside of the onion top. It is flaked, dehydrated and packaged in a cylindrical glass jar that is compact and decorative for the seasoning shelf. One teaspoon of the minced green onion added to an equal amount of water and allowed to stand for five minutes will equal 1 tablespoon of fresh chives. If added to food that contains liquid they need not be reconstituted but can be added directly.

VACUUM CLEANER

Every homemaker is interested in saving money and one way for you to do it is to get extra years of life from your vacunm cleaner. Here are some simple suggestions that can mean money in your pocket by adding some extra years of service to your cleaner: Replace the filter when it becomes clogged; pick up sharp objects like pins, glass and tacks before running over them with the cleaner; always detach the cord from the outlet by pulling on the plug, not by yanking the cord; if the motor requires oiling, follow directions being careful to use the right kind and amount of oil — and don't forget — read the instruction book which comes with the cleaner.

THANKSGIVING

Mrs. Homemaker here's the answer to your question as to what size of turkey to buy for that dinner of all dinners. Yes, Thanksgiving. Plan on 1 to 1½ pounds of ready - to - stuff turkey and 1½ to 2 pounds stuffed turkey per person for first meal helpings with cold turkey left for "encores."

A THOUGHT — Think as though your thoughts were visible to all about you.

The Music World

NEW YORK (UPI)—The musical exchanges between the United States and Russia are running pretty hot when the newest composition of Russia's leading composer is played in the United States less than a month after its first performance in Russia.

And played by the leading Russian musician for whom it was composed and who was the first to play it at home, what's more. The piece is a 'Cello Concerto' by Dimitri Shostakovich. Mstislav Rostropovich played it with the Philadelphia Orchestra in Philadelphia Friday and Saturday nights.

He gave the concerto its world premiere in Leningrad Oct. 4 and played it again, in Moscow, on October 9. That's tremendous speed for music and especially for a musician attached to the music, to get around. It is evident that musical "cultura exchanges" now run on well-greased slides.

Americans admired the music of Shostakovich even at the height of the cold war, of course, and they have come to admire the playing of Rostropovich since his first American performances, in 1956. One is among the most impressive of living composers; the other is a profound master of his instrument and its music, as any one can tell by listening.

But music never was an issue anyway, and Russia had great composers and great musicians whom Americans admired before there was a Soviet. So soon this newest work of Shostakovich will be on records, (with Rostropovich the soloist, no doubt) and every musical person will be listening to it without giving any thought to non-musical implications.

But musical exchanges now are on a much larger scale than single compositions and single musicians. The New York Philharmonic concertized in Russia late in the summer, and in January and February the Moscow State Symphony will concertize across the United States.

It is the Russian match for America's big and firmly established orchestras, like those in Boston, New York, Philadephia, Cleveland, Chicago, and so on. It has 120 musicians and will bring two conductors Konstantin Ivanov and Kiril Kondrashin who is already known here because Van Ciburn imported him to accompany his playing of the piano concertos with which he won his Russian prize. It will give 34 concerts in all, over a period of six weeks.

This week's concerts of the New York Philharmonic, in New York, offered sentiment as well as music. Robert Casadesus, the French pianist who now is as well known to Americans, played Beethoven's 4th concerto. It was his silver anniversary — he gave his first American performance (of Mozart's "Coronation" concerto) on the same platform with the same orchestra 25 years ago. He is now 60 years old.

Tree Planters Check Spades In Early Fall

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

CHAPPAQUA, N.Y. —Falling leaves are the signal for tree planters to get to work.

Putting in shade or fruit trees in the fall gives them a good start over the winter for springtime leafing. But there are some important precautions:

Be sure of the location. Many people forget that today's little acorn is tomorrow's giant oak. Consider future growth and don't plant a tree that will cut off light and air for the house or sunshine to a vital spot in the garden.

Once you've invested in a tree, put it to use. Sensible planting means it can shade an outdoor eating area, a children's playyard or pool.

Don't put a $50 tree in a 50 cent hole—give it room to grow. The hole must be deep enough and wide enough for the whole root system without overcrowding.

When you dig the hole for a tree or shrub, pile the top soil in one place and the subsoil in another. At the bottom of the hole, break up the soil where the roots will be and mix in a quantity of peat moss.

If the tree is balled and wrapped in burlap, set it in as is, then just loosen the burlap around the trunk. Don't remove it — it will keep the soil packed around the roots for the initial growing period and eventually rot away.

If your tree or shrub has bare roots, spread them carefully, pressing them into the soil, then pack earth in to prevent air pockets.

When you refill the hole, put in the top soil first. Halfway up water generously, letting the dirt settle.

Put in the rest of the soil and tamp it down gently but firmly around the trunk. Then water again.

Brace the tree against winter winds with a length of wire pegged into the ground. Loop it around the trunk with a length of old garden hose or folded rags as a pad against cutting or chafing the bark.

Remember to water newly planted trees, evergreens or shrubs if rainfall is not adequate. The soil should be kept moist until the ground freezes.

This is also the time to give your chrysanthemums pre-winter care. In the changeable autumn weather, protect the plants against early frosts and you'll be rewarded with many more weeks of bloom.

Old sheets, sacks and plastic sheeting make good frost guards. Put the coverings on your plants in late afternoon when frost is forecast or when the temperatures drop sharply.

After the first hard freeze, dig up clumps with a generous amount of soil, cut down the tops to two or three inches and dust the plants with insecticide.

Then set the mums in a cold frame or in a protected area along a house foundation. Mulch with straw, salt hay, dried grass clippings or other porous material.

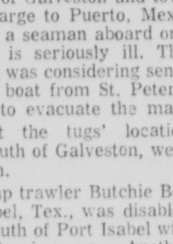
Shade Houses Help Plants



By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Perhaps you have noticed, when visiting some nursery, the good condition of the plants growing underneath the artificial shade of the nursery's "slat house". These structures provide almost ideal conditions for growing plants of many kinds. Camellias bloom, unmolested by the extremes of winter weather, and the foliage of almost all the plants under the "shade" is perfect.

Slat houses are not difficult or expensive to put up. They are very practical for the home gardener. If you will build a small one for yourself, you will never again be without one. The structure can be fitted right into your house or garden plan so that it is a part of either one. In the garden, it can be located in the same places where you might put a grape arbor. Attached to the house, it can be made a part of most kinds of architecture as has been shown by many photographs in gardening and home magzines.

NEARLY IDEAL

In the nearly ideal conditions of the shade house, we in the South can grow plants that, in the open, succumb to the extremes of our climate. Delphiniums grow beauti'ully under the shade where they never are exposed to the heat and blazing sunshine we have here. Out in the garden, they last only a season or two, but under the shade house, they are permanent. The sudden and extreme changes of our winter weather kill off many very choice plants which many of us would like to grow. Gerbera is one of these. Many people cannot keep gerberas very long in the open garden, but they are permanent under the shade house. The shade house tempers all the extremes of climate. It reduces the blazing sun of summer. It slows down the violent wind. In winter, when the sudden cold winds sweep in on us with a drop of temperature of as much as ten degrees per hour, the shade house gives just the right amount of protection to plants of many kinds. In heavy rains and hail storms, the slats break the fall of rain and hail and save flowers from damage or destruction.

CAMELLIAS

Many camellia growers have discovered that they get a rich harvest of perfect flowers from their bushes in winter when they grow them under shade houses. The only problem with growing camellias under thees structures lies in the fact that the bushes soon get to be very large, especially under such ideal conditions, and the house has to have its roof raised.

We in the South are just beginning to discover the benefits of shade houses. We used to call them "lath houses" because we made them by nailing the wooden laths used in plastering on the main structures. Architects have improved their designs for us in the last few years, and we shall soon be gardening in the cool shade of these pleasant places.

Distress Calls Received From Gulf Trawlers

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—Several trawlers broadcast distress calls Friday as the first severe norther of the season kicked up stormy conditions in the Gulf of Mexico.

The tugs Pike and Barbara George, out of Galveston and towing an oil barge to Puerto, Mexico, reported a seaman aboard one of the tugs is seriously ill. The Coast Guard was considering sending a flying boat from St. Petersburg, Fla., to evacuate the man.

Waves at the tugs' location 160 miles south of Galveston, were 10 feet high.

The shrimp trawler Butchie Boy of Port Isabel, Tex., was disabled 210 miles south of Port Isabel with a broken steering gear. Another trawler, Laguna, 4, ran hard aground near Port Isabel last night after its pilot house was smashed by heavy seas. All aboard are safe.

The trawler Martha made Port Isabel with Coast Guard assistance after seas smashed the windows in the pilot house.

Dean Urges Methodists To 'Reach Out'

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Methodists were told today Methodism "cannot win the cities nor keep the countryside if we do not identify ourselves more fully with the so-called common people."

Dr. Walter G. Muelder, dean of the Boston University School of Theology, urged members of the Methodist Conference on Christian Education to make a concerted effort to reach the laboring classes, the families with small incomes, and persons of lower educational attainment for church enrollment.

"To this must be added," he said, "an intensified effort to reach more persons who are nonwhite in other ways than through segregated channels."

"The goal," he declared, "is adequate Christian experience and relatedness for all."

"Methodists follow an occupational profile which shows a preponderance of professional men and women and managers as compared with the U. S. population as a whole, based on 1958 census estimates," he said.

"Conversely we have a low proportion of operatives, service workers and laborers. The structure of not adequately churched people so far as Methodism goes can be envisaged partly from this class pattern."

New Minister Takes Post At Local Church

Members of the Southside Baptist Church welcomed the church's new pastor, Rev. A. N. Baum, and his family who have recently moved to Monroe.

Rev. Baum came to Monroe from the Magnolia Church in Crowville. The Southside Church is presently completing its building program and members and officers urged all unaffiliated Baptists to come and take part in the church's development.

Rev. Baum, his wife and three children will reside at 3107 Lee Avenue.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: We befriended and took into our home a destitute young man; while I was at work he tried to seduce my wife. He later begged for forgiveness which I granted. However, we do not care to have any more contacts with him. Because of this, he claims he is not forgiven. He says that God has forgiven him and forgotten, and that we should too. He thinks we should open the door of our home to him again. What should we do? T. R.

ANSWER: Let matters stand where they are. This young man should feel fortunate that he tried his capers on people who were so generous and kind to him, and should forget about pursuing the matter further. In my opinion, he might yield to a similar temptation again, for evidently that is some personality maladjustment which drove him to betraying people who were so good to him. If God has forgiven him, and I do not doubt that, then he should be grateful that he has the chance to go straight and prove himself to be of good character. If God has forgiven him, then he should forget about your wife, and seek the company of people his own age.

This incident points up again the abnormal preoccupation this generation has with sex. Sex sins were the downfall of Sodom and Gomorrah, and no nation has ever survived a moral breakdown. We are on the verge of it now. Let us pray that as a nation we shall get our sights higher than the level of sex.

Disarmament 'In Reverse' Says Priest

By BILL W. DEAN

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — We've got the cart before the horse in our disarmament wrangling with the Soviets, says the teacher of what may be the only college course in disarmament in the nation.

There's no use arguing about nuclear warheads, contends the Rev. Edward A. Conway, S.J. We ought to be worrying about the missiles that would deliver them.

"We have let technology get too far ahead of our political accomplishment," says Father Conway, gesturing with a fistful of technical papers in the Jesuit quarters of Creighton University.

"Before long it will be too late to control the missiles. The thing is getting farther out of hand every minute."

The crux of the problem is inspection, the thing on which America has been standing firm. But Father Conway gives it a different twist.

There are three phases to a weapon: production, possession and use. So far as atomic bombs are concerned, argues the Jesuit priest, "You can't inspect for possession any more.

"We would always have the nagging fear they had secreted a sufficient number of nuclear weapons to back up any blackmail."

But you can inspect missiles and their launching facilities, and that's the practical place to try to exercise control, he believes.

"It doesn't matter so much how many atomic bombs you have so long as you don't have the delivery systems."

At 57, white-haired Father Conway is a specialist but not an optimist about disarmament. If anything will prompt it in these days of the cold war, he says, it is fear — fear and the feeling of each side they are about equal in their weapon development.

"I have a feeling now no serious attempt at disarmament will be made until both sides get what they need: a real stalemate with both satisfied they are not the underdog."

Milwaukee-born Father Conway started out as a student of Papal disarmament teachings, originated a 1943 "Pattern for Peace" declaration backed by 147 Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders and later lectured for the State Department on the Dumbarton Oaks proposals which led to the formation of the United Nations.

In 1945 he was a leader in an educational campaign for international control of atomic energy, later an official Catholic observer in the United Nations and for six years was foreign affairs editor of America, national Catholic weekly review.

Father Conway has taught at Creighton, Regis College at Denver, Marquette in Milwaukee and St. Louis University.

Four Catholic Parishes To Hold Bazaar

The combined Catholic parishes of St. Matthew's, Our Lady of Fatima, St. Joseph's and Jesus the Good Shepherd will hold a fund - raising bazaar Wednesday and Thursday in the St. Matthew's gymnasium, Msgr. John C. Marsh announced today.

The occasion will mark the 36th year of the bazaar which began as a fund raising project for needy students, Catholic and non-Catholic, who attended St. Hyacinth Academy. "This is the school which later became St. Matthews," Msgr. Marsh said.

This year the bazaar will be used as assistance for the Daughters of the Cross, whose headquarters is at St. Vincent' Academy in Shreveport. Graduates of the academy will serve on faculties and staffs of expanding parochial schools in the Monroe area, according to Msgr. Marsh.

Chairmen for the project were named as: Mrs. Tony Embanato, St. Matthew's; Mrs. Leo Ritter, Our Lady of Fatima; Mrs. J. D. LaDart, St. Joseph's, and Mrs. Paul Goldman, Jesus the Good Shepherd.

Stone Avenue Methodists Set Revival

Stone Avenue Methodist Church has announced revival services which will begin today and continue through Sunday, November 15

The services will begin each evening at 7:30. There will be special music by the church quartet and guest singers. The choir will be under the direction of Miss Betty Bandy.

The pastor, the Reverend Isaac A. Patton, will bring the messages each evening. Reverend Patton came to Stone Avenue in June 1959, however he is no newcomer to the Twin Cities. He was graduated from Ouachita Parish High School in 1937. In 1947 he was recommended for license to preach by the First Methodist Church in West Monroe. In 1950 he received his B.A. degree from Asbury College in Wilmore, Kentucky and his B.D. degree from Asbury Theological Seminary in 1952.

Rev. Patton was pastor of the Downsville Methodist Church for five years prior to his coming to Stone Avenue.

Assembly Of God Revival Meeting Now In Progress

A two - week revival meeting at the Central Assembly of God Church here has arrived at its halfway mark and will continue through next Sunday, according to the pastor, Rev. William D. Blair.

An evangelist team of Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Sorenson will conduct services each evening at 7:30 througout the week at the church, located at 509 Calypso in Monroe.

DUAL ROLE-The Crusader Choir of the First Baptist Church of West Monroe goes into "double action" when the boys meet for weekly practice. After singing, they swap choir robes for football suits and divide forces for a game. Choir is under direction of Jack Day.

Dean Urges Methodists To 'Reach Out'

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Methodists were told today Methodism "cannot win the cities nor keep the countryside if we do not identify ourselves more fully with the so-called common people."

Dr. Walter G. Muelder, dean of the Boston University School of Theology, urged members of the Methodist Conference on Christian Education to make a concerted effort to reach the laboring classes, the families with small incomes, and persons of lower educational attainment for church enrollment.

"To this must be added," he said, "an intensified effort to reach more persons who are nonwhite in other ways than through segregated channels."

"The goal," he declared, "is adequate Christian experience and relatedness for all."

"Methodists follow an occupational profile which shows a preponderance of professional men and women and managers as compared with the U. S. population as a whole, based on 1958 census estimates," he said.

"Conversely we have a low proportion of operatives, service workers and laborers. The structure of not adequately churched people so far as Methodism goes can be envisaged partly from this class pattern."

New Minister Takes Post At Local Church

Members of the Southside Baptist Church welcomed the church's new pastor, Rev. A. N. Baum, and his family who have recently moved to Monroe.

Rev. Baum came to Monroe from the Magnolia Church in Crowville. The Southside Church is presently completing its building program and members and officers urged all unaffiliated Baptists to come and take part in the church's development.

Rev. Baum, his wife and three children will reside at 3107 Lee Avenue.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: We befriended and took into our home a destitute young man; while I was at work he tried to seduce my wife. He later begged for forgiveness which I granted. However, we do not care to have any more contacts with him. Because of this, he claims he is not forgiven. He says that God has forgiven him and forgotten, and that we should too. He thinks we should open the door of our home to him again. What should we do? T. R.

ANSWER: Let matters stand where they are. This young man should feel fortunate that he tried his capers on people who were so generous and kind to him, and should forget about pursuing the matter further. In my opinion, he might yield to a similar temptation again, for evidently that is some personality maladjustment which drove him to betraying people who were so good to him. If God has forgiven him, and I do not doubt that, then he should be grateful that he has the chance to go straight and prove himself to be of good character. If God has forgiven him, then he should forget about your wife, and seek the company of people his own age.

This incident points up again the abnormal preoccupation this generation has with sex. Sex sins were the downfall of Sodom and Gomorrah, and no nation has ever survived a moral breakdown. We are on the verge of it now. Let us pray that as a nation we shall get our sights higher than the level of sex.

Disarmament 'In Reverse' Says Priest

By BILL W. DEAN

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — We've got the cart before the horse in our disarmament wrangling with the Soviets, says the teacher of what may be the only college course in disarmament in the nation.

There's no use arguing about nuclear warheads, contends the Rev. Edward A. Conway, S.J. We ought to be worrying about the missiles that would deliver them.

"We have let technology get too far ahead of our political accomplishment," says Father Conway, gesturing with a fistful of technical papers in the Jesuit quarters of Creighton University.

"Before long it will be too late to control the missiles. The thing is getting farther out of hand every minute."

The crux of the problem is inspection, the thing on which America has been standing firm. But Father Conway gives it a different twist.

There are three phases to a weapon: production, possession and use. So far as atomic bombs are concerned, argues the Jesuit priest, "You can't inspect for possession any more.

"We would always have the nagging fear they had secreted a sufficient number of nuclear weapons to back up any blackmail."

But you can inspect missiles and their launching facilities, and that's the practical place to try to exercise control, he believes.

"It doesn't matter so much how many atomic bombs you have so long as you don't have the delivery systems."

At 57, white-haired Father Conway is a specialist but not an optimist about disarmament. If anything will prompt it in these days of the cold war, he says, it is fear — fear and the feeling of each side they are about equal in their weapon development.

"I have a feeling now no seriuos attempt at disarmament will be made until both sides get what they need: a real stalemate with both satisfied they are not the underdog."

Milwaukee-born Father Conway started out as a student of Papal disarmament teachings, originated a 1943 "Pattern for Peace" declaration backed by 147 Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders and later lectured for the State Department on the Dumbarton Oaks proposals which led to the formation of the United Nations.

In 1945 he was a leader in an educational campaign for international control of atomic energy, later an official Catholic observer in the United Nations and for six years was foreign affairs editor of America, national Catholic weekly review.

Father Conway has taught at Creighton, Regis College at Denver, Marquette in Milwaukee and St. Louis University.

Four Catholic Parishes To Hold Bazaar

The combined Catholic parishes of St. Matthew's, Our Lady of Fatima, St. Joseph's and Jesus the Good Shepherd will hold a fund - raising bazaar Wednesday and Thursday in the St. Matthew's gymnasium, Msgr. John C. Marsh announced today.

The occasion will mark the 36th year of the bazaar which began as a fund raising project for needy students, Catholic and non-Catholic, who attended St. Hyacinth Academy. "This is the school which later became St. Matthews," Msgr. Marsh said.

This year the bazaar will be used as assistance for the Daughters of the Cross, whose headquarters is at St. Vincent' Academy in Shreveport. Graduates of the academy will serve on faculties and staffs of expanding parochial schools in the Monroe area, according to Msgr. Marsh.

Chairmen for the project were named as: Mrs. Tony Embanato, St. Matthew's; Mrs. Leo Ritter, Our Lady of Fatima; Mrs. J. D. LaDart, St. Joseph's, and Mrs. Paul Goldman, Jesus the Good Shepherd.

MOMENTS FOR MEMORY

Christmas trees and Christmas lights,
Mistletoe and holly,
Packages and such delights
Make this season jolly.
Families gather close around—
Faces bright and glowing,
Yuletide warmth and love abound;
Hearts are overflowing.

These moments you want to save: and pictures tell the story
Of all the joys on Christmas day — all its warmth and glory!

HANDEL, BACH

Christmas Music Had Top Scorers

It's strange but true: Two of the most famous composers of Christmas music were both born in the same year, 1685, lived for many years within thirty miles of each other — and yet they never met!

The composers were Johann Sebastian Bach and George Frederick Handel.

Handel's "Messiah" will be heard, at least in part, in numerous churches and schools throughout the country. "Joy to the World" is taken from the "Messiah." The musical theme of "While Shepherd's Watched Their Flocks" also comes from this master.

From Bach's "Christmas Oratorio" come the themes of several other well known chorales. He is also the composer of "How Brightly Beams the Morning Star."

Bach and Handel both proved themselves masters of Christmas music that is beautiful and easily enjoyed.

No one really knows exactly the origin or even the meaning, of the Yule log. We know, however that it is of pre-Christian origin. The ancient Druids blessed it with great ceremony to celebrate the beginning of the winter season.

In some lands even today, the Yule log is decorated with flowers and wreaths, annointed with wine, then put in the fireplace and set ablaze.

To bring good luck they tell you, the log must not be allowed to burn out during the Christmas season. Besides, a part of it has to be kept to start the fire next year.

It is believed that the ashes of the Yule log have the power to increase the fertility of the land. Thus, in many places the farmers scatter the ashes over their land on New Year's Day.

Another custom that came to us from pre-Christian times, is kissing under the mistletoe. Once the mistletoe was used as a weapon of death. According to a Norse mythology, the god of Evil, named Loki, planned to destroy the god of the life-giving warmth Balder.

Balder's mother who was the most influential of all the goddesses, obtained a promise from all living things that they would not harm Balder. All agreed, except the mistletoe who hadn't been asked. So, it was with a mistletoe arrow that Loki induced a blind man to kill the sun god. However, higher powers intervened, and Balder was restored to life. The mistletoe was placed under Frigga's care and she, the mother of Balder, saw to it that it was never again used to do harm.

"To learn your luck for the year they say,
Burn a bayberry dip on Christmas day.
If the flame burns bright and the light shines clear,
Good luck will be yours through the year."

UPCOMING SEASON

Merriment, Joy Typify Yuletide

"Merry Christmas" . . . these words ring out clearly during this season! Smiles are warmer, handclasps tighter laughter — gayer. Christmas is the time for more merriment.

Though everyone knows the religious significance of Christmas, often the deeper meaning is lost in the round of gift buying, gift wrapping and gift exchanging.

Often the holiday is a trial of anticipating gifts for all potential "givers." It becomes a bit of a "swap" time with "I must get something for Mary this year, after all she did give me that embroidered cloth" . . . or other!

But most important of all, more than 600 million people observe the natal day of He who is considered the greatest religious leader in history.

Although in the 1,959 years following His birth, the Christmas celebration has come to be a potpourri of ancient pagan ceremonials as oft-told Christmas legends point out, the essence of the day is "it is more blessed to give than receive" . . .

And, this simple statement gives credence to the jolly old Santa who represents the spirit of giving at Christmas.

As the Christmas bells ring out the message of peace and goodwill, brotherhood and tolerance, giving and forgiving come to the fore in His name.

Indulgent adults say "Christmas is for the children" . . . but it is the elders who set moods and patterns of the observance.

Make this a real Christmas! Unite the family in tree trimming festivities . . . sing the old carols and listen well to the words . . . and join friends and neighbors at the church of your choice.

Plan to make His day, a family day — the Christmas Story begins with "once upon a time there was a Father, a Mother and a CHILD . . ."

Melted Snow Brought In By Chemistry

All the snowy splendor of a traditional White Christmas can be yours in holiday decorations this year at the flick of a finger — whether the outside temperature is way up high, or very low!

Unlike nature's uncertain product, this man-made snow lasts till the end of the holiday season — still looking as fresh and cool as a new snowfall. The artificial snow is the result of blending several resins with a fluorinated hydrocarbon — the coldness or freezing action in most mechanical regrigerators.

In the snow cans the hydrocarbon acts both as a solvent for the resins and, because of its ability to expand rapidly when released under pressure, as a propellent for the resins.

Wintry effects can be created both indoors and out with these man-made snows. The chemical is harmless and does not deteriorate under ordinary temperatures and humidity conditions.

This snow can be used to "frost" window panes or will simulate fresh-fallen snow on evergreens!

Other novel effects can be propaper or cardboard cutouts of Christmas figures may be made, and placed on the glass while the "snow" is sprayed around them. Either a negative or positive print of the mask may be made.

Cut-out cardboard Santas, for example, can be sprayed in several snow colors to make inexpensive but eye-catching place cards for holiday parties.

There is also a welcome note for the housewife who faces the task of cleaning up after the holiday season. All she has to do is wipe the coated areas with a warm, damp cloth and off comes the snow.

Young Misses Like Jewelry At Christmas

There's a lot of fashion news in the robe story for Christmas giving.

From classic wrap-around flannels, to elegant wide-sweep beauties, the robe story is elegant!

Most popular in both casual and more luxurious fabrics is the loose or fitted style in the duster length.

Smartly printed cottons, cotton flannels and cotton quilts make up into neat novelties for about-the-house wear.

Woven nylon quilts, nylon tricot quilts and nylon chiffon quilts shape up into some of the smartest new robes.

The perennially popular quilted rayon, new handlings in chenille and corduroy, soft wools and fleeces, as well as the more traditional silk, lined nylons and satin-types continue to score in robe styles.

Zippered front, smooth fitting brunch coats . . . patch pocketed, button front dusters . . . semi-fitted or free 'n' loose peignoir styles lead the array with such details as braid trims, smocking, bows, binding and ric rac trims, lavish lace touches, handsome yoke and sleeve handlings, beautiful prints and — above all — wonderful wearability, sofe colors and usually, washability.

This year, say "Merry Christmas" with lingerie for all the gals!

BRIGHT, LACY

Lovely Lingerie Liked By Gals

Mention lovely, lacy lingerie to any girl (no matter what her age) and watch her eyes light up! That's why when it comes to special gift times, lingerie is the perfect gift for her!

Everywhere on the lingerie scene, there's something new, something bright, something lovely!

Just for example — take a long look at the delightful, "long" panties with their tiers of "can-can" ruffles at the knee . . . so delightful in their old-fashioned "pantaloon" inspired charm. For the modern miss, they come in nylon tricot and gay colors; many have camisole tops.

New, too, are jumper topped waltz-length gowns or pedal-pusher length p.j.'s . . . she'll hop out of bed in the "sleep unit," toss the jumper on, and lo — she'sdT E the jumper on, and lo — she's ready for caller! (Best of all, they double for daytime wear with blouse beneath).

The woman at ease will love the sportswear-inspired lounging pajamas with their midcalf or longer, loan pants and easy tops! Just name the color, fabric and style there's such a wide, wide style — there's such a wide, wide variety of these!

For the "snug as a bug in a rug" feeling, easy goin' balbriggan, cuddly challis and gay flannelettes are ideal chill chasers in sleepwear.

There's a glamour note to the Orient-inspired collection of robes, pajamas and ensembles. The elegance of kimona detailing and mandarin coat lines are interpreted smartly in fine nylons, silks and smooth rich cottons. They are often printed in vibrant colors, trimmed with embroidery or braid.

For Christmas gifting, gown selections are most diversified — they range from dainty, baby-doll shorties to more conservative waltz-lengths and to the floor-length styles.

Make your gift more lavish, ensemble the gown with a matching peignoir . . . cape-like collars, lace by the yard, appliques and embroidery help make the new season crop of ensembles quite exciting.

No matter what style you favor, there's a riot of color, trim, fine silks and nylons awaiting your final choice.

IN INTIMATE APPAREL

The return of the natural waistline heralds a revival of elegant underpinnings — fine nylon tricots, nylon crepes, silks, etc., are used to underscore elegantly detailed slips and half slips.

Applique trims, fine laces, medallion inserts, the daintiest of pleated detail, trapunto trims and scalloping — are but a few of the many accents that make lingerie so lovely, so much wanted at Christmas time.

BOUFFANTS ARE BACK

Shirtwaist dresses, full skirt handlings and a return to more flared skirts make the bouffant petticoat a welcome addition to any wardrobe.

Ruffles, tiers of skirts, lots of pleats, ribbons, lace — all distinguish the underskirts of the season.

AT YULETIDE

Instrument Gift Hits Good Note

A gift of a musical instrument can be a key to "solo" or group enjoyment whether for a child, teenager or adult and is a present that is treasured long past the holidays!

Here are some pointers from the American Music Conference to start you on your way to select your gift of music!

A family gift? The instrument best suited for multi-purpose use by all members of the family is the piano or organ.

Spinet pianos with good tone and action, range from $500 to $2,000. Table model electric organs suitable for home use run to $4,000.

Instrument for a child? Easy-to-play instruments are popular with even the youngest children and are an excellent way to introduce them to the fun of music.

For the young fry the most popular are melody bells, xylophones, triangles, colorful drums and rhythm sticks. Give five to seven-year-olds plastic flutes, harmonicas or ukeleles. These instruments are available for from $1 to $10.

A teenager's fun? Instruments that go where the fun goes — such as guitar, ukelele, accordion, concertina or banjo — are most popular with teens. All of these fit in well with group song fests.

A new semi-accordion with limited range is being sold for about $40; the full 130-bass starts at about $250. Guitars may be purchased from $20 to $500; concertinas, $35-$400; banjos, $45-$300; ukeleles, $4-$75.

Gift for school? If you know a youngster who is interested in school bands or orchestras, a talk with the school instrumental instructor and a dealer will help you select a particular instrument. But the youngster's preference is most important.

School-quality instruments most often recommended are woodwinds in the $125 range and brasses in the $150 range. Violins begin at $50; cellos at $90; and bass viols at $250.

An adult hobby? The serious-minded, quiet person is usually a natural for the piano, violin, flute and classical guitar.

The gregarious, "life of the party" type may prefer a recreational instrument — guitar, ukelele, accordion!

For the fellows who's active in civic groups, a band instrument will put him in the swing of of things whenever there's a hometown parade or community concert.

Plan Festive Home Exterior For Holidays

The real spirit of Christmas is in giving — so share part of the home's holiday mood with passers-by and neighbors. Give your entrance way a true Yule look!

Your doorway will sparkle a gay Christmas greeting if you capture the traditional mood with an ornament bedecked spray of evergreen, gaily tied up with a bright red bow.

Fresh or plastic wreaths with berries, nuts and pine cones add that special holiday happy note to doorways, too.

Colorful variations are an oversize "candy-type" cane, tied with a big, big bow; a huge stocking — possibly filled with pretend gifts — or a miniature Christmas tree that can be made by mounting flat branches in a tree shape and decking them with baubles.

Santa Claus cut-outs can be made or purchased; easy to handle "snow" sprays lend interest to glass panels . . . cut-out snow-flakes can be mounted on the door.

An outline of your door made with tree lights extends your greeting into the late hours. Evergreen trees on the lawn, low-placed shrubs and planter boxes at the front of the house — all lend themselves well to colorful night lighting!

And, friends and neighbors will enjoy the "warm hello" of your outdoor decor!

Ornaments Make Large Industry

The fragile Bubbles of glass with which we adorn our Christmas trees are largely a family industry in Europe, especially Germany, and also in Japan.

In the tiny villages that cling to the steep mountainsides, whole families engage in the process of turning out Chirstmas decoration.

Special shapes and designs are the exclusive properties of certain families, the patterns handed down from father to son, for centuries unchanged.

Using a flame, the father carefully blows the thin glass tubing to the desired shape with the aid of an iron mold. His son removes the hot ornament to the cooling table. Next the mother silvers the inside, and the daughters apply painted designs.

Robes Rate With Femmes As Presents

No girl is ever too young for beauty or for fashion, the Jewelry Industry Council claims, and this truth offers some special Christmas gift ideas for the younger set.

Girls of all ages have created a major fashion trend with their passion for the tiny necklaces known as miniatures.

A small design or pearl hanging from a fine gold chain and nestling in the hollow of the throat has proven its power with little girls of six and those over sixteen as well. Even the 3-to-6-year-old set has its own special version of these popular miniatures.

Narrow gold bracelets are another fashion favorite of all ages! And — the power of charms goes on forever. Charms marking every sentiment and every event for every age make a special and lasting gift! Scarab bracelets are big, big fashion among the high school and college set and are often worn two and three at a time.

Bar and circle pins are tops with the younger set and there can't be too many of them. In classic gold for daytime, or set with tiny pearls or stones for dress-up wear, a circle pin is a fashion must.

And, of course, a string of cultured pearls is every girl's most glorious Christmas dream.

Jewelry makes a lady out of a young girl, and a Christmas gift of pure delight.

Gift Tips For Oldsters Are Declared

Need some good ideas for what to give the "oldsters" on your list? Here are a few to get you started . . .

First for consideration might be a robe. New, warm but washable types, generally serve best . . . and come in a wide range of styles for your choice.

Sweaters are good for both men and women. An attractive stole for Grandmother is generally most appreciated.

Slippers, too are popular with the older crowd. If you don't know the correct size, a gift certificate can be arranged.

At home entertainment . . . television, radio, hi-fi, phonograph . . . any one of these would be welcomed. Books, too, are good . . . so is a subscription to a magazine or book club.

Remember — folks in this age group still enjoy many activities and still like little luxuries. Give them something they can use, of course, but also keep it gay and gifty!

Shoes Make Fine Gifts For The Boys

Shoes make fine Christmas gifts. They're bound to be a sure hit this year. There are many new styles available, from square-toed slip-ons to straps and buckle.

Most men have just about all the clothes they need, but eight out of ten are short of shoes.

Heading the high-fashion category, is the shoe with the new slimly tapered and squared-off toe.

Seen most often in leathers with a fine grain, this silhouette is featured in many variations of the slip-on styles or in two or three eyelet ties for both street and casual wear.

Soles are made of lightweight, supple leather, detailed with the new inverted moc seams. This seaming adds an elegant and lighter look and will be featured in a great many shoes.

Men who like casual attire will be easy to please with handsewn moccasins or the popular ankle-high "chukka" boot, available in soft brushed leathers with flexible leather soles.

Handsome effects are achieved in the deep brown shades, all of which contain less red than in the past, as well as in the neutral tones.

Capture Fun Of Holidays With Movies

Santas with shifting stomachs, saucer-eyed cherubs, carrot-nosed snowmen and the pyramids of packages that all punctuate Christmas — make it a shutterbug's paradise.

To help you capture the small fry and Santa in action on movie film, Bell & Howell passes along a few movie-making tips.

First, allot no less than 1½ feet of 8mm film or 3 feet of 16mm film for any single scene. That's approximately five second's shooting time. Anything shorter whips across the screen too quickly to identify and may add a comic note you didn't plan or want.

You can always edit an overlong scene, but one that's too short is lost.

Mother hanging the holly wreath on the front door, Gramps stringing colored lights around the house, the family's tree-hunting safari or Daddy trying an outsize Santa Claus costume are all good shots.

Second, remember that variety adds tang — variety of angle, scene length and distance between camera and subject. Plan to mix up closeups, medium and long shots.

French Cuff Shirts Seen On Increase

French cuffed shirts are increasing in popularity. This will help in solving your Christmas gift problems for the men on your list. With the return of the French cuff, cuff links are increasing in popularity too.

An exciting, greater-than-ever collection of cuff links is waiting to bring an extra touch of elegance to the discriminating man's wardrobe.

Just to name a few: there's colored Italian pearl carved into any number of shapes . . . highly shaded ceramic tiles . . . raised designs on enamel and intricately etched metals. All these give the cuff link a place of honor in men's jewelry.

Use is made of braided fabrics and leathers. There are carved bone buttons to go with sportswear. For Christmas giving this year there will be cuff links to match every man's taste.

Then, of course, there are tie clasps to match. A visit to a men's store will show you a never-ending variety of jewelry for the man on your list. Look for matching belt buckles, key chains, too.

Scarves Make Pleasing Gifts

Holiday fashions square-off in a new and delightfully different medley of scarves that make ideal gifts for every gal on your list.

Whether she's school-girl, matron, or in-between, it's easy to find just the size and color to accent her individuality.

The newest 36 inch scarves convert with ease into loose, low ties, cowl drapes or wide-away neckline loops.

Whether as a colorful extra or a cherished gift, scarves fill the bill in every way.

New Idea For Gift For Home

A good looking yard lantern which keeps "an eye to the sky" and turns itself off and on automatically may prove to be the ideal gift for the homeowner who seems to have everything.

Adding charm and utility to the front or back yard, patio or porch, the lantern has a photo electric cell which turns the lamp on when the sun goes down; turns it off at sunrise to provide economical lighting even when the homeowner is away.

An electric outlet built into the base of the lantern provides a handy plug-in for Christmas lights, outdoor tools, barbecue equipment, etc.

Greeting Cards Must Be Signed With Some Care

One of the most warm-hearted traditions of the Christmas season is the exchange of greeting cards. At this time of the year close friends and casual acquaintances take time out to express their best wishes.

However, sometimes it can be pretty confusing to receive a card from somebody you've never heard of. The proper way to sign a Christmas card often poses a problem for many people.

In the first place, one should never forget to put the complete return address on the envelope.

In the second place, the signature you use should be determined by the type of card and the person who receives it.

If you have chosen a gay, casual greeting for close friends, you can sign it simply with your first name. If you're married sign the first name of both, followed by the last name.

With married couples, the one signing the cards, always writes his or her name last.

If you prefer to have your cards printed, the wife's name comes first.

Gift Package Sure To Please

Keyed to helping a man appear his best is the new gift package idea . . . attractively wrapped combinations of accessories, in matching colors and patterns.

These gift combinations boast great eye-appeal for Dad or Junior, and . . . they're practical, too. They save a shopper time, and the man or boy receiving them can be sure that the colors and patterns are properly coordinated.

SOMETHING NEW!

The Christmas holiday brings with it a wealth of stately religious hymns and heart-warming carols. Even pop tunes add notes of listening pleasure. And, gift recordings can extend that pleasure through the whole year.

Music lovers this Christmas have a special treat awaiting them in sterophonic sound, the new tonal magic now available for home high fidelity music systems.

BEAUTIFUL HOSTESS or beautiful gift . . for either purpose this hostess gown belongs on the Christmas scene. In luxurious Stehli silk, a year 'round weight. Belt in front or back!

Child's Portrait Is Welcome Gift

Portrait photographs make wonderful, personal gifts as warm and alive as a handshake and as welcome as a sprig of Christmas cheer on a blustery December day.

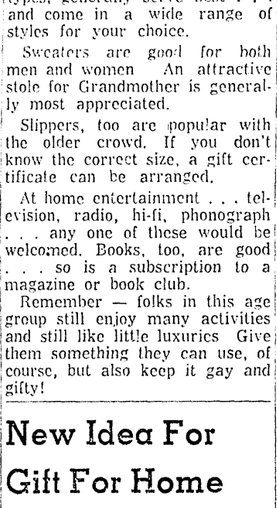
Children especially make stunning portraits, as they pass a new milestone each Christmas.

Here are some tips to remember when having the small fry photographed:

Be sure the child is well rested and fed. Hair should be simply styled and natural looking. Avoid the plastered down style for boys; too tight curls for little girls. Dress the child in snug-fitting clothes — perhaps last year's — so they will have a smooth line. Be sure they are neatly pressed; avoid ruffles or flounces that detract.

If the child has a favorite toy, take it along; it will help the child relax. Many photographers suggest that the best portrait can be made if the child is not told he is to have his picture taken until he arrives at the studio.

Although most photographers prefer to have mother or parents in the studio during the sitting, by all means let the photographer take the picture. He can get the best expression in a portrait when he wins the child's confidence.



PICK A TIE TO SUIT not only his outfits, but his personality as well. A design such as a bold foulard is good for an extrovert; a dark toned solid with small motif for the ultra conservative, and for the Ivy type a repp.

You'll Make Hit With Good Record

A gift of records is a gift that promises hours of pleasure for years to come.

Happily, today records are made for every age and every musical taste. There are even records for tots, though not all are musical; some are the telling of stories.

The reading of poetry and many classics in literature now appear on record.

For that matter, it is possible to learn a foreign language, improve your golf game or study other subjects by record.

There have been vast improvements in the quality of recordings within just the past few years . . . the new stereophonic records are something our parents scarcely hoped to dream about.

Original Broadway shows, the finest operas and orchestras may now resound throughout our own living rooms.

Modern record covers are so attractive that you will find it a pleasure to just browse through a record shop as you might in an art gallery.

Plan for a record Christmas this year. Everyone will love you for it!

KIMONO CHRISTMAS, that's what it will be for the man who receives this smart robe. Sure to be his favorite gift! Of all-wool jersy, more than a yard wide.

As the Christmas bells ring out the message of peace and goodwill, brotherhood and tolerance, giving and forgiving come to the fore in His name.

Indulgent adults say "Christmas is for the children" . . . but it is the elders who set moods and patterns of the observance.

Make this a real Christmas! Unite the family in tree trimming festivities . . . sing the old carols and listen well to the words . . . and join friends and neighbors at the church of your choice.

Plan to make His day, a family day — the Christmas Story begins with "once upon a time there was a Father, a Mother and a CHILD . . ."

Melted Snow Brought In By Chemistry

All the snowy splendor of a traditional White Christmas can be yours in holiday decorations this year at the flick of a finger — whether the outside temperature is way up high, or very low!

Unlike nature's uncertain product, this man-made snow lasts till the end of the holiday season — still looking as fresh and cool as a new snowfall. The artificial snow is the result of blending several resins with a fluorinated hydrocarbon — the coldness or freezing action in most mechanical regrigerators.

In the snow cans the hydrocarbon acts both as a solvent for the resins and, because of its ability to expand rapidly when released under pressure, as a propellent for the resins.

Wintry effects can be created both indoors and out with these man-made snows. The chemical is harmless and does not deteriorate under ordinary temperatures and humidity conditions.

This snow can be used to "frost" window panes or will simulate fresh-fallen snow on evergreens!

Other novel effects can be propaper or cardboard cutouts of Christmas figures may be made, and placed on the glass while the "snow" is sprayed around them. Either a negative or positive print of the mask may be made.

Cut-out cardboard Santas, for example, can be sprayed in several snow colors to make inexpensive but eye-catching place cards for holiday parties.

There is also a welcome note for the housewife who faces the task of cleaning up after the holiday season. All she has to do is wipe the coated areas with a warm, damp cloth and off comes the snow.

Young Misses Like Jewelry At Christmas

There's a lot of fashion news in the robe story for Christmas giving.

From classic wrap-around flannels, to elegant wide-sweep beauties, the robe story is elegant!

Most popular in both casual and more luxurious fabrics is the loose or fitted style in the duster length.

Smartly printed cottons, cotton flannels and cotton quilts make up into neat novelties for about-the-house wear.

Woven nylon quilts, nylon tricot quilts and nylon chiffon quilts shape up into some of the smartest new robes.

The perennially popular quilted rayon, new handlings in chenille and corduroy, soft wools and fleeces, as well as the more traditional silk, lined nylons and satin-types continue to score in robe styles.

Zippered front, smooth fitting brunch coats . . . patch pocketed, button front dusters . . . semi-fitted or free 'n' loose peignoir styles lead the array with such details as braid trims, smocking, bows, binding and ric rac trims, lavish lace touches, handsome yoke and sleeve handlings, beautiful prints and — above all — wonderful wearability, sofe colors and usually, washability.

This year, say "Merry Christmas" with lingerie for all the gals!

BRIGHT, LACY

Lovely Lingerie Liked By Gals

Mention lovely, lacy lingerie to any girl (no matter what her age) and watch her eyes light up! That's why when it comes to special gift times, lingerie is the perfect gift for her!

Everywhere on the lingerie scene, there's something new, something bright, something lovely!

Just for example — take a long look at the delightful, "long" panties with their tiers of "can-can" ruffles at the knee . . . so delightful in their old-fashioned "pantaloon" inspired charm. For the modern miss, they come in nylon tricot and gay colors; many have camisole tops.

New, too, are jumper topped waltz-length gowns or pedal-pusher length p.j.'s . . . she'll hop out of bed in the "sleep unit," toss the jumper on, and lo — she's ready for caller! (Best of all, they double for daytime wear with blouse beneath).

The woman at ease will love the sportswear-inspired lounging pajamas with their midcalf or longer, lean pants and easy tops! Just name the color, fabric and style there's such a wide, wide style — there's such a wide, wide variety of these!

For the "snug as a bug in a rug" feeling, easy goin' balbriggan, cuddly challis and gay flannelettes are ideal chill chasers in sleepwear.

There's a glamour note to the Orient-inspired collection of robes, pajamas and ensembles. The elegance of kimona detailing and mandarin coat lines are interpreted smartly in fine nylons, silks and smooth rich cottons. They are often printed in vibrant colors, trimmed with embroidery or braid.

For Christmas gifting, gown selections are most diversified — they range from dainty, baby-doll shorties to more conservative waltz-lengths and to the floor-length styles.

Make your gift more lavish, ensemble the gown with a matching peignoir . . . cape-like collars, lace by the yard, appliques and embroidery help make the new season crop of ensembles quite exciting.

No matter what style you favor, there's a riot of color, trim, fine silks and nylons awaiting your final choice.

IN INTIMATE APPAREL

The return of the natural waistline heralds a revival of elegant underpinnings — fine nylon tricots, nylon crepes, silks, etc., are used to underscore elegantly detailed slips and half slips.

Applique trims, fine laces, medallion inserts, the daintiest of pleated detail, trapunto trims and scalloping — are but a few of the many accents that make lingerie so lovely, so much wanted at Christmas time.

BOUFFANTS ARE BACK

Shirtwaist dresses, full skirt handlings and a return to more flared skirts make the bouffant petticoat a welcome addition to any wardrobe.

Ruffles, tiers of skirts, lots of pleats, ribbons, lace — all distinguish the underskirts of the season.

Robes Rate With Femmes As Presents

No girl is ever too young for beauty or for fashion, the Jewelry Industry Council claims, and this truth offers some special Christmas gift ideas for the younger set.

Girls of all ages have created a major fashion trend with their passion for the tiny necklaces known as miniatures.

A small design or pearl hanging from a fine gold chain and nestling in the hollow of the throat has proven its power with little girls of six and those over sixteen as well. Even the 3-to-6-year-old set has its own special version of these popular miniatures.

Narrow gold bracelets are another fashion favorite of all ages! And — the power of charms goes on forever. Charms marking every sentiment and every event for every age make a special and lasting gift! Scarab bracelets are big, big fashion among the high school and college set and are often worn two and three at a time.

Bar and circle pins are tops with the younger set and there can't be too many of them. In classic gold for daytime, or set with tiny pearls or stones for dress-up wear, a circle pin is a fashion must.

And, of course, a string of cultured pearls is every girl's most glorious Christmas dream.

Jewelry makes a lady out of a young girl, and a Christmas gift of pure delight.

Ornaments Make Large Industry

The fragile Bubbles of glass with which we adorn our Christmas trees are largely a family industry in Europe, especially Germany, and also in Japan.

In the tiny villages that cling to the steep mountainsides, whole families engage in the process of turning out Chirstmas decoration.

Special shapes and designs are the exclusive properties of certain families, the patterns handed down from father to son, for centuries unchanged.

Using a flame, the father carefully blows the thin glass tubing to the desired shape with the aid of an iron mold. His son removes the hot ornament to the cooling table. Next the mother silvers the inside, and the daughters apply painted designs.

BEAUTIFUL HOSTESS or beautiful gift . . for either purpose this hostess gown belongs on the Christmas scene. In luxurious Stehli silk, a year 'round weight. Belt in front or back!

New Idea For Gift For Home

A good looking yard lantern which keeps "an eye to the sky" and turns itself off and on automatically may prove to be the ideal gift for the homeowner who seems to have everything.

Adding charm and utility to the front or back yard, patio or porch, the lantern has a photo electric cell which turns the lamp on when the sun goes down: turns it off at sunrise to provide economical lighting even when the homeowner is away.

AT YULETIDE

Instrument Gift Hits Good Note

A gift of a musical instrument can be a key to "solo" or group enjoyment whether for a child, teenager or adult and is a present that is treasured long past the holidays!

Here are some pointers from the American Music Conference to start you on your way to select your gift of music!

A family gift? The instrument best suited for multi-purpose use by all members of the family is the piano or organ.

Spinet pianos with good tone and action, range from $500 to $2,000. Table model electric organs suitable for home use run to $4,000.

Instrument for a child? Easy-to-play instruments are popular with even the youngest children and are an excellent way to introduce them to the fun of music.

For the young fry the most popular are melody bells, xylophones, triangles, colorful drums and rhythm sticks. Give five to seven-year-olds plastic flutes, harmonicas or ukeleles. These instruments are available for from $1 to $10.

A teenager's fun? Instruments that go where the fun goes — such as guitar, ukelele, accordion, concertina or banjo — are most popular with teens. All of these fit in well with group song fests.

A new semi-accordion with limited range is being sold for about $40; the full 130-bass starts at about $250. Guitars may be purchased from $20 to $500; concertinas, $35-$400; banjos, $45-$300; ukeleles, $4-$75.

Gift for school? If you know a youngster who is interested in school bands or orchestras, a talk with the school instrumental instructor and a dealer will help you select a particular instrument. But the youngster's preference is most important.

School-quality instruments most often recommended are woodwinds in the $125 range and brasses in the $150 range. Violins begin at $50; cellos at $90; and bass viols at $250.

An adult hobby? The serious-minded, quiet person is usually a natural for the piano, violin, flute and classical guitar.

The gregarious, "life of the party" type may prefer a recreational instrument — guitar, ukelele, accordion!

For the fellows who's active in civic groups, a band instrument will put him in the swing of things whenever there's a hometown parade or community concert.

Shoes Make Fine Gifts For The Boys

Shoes make fine Christmas gifts. They're bound to be a sure hit this year. There are many new styles available, from square-toed slip-ons to straps and buckle.

Most men have just about all the clothes they need, but eight out of ten are short of shoes.

Heading the high-fashion category, is the shoe with the new slimly tapered and squared-off toe.

Seen most often in leathers with a fine grain, this silhouette is featured in many variations of the slip-on styles or in two or three eyelet ties for both street and casual wear.

Soles are made of lightweight, supple leather, detailed with the new inverted moc seams. This seaming adds an elegant and lighter look and will be featured in a great many shoes.

Men who like casual attire will be easy to please with handsewn moccasins or the popular ankle-high "chukka" boot, available in soft brushed leathers with flexible leather soles.

Handsome effects are achieved in the deep brown shades, all of which contain less red than in the past, as well as in the neutral tones.

Greeting Cards Must Be Signed With Some Care

One of the most warm-hearted traditions of the Christmas season is the exchange of greeting cards. At this time of the year close friends and casual acquaintances take time out to express their best wishes.

However, sometimes it can be pretty confusing to receive a card from somebody you've never heard of. The proper way to sign a Christmas card often poses a problem for many people.

In the first place, one should never forget to put the complete return address on the envelope.

In the second place, the signature you use should be determined by the type of card and the person who receives it.

If you have chosen a gay, casual greeting for close friends, you can sign it simply with your first name. If you're married sign the first name of both, followed by the last name.

With married couples, the one signing the cards, always writes his or her name last.

If you prefer to have your cards printed, the wife's name comes first.

Capture Fun Of Holidays With Movies

Santas with shifting stomachs, saucer-eyed cherubs, carrot-nosed snowmen and the pyramids of packages that all punctuate Christmas — make it a shutterbug's paradise.

To help you capture the small fry and Santa in action on movie film, Bell & Howell passes along a few movie-making tips.

First, allot no less than 1½ feet of 8mm film or 3 feet of 16mm film for any single scene. That's approximately five second's shooting time. Anything shorter whips across the screen too quickly to identify and may add a comic note you didn't plan or want.

You can always edit an overlong scene, but one that's too short is lost.

Mother hanging the holly wreath on the front door, Gramps stringing colored lights around the house, the family's tree-hunting safari or Daddy trying an outsize Santa Claus costume are all good shots.

Second, remember that variety adds tang — variety of angle, scene length and distance between camera and subject. Plan to mix up closeups, medium and long shots.

French Cuff Shirts Seen On Increase

French cuffed shirts are increasing in popularity. This will help in solving your Christmas gift problems for the men on your list. With the return of the French cuff, cuff links are increasing in popularity too.

An exciting, greater-than-ever collection of cuff links is waiting to bring an extra touch of elegance to the discriminating man's wardrobe.

Just to name a few: there's colored Italian pearl carved into any number of shapes . . . highly shaded ceramic tiles . . . raised designs on enamel and intricately etched metals. All these give the cuff link a place of honor in men's jewelry.

Use is made of braided fabrics and leathers. There are carved bone buttons to go with sportswear. For Christmas giving this year there will be cuff links to match every man's taste.

Then, of course, there are tie clasps to match. A visit to a men's store will show you a never-ending variety of jewelry for the man on your list. Look for matching belt buckles, key chains, too.

Gift Package Sure To Please

Keyed to helping a man appear his best is the new gift package idea . . . attractively wrapped combinations of accessories, in matching colors and patterns.

These gift combinations boast great eye-appeal for Dad or Junior, and . . . they're practical, too. They save a shopper time, and the man or boy receiving them can be sure that the colors and patterns are properly coordinated.

Plan Festive Home Exterior For Holidays

The real spirit of Christmas is in giving — so share part of the home's holiday mood with passers-by and neighbors. Give your entrance-way a true Yule look!

Your doorway will sparkle a gay Christmas greeting if you capture the traditional mood with an ornament bedecked spray of evergreen, gaily tied up with a bright red bow.

Fresh or plastic wreaths with berries, nuts and pine cones add that special holiday happy note to doorways, too.

Colorful variations are an oversize "candy-type" cane, tied with a big, big bow; a huge stocking — possibly filled with pretend gifts — or a miniature Christmas tree that can be made by mounting flat branches in a tree shape and decking them with baubles.

Santa Claus cut-outs can be made or purchased; easy to handle "snow" sprays lend interest to glass panels . . . cut-out snow-flakes can be mounted on the door.

An outline of your door made with tree lights extends your greeting into the late hours. Evergreen trees on the lawn, low-placed shrubs and planter boxes at the front of the house — all lend themselves well to colorful night lighting!

And, friends and neighbors will enjoy the "warm hello" of your outdoor decor!

SOMETHING NEW!

The Christmas holiday brings with it a wealth of stately religious hymns and heart-warming carols Even pop tunes add notes of listening pleasure. And, gift recordings can extend that pleasure through the whole year.

Music lovers this Christmas have a special treat awaiting them in sterophonic sound, the new tonal magic now available for home high fidelity music systems.

Child's Portrait Is Welcome Gift

Portrait photographs make wonderful, personal gifts as warm and alive as a handshake and as welcome as a sprig of Christmas cheer on a blustery December day.

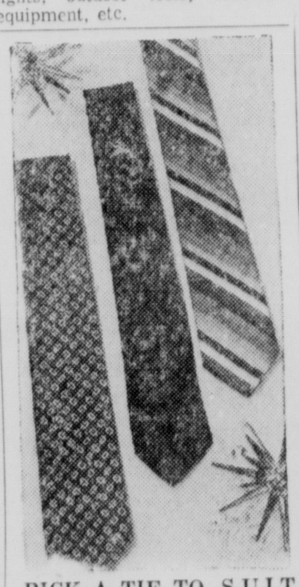
Children especially make stunning portraits, as they pass a new milestone each Christmas.

Here are some tips to remember when having the small fry photographed:

Be sure the child is well rested and fed. Hair should be simply styled and natural looking. Avoid the plastered down style for boys; too tight curls for little girls. Dress the child in snug-fitting clothes — perhaps last year's — so they will have a smooth line. Be sure they are neatly pressed; avoid ruffles or flounces that detract.

If the child has a favorite toy, take it along; it will help the child relax. Many photographers suggest that the best portrait can be made if the child is not told he is to have his picture taken until he arrives at the studio.

Although most photographers prefer to have mother or parents in the studio during the sitting, by all means let the photographer take the picture. He can get the best expression in a portrait when he wins the child's confidence.



PICK A TIE TO SUIT not only his outfits, but his personality as well. A design such as a bold foulard is good for an extrovert; a dark toned solid with small motif for the ultra conservative, and for the Ivy type a repp.

You'll Make Hit With Good Record

A gift of records is a gift that promises hours of pleasure for years to come.

Happily, today records are made for every age and every musical taste. There are even records for tots, though not all are musical; some are the telling of stories.

The reading of poetry and many classics in literature now appear on record.

For that matter, it is possible to learn a foreign language, improve your golf game or study other subjects by record.

There have been vast improvements in the quality of recordings within just the past few years . . . the new stereophonic records are something our parents scarcely hoped to dream about.

Original Broadway shows, the finest operas and orchestras may now resound throughout our own living rooms.

Modern record covers are so attractive that you will find it a pleasure to just browse through a record shop as you might in an art gallery.

Plan for a record Christmas this year. Everyone will love you for it!

KIMONO CHRISTMAS, that's what it will be for the man who receives this smart robe. Sure to be his favorite gift! Of all-wool jersy, more than a yard wide.

EVERYBODY SLEEPS so you can't go wrong with a gift of sleepwear, especially when it's as gay as this no-iron pajama set. Made in a blend of cotton and Avisco rayon, its new cropped top and slim pants have a jaunty Spanish air!

Be Sure And Wrap Gifts Of Money

We may often find that cash or a check is the best solution for problems on the gift list.

The question usually is how to give it. Why not put it in a billfold, or wallet? There are any number of styles in pocket and purse accessories which make ideal "gift wrappings" for money.

A man will appreciate a coat wallet which also holds forms, stamps, etc. For a teenager, a mulitple-picture passcase on a cofcolorful billfold is most useful. And women, accustomed to using a coin purse, will love the new French wallets.

Put checks, or "cold" cash in a billfold . . . it's a warm way to say, "Merry Christmas"!

Mailed Gifts Must Be Good In Traveling

If you're sending your gift through the mail . . .

Protect the fancy wrappings, bows and frills with corrugated cardboard or a swash of tissue paper . . .

Protect the gifts with a strong cardboard box or wrap in heavy corrugated cardboard . . .

Pack the contents tightly. If the items in the box shift around, the post office can refuse to accept your package.

Packages going to foreign countries MUST be sealed. Domestic mail packages MAY be sealed, provided they bear a label which says, "May be opened for postal inspection."

Use strong, plain, new wrapping paper. Tie large or heavy packages with enough string to encircle package both ways at least twice.

Use two printed mailing labels one on each side of package. Be sure to print name and COMPLETE address of person the package is going to. Don't forget your own name and address.

Take your time when printing names and addresses. Don't make things difficult for the mail man and the people in the post office.

Above all . . . don't let your Christmas gifts wind up in the dead letter office!

FOR MISS, MISSUS

Apparel Makes Top Notch Gift

No matter what her age, you're sure to make a real hit with the Miss and the Missus on your gift list — if you give her something glamorous to wear!

Tops on most wist lists are "tops" — sweaters and blouses.

All the many virtues the ladies love in fine sweaters are brought to the fore for Christmas! Yarns are softer, smoother, bulkier and lovelier than in seasons past.

Colors are truer, more diversified and flattering in the whitest whites to the deepest blacks. A wide range of exciting browns, blues and greens are being shown everywhere.

In styling, there are big rolled collars, big flat collars, tiny neckline bows and jewel necklines with yoke or shoulder trim.

Sweaters most often are longer than before in sport styles — somewhat shorter in more dressy styles.

News in sweaters are the shaggy smoothies (shaggy to the eye, so-smooth to the touch); in eye compelling solid colors, bold argyles, jacquards and novelty patterns.

For the sportswoman there are hooded sweaters, dramatic ski types and long, deep and cuddly coat styled sweaters.

BLOUSES BEAUTIFUL

Fashion's decided emphasis on the smart suit sharply brings into focus a wonderful line-up of blouses — especially "presentable" for Christmas.

Overblouses, tuck-in pretties, tailored shirts and shirtwaists are all gifted for the gals in your life . . .

Cottons, silks, orlons, and a host of magnificent blended fabrics take to rich colors, lavish embroideries, patterns, ruffles and laces with smart aplomb!

Old-fashioned in mood prints, such as paisleys, tie-prints and provincials give a demure look to young-spirited blouses.

If you're in doubt as to whether to choose a "plain" or "fancy" blouse for her, then the right and happy compromise is a handsomely tailored pure silk shirt with short, elbow length or French-cuffed long sleeves.

AND—CAR COATS

Something extra-special for your "Christmas She" might very well be a versatile car coat!

In the few years since these coats leaped into fashion prominence, there has been an upsurge of exciting variations on the car coat theme . . .

Utilitarian poplins, melton taken on fanciful fur or fake fur cloths, narrow and wide wale corduroys and heavy body knits have collars, cuffs and linings . . . other coats show off with popcorn, shaker and novelty knit trims; details such as plaid or patterned linings, peg buttons, leather accents, stitched trims and seamings — all give fashion importance to these coats.

So, double check her size, keep in mind her favorite hue, and take your cue for giving with something she can wear!

Men, Women Alike Want Good Gifts

The line of new lightweight leather luggage ensembles for Christmas giving is just out-of-this-world.

Something really new and distinctive this year is the "Veloura" or brushed leather luggage. This is leather that has been finished on the flesh side, producing a scuff-resistant bag with a soft and luxurious suede finish. The smooth grain side of the leather becomes the lining. In addition to its handsome appearance, it can take all the rough treatment that traveling affords without being marred. The surface can simply be brushed to its original state with a stiff brush or sandpaper.

FOR THE GUYS

Also very new and very lightweight are the soft leather suitcases with only a light magnesium frame. The flexible leather sides allow room for a suit, sports jacket and four or five pairs of slacks without wrinkling, and still leaves room for a man's other needs.

According to luggage retailers, the luggage pieces most wanted by men include a 'suiter bag and matching companion case.' Usually these are either in suntan or ginger but there are many other styles, coverings and colors for the less conservative traveler to choose from.

In fact, subdued plaids, small houndstooth checks, and gabardines in blue, grey and even red are gaining in popularity.

Luggage should be selected to give the receiver every convenience. Although a two-suiter bag is the most popular size, one-, three- and four-suiter bags are also available. Check for sturdy handles, even stitching, carefully fitted linings and evenly coated hardware.

If the luggage is to receive extra hard use, bear in mind that sturdiness may be preferable to lightness in weight, because a good investment in luggage that can "take it" will mean fewer replacements.

FOR THE GALS

Women of all ages travel more than ever, according to statistics, so a luggage gift is both practical and luxurious.

Which pieces to buy are usually decided upon according to the travel habits of the receiver, but a basic group generally includes three cases to which other specialized designs may be added later.

Most useful are the pullman or wardrobe (hanger case), a weekender or overnight bag, and a train box or fitted case for cosmetics.

Other additions are the hat-box, the combination hat-and-shoe case compartmented shoe bag, hanging garment carrier, duffle bag, etc.

Any of these in combination, or singly to match luggage already owned, will be found in great variety of coverings and colors from one-piece molded styles to high-fashion toned leathers.

Skiers' Ranks On Increase

The ranks of skiers are growing year by year and if your "gift problem" is among them, buy something for the slopes.

For instance' a colorful parka, a pair of sleek stretch pants, lined leather gloves that extend well above the wrist to keep the snow out, or a handy leather pouch that fastens to a belt to hold car keys, cigarettes, etc.

BY EVERYONE

Gifts Of Books Always Welcome

Look to books if you are having difficulty in deciding about a sure-to-please gift in a price range of from 25 cents to as high as you want to go.

Paper back books are the answer to less than a $1 gifts and to what to include in stockings. These range from Westerns through 'how-to-do's" to classics.

Better than giving a book of fiction, which you can't be sure the recipient hasn't read, give them a book along the reference lines . . . a good dictionary, atlas, Thesaurus, etc.

Of course, fiction is most enjoyable and makes a grand gift if you choose wisely. Select books that are "hot off the press" and you can be pretty sure that they won't have been read.

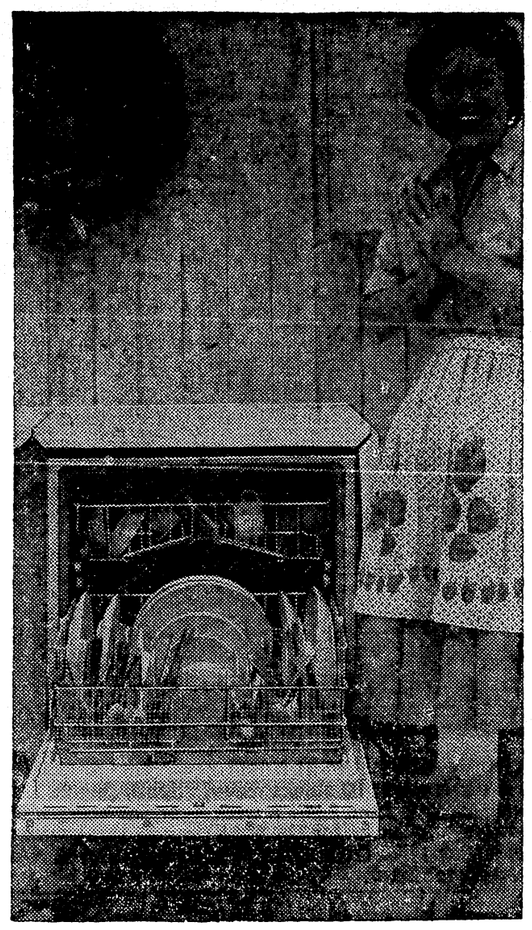
In the luxury class, a gift of a classic, bound in leather and stamped in gold, is possibly the grandest gift you can choose. Though even more expensive and naturally nicer are sets of this kind.

Another big-gift idea — membership in a book club and enough cash to carry it for a year.

The "bedside" books are good, too . . . these are usually collections of short stories by various authors and often include some poetry. They make lovely pick-up-and-read,-at-any-time, books.

Within a person's particular field of interest there are usually dozens and dozens of books that would fit in and not duplicate what they may already own.

Pick books and you will have picked a really grand gift.



SHE KNOWS you love her if you give her something that makes life easier. Gift her with this "Convert-Table" dishwasher unit. It's portable, can later be installed. Doubles as handy breakfast bar or bonus working surface.

TO OBSERVE

Rules For Safe Tree Light-Up

Everyone should have a beautifully decorated Christmas tree, but . . . everyone should remember that same beautiful tree can be dangerous.

If you don't follow a few simple rules, your gay Christmas tree can become a grim fire-hazard!

Mount the tree in a stand that holds water. This will keep the tree fresh and green.

Keep the tree away from open fireplaces, radiators, TV sets and electric lights.

Don't overload the tree's circuit by putting too many lights on one circuit. Make sure that the wires are not frayed! Turn off the lights when there's nobody around to watch them!

Trimmings should be fire-proof. Keep the base of the tree free from combustibles such as loose papers and ribbons.

Lighted candles are a menace as well as outmoded. Don't use them!

Be sure to dispose of the tree in a fire-safe area. If you intend to burn it in the fire-place, don't leave it untended, as more than just the tree may go up in smoke.

Yes — you can make certain that you and your family really do have a safe and happy Christmas!

Old Carols Still Ring At Yuletide

Christmas season—clear, crisp nights, stars and sparkling lights . . . and Christmas Carols ringing across the scene!

Many of the carols we hear this Christmas have been handed down generation to generation, century by century.

Changes have been made in words and music, according to the changing times, but most of the Christmas songs will be just as you might have heard them hundreds of years ago.

According to the Bible story of Christmas, the first carol was sung by a chorus of angels—the "Gloria in Excelsio Deo," "Glory to God in the Highest."

The early settlers in America brought many of the old European carols to our country, thus giving us a heritage of songs as no other country in the world enjoys.

"Adeste Fidelis" which we also sing with the words 'Come All Ye Faithful," long a traditional hymn, has an unknown origin.

"Away in a Manger," Luther's hymn, came to us from Germany. "God Rest Ye, Merry Gentlemen" from England and the lovely "O, Holy Night" from France. From Austria came "Silent Night, Holy Night."

Americans, too, have contributed to our rich heritage of Christmas songs. The Unitarian minister Edmund H. Sears composed "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear."

Perhaps the best known and most beloved of all American carols, "O Little Town of Bethlehem" was written in 1868 by Philips Brooks, a young Episcopalian minister.

The gay holiday song, "Jingle Bells," has been popular for almost a century and was composed by another American, churchman, John Pierpont.

Our big selection of Christmas songs, hymns and carols express the friendly, joyful spirit of the season . . . and are loved by all!

Choose Baby's Gift Directly From Counter

If there's an infant or toddler on your gift list, we suggest you don't make up your mind about what to give until you have visited one of the Baby Departments or Shops.

Here's the "why": infants' and toddlers' fashions have moved up into the "designer class." Items for this age are right in style and you'll want to give something very "new."

For example, the popular-with-all-ages stretch tights are now in sizes for the very smallest young ladies. They serve the purpose of showing that this young lady knows someone who is in the know about fashion . . . and they keep her dainty legs warm as well!

The toddler can carry through with the look of the season by covering her tights with a short, pleated, plaid skirt.

Dresses trimmed with colors to match tights are being shown too and are as cute as can be. Throughout the fashion scene for this age are up-to-the-minute styles.

Back to the wee ones: even the infant girl can be shown off in miniature plaids and good-for-fall bright red is on the rise. Dainty prints and bulky knits too are offered for this age group.

Mother is going to be especially delighted with the new easy closure features found in many styles; new grow features too.

VERY FITTING GIFT! Want to give him shoes?—these will fit if you come close to the size! Very smart casuals too. Left to right: golf shoe in polished leather with removable kilte; ultra rugged brushed leather; slip-on with the popular buckle-and-strap in the new lightweight, three-eyelet tie in soft but square toe; new high chukka boot in polished grained leather; and a three-eyelet in grained leather with decorative side-stitching.

Toppings For Gay Belles, Dressing-Up

Earrings dramatize both the story of texture and the power of color. Button earrings take the lead for classic wear, and the up-sweep and dangle designs are splendidly related to the "dress-up" look in after-dark fshions.

An important trend in jewelry accessorizing this season calls for mixing as well as matching. This is seen in gold earrings worn with pearls, and colored stones with a gold necklace. The traditional "matched look" of necklace and earrings will continue strong, and has been elaborated to include the pairing of earrings with pin or bracelet.

Place Gay, New Boots In Stocking

Perfect answer to both "cold feet" and "hot fashion" is the new leather city boot that takes nasty weather in stride. They're also the perfect answer to what to give your favorite gal for Christmas.

Designed in soft, supple leathers in top fashion colors, city boots are a joy to wear, and to behold. Lightweight and water-repellent, they have slim and trim leather soles that completely eliminates the clumsy old overshoe look.

Starting at the ankle and "climbing up" as high as the knee — these boots are styled for city or casual wear and evenings on the town.

Casual boots are most often made of soft, brushed leather or finely textured grain with comfortable low or mid-heel. Novelty closings such as buckled straps, side zippers, or buttons add interest. Colors are many . . . the most popular being vivid reds, greens, neutral tans and browns.

For afternoon wear, the boot goes dressier with finely tapered toe and slim high heel in soft, smooth leathers.

Featured in all high fashion colors, these are designed to truly complement a woman's smart daytime apparel.

The elegant evening boot is seen in ultra-soft white, pastel, gold and silver leathers. These are usually slipon styles with tops that curve up over the ankle with soft draping — or with higher tops that can be crushed down softly toward the ankle. Heels, high and very thin, frequently are aglitter with studded rhinestones.

Professional Touch Nice In Packaging

Ribbons and designs on gift packages are wonderful "icing on the cake" . . . but they look best when the paper is smoothly and attractively wrapped around the box.

Here are the steps a professional uses in wrapping packages:

Place the paper face down on the table. Put the box, upside down if possible, on the paper. Place it so the design will show to the best advantage when the package is wrapped and tied.

If the box cannot be turned upside down, cut the paper about ½" wider than is needed and turn the raw edge under. Arrange so that the overlap will come under the ribbon or trim you plan to use.

Cut the paper wide enough to go around the box and overlap 1½in (less for a very small box), and long enough to extend a little more than half the depth of the box at the ends. This extending length will have to vary slightly according to the shape of the box and should be a trifle more for a deep box than for a shallow one. Don't scrimp.

Bring the paper up over the sides, overlapping as near the center of the box as possible, and fasten with a gummed seal or with tape.

Finish one end at a time. Fold the sides in smoothly. Fold the top, which is to be the bottom of the package, down first, then bring up the fold that is on the table up over all the folds, securing with tape or sticker.

Turn the box over. You are now ready to add your own special trims.

BOOTS FOR SPORTSMEN

Boots rate high as gifts with the sportsman. Check his shoes for the size—or if in doubt, you can always give him a gift certificate and he can select his own.

Sturdy leather boots with flexible soles, that protect feet from rough terrain and yet allow freedom of movement for comfort over long stretches of walking or standing are preferred. Hunting boots, ski boots and hiking boots come into this category.

Mexican Fire Plant Merely Poinsettia

More than a hundred years ago our Ambassador to Mexico Joel Roberts Poinsett, took a fancy to a brilliant tropical plant, known as the Mexican Fire Plant.

Returning to his home in South Carolina, he started growing the plant from cuttings he brought from Mexico. Soon the scarlet-leafed plant came to the attention of American botanists, and under the name "poinsettia," it was destined to become symbolic of Christmas.

In tropic climates, poinsettia is grown in varietes of white, pink and yellow, but by far the most popular is the bright red that carries out the color scheme of Christmas.

FOR CHRISTMAS

Jewelry Makes Hit With Ladies

This year, all types of necklaces, pins, bracelets and earrings will be high on every woman's most-wanted list of Christmas gifts, says the Fashion Coordination Institute.

The deep - plunging neckline, bracelet sleeves and the many other "fashion-focus" notes in this year's style scene all combine to provide an emphatic and beautiful foil for jewelry.

For the important classic look, symbolized by the tailored suit, the handsome adornment of jewelry, particularly good, is almost a fashion necessity.

And, since the major fashion colors are distinctly neutral ones, jewelry is of stellar importance either as the tailored accent of glistening sheen or as the dash of color.

The bracelet - length sleeves have inspired new and wonderful variety in bracelets of both flexible and rigid designs. In narrow, color-sparked bangles . . . richly textured twists and gleaming, polished curves often set with multi-colored jewels — bracelets offer opportunities for the really wonderful gift.

Since many of the new bracelets are born to be worn one on each arm — a gift of paired and matching bracelets will be most appreciated.

The year's new charm bracelets are massively designed with richly textured, chunky charms dashed with brilliance and jewel colors.

New necklaces underscore the beauty of new necklaces with mounted stones linked together in flashing colors, crystals with gold beads, pearls combined with the sleek and handsome look of pronged, linked or woven gold.

Chains, beads and pearls look smart in high-placed, flat-lying chokers and in deep necklace "bibs" from 22 to 27 inches in length.

Pins poised at the waistline, scattered at a dropped shoulder line, used to center a midriff or to dramatize the length of a jacket do wonder-work with the season's new styling.

Versatile and significant, jeweled or "solid gold" pins are presented in many sizes and with fashion rightness for every "placement."

The beloved circle, leaf, plume and literally dozens of other gracefully shaped pins arrive this year in new texture and double-texture interest that is fashion-fresh with the new fabrics and colors.

"Pins-in-groups," or the long-favored "scatter pins" return in enchanting new guises. In plain and jeweled designs they are important in all-of-a-size groups and in "set" that vary size, colors and shapes for a related rather than identical look.

Another special "pin note" of fashion import this winter is the "accent" pair of pins worn on the left evening glove.

Gift Variety Makes Giving Inexpensive

It's easy to give wings to a woman's wishes at Christmas time . . . especially when local shops are showing hundreds upon hundreds of desirable, wished-for giftable items!

Most often the primary and determining factor is the price you have to pay — but you can flatter her wishes and pamper your budget too, with a bit of careful pre-planning.

GIVE HER JEWELRY — you can choose the finest diamonds at extravagant prices if you can afford it, but simple costume jewelry items nowadays are crafted with all the precision and beauty of rare pieces!

FURS — perhaps she's dreaming of a full length mink . . . but if your choice is a "man-made" precious pile fiber one, she'll cuddle into it with pleasure. Perhaps her yen for mink doesn't extend to coats — she may be thrilled with a gift of a handsome mink (or other fur) collar, a cape, a stole or perhaps a rich-looking fine orlon or cashmere sweater with a real fur collar.

NEW WATCHES — you needn't spend a fortune to find a glamour watch for your special "she". There's the greatest line-up ever, of frivolous fancies in dependable timepieces. With fancy bracelet bands, novel faces, colors of the rainbow and striking designs, it's difficult to tell whether these novelty watches cost under twenty-five dollars or over a hundred!

FINE PERFUMES—Of course, she loves the finest, and you do want to give her the best. But you don't have to buy the exorbitant decanter size, when her favorite fragrance will thrill her equally when you give her that smart purse size flacon (and you'll help her make it last longer when you complement it with a twin cologne, so much less expensive, too).

So, if she wants the moon on a silver platter, shop around carefully — and give it to her on a "sparkle-like silver" aluminum!

Card Exchange Is Over Century Old

One hundred and sixteen years ago, the English educator and art patron Henry Cole, asked his friend J.C. Horsely, an artist of the Royal Academy in London, to design a card for him. On it he wrote the now classic greeting, "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to You." He printed a thousand lithographed copies, which were then hand-tinted by a professional "colorer."

That December early in the month, Cole posted some of the cards to his friends, and offered the remainder for sale in a London stationers shop. These, in all probability, were the very first Christmas Cards ever printed

Christmas Cards appeared in America only shortly thereafter. Their early origin is uncertain, but one story gives credit for the first Yule greeting to a New York State dry goods merchant, R. J. Pease of Albany.

Pease designed, printed and mailed one of the first examples of American Christmas Cards as an advertisement for his goods.

Each of the gifts received by the Infant Jesus from the Three Wise Men had a symbolic meaning: gold expressed the royalty of the Babe; frankincense for His priesthood; myrrh for Christ's entombment.

New Earrings Are Exciting And Different

Exciting and different are the brand-new hoop-type earrings that stay on, fit comfortably without clasps, clips or screwbacks!

No, they're not glued on! They nestle comfortably at the back of the ear above the lobe; front-view makes them look as though they go through the ear.

A wide, wide variety of classic, tailored and more dressy, stone-studded styles will be shown in time for holiday gifting.

EVERYBODY SLEEPS so you can't go wrong with a gift of sleepwear, especially when it's as gay as this no-iron pajama set. Made in a blend of cotton and Avisco rayon, its new cropped top and slim pants have a jaunty Spanish air!

Be Sure And Wrap Gifts Of Money

We may often find that cash or a check is the best solution for problems on the gift list.

The question usually is how to give it. Why not put it in a billfold, or wallet? There are any number of styles in pocket and purse accessories which make ideal "gift wrappings" for money.

A man will appreciate a coat wallet which also holds forms, stamps, etc. For a teenager, a mulitple-picture passcase on a cofcolorful billfold is most useful. And women, accustomed to using a coin purse, will love the new French wallets.

Put checks, or "cold" cash in a billfold . . . it's a warm way to say, "Merry Christmas"!

Mailed Gifts Must Be Good In Traveling

If you're sending your gift through the mail . . .

Protect the fancy wrappings, bows and frills with corrugated cardboard or a swash of tissue paper . . .

Protect the gifts with a strong cardboard box or wrap in heavy corrugated cardboard . . .

Pack the contents tightly. If the items in the box shift around, the post office can refuse to accept your package.

Packages going to foreign countries MUST be sealed. Domestic mail packages MAY be sealed, provided they bear a label which says, "May be opened for postal inspection."

Use strong, plain, new wrapping paper. Tie large or heavy packages with enough string to encircle package both ways at least twice.

Use two printed mailing labels one on each side of package. Be sure to print name and COMPLETE address of person the package is going to. Don't forget your own name and address.

Take your time when printing names and addresses. Don't make things difficult for the mail man and the people in the post office.

Above all . . . don't let your Christmas gifts wind up in the dead letter office!

FOR MISS, MISSUS

Apparel Makes Top Notch Gift

No matter what her age, you're sure to make a real hit with the Miss and the Missus on your gift list — if you give her something glamorous to wear!

Tops on most wist lists are "tops" — sweaters and blouses.

All the many virtues the ladies love in fine sweaters are brought to the fore for Christmas! Yarns are softer, smoother, bulkier and lovelier than in seasons past.

Colors are truer, more diversified and flattering in the whitest whites to the deepest blacks. A wide range of exciting browns, blues and greens are being shown everywhere.

In styling, there are big rolled collars, big flat collars, tiny neckline bows and jewel necklines with yoke or shoulder trim.

Sweaters most often are longer than before in sport styles — somewhat shorter in more dressy styles.

News in sweaters are the shaggy smoothies (shaggy to the eye, so-smooth to the touch); in eye compelling solid colors, bold argyles, jacquards and novelty patterns.

For the sportswoman there are hooded sweaters, dramatic ski types and long, deep and cuddly coat styled sweaters.

BLOUSES BEAUTIFUL

Fashion's decided emphasis on the smart suit sharply brings into focus a wonderful line-up of blouses — especially "presentable" for Christmas.

Overblouses, tuck-in pretties, tailored shirts and shirtwaists are all gifted for the gals in your life . . .

Cottons, silks, orlons, and a host of magnificent blended fabrics take to rich colors, lavish embroideries, patterns, ruffles and laces with smart aplomb!

Old-fashioned in mood prints, such as paisleys, tie-prints and provincials give a demure look to young-spirited blouses.

If you're in doubt as to whether to choose a "plain" or "fancy" blouse for her, then the right and happy compromise is a handsomely tailored pure silk shirt with short, elbow length or French-cuffed long sleeves.

AND—CAR COATS

Something extra-special for your "Christmas She" might very well be a versatile car coat!

In the few years since these coats leaped into fashion prominence, there has been an upsurge of exciting variations on the car coat theme . . .

Utilitarian poplins, melton taken on fanciful fur or fake fur cloths, narrow and wide wale corduroys and heavy body knits have collars, cuffs and linings . . . other coats show off with popcorn, shaker and novelty knit trims; details such as plaid or patterned linings, peg buttons, leather accents, stitched trims and seamings — all give fashion importance to these coats.

So, double check her size, keep in mind her favorite hue, and take your cue for giving with something she can wear!

Men, Women Alike Want Good Gifts

The line of new lightweight leather luggage ensembles for Christmas giving is just out-of-this-world.

Something really new and distinctive this year is the "Veloura" or brushed leather luggage. This is leather that has been finished on the flesh side, producing a scuff-resistant bag with a soft and luxurious suede finish. The smooth grain side of the leather becomes the lining. In addition to its handsome appearance, it can take all the rough treatment that traveling affords without being marred. The surface can simply be brushed to its original state with a stiff brush or sandpaper.

FOR THE GUYS

Also very new and very lightweight are the soft leather suitcases with only a light magnesium frame. The flexible leather sides allow room for a suit, sports jacket and four or five pairs of slacks without wrinkling, and still leaves room for a man's other needs.

According to luggage retailers, the luggage pieces most wanted by men include a 'suiter bag and matching companion case.' Usually these are either in suntan or ginger but there are many other styles, coverings and colors for the less conservative traveler to choose from.

In fact, subdued plaids, small houndstooth checks, and gabardines in blue, grey and even red are gaining in popularity.

Luggage should be selected to give the receiver every convenience. Although a two-suiter bag is the most popular size, one-, three- and four-suiter bags are also available. Check for sturdy handles, even stitching, carefully fitted linings and evenly coated hardware.

If the luggage is to receive extra hard use, bear in mind that sturdiness may be preferable to lightness in weight, because a good investment in luggage that can "take it" will mean fewer replacements.

FOR THE GALS

Women of all ages travel more than ever, according to statistics, so a luggage gift is both practical and luxurious.

Which pieces to buy are usually decided upon according to the travel habits of the receiver, but a basic group generally includes three cases to which other specialized designs may be added later.

Most useful are the pullman or wardrobe (hanger case), a weekender or overnight bag, and a train box or fitted case for cosmetics.

Other additions are the hat-box, the combination hat-and-shoe case compartmented shoe bag, hanging garment carrier, duffle bag, etc.

Any of these in combination, or singly to match luggage already owned, will be found in great variety of coverings and colors from one-piece molded styles to high-fashion toned leathers.

Skiers' Ranks On Increase

The ranks of skiers are growing year by year and if your "gift problem" is among them, buy something for the slopes.

For instance' a colorful parka, a pair of sleek stretch pants, lined leather gloves that extend well above the wrist to keep the snow out, or a handy leather pouch that fastens to a belt to hold car keys, cigarettes, etc.

SHE KNOWS you love her if you give her something that makes life easier. Gift her with this "Convert-Table" dishwasher unit. It's portable, can later be installed. Doubles as handy breakfast bar or bonus working surface.

TO OBSERVE

Rules For Safe Tree Light-Up

Everyone should have a beautifully decorated Christmas tree, but . . . everyone should remember that same beautiful tree can be dangerous.

If you don't follow a few simple rules, your gay Christmas tree can become a grim fire-hazard!

Mount the tree in a stand that holds water. This will keep the tree fresh and green.

Keep the tree away from open fireplaces, radiators, TV sets and electric lights.

Don't overload the tree's circuit by putting too many lights on one circuit. Make sure that the wires are not frayed! Turn off the lights when there's nobody around to watch them!

Trimmings should be fire-proof. Keep the base of the tree free from combustibles such as loose papers and ribbons.

Lighted candles are a menace as well as outmoded. Don't use them!

Be sure to dispose of the tree in a fire-safe area. If you intend to burn it in the fire-place, don't leave it untended, as more than just the tree may go up in smoke.

Yes — you can make certain that you and your family really do have a safe and happy Christmas!

Old Carols Still Ring At Yuletide

Christmas season—clear, crisp nights, stars and sparkling lights . . . and Christmas Carols ringing across the scene!

Many of the carols we hear this Christmas have been handed down generation to generation, century by century.

Changes have been made in words and music, according to the changing times, but most of the Christmas songs will be just as you might have heard them hundreds of years ago.

According to the Bible story of Christmas, the first carol was sung by a chorus of angels—the "Gloria in Excelsio Deo," "Glory to God in the Highest."

The early settlers in America brought many of the old European carols to our country, thus giving us a heritage of songs as no other country in the world enjoys.

"Adeste Fidelis" which we also sing with the words 'Come All Ye Faithful," long a traditional hymn, has an unknown origin.

"Away in a Manger," Luther's hymn, came to us from Germany. "God Rest Ye, Merry Gentlemen" from England and the lovely "O, Holy Night" from France. From Austria came "Silent Night, Holy Night."

Americans, too, have contributed to our rich heritage of Christmas songs. The Unitarian minister Edmund H. Sears composed "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear."

Perhaps the best known and most beloved of all American carols, "O Little Town of Bethlehem" was written in 1868 by Philips Brooks, a young Episcopalian minister.

The gay holiday song, "Jingle Bells," has been popular for almost a century and was composed by another American, churchman, John Pierpont.

Our big selection of Christmas songs, hymns and carols express the friendly, joyful spirit of the season . . . and are loved by all!

Choose Baby's Gift Directly From Counter

If there's an infant or toddler on your gift list, we suggest you don't make up your mind about what to give until you have visited one of the Baby Departments or Shops.

Here's the "why": infants' and toddlers' fashions have moved up into the "designer class." Items for this age are right in style and you'll want to give something very "new."

For example, the popular-with-all-ages stretch tights are now in sizes for the very smallest young ladies. They serve the purpose of showing that this young lady knows someone who is in the know about fashion . . . and they keep her dainty legs warm as well!

The toddler can carry through with the look of the season by covering her tights with a short, pleated, plaid skirt.

Dresses trimmed with colors to match tights are being shown too and are as cute as can be. Throughout the fashion scene for this age are up-to-the-minute styles.

Back to the wee ones: even the infant girl can be shown off in miniature plaids and good-for-fall bright red is on the rise. Dainty prints and bulky knits too are offered for this age group.

Mother is going to be especially delighted with the new easy closure features found in many styles; new grow features too.

Professional Touch Nice In Packaging

Ribbons and designs on gift packages are wonderful "icing on the cake" . . . but they look best when the paper is smoothly and attractively wrapped around the box.

Here are the steps a professional uses in wrapping packages:

Place the paper face down on the table. Put the box, upside down if possible, on the paper. Place it so the design will show to the best advantage when the package is wrapped and tied.

If the box cannot be turned upside down, cut the paper about ½" wider than is needed and turn the raw edge under. Arrange so that the overlap will come under the ribbon or trim you plan to use.

Cut the paper wide enough to go around the box and overlap 1½in (less for a very small box), and long enough to extend a little more than half the depth of the box at the ends. This extending length will have to vary slightly according to the shape of the box and should be a trifle more for a deep box than for a shallow one. Don't scrimp.

Bring the paper up over the sides, overlapping as near the center of the box as possible, and fasten with a gummed seal or with tape.

Finish one end at a time. Fold the sides in smoothly. Fold the top, which is to be the bottom of the package, down first, then bring up the fold that is on the table up over all the folds, securing with tape or sticker.

Turn the box over. You are now ready to add your own special trims.

BOOTS FOR SPORTSMEN

Boots rate high as gifts with the sportsman. Check his shoes for the size—or if in doubt, you can always give him a gift certificate and he can select his own.

Sturdy leather boots with flexible soles, that protect feet from rough terrain and yet allow freedom of movement for comfort over long stretches of walking or standing are preferred. Hunting boots, ski boots and hiking boots come into this category.

BY EVERYONE

Gifts Of Books Always Welcome

Look to books if you are having difficulty in deciding about a sure-to-please gift in a price range of from 25 cents to as high as you want to go.

Paper back books are the answer to less than a $1 gifts and to what to include in stockings. These range from Westerns through 'how-to-do's" to classics.

Better than giving a book of fiction, which you can't be sure the recipient hasn't read, give them a book along the reference lines . . . a good dictionary, atlas, Thesaurus, etc.

Of course, fiction is most enjoyable and makes a grand gift if you choose wisely. Select books that are "hot off the press" and you can be pretty sure that they won't have been read.

In the luxury class, a gift of a classic, bound in leather and stamped in gold, is possibly the grandest gift you can choose. Though even more expensive and naturally nicer are sets of this kind.

Another big-gift idea — membership in a book club and enough cash to carry it for a year.

The "bedside" books are good, too . . . these are usually collections of short stories by various authors and often include some poetry. They make lovely pick-up-and-read,-at-any-time, books.

Within a person's particular field of interest there are usually dozens and dozens of books that would fit in and not duplicate what they may already own.

Pick books and you will have picked a really grand gift.

VERY FITTING GIFT! Want to give him shoes?—these will fit if you come close to the size! Very smart casuals too. Left to right: golf shoe in polished leather with removable kilte; ultra rugged brushed leather; slip-on with the popular buckle-and-strap in the new lightweight, three-eyelet tie in soft but square toe; new high chukka boot in polished grained leather; and a three-eyelet in grained leather with decorative side-stitching.

Toppings For Gay Belles, Dressing-Up

Earrings dramatize both the story of texture and the power of color. Button earrings take the lead for classic wear, and the upsweep and dangle designs are splendidly related to the "dress-up" look in after-dark fshions.

An important trend in jewelry accessorizing this season calls for mixing as well as matching. This is seen in gold earrings worn with pearls, and colored stones with a gold necklace. The traditional "'matched look" of necklace and earrings will continue strong, and has been elaborated to include the pairing of earrings with pin or bracelet.

Mrs. R. C. Camp, Phil Fishman, Scherck Bogen, Miss Ruth Kelso and N. J. Laudenheim attended the American Fashion Association's early spring and resort market in Dallas, Tex., Nov. 1.

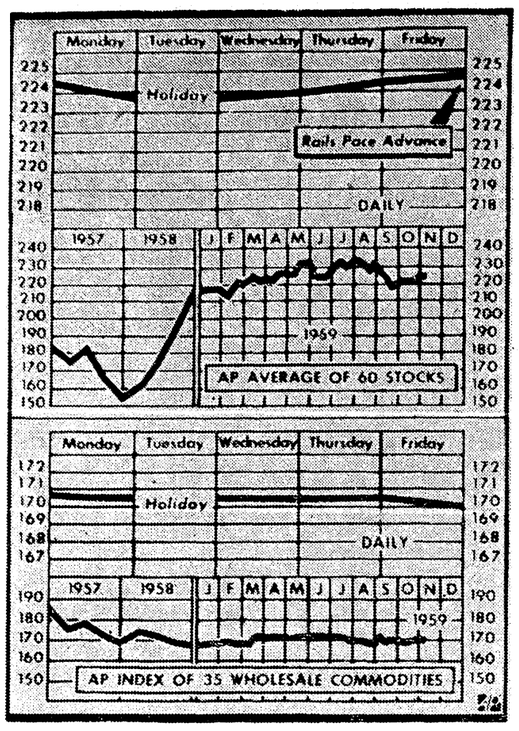
The showings featured "New Shapes, New Faces" and were reported to have expressed feminity in women's fashions.

Recording contracts are being issued by the Star-Crest Recording Co. in Hollywood for a song composed by Burton Myers, route 3, West Monroe.

Myers' composition is called "Sugar Cane Blues."

Citizens may again enroll in Mutual of Omaha's Senior Security Plan, it was announced today by Claude Gilliland, local division office manager.

Plans of insurance for senior citizens were pioneered in the southwest by Mutual of Omaha last January, Gilliland said the plan was offered only during special enrollment periods. It is a health insurance plan for senior citizens.



STOCKS MOVE UP SLIGHTLY — The Associated Press average of 60 stocks moved slightly higher last week to 224.8 from 224.4 a week ago. The commodity index moved lower for the first time in three weeks, closing at 170.0 from 170.6 in preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Soybeans, Corn Stage Gains, Others Drop

CHICAGO (UPI)—Soybeans advanced as much as 6 1-4 cents this week on the Board of Trade. Corn also gained, but other grains declined.

Compared with last week, wheat was off ⅜ to 1⅞; corn up 1¾ to 3; oats off 1⅜ to up ¾; rye off ⅛ to 1¼; soybeans up 3⅝ to 6¼; and lard unchanged to up 32 points.

Unfavorable weather was a major factor in trading. General buying pushed many corn, oats and soybean futures to new highs for the season.

The wheat market was mostly quiet, with small commission house selling out - weighing export and mill buying. Prices closed firm Friday on the belief that export trade would soon pick up. Cash wheat was unchanged.

In corn, the December delivery led the market with a 3-cent advance. Elevator houses, shipping interests and commission houses bought, while cash houses sold on the bulges. Spot corn sold up 2¼ to 3¼ cents.

Nearby oats contracts were firm on continued cash buying, while deferred deliveries were easier. The market encountered liquidation and stop loss selling Friday. Commission houses also bought. Cash oats ended 2¼ cents higher.

The rye trade was sluggish, with some liquidation and a lower Winnipeg market pushing prices down.

Wet weather, higher meal prices and drought reports from Europe inspired general buying in soybeans. November led the market, but other months also advanced sharply. Commission, commercial and local traders bought, while longs sold on the advances. The spot trade gained 9¾ cents.

Cotton Futures Close Higher

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures closed 45 cents to $1.10 a bale higher on the New York Cotton Exchange this week.

At the beginning of the week, interest was limited with the sustaining effects of mill and trade price fixing being offset by light hedge selling. After the election day holiday, activity increased and prices moved up.

The New York Cotton Exchange service bureau estimated exports during the week ended last Tuesday at 47,000 bales, compared with 82,000 bales a week earlier and 40,000 bales for the same week last year.

Through Nov. 3 exports had an estimated 521,000 bales, compared with 620,000 a year ago.

The trade was looking forward to the release Monday of the government's fourth forecast of the crop. Most observers were of the opinion that the report would show a small decrease from the Oct. 1 official indication of 14,692,000 bales.

Wall Street Gains Show Irregularity

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks scored an irregular gain during the past week with Wall Street apparently discounting an early return of the steelworkers to their jobs.

The market closed Friday with a burst of strength that involved railroad shares which made their best gain since Aug. 20. Railroads have been hardest hit of outside industries by the steel strike.

Prices dipped Monday in line with the normal reaction before a holiday. It was closed for election day and after that daily gains added momentum until on Friday the industrials showed a 3.35-point rise and rails 2.49 points.

Trading again averaged more than three million shares a day but was under the previous week. Sales for the four days totaled 13,883,970, a daily average of 3,470,992 shares.

Only Utilities Fall

At the close of the week, the Dow - Jones industrial average stood at 650.92 up 4.32 points on the week; rail 154.10 up 0.40; utility 87.06 off 0.41 and 65 stocks 213.46 up 0.58. In the previous week the industrials had gained 13.53 points while rails lost 2.45 points.

Trading was somewhat uncertain until Friday with market men awaiting the Supreme Court decision on the constitutionality of the Taft-Hartley Act.

There were many dividend increases or extras in such issues as Stauffer Chemical, Maytag, American Standard, Motor Products, and Simonds Saw. Goodyear, Eagle Picher, and Adams-Millis directors voted for stock splits. Cooper prices firmed and this helped the metals. Aluminums picked up late in the week.

Automobile production sagged and car loadings fell off again. Coal production showed little change. Retail trade held high. Steel output of the companies still producing showed little change.

Net changes in the main list held to moderate amounts for the most part. Some issues managed to show wide gains and there were a few wide losses, most of them in the volatile electronics group. In the latter, Texas Instruments netted 3½ points on the week while Motorola lost six.

Selwyn Lloyd Wants Early Summit Meet

PARIS (AP) — British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd said Saturday night Britain feels that if a summit meeting is delayed too long, a chance of progress will be lost.

Lloyd was interviewed in London by a reporter for the French television network.

"Our feeling is," Lloyd said, "that following our visit to Moscow, the Geneva (foreign minister's) conference this summer and the visit of Mr. Nikita Khrushchev to the United States a better atmosphere has been created, little by little, and we do not want to let the occasion pass and lose its benefit.

"We think that if one waits too long, one loses the chance for progress later. There is no disordered haste. It is only that we don't want to lose an opportunity."

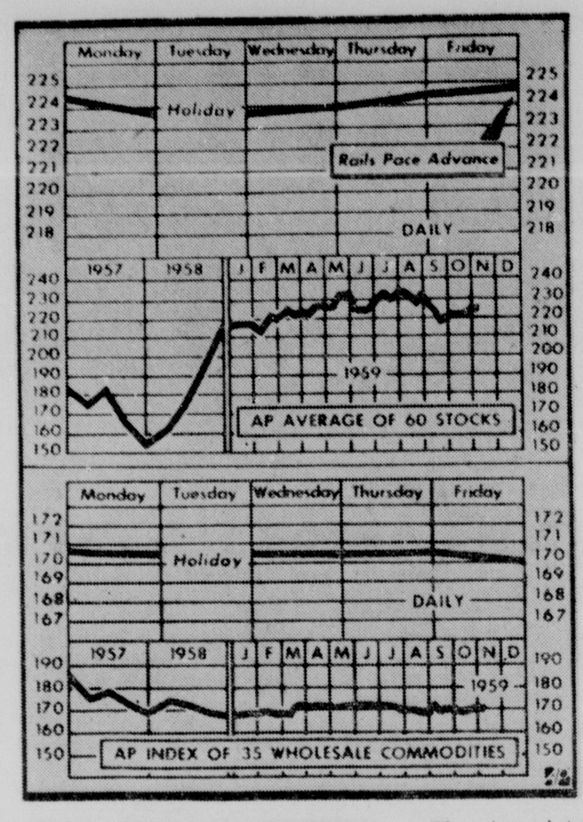
Citizens may again enroll in Mutual of Omaha's Senior Security Plan, it was announced today by Claude Gilliland, local division office manager.

Plans of insurance for senior citizens were pioneered in the southwest by Mutual of Omaha last January. Gilliland said the plan was offered only during special enrollment periods. It is a health insurance plan for senior citizens.



STOCKS MOVE UP SLIGHTLY — The Associated Press average of 60 stocks moved slightly higher last week to 224.8 from 224.4 a week ago. The commodity index moved lower for the first time in three weeks, closing at 170.0 from 170.6 in preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Soybeans, Corn Stage Gains, Others Drop

CHICAGO (UPI)—Soybeans advanced as much as 6 1-4 cents this week on the Board of Trade. Corn also gained, but other grains declined.

Compared with last week, wheat was off ⅜ to 1⅞; corn up 1¾ to 3; oats off 1⅜ to up ¾; rye off ½ to 1¼; soybeans up 3⅝ to 6¼; and lard unchanged to up 32 points.

Unfavorable weather was a major factor in trading. General buying pushed many corn, oats and soybean futures to new highs for the season.

The wheat market was mostly quiet, with small commission house selling out - weighing export and mill buying. Prices closed firm Friday on the belief that export trade would soon pick up. Cash wheat was unchanged.

In corn, the December delivery led the market with a 3-cent advance. Elevator houses, shipping interests and commission houses bought, while cash houses sold on the bulges. Spot corn sold up 2¼ to 3¼ cents.

Nearby oats contracts were firm on continued cash buying, while deferred deliveries were easier. The market encountered liquidation and stop loss selling Friday. Commission houses also bought. Cash oats ended 2¼ cents higher.

The rye trade was sluggish, with some liquidation and a lower Winnipeg market pushing prices down.

Wet weather, higher meal prices and drought reports from Europe inspired general buying in soybeans. November led the market, but other months also advanced sharply. Commission, commercial and local traders bought, while longs sold on the advances. The spot trade gained 9¾ cents.

Cotton Futures Close Higher

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures closed 45 cents to $1.10 a bale higher on the New York Cotton Exchange this week.

At the beginning of the week, interest was limited with the sustaining effects of mill and trade price fixing being offset by light hedge selling. After the election day holiday, activity increased and prices moved up.

The New York Cotton Exchange service bureau estimated exports during the week ended last Tuesday at 47,000 bales, compared with 82,000 bales a week earlier and 40,000 bales for the same week last year.

Through Nov. 3 exports had an estimated 521,000 bales, compared with 620,000 a year ago.

The trade was looking forward to the release Monday of the government's fourth forecast of the crop. Most observers were of the opinion that the report would show a small decrease from the Oct. 1 official indication of 14,692,000 bales.

Wall Street Gains Show Irregularity

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks scored an irregular gain during the past week with Wall Street apparently discounting an early return of the steelworkers to their jobs.

The market closed Friday with a burst of strength that involved railroad shares which made their best gain since Aug. 20. Railroads have been hardest hit of outside industries by the steel strike.

Prices dipped Monday in line with the normal reaction before a holiday. It was closed for election day and after that daily gains added momentum until on Friday the industrials showed a 3.35-point rise and rails 2.49 points.

Trading again averaged more than three million shares a day but was under the previous week. Sales for the four days totaled 13,883,970, a daily average of 3,470,992 shares.

Only Utilities Fall

At the close of the week, the Dow - Jones industrial average stood at 650.92 up 4.32 points on the week; rail 154.10 up 0.40; utility 87.06 off 0.41 and 65 stocks 213.46 up 0.58. In the previous week the industrials had gained 13.53 points while rails lost 2.45 points.

Trading was somewhat uncertain until Friday with market men awaiting the Supreme Court decision on the constitutionality of the Taft-Hartley Act.

There were many dividend increases or extras in such issues as Stauffer Chemical, Maytag, American Standard, Motor Products, and Simonds Saw. Goodyear, Eagle Picher, and Adams-Millis directors voted for stock splits. Cooper prices firmed and this helped the metals. Aluminums picked up late in the week.

Automobile production sagged and car loadings fell off again. Coal production showed little change. Retail trade held high. Steel output of the companies still producing showed little change.

Net changes in the main list held to moderate amounts for the most part. Some issues managed to show wide gains and there were a few wide losses, most of them in the volatile electronics group. In the latter, Texas Instruments netted 3½ points on the week while Motorola lost six.

Selwyn Lloyd Wants Early Summit Meet

PARIS (AP) — British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd said Saturday night Britain feels that if a summit meeting is delayed too long, a chance of progress will be lost.

Lloyd was interviewed in London by a reporter for the French television network.

"Our feeling is," Lloyd said, "that following our visit to Moscow, the Geneva (foreign minister's) conference this summer and the visit of Mr. Nikita Khrushchev to the United States a better atmosphere has been created, little by little, and we do not want to let the occasion pass and lose its benefit.

"We think that if one waits too long, one loses the chance for progress later. There is no disordered haste. It is only that we don't want to lose an opportunity."

Twenty Years agon the Unique Cleaners and Laundry of the Twin Cities was born. It was located in a small building at 501 Cypress Street, just one block from its present location.

At that time the owner, Charles P. Chisholm, his wife, Mrs. Sarah Kate Chisholm, Hugh Taylor and a colored man were the only employees of that young business.

Through continuous, prompt, courteous service and quality work, the business grew rapidly. Soon, this little building was too small for this fast growing business. The building that now houses the main plant at 401 Cypress Street was secured and moved into on November 1, 1943, just two and one half years after its opening. That is when UNIQUE really got underway. They consolidated with the cleaners that formerly occupied that building and became one of the Twin Cities fastest growing businesses.

During the war years UNIQUE kept up its policy of service and quality which many of the service institutions had to abolish. Even at that hectic time UNIQUE was able to give "next day" service.

Later UNIQUE came through with its "firsts" in the cleaning and laundry world. UNIQUE was "first" to give emergency one to four hour service. Another "first" was their in by nine out by five service, which has become a "by-word" in all cleaning and laundry establishments today. UNIQUE was also "first" to use "drive-in windows" for your convenience. In later years, starting in 1953, UNIQUE expanded to its drive-in locations to better serve you, our customers. Starting first with their location at 1301 Cypress Street, then expanding to 401 Coleman Street.

Next, UNIQUE came to Monroe with their convenient College Town location at 3800 DeSiard Street. Another location in north Monroe is in the Forsythe shopping center at 1908 Forsythe. Their newest location at 2940 Cypress Street, next door to Hogan's Grocery was opened to better serve the people of West Monroe in that area.

It has always been a policy of the Unique Cleaners and Laundry to give service and quality to their customers. Service and quality are their main objectives. So through the years, even during the war, the object of service and quality has been their goal.

Now UNIQUE is truly one of the large institutions of the Twin Cities. Growing from four employees to over forty now, and contributing thousands annually in payroll to the Twin Cities, it is keeping up with our cities growth and progress.

WORLD WAR I HERO

Worries, Illness Plague Sgt. York

PALL MALL, Tenn. (AP) — It was raining in east Tennessee's Cumberland Mountains, and the old soldier's bones ached.

"But if a fellow's able to kick," he said, "I guess he oughtn't to holler."

With that, America's most celebrated hero of World War I sat upright and dangled his feet over the side of the bed.

"I haven't been out of this bed for five years," said Sgt. Alvin C. York. "Not since I suffered a stroke."

Actually he did leave once last year when nearby Jamestown, Tenn., held a celebration in his honor. But the observance ended hastily after Sgt. York collapsed from exhaustion and was hurried home by ambulance.

Now 71, the once - vigorous doughboy lives in a bedroom-sitting room converted from a sunporch at the rear of his farm home.

His meals are served to him in bed by his wife, the former Gracie Williams. She is the childhood sweetheart to whom York hurried home after European countries and the United States awarded him their highest honors for bravery. He singlehandedly killed 25 Germans and captured 132 more.

With a twinkle in his blue eyes, York said, "It's pretty good, isn't it, to come through all that and then be captured by someone like her?"

Mrs. York, who looks remarkably like her wedding picture, blushed.

The walls in York's bedroom are covered with framed photographs. Captions read: "Sgt. York gets Croix de Guerre from France," "Sgt. York gets Medal of Honor from Congress," "Sgt. York gets Croca de Guerre from Italy." There are other medals, other photographs.

At the foot of the narrow bed are several rifles, including the squirrel gun with which he learned to shoot, and the Army Springfield rifle with which he picked off a charging squad of Germans.

York's biggest worry these days is about a federal income tax claim that he hopes will just fade away. "I haven't heard anything from them for awhile."

The government claims York owes $85,442 for the tax year ended Dec. 31, 1943, on income he received for the rights to the movie about his life in which Gary Cooper played the title role. York received about $150,000 by government estimate.

York has appealed to the Federal Tax Court. The case since has been continued from time to time because of his illness.

His 395-acre farm, he said, is now mostly just a place to live and receive the many visitors who stop to chat. And his chief income is a $60-a-month disability pension, plus an additional $10 as a Medal of Honor winner.

Most of his money has gone for medical expenses, he explained.

In addition to the stroke in 1954, York suffered an attack of pneumonia in 1942 and has had an ailing heart since 1950.

Blind Lovers Trial Slated For Finish

AIX - en - PROVENCE, France (UPI) — Final arguments were scheduled today in the trial of a blind woman and her blind lover accused of the hammer murder of her blind husband in the climax of a sordid affair.

Anna Barbini, 47, and wealthy Maximilien Levesque, 23, were charged with murdering Albert Barbini, 52, in August 1957.

Lecesque admitted on the stand that he killed the husband of the woman he said "has given me happiness that I had never known." But he waved his white cane and said he had "just provocation."

Levesque and Mrs. Barbini claimed Barbini had forced his wife into prostitution in order to get money to support his mistress.

Slim and handsome Levesque testified he fell in love with Mrs. Barbini "the moment I heard her voice."

"I had never been in love before, but I love her more than anything in the world," he told the court.

The grey-haired and pudgy Mrs. Barbini, however, insisted that she loved only her dead husband. As for Levesque, she said, "I pitied him."

"It was my husband who pushed me toward him," she testified. "I didn't love him. I loved my husband in spite of his wickedness."

She quoted her husband as telling her: "You must be obliging to men in the street. They will give you money and we will be happy."

She said that after she met Levesque, her husband began giving away her furniture to his mistress. She said she was "heartbroken" and asked for a divorce whereupon her husband locked her out of the house.

Levesque testified that they went to Barbini and confronted him in the kitchen of the house. The two men began struggling, and Levesque said he pulled out his pistol and shot Barbini twice.

But Barbini continued to fight and Levesque said he picked up a hammer and smashed in his skull.

Man Held On Charge Of Murder

MIAMI (UPI)— James Jerome Seitz, 23, was held on first degree murder charges today in the death of Chelcie Raymon Tidd Jr., whose body was found floating in the patio swimming pool of his plush suburban Miami home Oct. 25.

Laundry marks on a blood-stained shirt led to the capture of Seitz, who police said confessed the bludgeon-stabbing slaying. He told police Tidd had made sexual advances toward him.

The victim's skull was crushed with a blow from a small statue of a Mexican goddess, and a foot-long butcher knife protruded from his back.

Seitz was picked up early Friday as a suspicious person. Officers said his initials matched the laundry mark on a bloody sports shirt found at the scene of the slaying, and that a palm print on Tidd's car also matched Seitz's.

The son of a New York Central Railroad switchman in Cincinnati, Seitz has an FBI record dating back to 1955 of 17 arrests, including one connected with the robbery last December of the Farmer's State Bank in Miamitown, Ohio.

The 32-year-old victim was in charge of production for a local aluminum products company.

"Tidd grabbed a cigarette lighter off the table and swing at me," Seitz told repoers. "I grabbed a statute of a Mexican goddess and hit him with it. I hit him several times and he lay there on the floor. . .

"I was real scared, and I went in the kitchen and got a knife . . . It was him or me, and I killed him."

Authorities said murder charges against Seitz may be reduced to manslaughter if it was determined he was fighting for his life.

With a twinkle in his blue eyes, York said, "It's pretty good, isn't it, to come through all that and then be captured by someone like her?"

Mrs. York, who looks remarkably like her wedding picture, blushed.

The walls in York's bedroom are covered with framed photographs. Captions read: "Sgt. York gets Croix de Guerre from France," "Sgt. York gets Medal of Honor from Congress," "Sgt. York gets Croca de Guerre from Italy." There are other medals, other photographs.

At the foot of the narrow bed are several rifles, including the squirrel gun with which he learned to shoot, and the Army Springfield rifle with which he picked off a charging squad of Germans.

York's biggest worry these days is about a federal income tax claim that he hopes will just fade away. "I haven't heard anything from them for awhile."

The government claims York owes $85,442 for the tax year ended Dec. 31, 1943, on income he received for the rights to the movie about his life in which Gary Cooper played the title role. York received about $150,000 by government estimate.

York has appealed to the Federal Tax Court. The case since has been continued from time to time because of his illness.

His 395-acre farm, he said, is now mostly just a place to live and receive the many visitors who stop to chat. And his chief income is a $60-a-month disability pension, plus an additional $10 as a Medal of Honor winner.

Most of his money has gone for medical expenses, he explained.

In addition to the stroke in 1954, York suffered an attack of pneumonia in 1942 and has had an ailing heart since 1950.

Man Held On Charge Of Murder

MIAMI (UPI)— James Jerome Seitz, 23, was held on first degree murder charges today in the death of Chelcie Raymon Tidd Jr., whose body was found floating in the patio swimming pool of his plush suburban Miami home Oct. 25.

Laundry marks on a blood-stained shirt led to the capture of Seitz, who police said confessed the bludgeon-stabbing slaying. He told police Tidd had made sexual advances toward him.

The victim's skull was crushed with a blow from a small statue of a Mexican goddess, and a foot-long butcher knife protruded from his back.

Seitz was picked up early Friday as a suspicious person. Officers said his initials matched the laundry mark on a bloody sports shirt found at the scene of the slaying, and that a palm print on Tidd's car also matched Seitz's.

The son of a New York Central Railroad switchman in Cincinnati, Seitz has an FBI record dating back to 1955 of 17 arrests, including one connected with the robbery last December of the Farmer's State Bank in Miamitown, Ohio.

The 32-year-old victim was in charge of production for a local aluminum products company.

"Tidd grabbed a cigarette lighter off the table and swing at me," Seitz told repoers. "I grabbed a statute of a Mexican goddess and hit him with it. I hit him several times and he jay there on the floor. . .

"I was real scared, and I went in the kitchen and got a knife . . . It was him or me, and I killed him."

Authorities said murder charges against Seitz may be reduced to manslaughter if it was determined he was fighting for his life.

Blind Lovers Trial Slated For Finish

AIX - en - PROVENCE, France (UPI) — Final arguments were scheduled today in the trial of a blind woman and her blind lover accused of the hammer murder of her blind husband in the climax of a sordid affair.

Anna Barbini, 47, and wealthy Maximilien Levesque, 23, were charged with murdering Albert Barbini, 52, in August 1957.

Lecesque admitted on the stand that he killed the husband of the woman he said "has given me happiness that I had never known." But he waved his white cane and said he had "just provocation."

Levesque and Mrs. Barbini claimed Barbini had forced his wife into prostitution in order to get money to support his mistress.

Slim and handsome Levesque testified he fell in love with Mrs. Barbini "the moment I heard her voice."

"I had never been in love before, but I love her more than anything in the world," he told the court.

The grey-haired and pudgy Mrs. Barbini, however, insisted that she loved only her dead husband. As for Levesque, she said, "I pitied him."

"It was my husband who pushed me toward him," she testified. "I didn't love him. I loved my husband in spite of his wickedness."

She quoted her husband as telling her: "You must be obliging to men in the street. They will give you money and we will be happy."

She said that after she met Levesque, her husband began giving away her furniture to his mistress. She said she was "heartbroken" and asked for a divorce whereupon her husband locked her out of the house.

Levesque testified that they went to Barbini and confronted him in the kitchen of the house. The two men began struggling, and Levesque said he pulled out his pistol and shot Barbini twice.

But Barbini continued to fight and Levesque said he picked up a hammer and smashed in his skull.

How To Remove Mildew Spots From Books

To correct mildew spots in your valued books, brush each spot then open book and allow it to air in a sunny spot for several hours.

If the mildew is especially persistent, brush the spots, then spread French chalk on the page and let it set for several days before brushing out chalk.

Dig gladioli as soon as they are mature, or after the first frost. Tops should be cut off and the bulbs allowed to dry until they are easy to clean.

Color Adds Splash To A Bathroom

Don't neglect the bathroom if you are refreshing your home for the coming indoor season. Even if the permanent fixtures are in good condition, many of the smaller accessories undoubtedly will need some attention.

Check over your linen supplies first. Replace those that are thin and getting ragged. If a large number need replacing, this would be the time to introduce a fresh color scheme to the room.

It isn't difficult. Since many wall areas are being done in neutral or soft tones now, your accessories could easily establish the predominant color theme. Today, guest and bath towels, face cloths, mats and shower curtains come in a wide selection of colors to meet various decorating plans. They are being color coordinated, too.

Remember, though, no single color need be carried out in all of the accessories. Bathroom decorating trends today lean toward the two-tone effect in small rooms, one dominant and the other a soft pastel. In larger bathrooms you can successfully combine three colors.

When mailing breakable gifts such as perfume bottles and glassware, pack the articles in a bed of plastic foam. It is lightweight and holds the gifts securely.

Start the holiday dinner with fresh fruit appetizer topped with mint ice cream.

Teen Lament: Where Does My Money Go?

AP Newsfeatures

"What happens to money?" writes an 18-year-old student. "I worked like a slave all summer, then didn't have a cent when school started. My tuition isn't much and I made $200 above it, but when school began I had nothing left. I don't know what happened to the money. I didn't spend much on myself."

That's a familiar theme in adolescense and a good time to profit by the lesson, especially if a girl plans to handle her own finances. Bank surveys show that money skill is just as important to women as it is to men. The family finances, in most cases, are handled by women, another reason to learn how to take care of money.

DOLLARS AND SENSE

Good money management could be learned early in life. A million teen-agers have gone from high school off to the cold hard working world, and are trying to get along on their income. A budget is the only answer, and it doesn't make a miser or skinflint out of you. It can be fun. It can help plan your spending, keep you out of debt, and help you live, within your income, maybe even help to create a rainy day fund.

Here are some suggestions offered by the American Banking Assn. for a budget for young people. This may be used by the full time worker, the student who works part time or the student who lives on a plush allowance from the family.

BUDGET RULES

Expenses: First step is to figure out how much it costs you to live. How much are your various needs and recreation? Lump these expenses into groups such as school, clothing, personal care, recreation, donations and gifts. (This can be approximated by listing birthday and Christmas presents, and costs that you coped with last year.) Transportation and hobbies should be included in expenses.

Income: Income may vary from week to week depending on job earnings — overtime, part time or extra money from home such as an allowance or gifts of money for birthdays, Christmas, other occasions. This may be estimated by apportioning your income and estimating gifts based on those received last year.

Weekly spending plan: Refer to your yearly expense list, decide what items you need to buy or pay for each week. You could pay bills by bank check: your cancelled checks are proof of payment, and a checkbook provides a record of expenses and income. Special checking accounts are designed for small depositors. You pay by the cehcks you use.

Savings: Don't laugh. It can happen even on a small income. Deposit rainy day money a little at a time. Put it in the bank where it will be out of easy reach and earning interest. Even small sums add up.

Left-over cash: When you learn how to budget, you will find that certain weeks you will have a little money left over, when your expenses are less than you anticipated. Put it away for something special — a car, sailboat, hi-fi equipment or perhaps a camera. You can put it in a special bank account or make out a check to yourself for that amount each time, and hold it until needed or deposit it.

Once you learn how to budget, and how much security it gives you, the rest is easy. You may evolve a budget system to fit your own way of life.

A budget is essential if you live alone and must meet such expenses as rent, utilities, food bills.

A Touchdown Party Brings Hostess Cheers

Rah! Rah! Rah! Zis Boom Bah! Let's have a Touchdown Party, say the entertainment planners.

The touchdown party can have all the pep and joie de vivre of the big game itself with just a little advance thought and training on the part of the coach-hostess.

The idea is to create a miniature scene of the triumph to come — a tiny tootoall - field complete with yard lines and goal-posts, right on the dining room table.

To make the field, buy a large sheet of velour paper from the nearby stationery or hobby store. This paper has a nice grassy-looking texture and gets across the idea at a glance.

Cut strips of white sticky tape in quarter - inch strips and arrange across the field, measuring half way for the 50-yard line and then spacing out the other yard lines to leave adequate room for the goal-posts on the field beyond the goal line.

After putting on the white strips the sides of the field should be cut in an inch or two to give the right proportion to the shape of the field.

For the goal - posts use candles wound in spiral - fashion with quarter-inch black satin ribbon and held in place either with clear tape or glue. Be sure to let the spiral stop low enough to permit easy burning of the candle without interfering with the ribbon.

Bases for the goal - posts are simply made of small balls of green modeling clay fitted around the base of each candle and then pressed firmly on the "field" to keep the candles erect and steady.

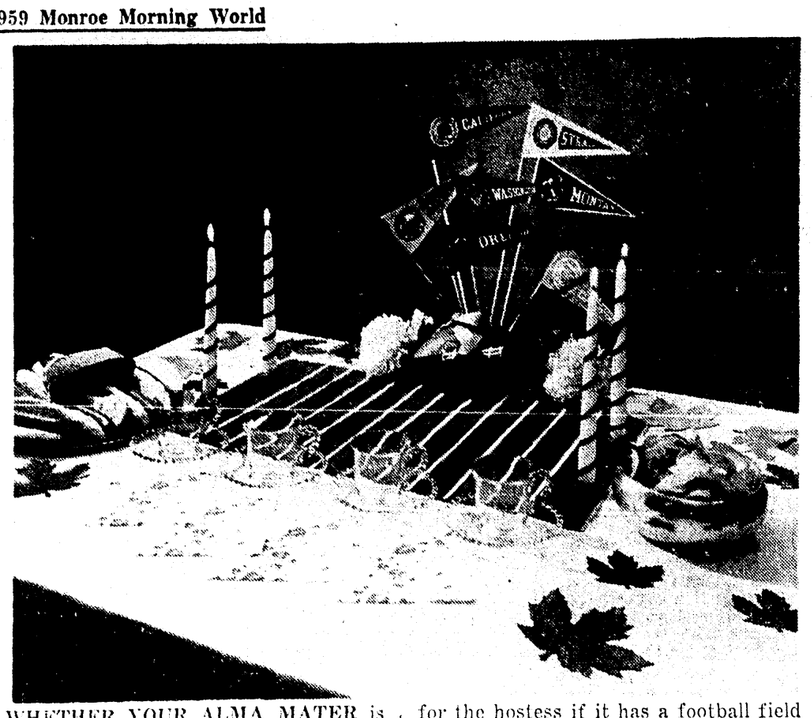
The cross bars are sightly wider pieces of black satin ribbon fastened to the candle goal - posts with clear tape.

In the background, a junior-sized football makes the ideal center for an appropriate arrangement of team pennants and mums typical of the team to be rooted for. If the party is a pre-game lunch, it's a nice touch to have enough mums for each "coed" guest attractively tied in the school colors and presented to them to be worn as the gang leaves for the game.

The pennants are the small gummed-back variety which are found inexpensively at any near-campus store. Just moisten the long side and press onto quarter to eighth-inch sticks of various lengths.

A small flower - arranging mesh makes a very efficient way to support the pennants or they may be held in a lump of molding clay hidden behind the football. A few vari-colored autumn leaves, either real or the paper or cardboard kind scattered around the table complete the festive setting.

Now, light the candle "goal-posts," bring on the hot dogs, potato chips and hot coffee and give a big cheer for the team.



WHETHER YOUR ALMA MATER is from the east, midwest or Pacific coast, the touchdown party will be a victory for the hostess if it has a football field setting marked by goal-posts.

Dramatizing, phonetics, rhyming words and pictures that tell stories were among a few of the methods the children participated in to demonstrate how they are prepared to begin actual reading.

Career Woman Becomes Cook By Trial, Error

United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) —How does a career woman who never had baked a pie become a profession cook and cookbook author?

By chance, mistakes, and pressure to produce, says Elsie Masterson, whose second book, "Blueberry Hill Cookbook," recently has been published. Her first book, "Nothing Whatever To Do," dealt with her life on an 800-acre Vermont farm turned summer resort, 1600 feet up in the Green Mountains.

Mrs. Masterton was a doctor's secretary before her marriage to John Masterton, a lawyer and former government administrator and assistant district attorney, the couple left Manhattan to run a ski area near Brandon, Vt.

"I was going to have nothing to do with the ski area except write letters," Mrs. Masterton said in an interview during a trip to New York. "But for four or five years, we didn't have any snow, so the place never functioned as a ski area. We decided to take summer guests. That's how I came into the picture—I had to feed them."

The Mastertons had no money to provide entertainment facilities, so they billed the farm as a resort with "Lucullan food and nothing whatever to do." It was so successful that today they still have "no television and a radio that doesn't work too well, but a phonograph in perfect order, beautify scenery, good conversation and good food."

The pretty brunette discovered a hidden talent for cooking. When the couple ran a restaurant in Florida for three winters, she did all the cooking and still does in Vermont. In season, she prepares three meals a day for 20 house guests and dinner for 10 to 20 persons who come an average of 60 miles for the meal. Busy weekends, she may serve 60 persons.

"I didn't swoop in the kitchen with a shaker of garlic and become a chef. No one can, with a background such as mine," she said. "I've made all the mistakes in cooking, but the thing that has saved me is pressure to create something as a substitute. I've never had time to sit down and cry."

Dorothy Kirsten Turns Fireman

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Dorothy Kirsten turned fireman after a brush blaze sprang up in fashionable Palos Verdes estates, briefly threatening her home and several dozen others.

The fire nearly reached the yards of residences in one block of Palos Verdes Drive West, but was controlled before it could cause any structural damage.

Some residents left their homes. Miss Kirsten protectively squirted a garden hose on the roof of her house.

The fire, visible for miles, destroyed about 50 acres of brush. Palos Verdes estates is a city on the Palos Verdes peninsula some 25 miles south of downtown Los Angeles.

This was Los Angeles County's second brush fire in 24 hours. An earlier blaze wrecked one home and burned about 100 acres of brush in the Malibu Canyon area.

This weekend is a little fuller than some of those just past have been — there are more people in town. This place really had the ghost town look last week when such numbers took off for Baton Rouge and what was surely the Greatest Game Ever.

A number of affairs this week have centered around visitors - in - town, always a good reason for a party. On Wednesday CAROL LAYTON PARSONS was honored at a luncheon hosted by JUNE M'HENRY, JERRY OAKLEY, and BARBARA EASTERLING. The porch of the Bayou DeSiard country club was the scene of the party. A mauve cloth covered the table, which was centered with mauve chrysanthemums. Fifteen guests enjoyed the meal which included chicken amandine and creme de menthe par'ait. Carol, who has been visiting her parents, the ROBERT LAYTONS, leaves today for New Orleans where she will spend a few days before flying home to Greenwich, Connecticut.

On Wednesday CLARA MONTGOMERY invited a foursome for lunch at the Lotus club and a visit with ANN SHAFTO NOEL, here from Port Arthur, Texas. Ann has been here with her parents, the WESLEY SHAFTOS, and returns home today. Others joining Clara and Ann for lunch were OLIVE SARTOR and CAROL McDONALD.

The J. W. ADCOCKS drove to New Orleans Sunday to meet the KILGORE MACFARLANES, who flew in from Buffalo, New York. They returned here Monday and stayed until Wednesday, when they went to Tulsa. The Adcocks came home Friday, and the MacFarlanes flew home from Oklahoma.

LOUISE and CHARLES BIRD were hosts at a dinner party Monday night in honor of the MacFarlanes. Decorations in the living - dining room of the Bird home were carried out in shades of yellow and gold. Yellow chrysanthemums, cattails and wheat were arranged in the living room. Yellow candles in brass candlesticks flanked the yellow dahlias placed on the buffet. Dinner was served from the dining table, which was covered with a cutwork cloth and centered with yellow candles and chrysanthemums. The fourteen guests were seated at individual yellow-covered tables which were centered with a single candle wreathed with small chrysanthemums and ivy.

After dinner, the guests moved into the den, which was decorated with periwinkle. Coffee was served in this room. With the coffee was passed a three - tiered tray of cookies and confections.

Tuesday morning LEE BOOTH was host at a boat ride. The MacFarlanes enjoyed the trip upriver on a day which was bright enough for the scenery and nippy enough for jackets, coffee and doughnuts . . . Following the boat trip, CHARLOTTI DENT invited the ladies to lunch at the Paragon.

Guest-of-honor Libby MacFarlane was wearing a navysilk suit with a corsage of white carnations. Charlottie used yellow chrysanthemums in a footed brass container on the luncheon table. There were eight guests.

JAN ADCOCK has had guests this weekend for the Homecoming activities at Neville High school. Former Monroyans BETTY ANN INABNETT now of Jackson, Tennessee, and JUDY PORT, now of Yazoo City, Mississippi, were here. They attended the game Friday night and the dance which followed.

Flowers at the morning coffee Thursday were outstanding. Hostesses for this party, which was held at the CLYDE BROWN residence, were ANN WESTROM, ANN TERZIA, and CAROLINE SMITH. Specimen white chrysanthemums were used with palmetto in a tall arrangement placed on the piano. An English silver biscuit box on a side table held Governor Mouton camellias and butterfly lilies. And red roses, beautifully arranged in a crystal and silver epergne, centered the dining table.

Back from a trip to Miami Beach and Nassau are the CONWAY CROSSLANDS, the LEE VANDERPOOLS, and the JOHN SHERROUSES JR. First on the schedule was a professional meeting in the Florida resort, which meeting was also attended by J. W. ROBERSON and HARVEY M'DONALD. The three couples then proceeded to Nassau, getting back last week after about ten days away.

The November meeting of the Monroe Garden club, scheduled for tomorrow in the yearbook, has been postponed until November 23, two weeks away. The program theme is "Harvest o' the Future," and will feature arrangements made by children of garden club members. The new meeting date will fall on Monday of Thanksgiving week, when the children will be out of school. Tea will be served at the meeting, which will be held in the Louis Locke room of the Ouachita parish public library.

Junior Miss, TRUE GUERRIERO was hostess at a real Halloween party last Saturday night. The invitations were black witches' hats lettered in white with the time and date. The life-size witch figure which guarded the front door was so realistic that one little trick - or - treater announced that he was really looking for the house next door and scurried away treatless. The living room and dining room were decorated with corn stalks, large squash, and jack-o-lanterns cut from outsize pumpkins. The thirty - four little girls who attended played the traditional Halloween games of biting the apple and passing the hot potato.

The dining table was covered with a Halloween cloth and centered with paper figures of witches and black cats. On the buffet was a sugarplum tree with marshmallow pumpkins for the "plums." Supper of hot dogs, homemade chili, doughnuts and soft drinks was served. A fortune teller came in later to read palms and tell stories.

Another Halloween party was that planned and carried out by brothers TOBY and WILL FRAZIER. The boys invited eight little neighbors to come for a hamburger supper before they went trick - or - treating. The guests ducked for apples and went through the spook house assembled and decorated by the young hosts. After supper the whole group made their rounds in the neighborhood.

On Wednesday JERRY HILL celebrated his seventh birthday with a cowboy party in the teen age room of the Bayou DeSiard country club. Each guest received a favor as he arrived, and a turn at playing the real little hand organ. Prizes of pop guns for the boys and skip ropes for the girls were given to each player in the pin-the-tail-on-the-donkey game. SUSAN ANDERSON and RICK TAYLOR were prize-winners.

The refreshment table was centered with yellow chrysanthemums arranged in a cowboy hat. Mounted cowboy and Indian figures surrounded the centerpiece. The birthday cake was decorated with a Western scene, complete to covered wagon, cactus, cowboys, and Indians. Harmonicas were the favors at the places for the forty children attending.

Our poem today is by William Butler Yeats:

When you are old and gray and full of sleep,
And nodding by the fire, take down this book,
And slowly read, and dream of the soft look
Your eyes had once, and of their shadows deep;
How many loved your moments of glad grace,
And loved your beauty with love false or true;
But one man loved the pilgrim soul in you,
And loved the sorrows of your changing face.
And bending down beside the glowing bars,
Murmur, a little sadly, how love fled
And paced upon the mountains overhead
And hid his face amid a crowd of stars.

MR. AND MRS. DEWEY O. EZELL of Wisner announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Jo Ann, to Matthew Julian Batey, Jr. of Baton Rouge. The wedding will be solemnized in the First Baptist church at Wisner on Sunday, November 22, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The Rev. Carlton Vance will officiate.

30,000 Women Philanthropic Money Raisers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Look what's happened to the housewife. She's become a tycoon in a multi-billion - dollar business — raising money for philanthropic causes.

About 30-million women—most of them housewives—will have volunteered their services to one or more philanthropic projects by the end of this year, reports the American Association of Fund-Raising Counsel, Inc. The total number of volunteers is expected to reach a record 45-million persons.

These volunteers will round up more than seven billion dollars—about four billion dollars more than in 1950. By 1970, the association expects fund-raising drives to bring in 14-billion dollars.

Why so many women in fund-raising?

"Because they have the time and convictions and are vitally related to problems, especially in the health field," said David Church executive director of the association.

"Women are pretty effective when work is laid out for them. And they're apt to investigate a cause before they go to work," Church added.

Women are good salesmen, and when armed with the facts and a strong belief in their cause, they can accomplish more with men than men can. Women also are effective public speakers and letter writers. Their positions in fund raising range from top policy makers to door-bell ringers.

Fund - raising in the United States began in colonial days, the association said. Men such as Benjamin Franklin and Thomas Jefferson helped through their writings.

This weekend is a little fuller than some of those just past have been — there are more people in town. This place really had the ghost town look last week when such numbers took off for Baton Rouge and what was surely the Greatest Game Ever.

A number of affairs this week have centered around visitors - in - town, always a good reason for a party. On Wednesday CAROL LAYTON PARSONS was honored at a luncheon hosted by JUNE M'HENRY, JERRY OAKLEY, and BARBARA EASTERLING. The porch of the Bayou DeSiard country club was the scene of the party. A mauve cloth covered the table, which was centered with mauve chrysanthemums. Fifteen guests enjoyed the meal which included chicken amandine and creme de menthe parfait. Carol, who has been visiting her parents, the ROBERT LAYTONS, leaves today for New Orleans where she will spend a few days before flying home to Greenwich, Connecticut.

On Wednesday CLARA MONTGOMERY invited a foursome for lunch at the Lotus club and a visit with ANN SHAFTO NOEL, here from Port Arthur, Texas. Ann has been here with her parents, the WESLEY SHAFTOS, and returns home today. Others joining Clara and Ann for lunch were OLIVE SARTOR and CAROL McDONALD.

The J. W. ADCOCKS drove to New Orleans Sunday to meet the KILGORE MACFARLANES, who flew in from Buffalo, New York. They returned here Monday and stayed until Wednesday, when they went to Tulsa. The Adcocks came home Friday, and the MacFarlanes flew home from Oklahoma.

LOUISE and CHARLES BIRD were hosts at a dinner party Monday night in honor of the MacFarlanes. Decorations in the living - dining room of the Bird home were carried out in shades of yellow and gold. Yellow chrysanthemums, cattails and wheat were arranged in the living room. Yellow candles in brass candlesticks flanked the yellow dahlias placed on the buffet. Dinner was served from the dining table, which was covered with a cutwork cloth and centered with yellow candles and chrysanthemums. The fourteen guests were seated at individual yellow-covered tables which were centered with a single candle wreathed with small chrysanthemums and ivy.

After dinner, the guests moved into the den, which was decorated with periwinkle. Coffee was served in this room. With the coffee was passed a three - tiered tray of cookies and confections.

Tuesday morning LEE BOOTH was host at a boat ride. The MacFarlanes enjoyed the trip upriver on a day which was bright enough for the scenery and nippy enough for jackets, coffee and doughnuts . . . Following the boat trip, CHARLOTTI DENT invited the ladies to lunch at the Paragon.

Questions And Answers Guide For Homemakers

BETTY PEPIS ANSWERS

Q. — My living room rug is light gray green, walls are painted slightly deeper. Sofa is gray, one chair is light green, the other is red. Fireplace is painted white with large wall mirror above. I plan to make new draperies and wonder what color to use. Also whether or not to repaint the white cornices I now have or make valances to match.

A. — If you can find a print or stripe that combines the green and white already in your room use it for draperies and keep your white cornices. Preferably the print should be on a white ground and contain no third color. The type of one color design known as a toile would be ideal. An alternate would be full white curtains, but be sure in this case that cornices are painted the same white.

Q — Please suggest what to do with a long narrow hallway, 3 feet x 30. It has a window at one end and door at the other. Four doors lead off it to the bedrooms. How can I brighten it? What would you use for floor covering?

A. — One of the most effective hallways I have seen had the doors painted in bright colors, each a different shade, thereby making a decorating asset out of a disadvantage. The safest way to achieve this is to work with several shades of the same color. You might paint the hallway itself pale yellow, make all the doors a bright chrome yellow. With this scheme, have cork flooring of the kind that is protected by a vinyl film which will eliminate the former problems of scuffing. The brightly colored hanging glass Italian light fixtures would add a gay touch. Get them in a yellow and white stripe.

Q. — I would like to have your ideas on a bedroom color scheme. We have red and pink splattered floor covering, blond wood furniture. I would like to know what colors to use for walls, draperies and bedspread.

A. — You already have your color scheme. Take it from the pink and red floor. Paint the walls pink and hang a paler pink drapery at the window. For the bedspread use a pink and red floral print. Cotton throw rugs could be red and use ruby red glass for lamp bases and other accessories.

Q. — Please help me with a color scheme for a small bathroom which doesn't get much light and has only one small window. I would like suggestions for wall tile, floor tile, woodwork, upper walls and ceiling.

A. — In dark rooms use warm colors. For an unusual scheme in this room you might work with the combination of yellow and rust and add orange towels and bath mat. Use the rusty tone for floor tile, the yellow for wall tile and paint ceiling, woodwork and upper wall a lighter tone of the yellow.

Seven Members Of Baptist Board Replaced

ROUND ROCK, Tex. (AP) — A former Baptist children's home board member says seven board members were replaced for permitting teen-agers to attend a school dance.

But the Rev. M. B. Carroll of Dallas, Texas Baptist Convention president, said the members were replaced "in the light of some reported internal conditions in the Round Rock home, one of which was the board permitting students to participate in dancing. But dancing was not the whole picture."

He declined to give the other reasons.

"Baptists generally frown upon dancing," Dr. Carroll said.

The action was taken this week by the convention, which names boards to the convention's many institutions.

All seven of the 21-member board who were up for re-election were replaced.

Louis M. Henna, one of the ousted members, defended the board's decision last spring to let the high school boys and girls attend school sponsored and chaperoned dances. The 140 children who live in the home have attended public schools here since 1950.

MR. AND MRS. JESSE ORVILLE PINKSTON JR. of Lake Providence announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Ann Durham, to Oren Waren Russell of Memphis, Tennessee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oren Russell of Baton Rouge. The wedding will be solemnized on December 27 at 3 o'clock in the afternoon at the First Baptist Church in Lake Providence. The Reverend Lynn Turner of Yazoo City, Mississippi, and the Reverend Douglas Cheatham of Lake Providence will officiate.

Questions And Answers Guide For Homemakers

BETTY PEPIS ANSWERS

Q. — My living room rug is light gray green, walls are painted slightly deeper. Sofa is gray, one chair is light green, the other is red. Fireplace is painted white with large wall mirror above. I plan to make new draperies and wonder what color to use. Also whether or not to repaint the white cornices I now have or make valances to match.

A. — If you can find a print or stripe that combines the green and white already in your room use it for draperies and keep your white cornices. Preferably the print should be on a white ground and contain no third color. The type of one color design known as a toile would be ideal. An alternate would be full white curtains, but be sure in this case that cornices are painted the same white.

Q — Please suggest what to do with a long narrow hallway, 3 feet x 30. It has a window at one end and door at the other. Four doors lead off it to the bedrooms. How can I brighten it? What would you use for floor covering?

A. — One of the most effective hallways I have seen had the doors painted in bright colors, each a different shade, thereby making a decorating asset out of a disadvantage. The safest way to achieve this is to work with several shades of the same color. You might paint the hallway itself pale yellow, make all the doors a bright chrome yellow. With this scheme, have cork flooring of the kind that is protected by a vinyl film which will eliminate the former problems of scuffing. The brightly colored hanging glass Italian light fixtures would add a gay touch. Get them in a yellow and white stripe.

Q. — I would like to have your ideas on a bedroom color scheme. We have red and pink splattered floor covering, blond wood furniture. I would like to know what colors to use for walls, draperies and bedspread.

A. — You already have your color scheme. Take it from the pink and red floor. Paint the walls pink and hang a paler pink drapery at the window. For the bedspread use a pink and red floral print. Cotton throw rugs could be red and use ruby red glass for lamp bases and other accessories.

Q. — Please help me with a color scheme for a small bathroom which doesn't get much light and has only one small window. I would like suggestions for wall tile, floor tile, woodwork, upper walls and ceiling.

A. — In dark rooms use warm colors. For an unusual scheme in this room you might work with the combination of yellow and rust and add orange towels and bath mat. Use the rusty tone for floor tile, the yellow for wall tile and paint ceiling, woodwork and upper wall a lighter tone of the yellow.

MONTGOMERY TRIES B'WAY

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Montgomery, actor-producer of films, television and stage, is planning a Broadway workout as co-sponsor and director of "The General's Other Son."

The Andrew McCullough drama is on the agenda for staging next season by Montgomery and Alfred de Liagre Jr.

Give extra tang to custard or chiffon pie by adding 1 tablespoon bottled lemon juice to a basic graham cracker crust.

Seven Members Of Baptist Board Replaced

ROUND ROCK, Tex. (AP) — A former Baptist children's home board member says seven board members were replaced for permitting teen-agers to attend a school dance.

But the Rev. M. B. Carroll of Dallas, Texas Baptist Convention president, said the members were replaced "in the light of some reported internal conditions in the Round Rock home, one of which was the board permitting students to participate in dancing. But dancing was not the whole picture."

He declined to give the other reasons.

"Baptists generally frown upon dancing," Dr. Carroll said.

The action was taken this week by the convention, which names boards to the convention's many institutions.

All seven of the 21-member board who were up for re-election were replaced.

Louis M. Henna, one of the ousted members, defended the board's decision last spring to let the high school boys and girls attend school sponsored and chaperoned dances. The 140 children who live in the home have attended public schools here since 1950.

The wedding will be solemnized on December 27 at 3 o'clock in the afternoon at the First Baptist Church in Lake Providence. The Reverend Lynn Turner of Yazoo City, Mississippi, and the Reverend Douglas Cheatham of Lake Providence will officiate.

'Malice' Accused In Crime

CORINTH, Miss. (AP) — Eight white boys charged with murder in the Halloween shotgun-slaying of a Negro youth are accused of commiting the crime "with malice aforethought."

The boys, ranging in age from 14 to 17, are also charged with upsetting the "peace and dignity of the state of Mississippi" through the crime.

H. M. Ray, Alcorn County attorney, said Saturday affidavits against the teen-agers charge they "did willfully, unlawfully, feloniously and of their malice aforethought kill and murder William Roy Prather, a human thing, against the peace and dignity of the state of Mississippi."

Authorities said their investigation showed that before the shooting some white boys threw firecrackers at Negroes who in retaliation tossed rocks back at their pickup truck. Not long afterward, officers said, the eight accused drove through the Negro residential section and shot at three Negro youths. Prather, 16, suffered fatal head wounds. One companion was also wounded.

A Negro leader, who declined to be identified, said the relationship between the white and Negro population in Corinth has always "been a good one."

He said he thought most Negroes in the town trust the white population to give the accused "whatever punishment they deserve."

Most of the whites were agreed the boys should be punished to the fullest measure.

Ray said the charges "established the state's intent in this case as do the charges in any other case."

A murder conviction carries a penalty of death or life imprisonment.

Police Chief Harold Hinton said 17-year-old Darnell Glidwell admitted firing the 16-gauge shotgun last Saturday night from the moving truck. However, under Mississippi law, an accessory before the fact shares the guilt with the person who actually committed the crime, Ray explained.

Officers, after a four-day investigation, Wednesday arrested Glidwell, Paul McCann, 18, John Hinson, 16, Lary Latch, 16, James Scott 16, James Butler 16, Danny Woods, 15, and Jimmy Kiddy, 14.

Woman Better After Suffering Fireant Bite

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—Doctors reported Mrs. Vera Breedlove, 54, improved Saturday after suffering partial paralysis as the result of a fireant bite.

Mrs. Breedlove suffered muscular paralysis in the shoulder, arm and hand after being bitten last Sunday by the imported ant.

Mrs. Breedlove said the bite was like a "spark of fire."

An entomologist from the Louisiana Extension Service examined the area and found one bed of fire ants, which he destroyed.

From a camera columnist's notebook:

Looking ahead. . .now's the time for camera fans to start on their photographic Christmas cards . . . the Yuletide season has a habit of sneaking up on you.

Looking further ahead: cross off Yugoslavia as a 1960 vacation possibility. Returning West German tourists report new roadside warning signs in Yugoslavia — a black camera silhouette on a round metal plate crossed by two diagonal bars — meaning "Snapshots Forbidden." Reported located in many areas not near obvious strategic spots. Penalty if not observed: camera confiscated.

Press reviews of cameras soon available:

HIGH SPEED: the new Graflex 1000 shutter in the Super Speed Graphic 4 x 5 camera is the fastest, most efficient between-the-lens shutter unveiled. . top speed 1-1000th of a second at full one-inch aperture. Ingenious feature: cocking shutter by turning lens shade. Engineers designed new four-leaf shutter principle and operation to make top speed possible . . . previously obtainable only with focal plane shutter.

ELECTRIC DRIVEN: An electric motor, completely enclosed in the film take-up spool, winds the 35mm film, cocks the shutter and takes either a single exposure or a sequence of pictures in the Graphic 35 Electric camera. Two penlight batteries, good for 1,000 exposures, provide the power and can be changed even with film in camera. Other features are interchangeable lenses, automatic exposure control by adjusting a pointer, an exposure value coupling system to maintain correct exposure if aperture or shutter speed is changed.

WIDE ANGLE: A 90-degree angle of view and close-up focusing to 12 inches without accessories are features of new Hasselblad Super Wide C camera. Takes 120 roll film size, with interchangeable magazine backs for switching types of film at any time. Zeiss Biogon 38mm f-4.5 lens. . . coupling of shutter and diaphragm through exposure value system . . . automatic visual depth-of-field indicator . . . automatic shutter cocking when rapid wind crank advances film. Built-in spirit level . . . on extreme wide-angle camera, absolutely necessary to keep it level to prevent distortion of horizontal and vertical lines.

INSPIRATIONAL ITEM: Mrs. Carrie Turner of Cleveland, Ohio, is a camera fan who loves to travel. Her memory and her photo albums are filled with pictures of Mexico, Bermuda, Canada, New England and the national parks out west. Nothing unusual about that, of course . . . until I read that Mrs. Turner has been blind for 31 years.

Her sightseeing is done with her other senses . . . listening to people commenting on the scenes . . . hearing the sound of nature or of the locale . . . feeling the architecture.

How does she take pictures? By pointing a simple box camera at the scene with the help of a guide or fellow sightseers. Why does she take pictures? "Why, to share my trips with my friends back home," she replies.

Mrs. Turner may not have the eyes but she certainly has the heart of a real camera fan.

Room Within A Room Is Created At Style Show

By BETTY PEPIS

The National Home Furnishings Show on view in New York City's Coliseum this week and next has come a long way since its original debut just 10 years ago.

Directed then, as now, by S. Robert Elton, the show originally served as a catch - all for new ideas with very little editing out of bizarre material. Highlights of that first show were a stove in fire engine red, a modernistic printed fabric by artist Salvador Dali and a deep purple sectional sofa.

The current show reflects the trend away from bizarre novelties which had a brief spurt of popularity in the earlier years of this decade. Instead, a series of settings arranged by members of the American Institute of Decorators quite sensibly sets the stylish tone of the exhibits. These rooms also point up the elective taste of our time which rules that no one period or style is either in good or bad taste.

The range of room styles runs the gamut from an unconventional Portuguese patio by Melanie Kahane through a French provincial bed - sitting room by Blaine and Booth, to a compact contemporary study set into a corner of a bedroom by Ruth Strauss.

Some of the settings, like this last, make a practical point, in this case by showing how to create a room within a room, a useful notion in these days of limited space. Others present "fun" ideas that the amateur decorator can apply to her own home. An example is room by William Pahlmann which is planned for color changes in each of the four seasons.

Still another room, by John Wisner, will be used to introduce new furniture as well as new ideas. A feature will be a day bed made of rattan with a formal light finish of white rubbed with gray. This room, like that by Mrs. Strauss, also serves double duty. It functions normally as a game room but will comfortably accommodate an overnight guest.

The currently popular mixture of many things is the note set in a breakfast room by decorator Lloyd Bell. He has combined a seventeenth century Italian sideboard with sixteenth century Dutch chairs and added, also, four French chairs.

Leftover cranberry sauce or mincemeat makes a festive topping for ice cream sundaes. To serve flaming, touch a match to a cube of sugar that has been dippedi n lemon extract.

SURVEY SHOWS

Necking Selected As Favorite Hobby

WEDNESBURY, England (AP) —Citizens here got the results Saturday of a survey they sponsored to find out what the town's teenagers like to do in their free time.

They like to neck, the survey shows.

The survey came as no surprise to many, but Mayor George Stokes took a dim view.

"This survey is rubbish," he declared. "The youth of this town are hard working and industrious. You only have to go into night schools and technical colleges here to see that."

Alderman Arthur Bissell, chairman of a local youth center, reacted differently.

"A spot of necking does the youngsters good," he said. "The brain can become overworked with too much study and that sort of relaxation helps a lot."

The survey was conducted by a Roman Catholic Church organization known as the Young Christian Workers. Backed by the townspeople, the organization distributed 100 questionnaires in coffee bars frequented by teen-agers and in local youth clubs. The purpose was to establish how teenagers in this midland English town spend leisure hours, for Wednesbury, one of Britain's big iron towns near Birmingham, has 34,000 citizens and its fair share of youth problems.

The survey showed that boys look for a combination Brigitte Bardot-Marilyn Monroe type as their type of ideal girl. Girls seek kindness, patience and understanding in their boy friends.

Mayor Stokes conceded Wednesburh youngsters "may do a spot of necking," but added: "This is an international hobby not peculiar to Wednesbury. To suggest that it is all they do in their leisure time is bunk."

Said Alderman Bissell: "What's wrong with necking as a hobby? As long as the youngsters behave themselves, it's a jolly good thing. It helps them get to know each other's habits and mix together better."

Teen-Ager Killed In Gun Battle

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa (AP) — A California teen-ager was killed Saturday as he shot it out with two policemen in a dead-end street where he had been cornered.

He was identified from a draft card as Keith Eugene Hayes, 19, Redding, Calif. There was no immediate indication why, after being stopped in a routine traffic check, he chose to bolt and resorted to the wild gun duel.

Hayes was stopped in Omaha, immediately across the Missouri River from Council Bluffs. But he sped away with officer Donald C. Rice, 30, in pursuit.

The chase crossed the river and ended suddenly in a dead-end street in a Council Bluffs trailer court. Terrified residents said the teen-ager leaped from his car, drew a .22 caliber revolver, and got the drop on Rice as the officer got out of his car.

The youth ordered Rice to lousen and drop his gun belt, but the patrolman let go of only one end and held on to the other.

Another officer who had joined in the chase and had halted his car some distance away, at this point appeared between two trailer houses.

The youth was distracted for a moment and Rice swung his gun belt at Hayes who turned on him and fired.

The second policeman, John J. van Hessche jumped behind a fence and emptied his gun at Hayes. The youth fired back but fell with a bullet in the heart and another in the arm.

The teen - ager's shots had struck both policemen. They were taken to an Omaha hospital where their conditions were not immediately established.

Police said the car the youth had been driving was registered to Iva McDonough, West Union, Iowa. A hotel receipt showed the youth had stayed in West Union for several days last monh.

Committee Raps Plans Of Kremlin

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Internal Security subcommittee said Saturday the Kremlin's leaders are promoting Soviet-American cultural exchanges as part of a poisonous propaganda offensive.

"Soviet hoaxsters are playing us, individually and nationally, for suckers," the subcommittee said in a report on its 1958 investigations.

The report, although not published until now, was written prior to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's recent visit to this country.

In a section on Soviet-American cultural exchanges, the report said that from ballet dancers to scientists, every Soviet is thoroughly screened by Soviet authorities for political reliability before being allowed to come to this country.

"If the individual has shown any traces of pro-Western sympathies, that fact is sufficient to blackball him regardless of any scientific or artistic merit," the report said.

It also said that every member of a Soviet cultural mission is an observer for Soviet military intelligence and is duty bound to use every contact with the American public to acquire information useful to the Soviet government.

Furthermore, the report said, each such mission includes at least one official representative of Soviet intelligence.

"The profusion of Soviet delegations to this country, the lavish propaganda for cultural exchanges and coexistence, is primarily a phase of Soviet psychological warfare," the report said.

It added that the stepped-up drive for cultural exchanges "comes at a time when the Kremlin is particularly anxious to mislead the American people into the belief in the currently pacific aims and desires of the Soviet leaders, with a view to promoting American unpreparedness and disarmament."

"This is a poisonous propaganda offensive, which, if successful, could well be a prelude to a sudden military attack," the report said.

It recommended that the results of the cultural exchange program be reappraised by an appropriate Senate committee to determine what, if any, advantages to this country have accrued from the experiment.

Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss) is chairman of the eight-member group. Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R-NY) said he did not participate in preparation of the report since he was not a member of the group during the period covered.

Ancient Ship Spotted Under London Street

LONDON (AP)—The backened remains of what is believed to be an ancient Roman galley ship have been unearthed in mud 15 feet below a bustling riverside London street.

But the 1,700-year-old vessel may have to stay buried—digging it up would disrupt traffic and construction in the busy southward section of London, alongside the River Thames.

A corner of the boat was spotted in excavations for a new building by Peter Marsen, an archaeologist for London's Guildhall Museum. Marsden, only 19 prowls building sites in his spare time looking for ancient remains.

He believes the boat to be 60 to 80 feet long and perfectly preserved from the early years of the Christian era when the Romans settled in Britain. It could have been big enough to carry 30 men.

"I hope to get out a complete rib and part of the keel," Marsden said, "but prefer to leave most of the ship intact. We know where it is now and we can record it in case somebody can dig it up completely -- perhaps in 100 years."

Ancient Ship Spotted Under London Street

LONDON (AP)—The backened remains of what is believed to be an ancient Roman galley ship have been unearthed in mud 15 feet below a bustling riverside London street.

But the 1,700-year-old vessel may have to stay buried—digging it up would disrupt traffic and construction in the busy southward section of London, alongside the River Thames.

A corner of the boat was spotted in excavations for a new building by Peter Marsen, an archaeologist for London's Guildhall Museum. Marsden, only 19 prowls building sites in his spare time looking for ancient remains.

He believes the boat to be 60 to 80 feet long and perfectly preserved from the early years of the Christian era when the Romans settled in Britain. It could have been big enough to carry 30 men.

"I hope to get out a complete rib and part of the keel." Marsden said, "but prefer to leave most of the ship intact. We know where it is now and we can record it in case somebody can dig it up completely — perhaps in 100 years."

Probe Group Fails To Find Laos Proof

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—A U.N. fact-finding group reported Friday it failed to uncover proof of charges by Laos that it had been invaded by Communist troops from North Viet Nam.

But the four-nation subcommittee told the U.N. Security Council it did discover evidence that rebels in the restive Asian kingdom had received equipment, arms, supplies and the help of political advisers from the Communist regime across the northern border.

The long-awaited report to the 11-nation Council had these immediate repercussions:

1. A U.N. spokesman said Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold was considering making a visit to Laos, but it would have no connection with the report to the council.

2. A spokesman for the U.S. delegation hailed the report as one that would "enable the Security Council to better understand the danger that confronts Laos." He said the United States was considering what additional steps might be taken in the United Nations "to further help the Laotian people maintain their freedom and independence."

3. The Soviet delegation declared the report caused the collapse, "like a card-castle, of the entire heap of absurd charges advanced by the Laotian government and by those who are pursuing it to hamstring the peaceful settlement" of the Asian kingdom's problems.

4. Members of the Latian delegation said they had no comment, but asserted the question of foreign in Laos' dometsic affairs had been amply demonstrated in previous declarations of Laotian officials.

5. Ambassador Jorge Illueca of Panama, president of the Security Council, said consultations were taking place on the next step. The Council set up the subcommittee last Sept. 7 over Soviet objection.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov told reporters Thursday night, his country took a negative view of a visit to Laos by Hammarskjold. Kuznetsov stressed that any Laotian settlement should be based on the 1954 Geneva agreement setting up an international control commission for Laos.

High Court Still Eyeing Steel Deal

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Steel Workers Union and the strike-bound industry watuhed and waited Friday while the Supreme Court continued to weigh the legality of a back-to-work order.

One small firm — the Lalede Steel Co. of Southern Illinois — reached a tentative agreement with the union.

But otherwise there were no discussions between the union and the industry it has kept shut down for 115 days.

The Supreme Court's nine justices conferred in secret for seven hours, but made no announcement of when a decision might come in the steel case.

Presumably the justices devoted most of their time to the steel case since it is the only major case pending disposition.

Ther was no word when the court would hand down its ruling on a union appeal from the back-to-work order issued by a U. S. District Court Judge in Pittsburgh.

The justices began studying the case late Tuesday after hearing arguments from union and government lawyers.

The Federal Mediation Service scheduled no new bargaining talks. The most recent meeting between union and industry negotiators was held Wednesday. It lasted only half an hour and produced no progress.

Union President David J. McDonald returned to Pittsburgh Friday and R. Contrad Cooper, the chief industry negotiator, went to Hot Springs, Va., to speak to the Virginia Manufacturers Assn.

Announcement of the Laclede settlement did not go into detail on terms of the new contract covering about 3,500 production workers in Alton and Madison, Ill. Members of two locals will vote on ratification next Thursday.

A spokesman for Laclede said the firm accounts for about one-half of 1 per cent of national steel production.

The Steelworkers previously worked out settlements with the Kaiser Steel Corp., the Detroit Steel Corp., and the Granite City Steel Co. of St. Louis. All are small companies, turning out only a fraction of the country's steel.

Mother Finds 'Loophole' In Adoption Law

TIMPERLEY, England (UPI)—A British mother who wants to give Americans her unborn child said Friday she has found loopholes in the law which would make such a move possible.

Mrs. Sheila Winkley, 37, said she had talked with her lawyer about possible legal difficulties in offering her unborn child to a "nice American" couple.

"I have heard that any American couple would have to stay with the child for not less than six months before the could adopt it," she said. "They would also have to get visas to take the child to America and have to provide proof to an American court that they were suitable parents.

"We have found a loophole in these difficulties," she said. "I am not saying anything because if the authorities know what we are doing they may jump in and stop us."

Mrs. Winkley said she had received two cabled offers from American couples. They came from Mr. and Mrs. May Thurn, of Crestview, Fla., and Mr. and Mrs. Gootfried Peakma, of Kent, Wash., she said.

Mrs. Winkley, who gave away two of her children previously because she "just doesn't like the trouble connected with babies," said she had received another telegram today from the United States. She declined to reveal the sender.

"I've gotten about a dozen of the usual nasty letters," she said. "People say it is a terrible thing to give a baby away.

"But when you read the letters asking to adopt the child it makes you think it is worth while. I wish I had more to give away because it is helping them."

Alanbrooke Says 'Got Him Wrong'

LONDON (AP)—Viscount Alanbrooke wrote a footnote Friday to his wartime memoirs: He didn't mean to accuse President Eisenhower of actually playing golf while World War II hung in the balance.

The bespectacled wartime chief of Britain's general staff said everyone got him wrong when he declared in his recently published diaries that Eisenhower was "on the golf links at Reims" just before the crucial Battle of the Bulge in 1944.

Alanbrooke's diaries make plain his antagonism toward the strategies employed by Eisenhower as supreme commander of Allied armies.

"I had no intention of suggesting that the President actually played golf at that time," he told The Associated Press.

What he really meant was that Eisenhower was at his "forward headquarters," situated on a disused golf course in Reims, Alanbrooke added.

The sentences that stirred the controversy occurred in a diary entry by Alanbrooke dated Nov. 24, 1944. It said there was a "very unsatisfactory state of affairs in France with no one running the land battle."

"Eisenhower, though supposed to be doing so, is on the golf links at Reims—entirely detached and taking practically no part in the war," it said.

Alanbrooke went on to say in the diary that things became so bad a delegation of high-ranking American officers called on Eisenhower to tell him he "must get down to it and run the war, which he said he would do."

The White House Thursday said Eisenhower never had a golf club in his hand from the time of the invasion of Europe until the defeat of Germany. Alanbrooke, at home in the Hampshire village of Hartley Wintney, was told of the White House statement.

"If you look in the diaries you'll see there was no accusation that he (Eisenhower) had any golf clubs and there was no accusation that he was playing golf," Alanbrooke said.

"You might just as well say that I was accusing Eisenhower of drinking champagne because he was at Reims."

Reims, in addition to having had a disused golf course during the war, is noted for its output of champagne.

Alanbrooke said his diaries had mentioned the fact that Eisenhower maintained an official camp on the Reims links, a tightly knit base away from the vast Allied invasion headquarters at Versailles.

But he refused to discuss the impression given by his diary entry about Eisenhower being on a golf course "entirely detached" from the running of the war.

Alanbrooke's diaries were published last weekend as a book, edited by Sir Arthur Bryant, called "Triumph in the West." It was the second volume of his wartime memoirs. Running through both is a line of criticism of both American and British war leaders, including Sir Winston Churchill.

Several British newspapers, politicians and soldiers have criticized Alanbrooke for his condemnations.

In a broadcast Thurdsday night, Lord Beaverbrook, the Canadian-born press baron, had this to asy: "I never knew Lord Alanbrooke was the war hero until I read his book."

SECOND TOUCHDOWN, FIRST LOSS — Tennessee fullback Neyle Sellee (right) crosses the goal line at the end of a 14-yard run to score the second touchdown of the game (and year) against LSU. The Vols then kicked the extra point to win, 14-13. At left is LSU's Tommy Neck. (AP Wirephoto)

AND CARTWRIGHT

Shifting Of Linebackers Helped Vols Defeat LSU

By BILL RAWLINS

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee Coach Bowden Wyatt said that shifting his linebackers to stop All-America Billy Cannon in the second half was partly responsible for Tennessee's 14-13 upset of Louisiana State Saturday.

But Wyatt gave full credit to the brilliant work of blocking back Jim Cartwright, who returned an interception 59 yards for the first touchdown given up by LSU in 10 games.

"As far as I'm concerned," Wyatt said, "Cartwright played the finest game of his career." In addition to his scoring interception, Cartwright hauled down another pass in the fourth period to halt an LSU drive.

"He played a tremendous game," Wyatt said of the 190 pound junior from Athens, Tenn.

In the dressing room of the losing Bayou Bengals, dejected Coach Paul Dietzel said Cartwright's interception and fullback Earl Gross' fumble a few minutes later told the whole story as far as he was concerned.

Asked if it was any relief for the tension of maintaining a 19-game victory streak to be ended, Dietzel shook his head glumly, and added:

"It's never any relief for me to lose a ball game."

"I can't say that Tennessee is the best team we've faced all year," Dietzel added. "They all were tough."

Was it a letdown from Mississippi?

Dietzel said he couldn't say, adding. "It's always tough to maintain a schedule against top competition week after week."

Bernie Moore, Southeastern Conference commissioner and former LSU head coach, said Cartwright's interception was the turning point of the game.

"That pass interception changed the complexion of the game," Moore asserted. "Tennessee got its head up then and really went to war."

Tennessee Ends Longest Streak

Cannon & Co. opened up with a all-out offensive push in the third period, a force which would have taken the heart from a lot of football teams.

Tennessee's defensive forces rose to the occasion as the Tigers pushed them into the shadow of their goal posts.

Cannon's 35-yard kickoff return opening the second half, quarterback Warren Rabb's 21-yard pass to fullback Donnie Daye and a 15-yard display of power and speed by Cannon, move the Tigers to the Vol 13 with a first down.

Coach Paul Dietzel sent Wendell Harris in to attempt a field goal from the 5. With the ball at the Tennessee 12, Harris kicked the ball high and long but it was just wide to the right. It was his second miss of the year.

The next time the Tigers got the ball, Rabb ran off to the right on first down, tossed to pass intended for Robinson in the flat and Cartwright snared it. He made a jumping, twisting catch of the ball, coming down with it at the Vol 41 and raced down the left sidelines 59 yards to score.

Cotton Letner kicked the point to make it 7-7.

Gene Etter kicked off to Purvis on the 11 and the little Tiger came back to the 22. Gros, after gaining seven yards, fumbled at the 29 and Sadler was there to recover for the Vols. The Vols turned it into the winning TD.

The Tigers got a TD in the fourth period. Cannon blasted a 49-yard punt. It hit Bill Majors inside the 20 and rolled goalward. Ed McCreedy recovered at the Tennessee 2.

Three plays later Durel Matherene scored on a quarterback sneak. Going for two points — and a victory — on the extra point, Cannon was halted just short of the goal and that ended streak.

LSU, still trying to pull the game out, drove to the Vol 16 in their last real thrust but Cannon fumbled on the Tennessee 20 and guard Jack Kile recovered to preserve Tennessee's victory.

LSU got its first touchdown the second quarter, going 74 yards in 11 plays. Cannon and Robinson grounded out most of the real estate and Cannon, taking a handoff from Rabb, caught the Vol defenders relaxed and raced 26 yards unmolested to score. Harris kicked the extra point and the Tigers led, 7-0, until Cartwright's pass interception turned the tables.

Mich. State Cops 15-0 Win Over Purdue

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Dean Look hit two touchdown passes for Michigan State and drove his team to within field-goal kicking distance in leading the Spartans to a 15-0 victory over Purdue that killed any Boilermaker Big Ten title hopes Saturday.

The second loss against two victories and a tie automatically eliminated Purdue from the dog-eat-dog Western Conference honors battle.

Michigan State now 3-2 in the Big Ten also is out of contention. But the victory before 58,203 Spartan Stadium fans made up for humiliating defeats by the Boilermakers the last two seasons.

The Michigan State quarterback completed only two passes in the first half but both were good for touchdowns.

Michigan State was stopped on the Purdue 28 and set up an apparent field goal try on the 35. It was a well-concealed fake and Look passed instead to Gary Ballman, who pulled down the floater just at the goal line for the score in the first quarter.

Look connected with a second quarter scoring pitch from the Purdue 48. End Jim Corgiat grabbed it on the 17 and skirted down the sidelines to score.

Art Brandstatter missed both extra point tries but made up for it by kicking a field goal from the 13 with 20 seconds to go in the third period.

Jerry Knipping of Northeast recorded the highest single game with 252 and the highest series with 629.

Other Northeast team members are Kenneth May, Larry McCarthy, Donald Spatafora and Don Waldron.

Russell, Stilt Even In Pro Cage Battle

BOSTON (AP) — Bill Russell and Wilt Chamberlain played each other to a gasping standstill, Boston had the best of the rest and the world champion Celtics took their sixth straight National Basketball Assn. victory, 115-106 over Philadelphia, Saturday night.

It was Philadelphia's first loss and increased Boston's Eastern Division lead to two games.

Chamberlain and Russell played the entire game, and appeared to be tiring badly in the later stages of their inaugural duel.

Chamberlain, Philadelphia's 7-1 rookie wonder, outscored Russell 30 to 22, but it was his lowest point production of the season.

Russell, at 6-10 the acknowledged defensive standout of the league, beat Wilt 35-30 on rebounds.

The Celtics forged an 8-0 lead and Philadelphia simply could not catch up. The closest the Warriors ever came was a five-point difference on three occasions.

Chamberlain's 30 topped the scoring, with teammate Paul Arizin pumped in 29. Bill Sharman and Bob Cousy led the winners with 25 and 24, respectively.

Boston never was in serious difficulty after Cousy hit two quick drive shots, Sharman added one from the floor and Cousy and Russell sank free throws for the Celtics' opening lead.

Boston widened its margin to 21-7 before Philadelphia began making any show at all.

The Warriors close within seven points, 24-17, at the first quarter mark and stayed within five to 12 points until midway in the final quarter.

The Celtics at that point broke the Warriors' full court press and moved out to a lead that once got as high as 14 points.

13-6 Decision

SEATTLE (AP) — Washington had its troubles with Oregon State's rugged defense Saturday before the Rose Bowl hopeful Huskies put away a 13-6 victory on a recovered fumble and an 87-yard scoring march.

With 5 minutes left in the first half, end John Meyers fell on a State fumble at the Beaver 35 and in seven plays Washington had its TD. Schloredt got it, plunging the final foot.

The other Washington touchdown came in the third period after Oregon State's first serious threat fizzled on an incomplete fourth down pass.

Field Goal, PAT Looked Good--Dietzel

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Louisiana State University Coach Paul Dietzel made it clear Saturday he wasn't challenging any decisions but said two LSU scoring attempts looked like good points to him.

Dietzel said he though a field goal attempt by Wendell Harris in the third quarter "was good." The youthful mentor added "but my position from the bench didn't afford a perfect view."

The LSU coach also said he thought Billy Cannon was on the goal line when he attempted to run for two conversion points following the Tigers' second touchdown. "I thought he may have gone in but certainly wouldn't make an issue of it," Dietzel said.

He added "we were naturally sick with disappointment — this breaks a 19-game winning streak for us, you know — but its like I told the fellows in the dessing room talk: 'We've been good winnes, for a long time, now let's be equally good losers.'"

"Our offense was about as sharp as it has been all season," Dietzel commented.

Iowa Romps To 33-0 Win

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Quarterback Olen Treadway set a collegiate passing record and led Iowa's swift Hawkeyes out of the Big Ten cellar in a 33-0 romp over Minnesota Saturday.

Treadway, who blossomed into a star only in his senior year, set a national record for passes attempted without an interception with a 7-yard toss to end Jeff Langston in the second period for the go-ahead touchdown.

The scoring toss was Treadway's 101th without an interception, breaking the old mark of 106 set by Florian Helinski of Indiana during the 1953-54 seasons. Treadway ran the mark to 111 without a steal before the game was over.

The win was Iowa's second in five starts in the Big Ten and broke a cellar-dwelling tie between the Hawkeyes and three other teams. The victory was the fifth in a row for the defending Big Ten champs over Minnesota, which was pushed further into the league basement with a 14 mark.

SCORE IN LAST TWO MINUTES

Demons Use Indian Fumble For 24-19 Gulf States Win

By JIM CALHOUN
Staff Sports Writer

NATCHITOCHES, La. — Trailing with less than two minutes to play, Northwestern turned a Northeast fumble into the winning touchdown here Saturday afternoon to take a 24-19 homecoming victory.

Senior halfback Ralph Conrad, the Demons' "old pro", bulldozed over from two yards out for the touchdown that snatched an apparant victory from Northeast after a goal line stand had held firm only seconds before.

Controversy marked the fumble recovery that turned the tide for NSC. After the Indians had held on the 10-yard line and Jim Griffin's last-ditch field goal attempt was wide, the Indians took over on their own 20 with three minutes remaining.

Quarterback Bob Randel, attempting to run out the clock, moved through the line for one yard and then dropped the ball on the following play.

When the pileup was untangled, Indian Jim Laudadio and Demon Jimmy Williams were still battling for the ball. One official ruled the Indians had retained possession and another called it Northwestern's ball. After short discussion, the Demons were awarded the ball on the Demon's 19.

Then Conrad, who earlier streaked 58 yards for a first quarter touchdown, took command. He alternately skirted the ends for 11 and three yards before Randel saved the day temporarily with a driving tackle on the two. On fourth down, Conrad knifed over right tackle, was hit on the one and fell on the goal line for the clincher with 1:05 remaining.

Griffin kicked the PAT.

A desperation pass from Northeast's John O'Conner was intercepted by Dan Deen of Northwestern with a half minute left in the game and the Demons ran out the clock.

Northeast almost salted away its second Gulf States Conference victory with a fourth quarter touchdown by reserve fullback David Barnes and a rock-like goal line stand.

End Pete Covington, who accounted for the first Northeast score on a pass from Randel, opened the door for Barnes' six-pointer when he recovered Conrad's bobble on the NSC 20.

Curtis Cook bucked for four yards, Stewart Stover was held for no gain and O'Conner's pass to Cook in the end zone fell incomplete.

Covington gave Northeast a first down on the five with diving catch of an O'Conner pass. Barnes, fresh off the bench, plunged to the three and Cook crashed to the one. On third down, Barnes moved off tackle for the score. O'Conner's point after put the Indians ahead, 19-17.

NSC took the following kickoff and moved almost the length of the field behind the pin-point passing of quarterback Dale Hoffpauire. All-GSC end Billy Booth of Farmerville grabbed on aerial for 18 yards and caught another for a 35-yard advance before O'Conner pulled him down from behind on the Indian 21. Three rushes carried for a first down on the 10 before the Redskin defense stiffened and held for three downs.

With an opportunity to go into the lead, the Demons went for a field goal with Griffin trying. The boot went wide to the left and left Northeast ahead.

Then came Randel's fumble and Conrad's clincher.

The Demons struck for the first touchdown in the opening two minutes of the contest. Northeast took the opening kickoff and picked up a first down before being stopped on the Demon 38.

Booth blocked Covington's fourth down kick, scooped it up on the 45 and raced untouched for the initial touchdown. Griffin's kick made it 7-0 with 13:35 left in the period.

Northeast got a big break moments later when tackle Delmas Thorne recovered a fumble by Jimmy Aldredge on the NSC 17. On the first play from scrimmage, Randel threw to the rangy Covington for the touchdown. Laudio's kick was wide.

Northeast kicked off and the Demons stormed back to widen their margin. Aldredge started the drive, returning Laudadio's kickoff from the 18 all the way to the Northwestern 38 where Covington made the tackle. Freshmen halfback Raymond Eddy got four yards on a pitchout and then Conrad broke away for a 58-yard scoring gallop.

Aldredge took out Joe Thrialkill on the Northeast 35 to shake Conrade loose. Griffin split crossbars and the Demons were ahead, 14-6.

Northwestern put together a 61-yard penetration late in the opening stanza and Griffin climaxed it with a 15-yard field goal. Sub quarterback Larry Crow's 20-yard pass to Jackie Smith and Conrad's 15-yard thrust led the way.

With Hoffpauir connecting consistently, Northwestern drove to the Tribe one early in the second period. Hoffpauir hit Charles De Sadier on 14-yarder and pitched to West Monroyan George Smith for 36 yards. On second down from the Redskin two, Eddy fumbled and Laudadio dropped on it at the one to bar the door.

Northeast then drove 99 yards for its second touchdown with O'Conner passing to Terry Reeves for the final 36 yards. Laudadio started the march with a 12-yard burst and added eight more. O'Conner pitched to Reeves for 11 and connected with Covington for 11 more to the Tribe's 42.

O'Conner then faded to pass, couldn't find a receiver and reeled off the third consecutive 11-yard advance on a sparkling run. With first down on the 36, O'Conner again threw to Reeves who hauled it in on the 15 and broke away from two defenders to dash over. Stover, attempting to run the extra point, was snowed under and NSC led at halftime, 17-12.

The heart-breaking defeat shackled Coach Jack Rowan's Indians with their third loss against one victory in GSC competition. Northwestern moved into a second place with Southeastern with a 2-1 record.

The Northeast defensive effort received a blow when end Charley Barnes, an apparent fixture in the Demon backfield, left the game early in the second half with an injury.

Center Perry Beaver, guard Alfred Feeney, and tackle Thorne headed the Northeast defense. Robert Powell, George Smith and Earl Phillips starred defensively for the Demons.

Laudadio was the top carrier for Northeast with 35 yards in eight tries. Covington caught three passes for 39 yards and Booth pulled in the same number for 63 yards.

Northwestern utilized a jumping-jack lineup frequently, drawing offside several times.

TREMENDOUS RECEPTION

10,000 Fans Say LSU Still No. 1

BATON ROUGE (AP) —"We're No. 1! We're No. 1!" echoed across Ryan Airport here Saturday night as an estimated crowd of 10,000 jammed the field to welcome LSU'S TIgiers, returning from their first defeat after a 19-game winning streak.

The spontaneous outburst kept the team from landing for over a half hour as fans crowded onto the landing strip and mobbed a charted plane with 107 local fans aboard.

Because of the LSU supporters on the feld, Delta Airline officials had the Convair carrying the team circle the field from 7:45 to 8:24 p.m., then roll up to the ramp with propellors stopped.

"That was the greatest reception I have ever seen," Head Coach Paul Dietzel said after he was back on the campus. "It was wonderful for the people to turn out like that.

"The players," he added, "really appreciated the townspeople backing them in defeat as well as in victory."

Actually, Saturday night's reception following the 14-13 loss to Tennessee was larger than any the team received after their out-of-town victories.

The crowd took local law enforcement officers by surprise, with only a few sheriff's deputies being on hand at first. City Police and state troopers were forced to go to the airport as reinforcements.

Fans parked their cars haphazardly in the vicnity of the airport and walked to the landing area because of the tremendous traffic jam.

Roars and cheers rocked the arport terminal as the team filed off its plane. Players, some stopping to sign autographs, boarded a bus and were whisked with a police escort to the university campus.

The calls to the airport requesting the time of arrival of the plane were so numerous that Delta Airlines hooked its phones to a recording device which repeated the estimated arrival time o' the team plane and then provided another number if a caller was seeking other information.

Television and radio announcers called on Baton Rouge residents to turn out for the team arrival after the game ended.

No parade was staged as the players were taken to the university immediately and the heavy traffic blocked plans of fans who wanted to start an impromput motorcade.

West Jefferson Beats McDonogh

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Lou Blanda scored one touchdown and tossed two scoring aerials to Lionel Boudreaux Saturday night to pace West Jefferson to a 26-12 victory over McDonogh.

Russell Galliano scored the other West Jeff touchdown and scored one conversion. Blanda made the other conversion.

McDonogh's touchdowns were made by Gene Reyes and Joel Fazzio.

Shifting Of Linebackers Helped Vols Defeat LSU

By BILL RAWLINS

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee Coach Bowden Wyatt said that shifting his linebackers to stop All-America Billy Cannon in the second half was partly responsible for Tennessee's 14-13 upset of Louisiana State Saturday.

But Wyatt gave full credit to the brilliant work of blocking back Jim Cartwright, who returned an interception 59 yards for the first touchdown given up by LSU in 10 games.

"As far as I'm concerned," Wyatt said, "Cartwright played the finest game of his career." In addition to his scoring interception, Cartwright hauled down another pass in the fourth period to halt an LSU drive.

"He played a tremendous game," Wyatt said of the 190 pound junior from Athens, Tenn.

In the dressing room of the losing Bayou Bengals, dejected Coach Paul Dietzel said Cartwright's interception and fullback Earl Gross' fumble a few minutes later told the whole story as far as he was concerned.

Asked if it was any relief for the tension of maintaining a 19-game victory streak to be ended, Dietzel shook his head glumly, and added:

"It's never any relief for me to lose a ball game."

"I can't say that Tennessee is the best team we've faced all year," Dietzel added. "They all were tough."

Was it a letdown from Mississippi?

Dietzel said he couldn't say, adding, "It's always tough to maintain a schedule against top competition week after week."

Bernie Moore, Southeastern Conference commissioner and former LSU head coach, said Cartwright's interception was the turning point of the game.

"That pass interception changed the complexion of the game," Moore asserted. "Tennessee got its head up then and really went to war."

Tennessee Ends Longest Streak

Cannon & Co. opened up with a all-out offensive push in the third period, a force which would have taken the heart from a lot of football teams.

Tennessee's defensive forces rose to the occasion as the Tigers pushed them into the shadow of their goal posts.

Cannon's 35-yard kickoff return opening the second half, quarterback Warren Rabb's 21-yard pass to fullback Donnie Daye and a 15-yard display of power and speed by Cannon, move the Tigers to the Vol 13 with a first down.

Coach Paul Dietzel sent Wendell Harris in to attempt a field goal from the 5. With the ball at the Tennessee 12, Harris kicked the ball high and long but it was just wide to the right. It was his second miss of the year.

The next time the Tigers got the ball, Rabb ran off to the right on first down, tossed to pass intended for Robinson in the flat and Cartwright snared it. He made a jumping, twisting catch of the ball, coming down with it at the Vol 41 and raced down the left sidelines 59 yards to score.

Cotton Letner kicked the point to make it 7-7.

Gene Etter kicked off to Purvis on the 11 and the little Tiger came back to the 22. Gros, after gaining seven yards, fumbled at the 29 and Sadler was there to recover for the Vols. The Vols turned it into the winning TD.

The Tigers got a TD in the fourth period. Cannon blasted a 49-yard punt. It hit Bill Majors inside the 20 and rolled goalward. Ed McCreedy recovered at the Tennessee 2.

Three plays later Durel Matherene scored on a quarterback sneak. Going for two points — and a victory — on the extra point, Cannon was halted just short of the goal and that ended streak.

LSU, still trying to pull the game out, drove to the Vol 16 in their last real thrust but Cannon fumbled on the Tennessee 20 and guard Jack Kile recovered to preserve Tennessee's victory.

LSU got its first touchdown the second quarter, going 74 yards in 11 plays. Cannon and Robinson grounded out most of the real estate and Cannon, taking a handoff from Rabb, caught the Vol defenders relaxed and raced 26 yards unmolested to score. Harris kicked the extra point and the Tigers led, 7-0, until Cartwright's pass interception turned the tables.

Mich. State Cops 15-0 Win Over Purdue

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)— Dean Look hit two touchdown passes for Michigan State and drove his team to within field-goal kicking distance in leading the Spartans to a 15-0 victory over Purdue that killed any Boilermaker Big Ten title hopes Saturday.

The second loss against two victories and a tie automatically eliminated Purdue from the dog-eat-dog Western Conference honors battle.

Michigan State now 3-2 in the Big Ten also is out of contention. But the victory before 58,203 Spartan Stadium fans made up for humiliating defeats by the Boilermakers the last two seasons.

The Michigan State quarterback completed only two passes in the first half but both were good for touchdowns.

Michigan State was stopped on the Purdue 28 and set up an apparent field goal try on the 35. It was a well-concealed fake and Look passed instead to Gary Ballman, who pulled down the floater just at the goal line for the score in the first quarter.

Look connected with a second quarter scoring pitch from the Purdue 48. End Jim Corgiat grabbed it on the 17 and skirted down the sidelines to score.

Art Brandstatter missed both extra point tries but made up for it by kicking a field goal from the 13 with 20 seconds to go in the third period.

Russell, Stilt Even In Pro Cage Battle

BOSTON (AP) — Bill Russell and Wilt Chamberlain played each other to a gasping standstill, Boston had the best of the rest and the world champion Celtics took their sixth straight National Basketball Assn. victory, 115-106 over Philadelphia, Saturday night.

It was Philadelphia's first loss and increased Boston's Eastern Division lead to two games.

Chamberlain and Russell played the entire game, and appeared to be tiring badly in the later stages of their inaugural duel.

Chamberlain, Philadelphia's 7-1 rookie wonder, outscored Russell 30 to 22, but it was his lowest point production of the season.

Russell, at 6-10 the acknowledged defensive standout of the league, beat Wilt 35-30 on rebounds.

The Celtics forged an 8-0 lead and Philadelphia simply could not catch up. The closest the Warriors ever came was a five-point difference on three occasions.

Chamberlain's 30 topped the scoring, with teammate Paul Arizin pumped in 29. Bill Sharman and Bob Cousy led the winners with 25 and 24, respectively.

Boston never was in serious difficulty after Cousy hit two quick drive shots, Sharman added one from the floor and Cousy and Russell sank free throws for the Celtics' opening lead.

Boston widened its margin to 21-7 before Philadelphia began making any show at all.

The Warriors close within seven points, 24-17, at the first quarter mark and stayed within five to 12 points until midway in the final quarter.

The Celtics at that point broke the Warriors' full court press and moved out to a lead that once got as high as 14 points.

13-6 Decision

SEATTLE (AP) — Washington had its troubles with Oregon State's rugged defense Saturday before the Rose Bowl hopeful Huskies put away a 13-6 victory on a recovered fumble and an 87-yard scoring march.

With 5 minutes left in the first half, end John Meyers fell on a State fumble at the Beaver 35 and in seven plays Washington had its TD. Schloredt got it, plunging the final foot.

The other Washington touchdown came in the third period after Oregon State's first serious threat fizzled on an incomplete fourth down pass.

Field Goal, PAT Looked Good--Dietzel

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Louisiana State University Coach Paul Dietzel made it clear Saturday he wasn't challenging any decisions but said two LSU scoring attempts looked like good points to him.

Dietzel said he though a field goal attempt by Wendell Harris in the third quarter "was good." The youthful mentor added "but my position from the bench didn't afford a perfect view."

The LSU coach also said he thought Billy Cannon was on the goal line when he attempted to run for two conversion points following the Tigers' second touchdown. "I thought he may have gone in but certainly wouldn't make an issue of it," Dietzel said.

He added "we were naturally sick with disappointment — this breaks a 19-game winning streak for us, you know — but its like I told the fellows in the dessing room talk: 'We've been good winnes for a long time, now let's be equally good losers.'"

"Our offense was about as sharp as it has been all season," Dietzel commented.

Iowa Romps To 33-0 Win

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Quarterback Olen Treadway set a collegiate passing record and led Iowa's swift Hawkeyes out of the Big Ten cellar in a 33-0 romp over Minnesota Saturday.

Treadway, who blossomed into a star only in his senior year, set a national record for passes attempted without an interception with a 7-yard toss to end Jeff Langston in the second period for the go-ahead touchdown.

The scoring toss was Treadway's 10th without an interception, breaking the old mark of 106 set by Florian Helinski of Indiana during the 1953-54 seasons. Treadway ran the mark to 111 without a steal before the game was over.

The win was Iowa's second in five starts in the Big Ten and broke a cellar - dwelling tie between the Hawkeyes and three other teams. The victory was the fifth in a row for the defending Big Ten champs over Minnesota, which was pushed further into the league basement with a 14 mark.

SCORE IN LAST TWO MINUTES

Demons Use Indian Fumble For 24-19 Gulf States Win

By JIM CALHOUN
Staff Sports Writer

NATCHITOCHES, La. — Trailing with less than two minutes to play, Northwestern turned a Northeast fumble into the winning touchdown here Saturday afternoon to take a 24-19 homecoming victory.

Senior halfback Ralph Conrad, the Demons' "old pro", bulldozed over from two yards out for the touchdown that snatched an apparant victory from Northeast after a goal line stand had held firm only seconds before.

Controversy marked the fumble recovery that turned the tide for NSC. After the Indians had held on the 10-yard line and Jim Griffin's last-ditch field goal attempt was wide, the Indians took over on their own 20 with three minutes remaining.

Quarterback Bob Randel, attempting to run out the clock, moved through the line for one yard and then dropped the ball on the following play.

When the pileup was untangled, Indian Jim Laudadio and Demon Jimmy Williams were still battling for the ball. One official ruled the Indians had retained possession and another called it Northwestern's ball. After short discussion, the Demons were awarded the ball on the Demon's 19.

Then Conrad, who earlier streaked 58 yards for a first quarter touchdown, took command. He alternately skirted the ends for 11 and three yards before Randel saved the day temporarily with a driving tackle on the two. On fourth down, Conrad knifed over right tackle, was hit on the one and fell on the goal line for the clincher with 1:05 remaining.

Griffin kicked the PAT.

A desperation pass from Northeast's John O'Conner was intercepted by Dan Deen of Northwestern with a half minute left in the game and the Demons ran out the clock.

Northeast almost salted away its second Gulf States Conference victory with a fourth quarter touchdown by reserve fullback David Barnes and a rock-like goal line stand.

End Pete Covington, who accounted for the first Northeast score on a pass from Randel, opened the door for Barnes' six-pointer when he recovered Conrad's bobble on the NSC 20.

Curtis Cook bucked for four yards, Stewart Stover was held for no gain and O'Conner's pass to Cook in the end zone fell incomplete.

Covington gave Northeast a first down on the five with diving catch of an O'Conner pass. Barnes, fresh off the bench, plunged to the three and Cook crashed to the one. On third down, Barnes moved off tackle for the score. O'Conner's point after put the Indians ahead, 19-17.

NSC took the following kickoff and moved almost the length of the field behind the pin-point passing of quarterback Dale Hoffpauiro, All - GSC end Billy Booth of Farmerville grabbed on aerial for 18 yards and caught another for a 35-yard advance before O'Conner pulled him down from behind on the Indian 21. Three rushes carried for a first down on the 10 before the Redskin defense stiffened and held for three downs.

With an opportunity to go into the lead, the Demons went for a field goal with Griffin trying. The boot went wide to the left and left Northeast ahead.

Then came Randel's fumble and Conrad's clincher.

The Demons struck for the first touchdown in the opening two minutes of the contest. Northeast took the opening kickoff and picked up a first down before being stopped on the Demon 38.

Booth blocked Covington's fourth down kick, scooped it up on the 45 and raced untouched for the initial touchdown. Griffin's kick made it 7-0 with 13:35 left in the period.

Northeast got a big break moments later when tackle Delmas Thorne recovered a fumble by Jimmy Aldredge on the NSC 17. On the first play from scrimmage, Randel threw to the rangy Covington for the touchdown. Laudio's kick was wide.

Northeast kicked off and the Demons stormed back to widen their margin. Aldredge started the drive, returning Laudadio's kickoff from the 18 all the way to the Northwestern 38 where Covington made the tackle. Freshmen halfback Raymond Eddy got four yards on a pitchout and then Conrad broke away for a 58-yard scoring gallop.

Aldredge took out Joe Thrialkill on the Northeast 35 to shake Conrade loose. Griffin split crossbars and the Demons were ahead, 14-6.

Northwestern put together a 61 - yard penetration late in the opening stanza and Griffin climaxed it with a 15-yard field goal. Sub quarterback Larry Crow's 20-yard pass to Jackie Smith and Conrad's 15-yard thrust led the way.

With Hoffpauir connecting consistently, Northwestern drove to the Tribe one early in the second period. Hoffpauir hit Charles De Sadier on 14-yarder and pitched to West Monroyan George Smith for 36 yards. On second down from the Redskin two, Eddy fumbled and Laudadio dropped on it at the one to bar the door.

Northeast then drove 99 yards for its second touchdown with O'Conner passing to Terry Reeves for the final 36 yards. Laudadio started the march with a 12-yard burst and added eight more. O'Conner pitched to Reeves for 11 and connected with Covington for 11 more to the Tribe's 42.

O'Conner then faded to pass, couldn't find a receiver and reeled off the third consecutive 11-yard advance on a sparkling run. With first down on the 36, O'Conner again threw to Reeves who hauled it in on the 15 and broke away from two defenders to dash over. Stover, attempting to run the extra point, was snowed under and NSC led at halftime, 17-12.

The heart-breaking defeat shackled Coach Jack Rowan's Indians with their third loss against one victory in GSC competition. Northwestern moved into a second place with Southeastern with a 2-1 record.

The Northeast defensive effort received a blow when end Charley Barnes, an apparent fixture in the Demon backfield, left the game early in the second half with an injury.

Center Perry Beaver, guard Alfred Feeney, and tackle Thorne headed the Northeast defense. Robert Powell, George Smith and Earl Phillips starred defensively for the Demons.

Laudadio was the top carrier for Northeast with 35 yards in eight tries. Covington caught three passes for 39 yards and Booth pulled in the same number for 63 yards.

Northwestern utilized a jumping-jack lineup frequently, drawing offside several times.

TREMENDOUS RECEPTION

10,000 Fans Say LSU Still No. 1

BATON ROUGE (AP) —"We're No. 1! We're No. 1!" echoed across Ryan Airport here Saturday night as an estimated crowd of 10,000 jammed the field to welcome LSU'S Tigiers, returning from their first defeat after a 19-game winning streak.

The spontaneous outburst kept the team from landing for over a half hour as fans crowded onto the landing strip and mobbed a charted plane with 107 local fans aboard.

Because of the LSU supporters on the feld, Delta Airline officials had the Convair carrying the team circle the field from 7:45 to 8:24 p.m., then roll up to the ramp with propellors stopped.

"That was the greatest reception I have ever seen," Head Coach Paul Dietzel said after he was back on the campus. "It was wonderful for the people to turn out like that.

"The players," he added, "really appreciated the townspeople backing them in defeat as well as in victory."

Actually, Saturday night's reception following the 14-13 loss to Tennessee was larger than any the team received after their out-of-town victories.

The crowd took local law enforcement officers by surprise, with only a few sheriff's deputies being on hand at first. City Police and state troopers were forced to go to the airport as reinforcements.

Fans parked their cars haphazardly in the vicnity of the airport and walked to the landing area because of the tremendous traffic jam.

Roars and cheers rocked the arport terminal as the team filed off its plane. Players, some stopping to sign autographs, boarded a bus and were whisked with a police escort to the university campus.

The calls to the airport requesting the time of arrival of the plane were so numerous that Delta Airlines hooked its phones to a recording device which repeated the estimated arrival time of the team plane and then provided another number if a caller was seeking other information.

Television and radio announcers called on Baton Rouge residents to turn out for the team arrival after the game ended.

No parade was staged as the players were taken to the university immediately and the heavy traffic blocked plans of fans who wanted to start an impromput motorcade.

West Jefferson Beats McDonogh

Russell Galliano scored the other West Jeff touchdown and scored one conversion. Blanda made the other conversion.

McDonogh's touchdowns were made by Gene Reyes and Joel Fazzio.

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

Louisiana politics of not many years ago gave "double dipping" a bad name even if the kids did, and still do, look upon it with favor in bidding for that extra scoop of cream. It depends on what you mean.

Monroe football fans, disregarding politics and as happy as the ice cream-hungry kids, are shooting for their first double dip in Louisiana high school football.

When the Ouachita Parish High Lions polished off the Byrd Yellow Jackets in Shreveport Thursday night, it left the charges of Coach Bob Ellen needing only to sack the Bossier Bearcats here next Friday night to clinch the district triple-A championship.

But Bossier is out to upset Ouachita's cart and do something about picking up all the marbles. The Bearcats' defeat of West Monroe Friday night left them standing alone as the lone threat to the Lions.

The Neville High Tigers, with supporters who think Bill Ruple's Boys can lick any schoolboy outfit in any class in the state, led the way in the state's district championship races when they reclaimed the 2-AA title with the defeat of Ruston three weeks ago.

While Ouachita's hasn't nailed down a championship in over a decade, Neville has (including this year's district crown) won the district in four of the last five seasons, was runner-up for the state double-A title last year and won the first state championship to be claimed by a Monroe team in 44 years when Ruple's 1955 club went all the way, beating Reserve in the title final, 27-14.

Never has two teams of the city won titles the same year.

Once, before organization of triple-A or double-A, Ouachita and Neville finished in a tie with Ruston and Bolton of Alexandria for the district Class A title. That was in 1936 when Bolton beat Neville, Ouachita bounced Ruston and then Bolton eliminated Ouachita in the district playoffs.

Ouachita last won a district championship as a double-A (the triple-A classification was yet to be organized) team in 1948 when such former Lions of ex-coach Jim Hodgins as Wayne McDonald, Tommy Wilson, Bert DeLoach, Johnny Goodwin, Jack Smith, Gayle Ward, Robert Parker, Ken Greer, Billy Joe Milstead, E. J. Sievers, Harold Phillips, Mark Boatright, Bob Carter, Bobby Bruce, Wayne McCarty, and Herman DeLoach were getting in their licks for the Red and White.

If the Lions reach the district goal it will be because it has been made possible by boys like Ervin Bates, Tommy Winkler, Johnny Roach, Bill Rambin, Bill Solomon, William Matkins, Phil Youngblood, Don Ellen, Bobby Hendrix, R. W. Kimball, James Cromwell, Harry Crowe, Bobby Shipp, Bob Saterfield, Herbert Perry, Woody Mahoney, Bubba Via, Gary Warlick, Ed Higginbotham, David Rawls, Ted Smith, Dennis Warner, Donnie Letterman, Danny Tousinau, Bob Knickerbocker, Danny Duke, Jimmy Lewis, Johnny Butler, Rayford Haygood, Billy Rushing, James Richardson, Wincel Bass, Kenny Hickey, Ernest Loyd, and Bill Cornett. Some of them have been benched during the course of the season because of injuries that have closed the season for a very few, but all have had a hand in getting Ouachita this far along the championship route.

When Neville's successes of '59 are being recounted keep in mind this fine group of athletes who have made it possible — James Hunt, Dooley Haddad, Neal Gunn, Arthur Williams, Robert Turner, Mickey Cox, Devone Payne, Joe Cage, Jim Love, Charles Snapp, Joe Turner, Lucien Branch, Robert Bryan, Bill LaFrance, Sperry Brown, Bucky Buckner, Jack Burton, John Loftin, Robert Payne, Herschell Walker, Scooter Morgan, Tommy Scott, R. F. Wilson, Beverly Franks, Steve Slade, Ralph Roberts, Bill Becton, Bernard Bryant, Jack Youngblood, Steve Jefferson, Mike Pickett, John Mittell, Joey McGinn, Jerry Jones, and Bobby Duncan.

Army Takes 14-0 Triumph Over Inept Villanova

WEST POINT, N.Y., (AP) — Army's bread and butter players — Joe Caldwell, Bill Carpenter and Bob Anderson — teamed up for a touchdown that gave the Cadets a first period cushion Saturday and the Cadets went on to beat Villanova 14-0 in their last home game of the season.

It was an inept exhibition by an Army team that was favored by some 30 points over Villanova, which now has lost seven of its eight games.

Using substitutes freely, often players who weren't even listed in the three-deep line-up, Army was able to mount only two consistent drives that paid off with touchdowns. And there was a lapse between them of some 36 minutes of playing time.

Fullback Don Banko made the first score on a plunge after two Caldwell-Carpenter passes, a toss from Anderson to Glen Blumhart and a couple of runs by Anderson had paved the way. The second came at the start of the fourth quarter on a 10-yard pass from Glen Adams, a third-string halfback, to end Frank Gibson.

DARTMOUTH, 22-0

NEW YORK, (AP) — Dartmouth defeated Columbia 22-0 in an Ivy League football game played in mud and rain played before a scant 5,000 Saturday.

MOOTY GOES FOR SIX — Arkansas' star halfback Jim Mooty (24) picks up six yards against Rice at Houston yesterday before being tackled by Tommy Stellman (82). Joe Paul Alberty (45) missed his block and Gerald Gusler (66) of Rice moved in to help with the stop. (AP Wirephoto)

Techmen Clinch Share Of GSC Title With 14-0 Win

HAMMOND, La. (Special) — Louisiana Tech captured at least a share of the Gulf States Conference title by shutting out Southeastern, 14-0, here Saturday afternoon.

It was Tech's fourth straight GSC win without a setback. The Bulldogs will now be able to win the championship outright if they can take their final conference contest over Northeast State at Ruston No. 21.

The loss was the first in GSC action for the Southeastern Lions who now stand 2-1 in league competition.

In winning Southeastern's homecoming day game, the visiting Techsters pushed across touchdowns in the first and fourth periods. The first came on a one-yard plunge by fullback Max Rudd and the second on a four-yard rush by halfback and co-captain J. W. Slack.

STATISTICS	Tech	SLC

Tech also drove to the Lions' six-yard line in the third period, only to have a fourth-down pass fall incomplete. A rugged Bulldog defense kept the Southeastern attack bottled up most of the time as the Lions got no further than the Tech 34 in the first half. SLC's deepest penetration came in the closing minutes of the game when they reached Tech's 18-yard stripe.

The first period score by the Techmen was set up by a Southeastern fumble recovered on the Lion eight-yard line by Bulldog Tackle Bobby Hudson. Paul Hynes took it to the five, Rudd rammed to the run and on the next play, Rudd bulled it over. Slack's PAT kick was good and Tech went ahead, 7-0, with three remaining in the first quarter.

This Tech score came immediately after the Bulldogs had marched from their own 29 to the Southeastern six, only to lose the ball on downs. SLC took over but fumbled with Hudson recovering and giving the Techmen a second chance.

Slack's four-yard run for the second Bulldog TD came with only four minutes left in the game. Rudd kicked the PAT to put the Canines ahead with a safer 14-0 lead.

This final touchdown climaxed a 45-yard drive. Slack took a fair catch of an SLC punt on the Lion 45. Rudd picked up a first on a 13-yard run, Slack got another first on the 14 and then Rudd, Slack and Hynes worked it to the four from where Slack went across.

Southeastern came right back after the second Tech score and aided by a 45-yard pass play from Elbert Harris to halfback Talmadge Lee, drove to the Tech 18-yard marker. The Lion drive was cut short, however, when the Techsters intercepted a Harris pass.

Next game for Tech will be the Bulldogs' homecoming battle Nov. 14 against Memphis State.

Texas Rallies To Nip Baylor, 13-12

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)— Texas came from behind Saturday with a late fourth period running surge by Jack Collins, Rene Ramirez and Mike Dowdle to squeeze a 13-12 victory over upset-minded Baylor.

Texas, nationally fourth ranked, eked out the narrow victory on a 39-yard scoring drive set up by a fumble recovery and enabled the Longhorns to keep their undefeated string at eight games this season.

Coach Darrell Royal's Longhorns also maintained leadership of the Southwest Conference on a 4-0 record with the hard - fought win over archrival Baylor.

Baylor rode the bullet passing arm of sophomore Ronnie Stanley to a 12-7 lead late in the third period. Stanley, who guided the Bears to both their touchdowns, plunged over from the 2 to climax an 80-yard drive.

The margin of victory proved to be the toe of quarterback Bobby Lackey, who kicked the extra point after Texas' first touchdown early in the first quarter.

Texas needed to move only 19 yards for its first touchdown, after a short Baylor punt. Lackey plunged over from the 1 for the score.

Baylor drove 74 yards late in the second period to score. Stanley contributed 23 yards on a keeper run, and sophomore halfback Ronnie Bull, on his first pass of the season, flipped a wobbly 23 - yard aerial to halfback Austin Gonsoulin in the end zone.

The Bears bounced back with Stanley's passing attack to move into the lead, with Gonsoulin and end Sonny Davis as his favorite receivers, and a tight Baylor defense thwarted Texas' efforts until late in the fourth period.

Baylor's hard - driving fullback Jim Evans fumbled at the Bears' 39 and Texas end Larry Cooper recovered to set up the Longhorns' game-winning drive, climaxed with fullback Clair Branch's plunge over from the 2.

Tribe Fourth In Brownwood Cross Country

BROWNWOOD, Tex. (Special)— Northeast finished fourth in the annual Howard Payne cross country run here yesterday.

Host Howard Payne won the 10-team meet with 33 points, Emporia (Kan.) State was second with 42 points, Brooke Medical Center was third with 105 and Northeast fourth with 115.

Texas University (123), Oklahoma Baptist (127) and McNeese (162) brought up the rear. Three schools, Texas Christian, Arlington State and Odessa College, were not counted because all of their runners did not finish the four-mile run.

Northeast's Buddy Eiland finished third behind Emporia's Paul Whitney, defending NAIA champion and record holder in the mile and two-mile, and Warren Wirta, also of Emporia.

Whitney finished the race in 20 minutes, 35 seconds, Wirta in 20:58 and Eiland in 21:02.

Bill Frye of Northeast was 19th, George Abbot 24th, Jack Williams 28th and Randall Walker 31st.

Penn Takes Over Ivy Lead With Win Over Yale

PHILADELPHIA, (AP) — Penn capitalized on three breaks Saturday and a brilliant individual performance from Fred Doelling to defeat Yale 28-12 and vault into the Ivy League football lead.

A light rain fell during part of the game.

Quarterback Tom Singleton, standout for Yale on offense all day, nevertheless was the goat. One of his passes was intercepted by Larry Purdy to set up the first Penn touchdown after the Quakers' trailed 12-0. Two fumbles by Singleton also were turned into Penn scores.

Doeling swept right end for 10 yards and the first Penn touchdown. After sprinting 58 yards late in the final period he rambled 9 yards for his second TD.

Penn scored three times on the ground. This was significant since Yale hadn't given up a touchdown through its line all year.

TENSE STRUGGLE

Syracuse Beats Penn State In East's Big Game, 20-18

By JACK HAND

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Syracuse virtually clinched the Eastern football title and a likely bowl bid Saturday by edging Penn State 20-18 in a savage battle of unbeaten clubs.

The Orange victory came despite a dazzling 100-yard touchdown run by sophomore Roger Kochman of Penn State on a kickoff return.

This tense struggle, witnessed by 32,800 fans, the largest in Beaver Field history, hung in doubt until the final minutes as Penn State charged back with two touchdowns in the final period.

After Kochman's 100-yard gallop through the entire Syracuse team, State burst through with tackle Andy Stynchula blocking Bob Yates' punt. Penn State took over on the Syracuse 1 and Sam Sobzak plunged into the end zone with 4:15 to go.

Trailing 20-18, quarterback Richie Lucas sent Kochman into the middle of the line, trying for the two points that would have meant a tie. Kochman was stopped about two yards short.

Kochman startled Syracuse by running 17 for a touchdown in the first period as underdog Penn State jumped into an early lead.

Syracuse took charge in the second as Ger Schwedes swept six after taking apitchout from Dave Sarette. Yates put the Orange out front to stay by kicking his first of two placement attempts.

Sarette connected with a 5-yard scoring pass to Art Baker in the third and sophomore flash Ernie Davis rammed home from the 1 in the final period before Penn State awakened for its last ditch effort.

Penn State tried to kick for the first extra point but Sam Stellatella's boot was wide. After Kochman's 100-yard run, Lucas failed with a pass.

Ole Miss Buries Chattanooga, 58-0

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI)—Mississippi ran its biggest score since 1935 Saturday, slaughtering Chattanooga 58-0 before a crowd of 14,500.

Quarterbacks Doug Elmore and Billy Brewer and Halfback Jimmy Hall were the chief butcher-boys, figuring in two touchdowns each. The victory enhanced the bowl prospects for sixth-ranked Mississippi, and set up a battle royal with Tennessee in Memphis this coming weekend.

It was Mississippi's seventh victory in eight starts, the lone loss a 7-3 decision by LSU which was upset 14-13 by Tennessee Saturday.

Chattanooga got past mid-field only once, marching 77 yards to the Mississippi 13 late in the final period on the play - calling of quarterback Ron Houshalter.

It was Mississippi's highest point score since a 92-0 decision over Memphis State in 1935.

Mississippi scored in every period. Brewer got things under way with an 85-yard punt return with four and a half minutes left in the first period. Bob Khayat kicked the first of four conversions.

Illinois Falls To Michigan In 20-15 Upset

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Michigan, a 10-point underdog, turned two pass interceptions into last half touchdowns to defeat its Big Ten football arch rival, Illinois 20-15 Saturday.

The Wolverines, gaining their first victory over the Illini in three years and boosting their conference record for the season to 2-3, spotted Illinois a 9-0 first quarter lead then scored in each of the next three periods.

Gerry Smyth's interception of Mel Meyers' pass early in the third gave Michigan the ball on the Illini 32. In three plays, Darrell Harper barreled across from the 7 and converted to put the Wolverines ahead 13-9.

In the final minutes of the third, Alex Callihan intercepted another Meyer's toss and ran it back 43 yards to the 27. Injured Bill Burrell, Illinois' fine linebacker, entered the game for the first time but Michigan forged to another touchdown. Fred Julian eventually plunged from the 1 and Harper again booted the point in the opening minutes of the last quarter.

Illinois' Gerry Wood had kicked a 36-yard field goal and Johnny Counts ripped 37 yards for a touchdown after a pass interception in the first quater.

The Illini finally got going again in the fourth period. Johnny Easterbrook's 40 yard pass play to Starks carried a 64-yard drive in eight plays. Bill Brown drilled over from the 1.

The loss, before 45,573 fans, ruined the Illini's title hopes leaving them with a 2-2-1 Big Ten mark.

Missouri In 13-0 Triumph Over Falcons

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — The Missouri Tigers, triggered by the passing and running of quarterback Phil Snowden, Saturday shot down the Air Force Academy, 13-0 in the first meeting in history between the two teams.

A crowd of 32,000 watched Snowden, a 137-pound senior from Kansas City, guide the Tigers to their upset victory.

Snowden passed for one touchdown, set up the second with his passing and running and three times made the necessary yardage on fourth down gambles to keep the Tiger attack moving.

The defeat was only the second in two years for the Air Force Academy and its first shutout since Utah administered a 34 - 0 licking late in the 1957 season.

A hard - rushing Missouri line, led by ends Russ Sloan and Danny LaRose and tackle Mike Magac, bottled up the Air Force Academy's vaunted running attack limiting the Falcons to 53 yards rushing.

Quarterback Rich Mayor kept the Falcons in contention, however, with his passing. The talented Air Force Academy signal caller completed 18 of 36 tosses for 143 yards.

Missouri's first score came with three minutes left in the first half, Snowden hitting halfback Norris Stevenson with a 39-yard pass for the touchdown which climaxed a five-play, 60 - yard march.

Stevenson grabbed the ball away from two Air Force defenders at the Falcons' 22, spun and raced over untouched. Eddie Mehrer tacked on the conversion.

With only 52 seconds left in the third, halfback Don Mullins, on a double reverse, loped around left end 32 yards for a touchdown.

Vandy Upsets Kentucky In 11-6 SEC Tilt

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Vanderbilt combined a first quarter field goal with Tom Moore's 62-yard touchdown gallop in the third period to upset Kentucky 11-6 in a Southeastern Conference football game Saturday.

Russ Morris, junior quarterback from Louisville, Ky., booted the field goal from 21 yards out when a Commodore drive bogged own near the end of the first quarter.

Moore, Vanderbilt workhorse, broke through the Wildcat line after a fake handoff shifted the defense out of his path. He streaked down the field for a score. A conversion pass put the game out of Kentucky's reach.

A late fourth quarter drive, featured by quarterback Jerry Eisaman's passing, produced Kentucky's touchdown. The score came on a 15-yarder by Eisaman to end Ronnie Cain.

The score followed two other pass completions from Eisaman to halfback Calvin Bird for 22 yards and to Cain for 4. The try for two points failed on a pass.

A crowd of 25,000 chilled fans saw Vanderbilt win its third game of the season and its second conference decision. The loss left Kentucky with an over-all record of two victories and five defeats.

Moore, the game's leading ground gainer, wrapped up 117 yards in 16 tries.

LOOKS 'EM OVER

Louisiana politics of not many years ago gave "double dipping" a bad name even if the kids did, and still do, look upon it with favor in bidding for that extra scoop of cream. It depends on what you mean.

Monroe football fans, disregarding politics and as happy as the ice cream-hungry kids, are shooting for their first double dip in Louisiana high school football.

When the Ouachita Parish High Lions polished off the Byrd Yellow Jackets in Shreveport Thursday night, it left the charges of Coach Bob Ellen needing only to sack the Bossier Bearcats here next Friday night to clinch the district triple-A championship.

But Bossier is out to upset Ouachita's cart and do something about picking up all the marbles. The Bearcats' defeat of West Monroe Friday night left them standing alone as the lone threat to the Lions.

The Neville High Tigers, with supporters who think Bill Ruple's Boys can lick any schoolboy outfit in any class in the state, led the way in the state's district championship races when they reclaimed the 2-AA title with the defeat of Ruston three weeks ago.

While Ouachita's hasn't nailed down a championship in over a decade, Neville has (including this year's district crown) won the district in four of the last five seasons, was runner-up for the state double-A title last year and won the first state championship to be claimed by a Monroe team in 44 years when Ruple's 1955 club went all the way, beating Reserve in the title final, 27-14.

Never has two teams of the city won titles the same year.

Once, before organization of triple-A or double-A, Ouachita and Neville finished in a tie with Ruston and Bolton of Alexandria for the district Class A title. That was in 1936 when Bolton beat Neville, Ouachita bounced Ruston and then Bolton eliminated Ouachita in the district playoffs.

Ouachita last won a district championship as a double-A (the triple-A classification was yet to be organized) team in 1948 when such former Lions of ex-coach Jim Hodgins as Wayne McDonald, Tommy Wilson, Bert DeLoach, Johnny Goodwin, Jack Smith, Gayle Ward, Robert Parker, Ken Greer, Billy Joe Milstead, E. J. Sievers, Harold Phillips, Mark Boatright, Bob Carter, Bobby Bruce, Wayne McCarty, and Herman DeLoach were getting in their licks for the Red and White.

If the Lions reach the district goal it will be because it has been made possible by boys like Ervin Bates, Tommy Winkler, Johnny Roach, Bill Rambin, Bill Solomon, William Matkins, Phil Youngblood, Don Ellen, Bobby Hendrix, R. W. Kimball, James Cromwell, Harry Crowe, Bobby Shipp, Bob Saterfield, Herbert Perry, Woody Mahoney, Bubba Via, Gary Warlick, Ed Higginbotham, David Rawls, Ted Smith, Dennis Warner, Donnie Letterman, Danny Tousinau, Bob Knickerbocker, Danny Duke, Jimmy Lewis, Johnny Butler, Rayford Haygood, Billy Rushing, James Richardson, Wincel Bass, Kenny Hickey, Ernest Loyd, and Bill Cornett. Some of them have been benched during the course of the season because of injuries that have closed the season for a very few, but all have had a hand in getting Ouachita this far along the championship route.

When Neville's successes of '59 are being recounted keep in mind this fine group of athletes who have made it possible — James Hunt, Dooley Haddad, Neal Gunn, Arthur Williams, Robert Turner, Mickey Cox, Devone Payne, Joe Cage, Jim Love, Charles Snapp, Joe Turner, Lucien Branch, Robert Bryan, Bill LaFrance, Sperry Brown, Bucky Buckner, Jack Burton, John Loftin, Robert Payne, Herschell Walker, Scooter Morgan, Tommy Scott, R. F. Wilson, Beverly Franks, Steve Slade, Ralph Roberts, Bill Becton, Bernard Bryant, Jack Youngblood, Steve Jefferson, Mike Pickett, John Mittell, Joey McGinn, Jerry Jones, and Bobby Duncan.

Army Takes 14-0 Triumph Over Inept Villanova

WEST POINT, N.Y., (AP) — Army's bread and butter players — Joe Caldwell, Bill Carpenter and Bob Anderson — teamed up for a touchdown that gave the Cadets a first period cushion Saturday and the Cadets went on to beat Villanova 14-0 in their last home game of the season.

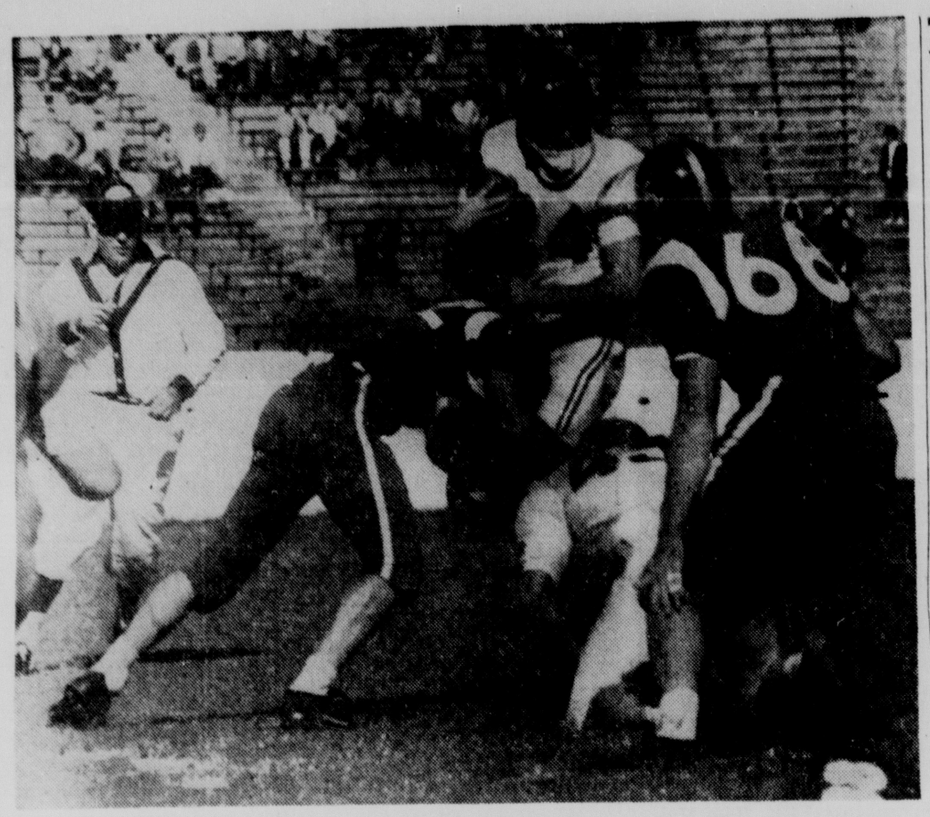
It was an inept exhibition by an Army team that was favored by some 30 points over Villanova, which now has lost seven of its eight games.

Using substitutes freely, often players who weren't even listed in the three-deep line-up, Army was able to mount only two consistent drives that paid off with touchdowns. And there was a lapse between them of some 35 minutes of playing time.

Fullback Don Bonko made the first score on a plunge after two Caldwell-Carpenter passes, a toss from Anderson to Glen Blumhart and a couple of runs by Anderson had paved the way. The second came at the start of the fourth quarter on a 10-yard pass from Glen Adams, a third-string halfback, to end Frank Gibson.

DARTMOUTH, 22-0

NEW YORK, (AP) — Dartmouth defeated Columbia 22-0 in an Ivy League football game played in mud and rain played before a scant 5,000 Saturday.



MOOTY GOES FOR SIX — Arkansas' star halfback Jim Mooty (24) picks up six yards against Rice at Houston yesterday before being tackled by Tommy Stellman (82). Joe Paul Alberty (45) missed his block and Gerald Gusler (66) of Rice moved in to help with the stop. (AP Wirephoto)

Techmen Clinch Share Of GSC Title With 14-0 Win

HAMMOND, La. (Special) — Louisiana Tech captured at least a share of the Gulf States Conference title by shutting out Southeastern, 14-0, here Saturday afternoon.

It was Tech's fourth straight GSC win without a setback. The Bulldogs will now be able to win the championship outright if they can take their final conference contest over Northeast State at Ruston No. 21.

The loss was the first in GSC action for the Southeastern Lions who now stand 2-1 in league competition.

In winning Southeastern's homecoming day game, the visiting Techsters pushed across touchdowns in the first and fourth periods. The first came on a one-yard plunge by fullback Max Rudd and the second on a four-yard rush by halfback 45. Rudd picked up a first on a 13-yard run, Slack got another first on the 14 and then Rudd, Slack and Hynes worked it to the four from where Slack went across.

Southeastern came right back after the second Tech score and aided by a 45-yard pass play from Elbert Harris to halfback Talmadge Lee, drove to the Tech 18-yard marker. The Lion drive was cut short, however, when the Techsters intercepted a Harris pass.

Next game for Tech will be the Bulldogs' homecoming battle Nov. 14 against Memphis State.

and co-captain J .W. Slack.

Tech also drove to the Lions' six-yard line in the third period, only to have a fourth-down pass fall incomplete. A rugged Bulldog defense kept the Southeastern attack bottled up most of the time as the Lions got no further than the Tech 34 in the first half. SLC's deepest penetration came in the closing minutes of the game when they reached Tech's 18-yard stripe.

The first period score by the Techmen was set up by a Southeastern fumble recovered on the Lion eight-yard line by Bulldog Tackle Bobby Hudson. Paul Hynes took it to the five, Rudd rammed to the run and on the next play, Rudd bulled it over. Slack's PAT kick was good and Tech went ahead, 7-0, with three remaining in the first quarter.

This Tech score came immediately after the Bulldogs had marched from their own 29 to the Southeastern six, only to lose the ball on downs. SLC took over but fumbled with Hudson recovering and giving the Techmen a second chance.

Slack's four-yard run for the second Bulldog TD came with only four minutes left in the game. Rudd kicked the PAT to put the Canines ahead with a safer 14-0 lead.

This final touchdown climaxed a 45-yard drive. Slack took a fair catch of an SLC punt on the Lion

Texas Rallies To Nip Baylor, 13-12

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)— Texas came from behind Saturday with a late fourth period running surge by Jack Collins, Rene Ramirez and Mike Dowdle to squeeze a 13-12 victory over upset-minded Baylor.

Texas, nationally fourth ranked, eked out the narrow victory on a 39-yard scoring drive set up by a fumble recovery and enabled the Longhorns to keep their undefeated string at eight games this season.

Coach Darrell Royal's Longhorns also maintained leadership of the Southwest Conference on a 4-0 record with the hard - fought win over archrival Baylor.

Baylor rode the bullet passing arm of sophomore Ronnie Stanley to a 12-7 lead late in the third period. Stanley, who guided the Bears to both their touchdowns, plunged over from the 2 to climax an 80-yard drive.

The margin of victory proved to be the toe of quarterback Bobby Lackey, who kicked the extra point after Texas' first touchdown early in the first quarter.

Texas needed to move only 19 yards for its first touchdown, after a short Baylor punt. Lackey plunged over from the 1 for the score.

Baylor drove 74 yards late in the second period to score. Stanley contributed 23 yards on a keeper run, and sophomore halfback Ronnie Bull, on his first pass of the season, flipped a wobbly 23-yard aerial to halfback Austin Gonsoulin in the end zone.

The Bears bounced back with Stanley's passing attack to move into the lead, with Gonsoulin and end Sonny Davis as his favorite receivers, and a tight Baylor defense thwarted Texas' efforts until late in the fourth period.

Baylor's hard - driving fullback Jim Evans fumbled at the Bears' 39 and Texas end Larry Cooper recovered to set up the Longhorns' game-winning drive, climaxed with fullback Clair Branch's plunge over from the 2.

Tribe Fourth In Brownwood Cross Country

BROWNWOOD, Tex. (Special)— Northeast finished fourth in the annual Howard Payne cross country run here yesterday.

Host Howard Payne won the 10-team meet with 33 points, Emporia (Kan.) State was second with 42 points, Brooke Medical Center was third with 105 and Northeast fourth with 115.

Texas University (123), Oklahoma Baptist (127) and McNeese (162) brought up the rear. Three schools, Texas Christian, Arlington State and Odessa College, were not counted because all of their runners did not finish the four-mile run.

Northeast's Buddy Eiland finished third behind Emporia's Paul Whitney, defending NAIA champion and record holder in the mile and two-mile, and Warren Wirta, also of Emporia.

Whitney finished the race in 20 minutes, 35 seconds, Wirta in 20:58 and Eiland in 21:02.

Bill Frye of Northeast was 19th, George Abbot 24th, Jack Williams 28th and Randall Walker 31st.

Penn Takes Over Ivy Lead With Win Over Yale

PHILADELPHIA, (AP) — Penn capitalized on three breaks Saturday and a brilliant individual performance from Fred Doelling to defeat Yale 28-12 and vault into the Ivy League football lead.

A light rain fell during part of the game.

Quarterback Tom Singleton, standout for Yale on offense all day, nevertheless was the goat. One of his passes was intercepted by Larry Purdy to set up the first Penn touchdown after the Quakers' trailed 12-0. Two fumbles by Singleton also were turned into Penn scores.

Doeling swept right end for 10 yards and the first Penn touchdown. After sprinting 58 yards late in the final period he rambled 9 yards for his second TD.

Penn scored three times on the ground. This was significant since Yale hadn't given up a touchdown through its line all year.

TENSE STRUGGLE

Syracuse Beats Penn State In East's Big Game, 20-18

By JACK HAND

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Syracuse virtually clinched the Eastern football title and a likely bowl bid Saturday by edging Penn State 20-18 in a savage battle of unbeaten clubs.

The Orange victory came despite a dazzling 100-yard touchdown run by sophomore Roger Kochman of Penn State on a kickoff return.

This tense struggle, witnessed by 32,800 fans, the largest in Beaver Field history, hung in doubt until the final minutes as Penn State charged back with two touchdowns in the final period.

After Kochman's 100-yard gallop through the entire Syracuse team, State burst through with tackle Andy Stynchula blocking Bob Yates' punt. Penn State took over on the Syracuse 1 and Sam Sobzak plunged into the end zone with 4:15 to go.

Trailing 20-18, quarterback Richie Lucas sent Kochman into the middle of the line, trying for the two points that would have meant a tie. Kochman was stopped about two yards short.

Kochman startled Syracuse by running 17 for a touchdown in the first period as underdog Penn State jumped into an early lead.

Syracuse took charge in the second as Ger Schwedes swept six after taking apitchout from Dave Sarette. Yates put the Orange out front to stay by kicking his first of two placement attempts.

Sarette connected with a 5-yard scoring pass to Art Baker in the third and sophomore flash Ernie Davis rammed home from the 1 in the final period before Penn State awakened for its last ditch effort.

Penn State tried to kick for the first extra point but Sam Stellatella's boot was wide. After Kochman's 100-yard run, Lucas failed with a pass.

Quarterbacks Doug Elmore and Billy Brewer and Halfback Jimmy Hall were the chief butcher-boys, figuring in two touchdowns each. The victory enhanced the bowl prospects for sixth-ranked Mississippi, and set up a battle royal with Tennessee in Memphis this coming weekend.

It was Mississippi's seventh victory in eight starts, the lone loss a 7-3 decision by LSU which was upset 14-13 by Tennessee Saturday.

Chattanooga got past mid-field only once, marching 77 yards to the Mississippi 13 late in the final period on the play - calling of quarterback Ron Houshalter.

It was Mississippi's highest point score since a 92-0 decision over Memphis State in 1935.

Mississippi scored in every period. Brewer got things under way with an 85-yard punt return with four and a half minutes left in the first period. Bob Khayat kicked the first of four conversions.

Mississippi shifted into high gear in the second period. Charlie Flowers went over from the one seven plays after halfback Dewey Partridge had recovered Dan Washburn's pitchout on the Chattanooga 40. Mississippi got three more touchdowns in the third period. Billy Ray Adams scored on a one-yard run, Hall got his second TD on a three-yard pass from Elmore, and Gibbes Goodwin tallied on a 26-yard pass from Brewer.

Illinois Falls To Michigan In 20-15 Upset

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Michigan, a 10-point underdog, turned two pass interceptions into last half touchdowns to defeat its Big Ten football arch rival, Illinois 20-15 Saturday.

The Wolverines, gaining their first victory over the Illini in three years and boosting their conference record for the season to 2-3, spotted Illinois a 9-0 first quarter lead then scored in each of the next three periods.

Gerry Smyth's interception of Mel Meyers' pass early in the third gave Michigan the ball on the Illini 32. In three plays, Darrell Harper barreled across from the 7 and converted to put the Wolverines ahead 13-9.

In the final minutes of the third, Alex Callihan intercepted another Meyer's toss and ran it back 43 yards to the 27. Injured Bill Burrell, Illinois' fine linebacker, entered the game for the first time but Michigan forged to another touchdown. Fred Julian eventually plunged from the 1 and Harper again booted the point in the opening minutes of the last quarter.

Illinois' Gerry Wood had kicked a 36-yard field goal and Johnny Counts ripped 37 yards for a touchdown after a pass interception in the first quater.

The Illini finally got going again in the fourth period. Johnny Easterbrook's 40 yard pass play to Starks carried a 64-yard drive in eight plays. Bill Brown drilled over from the 1.

The loss, before 45,573 fans, ruined the Illini's title hopes leaving them with a 2-2-1 Big Ten mark.

Missouri In 13-0 Triumph Over Falcons

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — The Missouri Tigers, triggered by the passing and running of quarterback Phil Snowden, Saturday shot down the Air Force Academy, 13-0 in the first meeting in history between the two teams.

A crowd of 32,000 watched Snowden, a 187-pound senior from Kansas City, guide the Tigers to their upset victory.

Snowden passed for one touchdown, set up the second with his passing and running and three times made the necessary yardage on fourth down gambles to keep the Tiger attack moving.

The defeat was only the second in two years for the Air Force Academy and its first shutout since Utah administered a 34 - 0 licking late in the 1957 season.

A hard - rushing Missouri line, led by ends Russ Sloan and Danny LaRose and tackle Mike Magac, bottled up the Air Force Academy's vaunted running attack limiting the Falcons to 53 yards rushing.

Quarterback Rich Mayor kept the Falcons in contention, however, with his passing. The talented Air Force Academy signal caller completed 18 of 36 tosses for 143 yards.

Missouri's first score came with three minutes left in the first half, Snowden hitting halfback Norris Stevenson with a 39-yard pass for the touchdown which climaxed a five-play, 60 - yard march.

Stevenson grabbed the ball away from two Air Force defenders at the Falcons' 22, spun and raced over untouched. Eddie Mehrer tacked on the conversion.

TOUGH SCHEDULE

Northeast Basketballers Little Bigger, Greener

Its fabled "racehorse runts" gone, Northeast's basketballers Dec. 4 open what Coach Lenny Fant calls the "toughest schedule in the history of the school" a little bigger and a little greener.

Forward John Freeman and guards Sid Bradley and Mickey Kitchens, all 5-11 and fast, have graduated along with the big Indian, 6-6 Billy May and Fant will probably start against East Texas State Dec. 4 a quintet averaging an inch taller than the outfit which won 12 and lost 13 last year but two of them will be freshmen.

In fact, nine of Fant's 16 squad members are first-year men.

The two freshmen who'll probably start are guard Freddy Marzura and center Robert Cook, in his second year of college but a redshirt last season.

Marzura will team with Lanny Johnson at guard replacing Kitchens and Bradley, the smallest — and one of the best— backcourt combinations in the Gulf States conference last year.

Ronald Doyle is the only returning starter and he'll open at forward. Cook is expected to open at center and Fred Bradley, a reserve who saw a lot of action last year, will join Doyle at forward.

Northeast will face a 24-game schedule including home-and-home games with East Texas, Lamar Tech, Mississippi Southern and Arkansas State plus a single game with Memphis State in the Tennessee city.

Ten conference games are on tap, plus the Northeast Invitational Tournament in Monroe Dec. 28 and 29. Lamar Tech, defending champs from last year, will be back for the tourney, along with Northeast Oklahoma. Nicholls College has been added to the list, with Northeast rounding out the teams.

East Texas, Mississippi Southern and Nicholls are the three new teams on the Indian schedule.

After opening Dec. 4 against East Texas State in Commerce, the Indians move to Lamar Tech in Beaumont the next night. Their first home game is Dec. 7 against William Carey of Hattiesburg.

Northeast is working out both at its own gym and also at the new Ouachita High School gym, which the Indians will use as their home court. Game times will be 8 p.m., and general admission tickets costing $1 will be on sale at the door. No reserved - seat tickets will be available, the Athletic Department announced.

Fant feels that Northeast and McNeese will be the question marks in the Gulf States Conference.

Last year Northeast finished fifth in the GSC and Fant, entering his third year as basketball coach, feels the conference will be a strong one this season.

Louisiana Tech, last year's champion, is stronger, as are Southwestern and Southeastern. Northwestern is at least as strong or perhaps stronger.

Despite Northeast's over - all 12-13 record, the Indians lost but two games at home last year— to Tech and Northwestern. Five of the six non-conference foes were strong enough to land in the Kansas City tournament, but Northeast defeated each of the five at least once.

Fant says he felt last year's squad was a good team but had the misfortune of meeting strong opponents who had their best quintets in years.

Doyle was the second leading rebounder last year on the Indian squad, averaging about 10 per game. A senior, he's being relied on by Fant to teach some of the freshmen, and to form a basis for the squad.

Doyle, a transfer from Holmes Junior College in Mississippi, is from Calvert City, Ky., and stands 6-2.

Bradley is a junior college transfer from La Grange Junior College in Hannibal, Mo., and the brother of Sid and Bill Bradley, who also played here. Bradley, a 6-1 senior, is effective at driving and jump shooting.

Cook, a 6-4½ freshman from Jonesboro, was held out last year, and Fant says Cook has made more progress in the one year than any other freshman. He's big and quick and a strong rebounder. Fant is expecting a great deal from Cook before he leaves Northeast.

Johnson is a 6-1 Ouachita High graduate from Monroe. He's quick and a good jump shooter and was one of the top subs last year. Fant describes the sophomore guard as an outstanding hustler.

Mazura, from Elizabeth City, N. J., is just out of service. Standing 6-2, Mazura is described as quick and a good ball handler and playmaker. Fant considers Mazura as another freshman who will be outstanding before he leaves Northeast.

Other good prospects:

Cozine — 6-4, from Lesterville, Mo., a junior who'll be used at forward and center. Quick and a good jumper.

Harkins — 6-5, a sophomore from Hico, La., an all- stater in high school who'll be used at center or forward.

Edmiston — 6 feet even, from Simsboro, an all- American and all-stater in high school. Hampered by intestinal flu last year, Edmiston is an outstanding sophomore prospect.

Segall — 5-11, a senior from Desloge, Mo., who has a good two-hand set shot from outside. He'll be used at guard.

Linder — 6-3, a freshman from Fort Necessity, an all - stater who led his team to the state Class C championship last year and who was considered one of the outstanding high - schoolers in the state. He's a good shooter, good feeder and smooth mover who does everything easily.

Others working out include Malcolm George, 6-3½, a freshman from Quitman; Stewart Toms, the shortest man on the squad at 5-10, also from Quitman; Bobby Lockwood, a 6-3 freshman from Spearsville and a good prospect; Gerald Meeks, a 6-4 freshman from Cumberland, Md., rough on the boards and an outstanding high- school football player; Jerry Miller, a 5-11 Marion, La., boy, well - grounded in fundamentals; and Eddie Smith, an eager, 6-4 Spearsville youth.

A 17th man who is being held out this year is John Hagan, 6-8, a Colradoan. Fant says Hagan is making a great deal of progress and considers the youth a bright future prospect if his good work continues.

HUNT IN COMMAND

Auburn Smashes Miss. State, 31-0

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Sophomore Quarterback Bobby Hunt, running his favorite keeper play almost at will, romped 42 and 51 yards for touchdowns to power Auburn to a 31-0 win over Mississippi State Saturday before 38,000 fans.

Hunt, who won the starting job for the Tigers early in the season, ripped through the porous Maroon defense for 214 yards in 16 tries for an average 13.4 yards per try.

Two other sophomores turned in six pointers, halfback Jackie Spencer on a 38-yard punt return, and John McGeever on a one-yard drive, while Ed Dyas added a 30-yard field goal.

Auburn, twice stopped in the first quarter within the Mississippi State 10, controlled the game throughout with its big, fast line led by guard Zeke Smith and a host of capable hands. The Maroons got out of their own territory only once while Auburn had to punt only twice.

It was the sixth straight victory for the ninth-ranked Tigers after an opening season loss to Tennessee, and their fourth in the Southeastern Conference.

The 170-pound Hunt was trapped only once on his one-man rampage, being thrown for a nine yard loss late in the fourth quarter. On the next play, he faded to pass, found himself trapped and cut loose on his 51-yard scoring dash behind savage blocking.

His first touchdown came on a keeper play over right tackle as he cut into the middle, then out again to race for the right corner of the end zone 41 yards away.

After Auburn was stopped once on the Maroon seven and again on the four, Spencer took a quick kick that traveled only 26 yards, started toward the left sideline and cut into the center of the field to go the rest of the way untouched.

McGeever's score came at the end of a 61 yard drive in 13 plays in the third period.

Dyas added his field goal in the last second of the first half after Johnny Kern had returned an intercepted pass to the Auburn 39. The Tigers marched to the State 13 and Dyas dropped back to add the three pointer.

In their only offensive gesture of the game, the Maroons crossed the 50 against Tiger reserves as the final quarter ran out, but were stopped on the Auburn 21.

Score By Periods

Auburn	0	10	7	14	—31
Miss. State	0	0	0	0	— 0

Scoring Summary:

Auburn—Spencer 38 punt return (Dyas kick); FG Dyas 30; Hunt 42 run (Dyas kick); Mc'Geever 1 run (Dyas kick); Hunt 51 run (Dyas kick).

Monroe Man Wrestles At B&B Arena

The main event will go 60 minutes with two falls to win as will the semi-final, a bout matching two veterans, Firpo Zybysko and Mac Kennedy.

Kennedy is an experienced hand from Dallas and Zybysko is a former state champion. Eggbald Firpo is a rough grappler and Kennedy is expected to come up with a few tricks of his own.

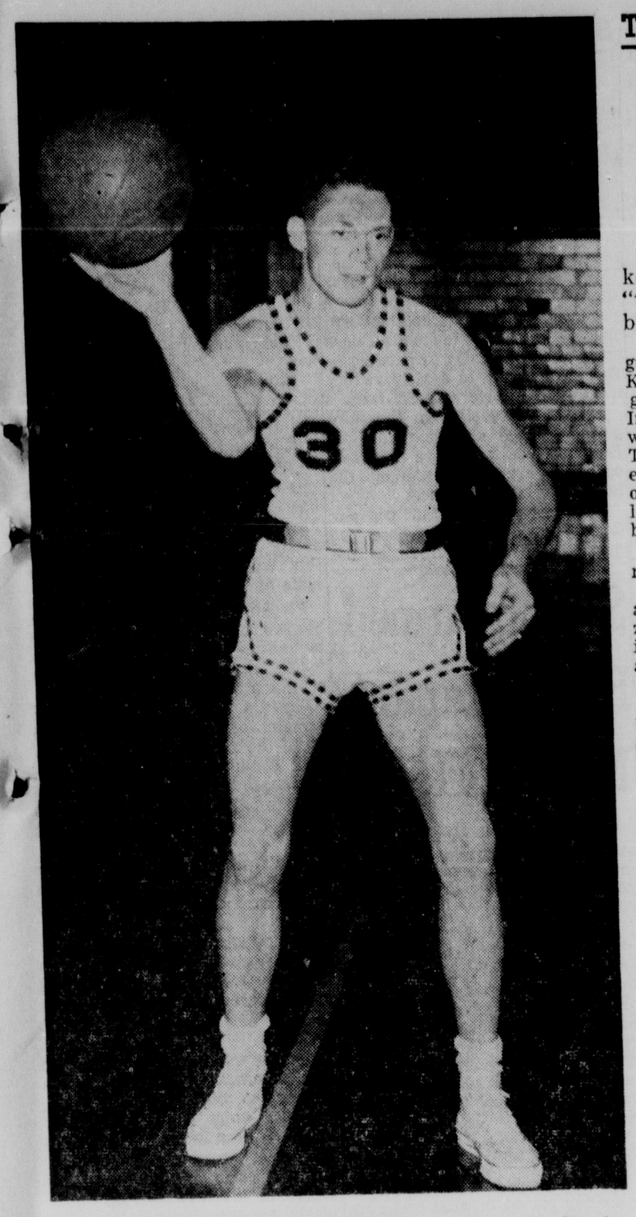
TOUGH SCHEDULE

Northeast Basketballers Little Bigger, Greener



LONE RETURNING STARTER — Ronald Doyle, Calvert, Ken., senior, is the lone returning starter on Northeast's basketball team. The Indians open their season Dec. 4 at Commerce, Tex., against East Texas State. (Staff photo by Bill Coleman)

Its fabled "racehorse runts" gone, Northeast's basketballers Dec. 4 open what Coach Lenny Fant calls the "toughest schedule in the history of the school" a little bigger and a little greener.

Forward John Freeman and guards Sid Bradley and Mickey Kitchens, all 5-11 and fast, have graduated along with the big Indian, 6-6 Billy May and Fant will probably start against East Texas State Dec. 4 a quintet averaging an inch taller than the outfit which won 12 and lost 13 last year but two of them will be freshmen.

In fact, nine of Fant's 16 squad members are first-year men.

The two freshmen who'll probably start are guard Freddy Marzura and center Robert Cook, in his second year of college but a redshirt last season.

Marzura will team with Lanny Johnson at guard replacing Kitchens and Bradley, the smallest — and one of the best— backcourt combinations in the Gulf States conference last year.

Ronald Doyle is the only returning starter and he'll open at forward. Cook is expected to open at center and Fred Bradley, a reserve who saw a lot of action last year, will join Doyle at forward.

Northeast will face a 24-game schedule including home-and-home games with East Texas, Lamar Tech, Mississippi Southern and Arkansas State plus a single game with Memphis State in the Tennessee city.

Ten conference games are on tap, plus the Northeast Invitational Tournament in Monroe Dec. 28 and 29. Lamar Tech, defending champs from last year, will be back for the tourney, along with Northeast Oklahoma. Nicholls College has been added to the list, with Northeast rounding out the teams.

East Texas, Mississippi Southern and Nicholls are the three new teams on the Indian schedule.

After opening Dec. 4 against East Texas State in Commerce, the Indians move to Lamar Tech in Beaumont the next night. Their first home game is Dec. 7 against William Carey of Hattiesburg.

Northeast is working out both at its own gym and also at the new Ouachita High School gym, which the Indians will use as their home court. Game times will be 8 p.m., and general admission tickets costing $1 will be on sale at the door. No reserved - seat tickets will be available, the Athletic Department announced.

Fant feels that Northeast and McNeese will be the question marks in the Gulf States Conference.

Last year Northeast finished fifth in the GSC and Fant, entering his third year as basketball coach, feels the conference will be a strong one this season.

Louisiana Tech, last year's champion, is stronger, as are Southwestern and Southeastern. Northwestern is at least as strong or perhaps stronger.

Despite Northeast's over - all 12-13 record, the Indians lost but two games at home last year— to Tech and Northwestern. Five of the six non-conference foes were strong enough to land in the Kansas City tournament, but Northeast defeated each of the five at least once.

Fant says he felt last year's squad was a good team but had the misfortune of meeting strong opponents who had their best quintets in years.

Doyle was the second leading rebounder last year on the Indian squad, averaging about 10 per game. A senior, he's being relied on by Fant to teach some of the freshmen, and to form a basis for the squad.

Doyle, a transfer from Holmes Junior College in Mississippi, is from Calvert City, Ky., and stands 6-2.

Bradley is a junior college transfer from La Grange Junior College in Hannibal, Mo., and the brother of Sid and Bill Bradley, who also played here. Bradley, a 6-1 senior, is effective at driving and jump shooting.

Cook, a 6-4½ freshman from Jonesboro, was held out last year, and Fant says Cook has made more progress in the one year than any other freshman. He's big and quick and a strong rebounder. Fant is expecting a great deal from Cook before he leaves Northeast.

Johnson is a 6-1 Ouachita High graduate from Monroe. He's quick and a good jump shooter and was one of the top subs last year. Fant describes the sophomore guard as an outstanding hustler.

Mazura, from Elizabeth City, N. J., is just out of service. Standing 6-2, Mazura is described as quick and a good ball handler and playmaker. Fant considers Mazura as another freshman who will be outstanding before he leaves Northeast.

Other good prospects:

Cozine — 6-4, from Lesterville, Mo., a junior who'll be used at forward and center. Quick and a good jumper.

Harkins — 6-5, a sophomore from Hico, La., an all- stater in high school who'll be used at center or forward.

Edmiston — 6 feet even, from Simsboro, an all- American and all-stater in high school. Hampered by intestinal flu last year, Edmiston is an outstanding sophomore prospect.

Segall — 5-11, a senior from Desloge, Mo., who has a good two-hand set shot from outside. He'll be used at guard.

Linder — 6-3, a freshman from Fort Necessity, an all - stater who led his team to the state Class C championship last year and who was considered one of the outstanding high - schoolers in the state. He's a good shooter, good feeder and smooth mover who does everything easily.

Others working out include Malcolm George, 6-3½, a freshman from Quitman; Stewart Toms, the shortest man on the squad at 5-10, also from Quitman; Bobby Lockwood, a 6-3 freshman from Spearsville and a good prospect; Gerald Meeks, a 6-4 freshman from Cumberland, Md., rough on the boards and an outstanding high- school football player; Jerry Miller, a 5-11 Marion, La., boy, well - grounded in fundamentals; and Eddie Smith, an eager, 6-4 Spearsville youth.

A 17th man who is being held out this year is John Hagan, 6-8, a Colradoan. Fant says Hagan is making a great deal of progress and considers the youth a bright future prospect if his good work continues.

TROUBLE BREWING

AFL May Compete With NCAA For Television Spot

By JIM KENSIL

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Football League, oil-rich newcomer to the pro game, may be heading for unexpected trouble from the nation's colleges.

The Associated Press has learned that the proposed AFL has offered the major television networks a virtual blank schedule to facilitate as much profitable nationwide television exposure as possible. One TV source said, "The AFL will play Sundays, Saturday nights or even Saturday afternoons — whenever the air time can be cleared and sold."

And an AFL spokesman said openly recently, "There are four or five ad men who want to sponsor the games already" and that games of the New York entry "will go network every Saturday outside of New York. It's a cinch to make dough."

It will also make trouble if the AFL's television collides with the carefully nurtured controlled-TV policy of the National Collegiate Athletic Assn.

For 10 years the NCAA has painstakingly regulated college football TV on Saturday afternoons and practically all the major schools have endorsed the policy which protects the gate receipts of the small schools as well as some of the big ones.

Lamar Hunt, organizer of the league heavily backed by oil money, says, "we don't want a war with the National Football League, but we won't be stepped on."

Spokesmen in collegiate circles are still talking privately, but they've made it clear that although they have no desire to open a second front, they won't be stepped on either.

So while the AFL and the established NFL may be able to play side by side peacefully, the NFL may gain a powerful ally in the colleges.

The National League and the colleges have no written agreement or pacts, but the NFL, regarding the colleges as a wonderful free farm system, has been careful to foster cordial relations.

The NFL does not permit any member team to sign a college player until the athlete's original class has graduated. This protects the college teams from being "raided," and is the policy college baseball would like to see the major leagues adopt.

The NFL, except for a few games on Saturday nights this season, has never pitted its TV against the colleges directly. Even the nationwide pro telecast on Thanksgiving starts two hours earlier than the college game of the day. And NFL Saturday afternoon games are played and televised only in December after the colleges have finished for the year.

The Philadelphia Eagles are tenants of the University of Pennsylvania at Franklin Field and the Pittsburgh Steelers last season played at the University's Pitt Stadium. And while the NCAA recommended against such arrangements, the powerful collegiate body did not forbid them.

Of course, the colleges would have no legal recourse and could do nothing positive about stopping competing AFL telecast, if the young league should telecast Saturday games. But in its hundreds of athletics directors and coaches it would have an army of advisors to greatly influence the future of the college players.

The AFL plans to start operation in 1960 with teams in New York, Dallas, Los Angeles, Denver, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Houston and two other major cities. This year's college seniors will be in its first draft call. Certainly it will include many of the same players drafted by the NFL.

Should the AFL and NFL go to war over these prospects, the battle very well could be won on the playing fields of the colleges.

FIFTH ACC WIN

Clemson Defeats Blue Devils, 6-0

CLEMSON, S.C. (UPI) —Lowndes Shingler, second string Clemson quarterback, pitched a 30-yard strike to Ed Bost with 27 seconds left in the first half Saturday to give Clemson a 6-0 Atlantic Coast Conference win over Duke before a sellout crowd of 40,000.

The victory, Clemson's sixth against one loss and fifth conference victory against no losses, moved the Tigers closer to a second straight ACC championship and a post season bowl trip.

Clemson and Duke had met only four times in the past and Saturday's win was Clemson's first over the Blue Devils.

Clemson converted a second period break into the game's only touchdown. Tackle Ronnie Osborne pounced on a fumbled pitchout by Duke halfback Joel Arrington at the Duke 45 with less than two minutes remaining in the first half.

With 27 seconds, Shingler fired a long pass from the 30 down the middle which Bost, a sophomore end, grabbed in the end zone.

Clemson penetrated to the Duke five and one-yard lines but could never push over another score. The Tiger defense, in registering its fourth straight shutout and fifth of the season, never let Duke cross midfield until 10 minutes before the end of the game.

The Blue Devils then moved 79 yards to the Clemson 12, with Arrington's 31 yard run the big gainer. On third down, tackle Harold Olson threw Duke quarterback George Harris for a 10 yard loss and on the next play teamed with tackle Lou Cordileone and guard Crout to throw Harris again seven yards back.

Clemson halfback Harold Smith fumbled two plays later, and Bunny Bell recovered for Duke at the 26. The Blue Devils made one first down to the 15, but the Clemson line stiffened at the nine to put the game on ice. The loss was Duke's fifth against three wins.

Tries To Line Up Title Bout For Detroit

DETROIT (AP)—Michigan Boxing Commissioner Floyd Stevens said Saturday he is trying to line up a Detroit title fight between heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson and Floyd Patterson.

"I'm looking for 10 substantial businessmen to help me bring the bout to Detroit," Stevens said. "And I'd prefer to have some of them friends of Gustav von Reis, the businessman who is a close friend of Johansson."

The bout originally was set for New York. But that state was eliminated Friday when the New York Boxing Commission revoked the license of Rosensohn Enterprises Inc., which was to have staged the bout.

Stevens said his plans had not matured sufficiently to pick an arena for the bout.

"Let's get an organization first," he said, "and then we'll start thinking about an arena."

Stevens said he is trying to bring the bout here because he is disturbed about the boxing situation in Michigan. Detroit has not had a major bout in 18 months.

SECOND HALF RALLY

Tibbetts Leads Engineers To 14-10 Nod Over Irish

By GENE BLUDEAU

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Marvin Tibbetts, the Georgia Tech quarterback who prefers running to passing, scored two touchdowns Saturday in a second half rally which beat Notre Dame 14-10.

A capacity crowd of 588,575 braved 30 - degree temperatures and a stiff 15-mile-an-hour wind to watch the Yellow Jackets score their sixth victory of the year. It was the first for Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Dodd over Notre Dame in an inter - school rivalry that goes back 37 years.

The game was marked by fumbles and pass interceptions, by both teams, but Notre Dame paid a heavier price for its mistakes.

Tech, trailing 3 - 0 at the half, matched the Irish in fumbles three for three, as the third period opened. But Billy Williamson, a "goat" in an earlier fumble got the Yellow Jackets on their first scoring drive when Don White's pass bounced off Monty Stickles' hands into the arms of the Tech halfback.

Taz Anderson reeled off 32 yards and Tibbetts went through the line for 10 for the big gains in a drive that pushed to the Irish one-yard line. Tibbetts sneaked over for the score.

Frank Nix, a junior halfback, put the steam into the winning drive for Tech when he sprinted 41 yards on a kickoff return midway in the fourth period.

Then Anderson and Tibbetts clicked off short, steady gains, winding up on the Notre Dame six, where Tibbetts blowied over for the touchdown. Tommy Wells kicked both extra points.

Tibbetts, a substitute for the injured regular quarterback, Fred Braselton, threw only two passes, completing one for six yards. But he carried the ball 11 times and gained 33 yards on the ground.

Stickles, whose toe has saved three games for the Irish in three years, booted a 41-yard field goal in the second period after Williamson helped the Irish cause with a fumble on Tech's 30.

Stickles also scored Notre Dame's only touchdown, snaring the 41-yard toss from White in the fourth period and running the remaining two yards for the touchdown.

BOWL-MINDED BULLDOGS

Georgia Tumbles Florida, 21 To 10

By JAMES WARTERS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—Charley Britt scored once on a 100 - yard pass interception and threw for another touchdown on a soggy field Saturday to pace bowl-minded Georgia to a 21-10 victory over Florida before 40,000 fans.

Britt's interception in the third period turned the tide for the Bulldogs, who now have a 7-1 record and are undefeated in the Southeastern Conference.

The Gators, trying to win for Coach Bob Woodruff whose job may be at stake, drove to the Georgia nine-yard line with the Bulldogs holding a 12-point lead. But Britt snared Dick Allen's pass at the goal line and outraced two Florida pursuers into the far end zone.

Britt already had tossed a 35-yard scoring pass to halfback Bobby Towns in the first period, and was a thorn in the side of the Gators all afternoon.

It was Georgia's first win over Florida since 1954. It also marked Florida's fourth straight loss, a string of which has brought report that Woodruff might lose his job if he didn't beat Georgia.

Florida's touchdown came on a 54-yard interception of Britt's pass by halfback Jack Westbrook in the fourth period. The Gators also scored a second period safety.

Georgia was never in serious trouble, driving 43 yards for a score the first time it owned the ball. The touchdown came on a 14-yard pass from halfback Bobby Walden to end Gorden Kelley, who made a leaping catch in the end zone.

Britt's scoring pass to halfback Bobby Towns came with about 30 seconds remaining in the first period.

Florida's safety was set up on a 70-yard pass play from Dick Allen to Hobby Joe Green, who gathered in a perfect strike on the Georgia 48 and was caught from behind at the two.

Georgia's Don Soberdash pounced on a Clyde Butz fumble on the two, but on the next play, the pass from center to punter Bobby Walden was over his head and out of the end zone.

Georgia was driving for another score in the last period when Westbrook leaped up and grabbed Britt's pass. He broke for the east sideline and went over standing up.

Score by Periods

Florida	0	2	0	8	—10
Georgia	1	0	7	0	—21

Scoring Summary:

Georgia — Kelly 14, pass from Walden (Pennington kick), Towns 35, pass from Britt (Pennington kick), Britt 100 pass interception (Pennington kick).

Florida — Safety, center pass out of end zone, Westbrook 54 pass interception (Allen run).

Strong-Armed Hurler Japan's Newest Hero

TOKYO (AP) — A quiet, unassuming college graduate with an amazing right arm, who almost gave up baseball, is Japan's latest hero.

He is be-spectacled Tadashi Sugiura who became the first pitcher in Japanese baseball to win four straight games. The 23-year-old right-hander sparked the Nanakai Hawks to their first national crown in five years as they downed the Tokyo Yomiuri Giants in four straight last week in Japan's version of the World Series.

The scores were 10-7, 6-3, 3-2 and 3-0.

Sugiura hurled 31 innings over a six-day period in what was supposed to be a best-of-seven series.

After his amazing feat, newsmen asked Sugiura which game he thought was the toughest. The 5-7 pitcher, who weighs 156 pounds, gave it some thought, then replied:

"All of them. I gave everything I had in every game."

Sugiura is a cool, deliberate submarine hurler whose underhand shoots stopped some of Japan's heaviest hitters.

He carefully analyzes each batter before unleashing his pitch which includes a slider as well as the customary fast ball and curve.

Sugiura was voted the Pacific League's most valuable player award this year with a fantastic 38-4 record.

HARVARD, 14-0

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Harvard scored Saturday its first victory over Princeton since 1955 thumping the Tigers 14-0 in this 52nd meeting of the ancient members of the Big Three, Albie Cullen and Charlie Ravenel registered the touchdowns.

Ohio State, Indiana Fight To 0-0 Tie

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Underdog Indiana broke a seven-game losing streak to Ohio State Saturday as the Hoosiers battled the Bucks to a scoreless tie in a Western Conference fray before 82,075.

Indiana came within two inches of turning in a big upset when its 85-yard, 23-play ground surge, spanning the first-second period intermission, died practically on the goal line as fullback Vic Jones' final plunge failed to gain.

It was Ohio State's third shutout of the season, and left both the Buck and Hoosiers with 3-3-1 records for the campaign.

Dave Kilgore, Ohio's place - kicking specialist who has booted four 3-pointers this season, failed on 48 and 50-yard efforts in the Buckeyes' lone scoring threats. The Bucks' farthest advance was to Indiana's 31 and 15-yard lines, but the latter came on a 30-yard pass play on the last gasp of the first half.

Ohio was unable to solve Indiana's single-wing attack, and the Hoosiers rolled to 216 yards on the ground, to Ohio's 101.

Ohio took to the airways seven times, completing three for 50 yards.

TROUBLE BREWING

AFL May Compete With NCAA For Television Spot

By JIM KENSIL

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Football League, oil-rich newcomer to the pro game, may be heading for unexpected trouble from the nation's colleges.

The Associated Press has learned that the proposed AFL has offered the major television networks a virtual blank schedule to facilitate as much profitable nationwide television exposure as possible. One TV source said, "The AFL will play Sundays, Saturday nights or even Saturday afternoons — whenever the air time can be cleared and sold."

And an AFL spokesman said openly recently, "There are four or five ad men who want to sponsor the games already" and that games of the New York entry "will go network every Saturday outside of New York. It's a cinch to make dough."

It will also make trouble if the AFL's television collides with the carefully nurtured controlled-TV policy of the National Collegiate Athletic Assn.

For 10 years the NCAA has painstakingly regulated college football TV on Saturday afternoons and practically all the major schools have endorsed the policy which protects the gate receipts of the small schools as well as some of the big ones.

Lamar Hunt, organizer of the league heavily backed by oil money, says, "we don't want a war with the National Football League, but we won't be stepped on."

Spokesmen in collegiate circles are still talking privately, but they've made it clear that although they have no desire to open a second front, they won't be stepped on either.

So while the AFL and the established NFL may be able to play side by side peacefully, the NFL may gain a powerful ally in the colleges.

The National League and the colleges have no written agreement or pacts, but the NFL, regarding the colleges as a wonderful free farm system, has been careful to foster cordial relations.

The NFL does not permit any member team to sign a college player until the athlete's original class has graduated. This protects the college teams from being "raided," and is the policy college baseball would like to see the major leagues adopt.

The NFL, except for a few games on Saturday nights this season, has never pitted its TV against the colleges directly. Even the nationwide pro telecast on Thanksgiving starts two hours earlier than the college game of the day. And NFL Saturday afternoon games are played and televised only in December after the colleges have finished for the year.

The Philadelphia Eagles are tenants of the University of Pennsylvania at Franklin Field and the Pittsburgh Steelers last season played at the University's Pitt Stadium. And while the NCAA recommended against such arrangements, the powerful collegiate body did not forbid them.

Of course, the colleges would have no legal recourse and could do nothing positive about stopping competing AFL telecast, if the young league should telecast Saturday games. But in its hundreds of athletics directors and coaches it would have an army of advisors to greatly influence the future of the college players.

The AFL plans to start operation in 1960 with teams in New York, Dallas, Los Angeles, Denver, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Houston and two other major cities. This year's college seniors will be in its first draft call. Certainly it will include many of the same players drafted by the NFL.

Should the AFL and NFL go to war over these prospects, the battle very well could be won on the playing fields of the colleges.

BOWL-MINDED BULLDOGS

Georgia Tumbles Florida, 21 To 10

By JAMES WARTERS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)— Charley Britt scored once on a 100 - yard pass interception and threw for another touchdown on a soggy field Saturday to pace bowl-minded Georgia to a 21-10 victory over Florida before 40,000 fans.

Britt's interception in the third period turned the tide for the Bulldogs, who now have a 7-1 record and are undefeated in the Southeastern Conference.

The Gators, trying to win for Coach Bob Woodruff whose job may be at stake, drove to the Georgia nine-yard line with the Bulldogs holding a 12-point lead. But Britt snared Dick Allen's pass at the goal line and outraced two Florida pursuers into the far end zone.

Britt already had tossed a 35-yard scoring pass to halfback Bobby Towns in the first period, and was a thorn in the side of the Gators all afternoon.

It was Georgia's first win over Florida since 1954. It also marked Florida's fourth straight loss, a string of which has brought report that Woodruff might lose his job if he didn't beat Georgia.

Florida's touchdown came on a 54-yard interception of Britt's pass by halfback Jack Westbrook in the fourth period. The Gators also scored a second period safety.

Georgia was never in serious trouble, driving 43 yards for a score the first time it owned the ball. The touchdown came on a 14-yard pass from halfback Bobby Walden to end Gorden Kelley, who made a leaping catch in the end zone.

Britt's scoring pass to halfback Bobby Towns came with about 30 seconds remaining in the first period.

Florida's safety was set up on a 70-yard pass play from Dick Allen to Hobby Joe Green, who gathered in a perfect strike on the Georgia 48 and was caught from behind at the two.

Georgia's Don Soberdash pounced on a Clyde Butz fumble on the two, but on the next play, the pass from center to punter Bobby Walden was over his head and out of the end zone.

Georgia was driving for another score in the last period when Westbrook leaped up and grabbed Britt's pass. He broke for the east sideline and went over standing up.

Score by Periods

Florida	0	2	0	8—10
Georgia	1	0	7	0—21

Scoring Summary:

Georgia — Kelly 14, pass from Walden (Pennington kick), Towns 35, pass from Britt (Pennington kick), Britt 100 pass interception (Pennington kick).

Florida — Safety, center pass out of end zone, Westbrook 54 pass interception (Allen run).

Strong-Armed Hurler Japan's Newest Hero

TOKYO (AP) — A quiet, unassuming college graduate with an amazing right arm, who almost gave up baseball, is Japan's latest hero.

He is be-spectacled Tadashi Sugiura who became the first pitcher in Japanese baseball to win four straight games. The 23-year-old right-hander sparked the Nanakai Hawks to their first national crown in five years as they downed the Tokyo Yomiuri Giants in four straight last week in Japan's version of the World Series.

The scores were 10-7, 6-3, 3-2 and 3-0.

Sugiura hurled 31 innings over a six-day period in what was supposed to be a best-of-seven series.

After his amazing feat, newsmen asked Sugiura which game he thought was the toughest. The 5-7 pitcher, who weighs 156 pounds, gave it some thought, then replied:

"All of them. I gave everything I had in every game."

Sugiura is a cool, deliberate submarine hurler whose underhand shoots stopped some of Japan's heaviest hitters.

He carefully analyzes each batter before unleashing his pitch which includes a slider as well as the customary fast ball and curve.

Sugiura was voted the Pacific League's most valuable player award this year with a fantastic 38-4 record.

HARVARD, 14-0

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Harvard scored Saturday its first victory over Princeton since 1955 thumping the Tigers 14-0 in this 52nd meeting of the ancient members of the Big Three, Albie Cullen and Charlie Ravenel registered the touchdowns.

Ohio State, Indiana Fight To 0-0 Tie

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Underdog Indiana broke a seven-game losing streak to Ohio State Saturday as the Hoosiers battled the Bucks to a scoreless tie in a Western Conference fray before 82,075.

Indiana came within two inches of turning in a big upset when its 85-yard, 23-play ground surge, spanning the first-second period intermission, died practically on the goal line as fullback Vic Jones' final plunge failed to gain.

It was Ohio State's third shutout of the season, and left both the Buck and Hoosiers with 3-3-1 records for the campaign.

Dave Kilgore, Ohio's place - kicking specialist who has booted four 3-pointers this season, failed on 48 and 50-yard efforts in the Buckeyes' lone scoring threats. The Bucks' farthest advance was to Indiana's 31 and 15-yard lines, but the latter came on a 30-yard pass play on the last gasp of the first half.

Ohio was unable to solve Indiana's single-wing attack, and the Hoosiers rolled to 216 yards on the ground, to Ohio's 101.

Ohio took to the airways seven times, completing three for 50 yards.

Navy Rallies To Defeat Maryland

BALTIMORE (AP) — Joe Bellino spun loose in the fourth quarter on punt returns, one for 59 yards and the deciding touchdown, to spring Navy from behind for a 22-14 football victory over Maryland Saturday night.

The game ended with Maryland on the Navy one.

Bellino, ever dangerous junior halfback from Winchester, Mass., set up Navy's tying touchdown early in the fourth quarter with a 33-yard punt return before taking one all the way for the victory.

Until Bellino tore loose, the Middies were on the verge of suffering their fifth defeat of the season from a neighborhood rival they had beaten 40-14 last year.

Navy now is 3-4 in Wayne Hardin's first season as head coach. Maryland is 3-5 under Tom Nugent, also a rookie.

The Terrapins jumped to a 14-0 lead in the first quarter on a fluke touchdown pass play and a 30-yard punch ater a recovered fumble by tackle Curt Schwarz.

Navy, in complete control in the second half except for Maryland's dying gasp, got one touchdown back in the third quarter on an 86-yard drive. The Middies still were in a hole, however, when Schwarz blocked a two-point conversion pass try by quarterbock Joe Tranchini, leaving Maryland ahead 14-6.

Maryland threatened to run Navy out of Memorial Stadium before an announced crowd of 32,845 in the opening quarter.

On the Terps' second play, quarterback Richie Novak let fly a weak pass from the Navy 49. Navy halfback Ronnie Brandquist tried to grab it, but it bounced off him and fullback Joe Matalavage into the hands of Maryland end Vince Scott at the 20. Scott went over the goal and kicked the first of his two conversions.

After Schwarz fell on Matalavage's fumble, Novak and fullback Jim Joyce ran the ball to the Navy 1, from where Joyce plunged into the end zone.

Bellino, who has been hampered by leg trouble all season, took things into his own hands at the start of the fourth period by returning a punt from his 32 to the Maryland 35 and then running 28 yards around right end. Tranchini threw a nine-yard pass to halfback Dick Pariseau and plunged a yard for the score, then passed to Jim Penbrook for the two points that tied it 14-14.

After Bellino took another punt at his 41 and ran down the sideline for the decisive score and Tranchini ran for two extra points Maryland drove from its 34 to a foot from the goal with second-string fullback Pat Drass carrying nine times for 40 yards.

NORTHWESTERN BLOWS CHANCE

Wisconsin Hands Wildcats Year's First Defeat, 24-19

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Wisconsin fought off repeated fourth quarter efforts by Northwestern Saturday and toppled the Wildcats from the ranks of the undefeated 24-19 to climb into a first place tie in the Big Ten football race.

Rated second nationally, Northwestern blew its big chance late in the fourth quarter when a lateral to halfback Ron Burton went astray and Wisconsin center Bob Nelson pounced on the loose football on the 8-yard line.

Wisconsin piled up 17 points in the second quarter on a pair of touchdown passes by Dale Hackbart and then turned a Northwestern fumble into another touchdown early in the third quarter for its sixth triumph in seven games.

The outcome left the teams tied for the Big Ten lead with 4-1 records and two games to play.

Trailing by 11 points in the fourth quarter, Northwestern scored a touchdown when Burton, who in the first half had scampered 69 yards for a touchdown, went 47 yards from scrimmage to set up a touchdown scored by little Bobby Eickhoff.

A couple of minutes later, Elbert Kimbrough picked off a pass by Jim Bakken and ran 51 yards to the Wisconsin 11. Two plays netted the Wildcats six yards before Burton fumbled Bobby Eickhoff's pitchout and Nelson recovered.

Northwestern got its hands on the ball two more times but the tough Badger defense managed to hold off the desperate Wildcats.

A record crowd of 55,282 saw the Badgers, running and passing out of a short punt formation, score 17 points in the second quarter on a 26-yard field goal by Karl Holzwarth and Hackbart's pair of 14-yard passes.

The Badgers, unknowingly, iced the contest early in the second half when Northwestern's Mark Johnston fumbled on the second play from scrimmage and Ron Perkins recovered on the Wildcat 26. Wisconsin moved to the 15, and on a fourth down play Hackbart lateraled to Ed Hart, who rambled to the 3. Hart then whipped around end for the touchdown and Holzwarth added the point for an 11-point lead.

The big factor was that Northwestern lost the ball four times on fumbles and three times on interceptions. Wisconsin lost the ball once on a fumble and once on an interception.

DRAMATIC

U.S. Wins Back Golf's Ryder Cup

By WILL GRIMSLEY

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP)—The United States won back the Ryder Cup from the British Saturday with a dramatic, overpowering performance by Capt. Sam Snead and his teammates in the closing singles matches.

The margin of victory was 8½ to 3½, giving the Americans victory for the 10th time in 13 meetings with their overseas rivals since 1927 and preserving their record of never losing in the famed professional golf series on U.S. soil.

Although it remained for Masters' Champion Art Wall Jr. to score the clinching point, with a resounding 7 and 6 triumph over Ireland's Christy O'Connor, old slam-bang Sam Snead stole the show.

Ever spectacular and almost always good, the 47-year-old Snead holed out a chip shot from 30 feet to beat Dave Thomas, longhitting Welshman, 6 and 5.

Bob Rosburg, the Professional Golfers' Assn. champion from San Francisco, used his baseball grip to advantage in beating Harry Weetman, the controversial Englishman, 6-5.

Other American victories were scored by muscular Mike Souchak of Durham, N. C., who won 3 and 2 over Ken Bousfield, and Dow Finsterwald, who triumphed 1-up over Dai Rees, the gallant little captain of the invaders, who made a strong comeback.

The only clearcut British victory was registered by Eric Brown, slender Scotsman, who kept intact his record of never having lost a singles match in this competition by beating ailing and erratic Cary Middlecoff 4-3.

Two matches were halved—Jay Hebert, of Sanford, Fla., playing his first Ryder Cup match, gambled on the final hole, hit his approach in the water, and finished in a tie with Peter Alliss.

Doug Ford, of Yonkers, N. Y., dissipated a 4-hole lead and finished in a tie with Norman Drew, who sank a 15-foot putt on the 36th hole to knot the match.

The Americans led 2½-1½ after Friday's team matches. Saturday's victory was a pleasant one since the British had upset the Yanks two years ago in Sheffield, England, winning the cup for the first time in 24 years.

Snead played some of his finest golf in rolling up a four-hole lead over Thomas, shooting a 67, three under par, in the morning round.

The closest and most exciting duel was waged between Hebert and Alliss, called "England's Sam Snead," because of his beautiful swing.

On the morning round, Alliss scored a birdie deuce on the sixth hole and sank consecutive putts of 30, 35, 40 and 10 feet. Hebert, however, hung on grimly and held the Englishman to a one hole advantage at the end of the morning round.

The two played almost stroke for stroke through the afternoon. Hebert going into a two-hole lead at the 32nd, but losing the 33rd to a birdie three. He took a six on the final hole after getting into water. Allis won the hole with a four.

Wall closed out his match with a birdie two on the 30th hole, where he sent an approach within 3 feet of the pin and sank his putt.

College Grid Attendence Up Two Per Cent

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Attendance at college football games this year is approximately 2 per cent higher than it was a year ago, the NCAA Service Bureau reported Sunday.

Official figures through games of Oct. 31 show college football's top 20 times attracted 72,783 more spectators than in the corresponding number of games in 1958.

The average per-game attendance of the top 20 is 51, 681, with half of these teams individually averaging more than 50,000 spectators a game. These same schools averaged 50,671 last year in the same number of games.

In the first 72 games played by the attendance leaders this season 3,721,101 fans streamed through the turnstiles, compared with 3,648,318 a year ago, an increase of 1.9 per cent.

The greates gains were made by unbeaten Northwestern up 44,497, oft-beaten California 42,960 and undefeated Texas 38,900.

For the second straight year and third in four seasons, Ohio State leads in attendance, although attracting 1,005 fewer persons than last year. The Buckeyes, through Oct. 31 drew 331,335 for a four-game average of 82,834.

Last year, all college football games drew more than in any previous season-19,280,709.

Porkers Rally To Hand Rice 14-10 Setback

HOUSTON (AP) — Billy Kyser, a senior halfback who had gained only 25 yards in seven games, led Arkansas on two touchdowns drives Saturday as the Razorbacks came from behind and defeated winless Rice 14-10.

Rice limited Arkansas to a net of 18 yards while taking a 10-0 lead on a 74-yard touchdown run by Billy Bucek and a 26-yard field goal by Gordon Speer.

Arkansas retaining a chance for a share of the Southwest Conference title, struck quickly, however, after Speer's three-pointer midway in the second period. The Razorbacks took the kickoff and moved 57 yards in five plays in a drive kept alive by Kyser's spectacular pass reception on the Rice 22. Quarterback George McKinney then scored from the one two plays later.

Kyser's third period touchdown from the one put the Porkers in front and climaxed an 80-yard Arkansas surge in which the 175-pound halfback carried five times for 39 yards and caught one pass for 27.

Kyser finished with 52 yards in seven carries.

My Dear Girl Wins Frizette At Aqueduct

NEW YORK (AP) — My Dear Girl virtually wrapped up the 2-year-old filly title Saturday with a victory in the $101,525 Frizette Stakes at Aqueduct.

The speedy equine miss from Mrs. Frances A. Genter's stable scored by a nose over the Wheatley Stable's Irish Jay for her second rich triumph in two weeks. My Dear Girl also won the Gardenia at Garden State Park.

Ogden Phipps' Sarcastic, who ran coupled in the betting with the Wheatley Stable entry, was third, seven lengths back.

A comparatively small crowd of 31,582, held down by the rain and cold, saw My Dear Girl overtake Irish Jay in the final strides after trailing the Wheatley horse all the way. Flower Bonnet, owned by the Pebblebrook Farm, finished fourth, after running second most of the way. Jockey Mike Gonzalez rode the winner.

The victory was the fifth in seven starts for the lightly - campaigned Florida - bred juvenile miss, who picked up $65,991.25 for her victory. Favored in the betting, My Dear Girl paid $3.10, $2.40, $2.30. The Wheatley Stable entry of Irish Jay and Sarcastic paid $3, $3.70.

The time for the Frizette, run for the first time at a mile, was 1:40.1 on a sloppy track. All starters carried 119 pounds.

This was My Dear Girl's third stakes victory and brought her winnings to $135,662. She won the Florida Breeders at Hialeah and was second in the Arlington Lassies.

Miss. Southern Tips N.C. State

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Mississippi Southern's rangy halfback Rene Lorio caught a 37-yard scoring pass with 55 seconds left to play Saturday for a 19-14 Southerner triumph over luckless North Carolina State before 12,000 fans.

Lorio pulled the "small-college" powerhouse Southerners back from the brink of defeat almost singlehanded. He twisted and dodged on a kickoff return into N.C. State territory, then took the winning pass from sophomore quarterback Morris Meador and sped into the end zone.

The Wolfpack from Raleigh, losing its sixth straight game, rolled 80 yards on the passing of quarterback Gerry Mancini and went ahead on a two - yard scoring plunge by halfback Ron Podwika and a two point conversion talkon a Podwika pass to halfback Bernie Latusick.

The Southerners had to come from behind twice in the teeth of a cold, 25-mile an hour wind whipping this Gulf Coast city's memorial stadium.

They turned an intercepted pass into a touchdown in the third period. Then, when State tallied its eight points with the clock running out, Lorio made it a personal show.

The Wolfpack went ahead early, snatching a fumble by Southern fullback Buddy Supple deep in Southern territory. Fullback John Stanton took a handoff a play later, cut through the secondary and scored from 17 yards out.

Meador intercepted a State pass in the third, took to the air himself and passed 20 yards to the State nine and the Southerners stabbed the rest of the way, sending Meador sneaking one yard for the score.

End Hugh McInnis kicked the extra point that put Southern ahead 7-6. Then Southern scored again in the fourth on a two-yard plunge by fullback Arnold Spence, but McInnis' kick into the wind was no good.

Score by Periods

Miss. Southern	0	0	7	12—19
N.C. State	6	0	0	8—14

Scoring Summary:

MSU —Meador 1 run (McInnis kick), Spence 2 run (kick failed), Lorio 37 pass from Meador (kick failed).

NC State — Stanton 17 run (kick failed), Podwika 2 run (Latusick, pass from Podwika).

Texas Team Spoils Tiger Homecoming

GRAMBLING, La (Special) — Texas Southern University caught Grambling unprepared here Saturday and the Tigers went into reverse gear for the third straight week, drooping their homecoming encounter, 15-14.

Berated by fumbles in previous loses, Grambling handled the ball adhesively in spots, but this was about their only point of real consequence.

The Tigers scored the first time they got the ball. Sticking to the wing-t balanced-line offense and demonstrating good power inside tackles, Grambling drove 67-yards for the opening marker.

Texas Southern stormed back with a touchdown of its own, and added the two-point conversion.

The Houston eleven used its favorite weapon — the long pass — to crop off the yardage. Quarterback Charles Green fired a 33-yard pass that Clarence Caldwell grabbed going away for the score.

William Gulley ran the conversion and promptly introduced Grambling to an afternoon of despair.

Halfback Roosevelt Taylor ran a crooked 76-yard course for a second period TD for the locals, but thereafter TSU grew stronger and the Tigers faded miserably.

Texas Southern surged ahead with the winning marker early in the fourth quarter, and blunted a Grambling thrust that penetrated to the 30-yard line.

Coach Alex Durley's team drove 76-yards for the winning TD and were equally opportunistic, containing ground assaults and checking passing with timely interceptions. Green bulled over from the four-yard line.

BRYANT'S 100TH VICTORY

Alabama Barrels Over Wave, 19-7

By BILL KING

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)—Alabama found an offense equal to its famed hard-nose defense Saturday night as it trampled Tulane, 19-7, before 29,000 thoroughly chilled fans.

The Crimson Tide mauled Tulane with the running of quarterback Pat Trammell, the passing of sophomore quarterback Bobby Skelton and some fancy twisting by senior scatback Marlin Dyess.

But, the passing of Greenie quartebacks Phil Nugent and Bob Cornett and some early mistakes very nearly denied 'Bama Head Football Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant his 100th victory.

It was Nugent's passing that knotted the game at halftime, 7-7, and Cornett's throws in the dying minutes that thew a score into the Crimson Tide for awhile. Two interceptions stopped the threats.

It was Trammell and Dyess who put Alabama ahead in the first minutes of the second period as the Tide rammed 67 yards in 11 plays. End Fred Sington kicked the conversion to give 'Bama a 7-0 edge.

But Nugent tried six passes in the dying minutes of the half, hit on three and got a break when Alabama interfered with a receiver. The final toss was a 10-yard connection to end Pete Abadie. Howard Kisner added the conversion.

The first three times the Crimson Tide had the ball there were two fumbles, and one blocked quick-kick but the Greenies could not cash in on the early breaks.

Dyess took the second half-kickoff on his five yard line, and scampered and twisted 38 yards to set a new kickoff return record for this year. He also contributed 24 other yards, 13 on a pass from Skelton, in the march for the Tide's second touchdown.

'Bama covered the distance in five plays from scrimmage with Dyess scooting 11 and then Skelton hitting end Tommy Booker for 22 yards and the score. Sington missed the kick.

Trammell and Dyess led the Tide for 27 yards on the ground in the final two minutes that was capped by a ten-yard jaunt by halfback Billy Richardson. A run for the conversion failed.

It was Alabama's first victory over Tulane in three years and gives the Tide a 4-1-2 record overall this year.

Prep Player Slugs Official After Penalty

DETROIT (AP) — A burly high school football player slugged an umpire after the official called a penalty during a game Friday night.

Louis D. Bertsos, the official, said he was caught by surprise when attached by Vince Frigerio, a 210-pound junior guard for Dearborn.

"I was dumbfounded," Bertos declared. "He must have hit me four or five times before I could figure out what was happening. "He belted me good, too — on the forehead, nose, mouth and below the eye."

The flare-up occurred during the game between Darborn and Wayne High Schools at Wayne. It was in the last minutes of the game which Wayne won 39-18.

"I really don't know what got into Vince," said Dearborn Coach Bob Bridges. "I do know he's all broken up over it. But that's a little late now."

Bridges said Frigerio told him after the incident that "some guy pust called a penalty I didn't think was much good. So I slugged him."

Bertsos had called a clipping penalty on Dearborn after the team had intercepted a Wayne pass. The entire play was nullified, however, because the game's head linesman and the referee already had dropped penalty flags against both teams at the line of scrimmage.

What disciplinary action, if any, to be taken against Frigerio will be decided next week by the State High School Athletic Assn. and Dearborn school authorities.

Bertsos said he planned no "But I certainly believe he should court action against Frigerio. "But I certainly believe he should be disciplined in some way," The official declared.

Oklahoma Stuns Kansas State In 36-0 Runaway

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)—Oklahoma walloped Kansas State 36-0 Saturday, rolling over tired Wildcat defenses for 29 points in the second half as the Sooners started a new Big Eight conference streak.

Playing under wraps because of next week's date with Army, Oklahoma relied on basic plays while bouncing back from last weekend's defeat by Nebraska that ended the Sooners' conference unbeaten string at 74 games.

Fullback Ronnie Hartline totaled 14 points for the Sooners, now 4-3. He scored two touchdowns, added two extra points and more than doubled the yardage of his mates with 102 yards on 12 carries.

Three times in the first half Kansas State chopped down Oklahoma drives — once a half yard short of the goal, another time at the 6 and another at the 13.

But with No. 1 quarterback John Soloms playing only briefly because of an ankle injury, the Wildcats never threatened. Three times Oklahoma set up scoring drives with interceptions.

Hagan, Pettit Lead St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Hawks, led by Bob Pettit's 28 points, saw a 14-point lead almost wiped out by New York's fiery full-court press before Cliff Hagan rescued a 117-113 National Basketball Assn. victory Saturday night for the Western Division leaders.

The Knicks, led by Richie Guerin and Willie Naulls with 26 points each, grabbed a 54-53 halftime lead and widened it to 62-56 early in the third period.

Then Pettit, Hagan and Si Green went to work. The lead changed hands six times in about three minutes before Pettit's goal put the Hawks ahead to stay at 73-71.

St. Louis pulled ahead 86-78 after three quarters and owned a 14-point bulge, 102-88, in the last quarter when New York's little men — Ron Sobie, Jack George, Johnny Green — with help from Naulls and Guerin, surged back to pull up 110-107 with 1:40 left.

The Hawks appeared disorganized by the Knicks shock troops until Hagan delivered a fantastic left-handed driving hook shot and a tip in for a 115-111 lead. Jack George's two free throws made it 115-113 with five seconds left, but Al Ferrari's two foul shots closed it out.

Texas Southern Stymies Oregon, 20-18

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Little Cleveland Jones wrested a 35-yard pass out of California's hands in the waning minutes for a touchdown that kept Oregon in the running for the Rose Bowl with a 20-18 victory Saturday.

Oregon quarterback Dave Grosz lofted the desperation pass and California quarterback Wayne Crow and Jones went up to get it on the goal line.

They wrestled until they hit the ground but the 5-4 Jones had the ball in his arms, just two inches into the end zone.

LSU Frosh Defeat Miss. State, 33-12

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Louisiana State freshmen rolled to a 33-12 victory over Mississippi State's baby Maroons before a shivering crowd of 6,000 Saturday night.

LSU's Tommy Thompson and Peter Ascani each had two touchdowns and Danny Neumann had one.

Johnny Baker scored both Mississippi State touchdowns on passes from Bobby Bullock and Laurin Collins.

Baker tallied in the second period when he caught Bullock's 16-yard pass on fourth down after Hilton Marcum intercepted Lynn Amedee's pass on the LSU 28.

Baker caught Collins' pass from the 31 on the two and fell over for the second touchdown.

Thompson ran over from the six for LSU's first touchdown early in the first period to cap a 72-yard drive. Steve Ward ran the two-point conversion.

Early in the third period, LSU drove 62 yards in five plays with Thompson scoring from the 12. Amedee converted. Ascani recovered a fumble by State's Joe Bailus on the LSU 21 and on the next play scampered around right end to score.

A fumble by State's Bob Flurry was recovered by Neumann on the 24, and two pays later Neumann rammed through the middle from the eight to score.

Ascani went over from the three to cap a 79-yard march in 11 plays.

SMU Rallies For 14-11 Win Over Aggies

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., (AP) — Break-away sprints by Tiery Wilemon set up both Southern Methodist touchdowns as the Mustangs came from behind for a 14-11 victory over Texas A&M Saturday.

SMU, hanging on in the Southwest Conference football race, scored both TDs within five minutes early in the final quarter. Don Meredith passed five yards to Jim Jones for the first, and ran a yard himself for the second.

Wilemon rammed through center for 45 yards to the Aggie 19 to set up the first score. And the next time the Mustangs had the ball, Wilemon's 21-yard run carried into Aggie territory in a seven-play march.

The Aggies led 3-0 at the end of three periods as the result of two interceptions of Meredith passes. The first, by Gordon Leboeuf, led to a 23-yard fied goal by Randy Sims. The other, by Bob Sanders, chilled a SMU threat.

After the Mustangs' fourth period outburst, the Aggies rolled 64 yards in nine plays, scoring on Charlie Milstead's pass to Russ Hill from the 3. Milstead, whose 38-yard pass set up the touchdown, also passed to Sims for the conversion.

Baylor's Bucket Defeats Pistons

DETROIT (AP)—Elgin Baylor's basket with 20 seconds left gave Minneapolis a comeback, 113-111 overtime victory over the Detroit Pistons Saturday, ending the Lakers' losing streak at five in the National Basketball Assn.

It was the second overtime battle between the two clubs within 24 hours. Detroit won 118-113 in double overtime at Minneapolis Friday.

Baylor, who led the scoring with 40 points, and Ed Fleming were the heroes for Minneapolis. The Lakers trailed from the first moment of play until Fleming's basket sent the game into overtime at 103-103 with 19 seconds left in regulation play.

Fleming twice tied the score with key shots in the overtime before teammate Tom Hawkins squared it at 111-all with 50 seconds left. Then Baylor bagged it.

Breaux, Clark Pace 'Poke Win

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Don Breaux and Olen Clark barreled across for two touchdowns each to give McNeese a 28-7 victory over Florence (Ala.) State before 4,000 Saturday night.

Ken Gunter gave Florence a 7-0 lead when he broke away for a 58-yard touchdown on the game's second play.

McNeese went ahead 14-7 at the half after quarterback Breaux plunged over from the five and Clark ran across from the 13.

In the second half, Clark bucked over from the one and Breaux stepped for a 30-yard touchdown.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Wayne Embry's field goal with 17 seconds left broke a tie and gave the Cincinnati Royals a 103-101 National Basketball Assn. victory over the Syracuse Nationals Saturday night.

Johnny Kerr, lanky Nats' center, pulled Syracuse even at 101-all with a hook shot 57 seconds from the end, setting the stage for Embry's winner on a short jump.

North Texas Wins, 39 To 7

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — Halfback Abner Haynes scored two touchdowns and picked up 121 yards in 15 carries Saturday night at North Texas State extended its winning streak to 10 games by defeating Louisville 39-7.

North Texas scrapped a 7-7 tie with three touchdowns in less than 11 minutes of the second period for a commanding lead.

Billy Christle, a sophomore halfback, took off on a 59-yard touchdown run down the sideline for a 21-7 North Texas lead. It came on the first play by the Eagles' second team when they came on in the second quarter.

The speed of Haynes, Vernon Cole, Bill Groce an Morris Rose proved too much for Louisville's defense. And the Eagle defense proved the best Louisville, which entered the game with a 27 point average, met this year.

36 TO 0

Undefeated Trojans Maul West Virginia

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Southern California counted a second quarter touchdown that would have been enough, then wore down West Virginia's defenses in the second half for a 36-0 victory Saturday that left the Trojans unbeaten in seven games.

Stymied on the ground by the Mountaineers, quarterback Ben Charles went to the air for USC's first score, throwing 28 yards to end Luther Hayes just before the half.

West Virginia's game line really wilted in the final quarter before the savage charges of the Trojan forward wall, led by the McKeever twins—Mike and Marlin — Ron Mix and George Van Vliet.

Halfback Bob Levingston set up Troy's second touchdown, racing 62 yards in the third quarter to the West Virginia 7. Jerry Traynham ran over on the next play.

In the fourth period, USC went 82 yards in 11 plays for the third touchdown, then scored again on Angie Coia's 59-yard punt return. The final touchdown came in the closing minutes, when the Trojans moved 26 yards in six plays.

Mike McKeever, accused of dirty play against California last week, was outstanding in the line, although Coach Don Clark said before the game he feared the accusations might slow down the big guard. Time and again, Mike jammed up the West Virginia running attack.

McKeever, thrown out of his last two games, drew no penalties in this one.

Navy Rallies To Defeat Maryland

BALTIMORE (AP) — Joe Bellino spun loose in the fourth quarter on punt returns, one for 59 yards and the deciding touchdown, to spring Navy from behind for a 22-14 football victory over Maryland Saturday night.

The game ended with Maryland on the Navy one.

Bellino, ever dangerous junior halfback from Winchester, Mass., set up Navy's tying touchdown early in the fourth quarter with a 33-yard punt return before taking one all the way for the victory.

Until Bellino tore loose, the Middies were on the verge of suffering their fifth defeat of the season from a neighborhood rival they had beaten 40-14 last year.

Navy now is 3-4 in Wayne Hardin's first season as head coach. Maryland is 3-5 under Tom Nugent, also a rookie.

The Terrapins jumped to a 14-0 lead in the first quarter on a fluke touchdown pass play and a 30-yard punch ater a recovered fumble by tackle Curt Schwarz.

Navy, in complete control in the second half except for Maryland's dying gasp, got one touchdown back in the third quarter on an 86-yard drive. The Middies still were in a hole, however, when Schwarz blocked a two-point conversion pass try by quarterbock Joe Tranchini, leaving Maryland ahead 14-6.

Maryland threatened to run Navy out of Memorial Stadium before an announced crowd of 32,845 in the opening quarter.

On the Terps' second play, quarterback Richie Novak let fly a weak pass from the Navy 49. Navy halfback Ronnie Brandquist tried to grab it, but it bounced off him and fullback Joe Matalavage into the hands of Maryland end Vince Scott at the 20. Scott went over the goal and kicked the first of his two conversions.

After Schwarz fell on Matalavage's fumble, Novak and fullback Jim Joyce ran the ball to the Navy 1, from where Joyce plunged into the end zone.

Bellino, who has been hampered by leg trouble all season, took things into his own hands at the start of the fourth period by returning a punt from his 32 to the Maryland 35 and then running 28 yards around right end. Tranchini threw a nine-yard pass to halfback Dick Pariseau and plunged a yard for the score, then passed to Jim Penbrook for the two points that tied it 14-14.

After Bellino took another punt at his 41 and ran down the sideline for the decisive score and Tranchini ran for two extra points Maryland drove from its 34 to a foot from the goal with second-string fullback Pat Drass carrying nine times for 40 yards.

Porkers Rally To Hand Rice 14-10 Setback

HOUSTON (AP) — Billy Kyser, a senior halfback who had gained only 25 yards in seven games, led Arkansas on two touchdowns drives Saturday as the Razorbacks came from behind and defeated winless Rice 14-10.

Rice limited Arkansas to a net of 18 yards while taking a 10-0 lead on a 74-yard touchdown run by Billy Bucek and a 26-yard field goal by Gordon Speer.

Arkansas retaining a chance for a share of the Southwest Conference title, struck quickly, however, after Speer's three-pointer midway in the second period. The Razorbacks took the kickoff and moved 57 yards in five plays in a drive kept alive by Kyser's spectacular pass reception on the Rice 22. Quarterback George McKinney then scored from the one two plays later.

Kyser's third period touchdown from the one put the Porkers in front and climaxed an 80-yard Arkansas surge in which the 175-pound halfback carried five times for 39 yards and caught one pass for 27.

Kyser finished with 52 yards in seven carries.

NORTHWESTERN BLOWS CHANCE

Wisconsin Hands Wildcats Year's First Defeat, 24-19

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Wisconsin fought off repeated fourth quarter efforts by Northwestern Saturday and toppled the Wildcats from the ranks of the undefeated 24-19 to climb into a first place tie in the Big Ten football race.

Rated second nationally, Northwestern blew its big chance late in the fourth quarter when a lateral to halfback Ron Burton went astray and Wisconsin center Bob Nelson pounced on the loose football on the 8-yard line.

Wisconsin piled up 17 points in the second quarter on a pair of touchdown passes by Dale Hackbart and then turned a Northwestern fumble into another touchdown early in the third quarter for its sixth triumph in seven games.

The outcome left the teams tied for the Big Ten lead with 4-1 records and two games to play.

Trailing by 11 points in the fourth quarter, Northwestern scored a touchdown when Burton, who in the first half had scampered 69 yards for a touchdown, went 47 yards from scrimmage to set up a touchdown scored by little Bobby Eickhoff.

A couple of minutes later, Elbert Kimbrough picked off a pass by Jim Bakken and ran 51 yards to the Wisconsin 11. Two plays netted the Wildcats six yards before Burton fumbled Bobby Eickhoff's pitchout and Nelson recovered.

Northwestern got its hands on the ball two more times but the tough Badger defense managed to hold off the desperate Wildcats.

A record crowd of 55,282 saw the Badgers, running and passing out of a short punt formation, score 17 points in the second quarter on a 26-yard field goal by Karl Holzwarth and Hackbart's pair of 14-yard passes.

The Badgers, unknowingly, iced the contest early in the second half when Northwestern's Mark Johnston fumbled on the second play from scrimmage and Ron Perkins recovered on the Wildcat 26. Wisconsin moved to the 15, and on a fourth down play Hackbart lateraled to Ed Hart, who rambled to the 3. Hart then whipped around end for the touchdown and Holzwarth added the point for an 11-point lead.

The big factor was that Northwestern lost the ball four times on fumbles and three times on interceptions. Wisconsin lost the ball once on a fumble and once on an interception.

DRAMATIC

U.S. Wins Back Golf's Ryder Cup

By WILL GRIMSLEY

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP)—The United States won back the Ryder Cup from the British Saturday with a dramatic, overpowering performance by Capt. Sam Snead and his teammates in the closing singles matches.

The margin of victory was 8½ to 3½, giving the Americans victory for the 10th time in 13 meetings with their overseas rivals since 1927 and preserving their record of never losing in the famed professional golf series on U.S. soil.

Although it remained for Masters' Champion Art Wall Jr. to score the clinching point, with a resounding 7 and 6 triumph over Ireland's Christy O'Connor, old slam-bang Sam Snead stole the show.

Ever spectacular and almost always good, the 47-year-old Snead holed out a chip shot from 30 feet to beat Dave Thomas, longhitting Welshman, 6 and 5.

Bob Rosburg, the Professional Golfers' Assn. champion from San Francisco, used his baseball grip to advantage in beating Harry Weetman, the controversial Englishman, 6-5.

Other American victories were scored by muscular Mike Souchak of Durham, N. C., who won 3 and 2 over Ken Bousfield, and Dow Finsterwald, who triumphed 1-up over Dai Rees, the gallant little captain of the invaders, who made a strong comeback.

The only clearcut British victory was registered by Eric Brown, slender Scotsman, who kept intact his record of never having lost a singles match in this competition by beating ailing and erratic Cary Middlecoff 4-3.

Two matches were halved—Jay Hebert, of Sanford, Fla., playing his first Ryder Cup match, gambled on the final hole, hit his approach in the water, and finished in a tie with Peter Alliss.

Doug Ford, of Yonkers, N. Y., dissipated a 4-hole lead and finished in a tie with Norman Drew, who sank a 15-foot putt on the 36th hole to knot the match.

The Americans led 2½-1½ after Friday's team matches. Saturday's victory was a pleasant one since the British had upset the Yanks two years ago in Sheffield, England, winning the cup for the first time in 24 years.

Snead played some of his finest golf in rolling up a four-hole lead over Thomas, shooting a 67, three under par, in the morning round.

The closest and most exciting duel was waged between Hebert and Alliss, called "England's Sam Snead," because of his beautiful swing.

On the morning round, Alliss scored a birdie deuce on the sixth hole and sank consecutive putts of 30, 35, 40 and 10 feet. Hebert, however, hung on grimly and held the Englishman to a one hole advantage at the end of the morning round.

The two played almost stroke for stroke through the afternoon, Hebert going into a two-hole lead at the 32nd, but losing the 33rd to a birdie three. He took a six on the final hole after getting into water. Allis won the hole with a four.

Wall closed out his match with a birdie two on the 30th hole, where he sent an approach within 3 feet of the pin and sank his putt.

My Dear Girl Wins Frizette At Aqueduct

NEW YORK (AP) — My Dear Girl virtually wrapped up the 2-year-old filly title Saturday with a victory in the $101,525 Frizette Stakes at Aqueduct.

The speedy equine miss from Mrs. Frances A. Genter's stable scored by a nose over the Wheatley Stable's Irish Jay for her second rich triumph in two weeks. My Dear Girl also won the Gardenia at Garden State Park.

Ogden Phipps' Sarcastic, who ran coupled in the betting with the Wheatley Stable entry, was third, seven lengths back.

A comparatively small crowd of 31,582, held down by the rain and cold, saw My Dear Girl overtake Irish Jay in the final strides after trailing the Wheatley horse all the way. Flower Bonnet, owned by the Pebblebrook Farm, finished fourth, after running second most of the way. Jockey Mike Gonzalez rode the winner.

The victory was the fifth in seven starts for the lightly - campaigned Florida - bred juvenile miss, who picked up $65,991.25 for her victory. Favored in the betting, My Dear Girl paid $3.10, $2.40, $2.30. The Wheatley Stable entry of Irish Jay and Sarcastic paid $3, $3.70.

The time for the Frizette, run for the first time at a mile, was 1:40.1 on a sloppy track. All starters carried 119 pounds.

This was My Dear Girl's third stakes victory and brought her winnings to $185,662. She won the Florida Breeders at Hialeah and was second in the Arlington Lassies.

Miss. Southern Tips N.C. State

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Mississippi Southern's rangy halfback Rene Lorio caught a 37-yard scoring pass with 55 seconds left to play Saturday for a 19-14 Southerner triumph over luckless North Carolina State before 12,000 fans.

Lorio pulled the "small-college" powerhouse Southerners back from the brink of defeat almost singlehanded. He twisted and dodged on a kickoff return into N.C. State territory, then took the winning pass from sophomore quarterback Morris Meador and sped into the end zone.

The Wolfpack from Raleigh, losing its sixth straight game, rolled 80 yards on the passing of quarterback Gerry Mancini and went ahead on a two - yard scoring plunge by halfback Ron Podwika and a two point conversion talkon a Podwika pass to halfback Bernie Latusick.

The Southerners had to come from behind twice in the teeth of a cold, 25-mile an hour wind whipping this Gulf Coast city's memorial stadium.

They turned an intercepted pass into a touchdown in the third period. Then, when State tallied its eight points with the clock running out, Lorio made it a personal show.

The Wolfpack went ahead early, snatching a fumble by Southern fullback Buddy Supple deep in Southern territory. Fullback John Stanton took a handoff a play later, cut through the secondary and scored from 17 yards out.

Meador intercepted a State pass in the third, took to the air himself and passed 20 yards to the State nine and the Southerners stabbed the rest of the way, sending Meador sneaking one yard for the score.

End Hugh McInnis kicked the extra point that put Southern ahead 7-6. Then Southern scored again in the fourth on a two-yard plunge by fullback Arnold Spence, but McInnis' kick into the wind was no good.

Texas Team Spoils Tiger Homecoming

GRAMBLING, La (Special) — Texas Southern University caught Grambling unprepared here Saturday and the Tigers went into reverse gear for the third straight week, drooping their homecoming encounter, 15-14.

Berated by fumbles in previous loses, Grambling handled the ball adhesively in spots, but this was about their only point of real consequence.

The Tigers scored the first time they got the ball. Sticking to the wing-t balanced-line offense and demonstrating good power inside tackles, Grambling drove 67-yards for the opening marker.

Texas Southern stormed back with a touchdown of its own, and added the two-point conversion.

The Houston eleven used its favorite weapon — the long pass — to crop off the yardage. Quarterback Charles Green fired a 33-yard pass that Clarence Caldwell grabbed going away for the score.

William Gulley ran the conversion and promptly introduced Grambling to an afternoon of despair.

Halfback Roosevelt Taylor ran a crooked 76-yard course for a second period TD for the locals, but thereafter TSU grew stronger and the Tigers faded miserably.

Texas Southern surged ahead with the winning marker early in the fourth quarter, and blunted a Grambling thrust that penetrated to the 30-yard line.

Coach Alex Durley's team drove 76-yards for the winning TD and were equally opportunistic, containing ground assaults and checking passing with timely interceptions. Green bulled over from the four-yard line.

BRYANT'S 100TH VICTORY

Alabama Barrels Over Wave, 19-7

By BILL KING

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)—Alabama found an offense equal to its famed hard-nose defense Saturday night as it trampled Tulane, 19-7, before 29,000 thoroughly chilled fans.

The Crimson Tide mauled Tulane with the running of quarterback Pat Trammell, the passing of sophomore quarterback Bobby Skelton and some fancy twisting by senior scatback Marlin Dyess.

But, the passing of Greenie quartebacks Phil Nugent and Bob Cornett and some early mistakes very nearly denied 'Bama Head Football Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant his 100th victory.

It was Nugent's passing that knotted the game at halftime, 7-7, and Cornett's throws in the dying minutes that thew a score into the Crimson Tide for awhile. Two interceptions stopped the threats.

It was Trammell and Dyess who put Alabama ahead in the first minutes of the second period as the Tide rammed 67 yards in 11 plays. End Fred Sington kicked the conversion to give 'Bama a 7-0 edge.

But Nugent tried six passes in the dying minutes of the half, hit on three and got a break when Alabama interfered with a receiver. The final toss was a 10-yard connection to end Pete Abadie. Howard Kisner added the conversion.

The first three times the Crimson Tide had the ball there were two fumbles, and one blocked quick-kick but the Greenies could not cash in on the early breaks.

Dyess took the second half-kickoff on his five yard line, and scampered and twisted 38 yards to set a new kickoff return record for this year. He also contributed 24 other yards, 13 on a pass from Skelton, in the march for the Tide's second touchdown.

'Bama covered the distance in five plays from scrimmage with Dyess scooting 11 and then Skelton hitting end Tommy Booker for 22 yards and the score. Sington missed the kick.

Trammell and Dyess led the Tide for 27 yards on the ground in the final two minutes that was capped by a ten-yard jaunt by halfback Billy Richardson. A run for the conversion failed.

It was Alabama's first victory over Tulane in three years and gives the Tide a 4-1-2 record overall this year.

Prep Player Slugs Official After Penalty

DETROIT (AP) — A burly high school football player slugged an umpire after the official called a penalty during a game Friday night.

Louis D. Bertsos, the official, said he was caught by surprise when attached by Vince Frigerio, a 210-pound junior guard for Dearborn.

"I was dumbfounded," Bertos declared. "He must have hit me four or five times before I could figure out what was happening. "He belted me good, too — on the forehead, nose, mouth and below the eye."

The flare-up occurred during the game between Darborn and Wayne High Schools at Wayne. It was in the last minutes of the game which Wayne won 39-18.

"I really don't know what got into Vince," said Dearborn Coach Bob Bridges. "I do know he's all broken up over it. But that's a little late now."

Bridges said Frigerio told him after the incident that "some guy pust called a penalty I didn't think was much good. So I slugged him."

Bertsos had called a clipping penalty on Dearborn after the team had intercepted a Wayne pass. The entire play was nullified, however, because the game's head linesman and the referee already had dropped penalty flags against both teams at the line of scrimmage.

What disciplinary action, if any, to be taken against Frigerio will be decided next week by the State High School Athletic Assn. and Dearborn school authorities.

Bertsos said he planned no "But I certainly believe he should court action against Frigerio. "But I certainly believe he should be disciplined in some way," The official declared.

Oklahoma Stuns Kansas State In 36-0 Runaway

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)—Oklahoma walloped Kansas State 36-0 Saturday, rolling over tired Wildcat defenses for 29 points in the second half as the Sooners started a new Big Eight conference streak.

Playing under wraps because of next week's date with Army, Oklahoma relied on basic plays while bouncing back from last weekend's defeat by Nebraska that ended the Sooners' conference unbeaten string at 74 games.

Fullback Ronnie Hartline totaled 14 points for the Sooners, now 4-3. He scored two touchdowns, added two extra points and more than doubled the yardage of his mates with 102 yards on 12 carries.

Three times in the first half Kansas State chopped down Oklahoma drives — once a half yard short of the goal, another time at the 6 and another at the 13.

But with No. 1 quarterback John Soloms playing only briefly because of an ankle injury, the Wildcats never threatened. Three times Oklahoma set up scoring drives with interceptions.

Oregon Defeats California, 20-18

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Little Cleveland Jones wrested a 35-yard pass out of California's hands in the waning minutes for a touchdown that kept Oregon in the running for the Rose Bowl with a 20-18 victory Saturday.

Oregon quarterback Dave Grosz lofted the desperation pass and California quarterback Wayne Crow and Jones went up to get it on the goal line.

They wrestled until they hit the ground but the 5-4 Jones had the ball in his arms, just two inches into the end zone.

LSU Frosh Defeat Miss. State, 33-12

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Louisiana State freshmen rolled to a 33-12 victory over Mississippi State's baby Maroons before a shivering crowd of 6,000 Saturday night.

LSU's Tommy Thompson and Peter Ascani each had two touchdowns and Danny Neumann had one.

Johnny Baker scored both Mississippi State touchdowns on passes from Bobby Bullock and Laurin Collins.

Baker tallied in the second period when he caught Bullock's 16-yard pass on fourth down after Hilton Marcum intercepted Lynn Amedee's pass on the LSU 28.

Baker caught Collins' pass from the 31 on the two and fell over for the second touchdown.

Thompson ran over from the six for LSU's first touchdown early in the first period to cap a 72-yard drive. Steve Ward ran the two-point conversion.

Early in the third period, LSU drove 62 yards in five plays with Thompson scoring from the 12. Amedee converted. Ascani recovered a fumble by State's Joe Bailus on the LSU 21 and on the next play scampered around right end to score.

A fumble by State's Bob Flurry was recovered by Neumann on the 24, and two pays later Neumann rammed through the middle from the eight to score.

Ascani went over from the three to cap a 79-yard march in 11 plays.

SMU Rallies For 14-11 Win Over Aggies

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., (AP) — Break-away sprints by Tiery Wilemon set up both Southern Methodist touchdowns as the Mustangs came from behind for a 14-11 victory over Texas A&M Saturday.

SMU, hanging on in the Southwest Conference football race, scored both TDs within five minutes early in the final quarter. Don Meredith passed five yards to Jim Jones for the first, and ran a yard himself for the second.

Wilemon rammed through center for 45 yards to the Aggie 19 to set up the first score. And the next time the Mustangs had the ball, Wilemon's 21-yard run carried into Aggie territory in a seven-play march.

The Aggies led 3-0 at the end of three periods as the result of two interceptions of Meredith passes. The first, by Gordon Leboeuf, led to a 23-yard fied goal by Randy Sims. The other, by Bob Sanders, chilled a SMU threat.

After the Mustangs' fourth period outburst, the Aggies rolled 64 yards in nine plays, scoring on Charlie Milstead's pass to Russ Hill from the 3. Milstead, whose 38-yard pass set up the touchdown, also passed to Sims for the conversion.

Baylor's Bucket Defeats Pistons

DETROIT (AP)—Elgin Baylor's basket with 20 seconds left gave Minneapolis a comeback, 113-111 overtime victory over the Detroit Pistons Saturday, ending the Lakers' losing streak at five in the National Basketball Assn.

It was the second overtime battle between the two clubs within 24 hours. Detroit won 118-113 in double overtime at Minneapolis Friday.

Baylor, who led the scoring with 40 points, and Ed Fleming were the heroes for Minneapolis. The Lakers trailed from the first moment of play until Fleming's basket sent the game into overtime at 103-103 with 19 seconds left in regulation play.

Fleming twice tied the score with key shots in the overtime before teammate Tom Hawkins squared it at 111-all with 50 seconds left. Then Baylor bagged it.

Hagan, Pettit Lead St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Hawks, led by Bob Pettit's 28 points, saw a 14-point lead almost wiped out by New York's fiery full-court press before Cliff Hagan rescued a 117-113 National Basketball Assn. victory Saturday night for the Western Division leaders.

The Knicks, led by Richie Guerin and Willie Naulls with 26 points each, grabbed a 54-53 halftime lead and widened it to 62-56 early in the third period.

Then Pettit, Hagan and Si Green went to work. The lead changed hands six times in about three minutes before Pettit's goal put the Hawks ahead to stay at 73-71.

St. Louis pulled ahead 86-78 after three quarters and owned a 14-point bulge, 102-88, in the last quarter when New York's little men — Ron Sobie, Jack George, Johnny Green — with help from Naulls and Guerin, surged back to pull up 110-107 with 1:40 left.

The Hawks appeared disorganized by the Knicks shock troops until Hagan delivered a fantastic left-handed driving hook shot and a tip in for a 115-111 lead. Jack George's two free throws made it 117-113 with five seconds left, but Al Ferrari's two foul shots closed it out.

Breaux, Clark Pace 'Poke Win

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Don Breaux and Olen Clark barreled across for two touchdowns each to give McNeese a 28-7 victory over Florence (Ala.) State before 4,000 Saturday night.

Ken Gunter gave Florence a 7-0 lead when he broke away for a 58-yard touchdown on the game's second play.

McNeese went ahead 14-7 at the half after quarterback Breaux plunged over from the five and Clark ran across from the 13.

In the second half, Clark bucked over from the one and Breaux stepped for a 30-yard touchdown.

Royals Tumble Nats, 103-101

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Wayne Embry's field goal with 17 seconds left broke a tie and gave the Cincinnati Royals a 103-101 National Basketball Assn. victory over the Syracuse Nationals Saturday night.

Johnny Kerr, lanky Nats' center, pulled Syracuse even at 101-all with a hook shot 57 seconds from the end, setting the stage for Embry's winner on a short jump.

North Texas Wins, 39 To 7

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — Halfback Abner Haynes scored two touchdowns and picked up 121 yards in 15 carries Saturday night at North Texas State extended its winning streak to 10 games by defeating Louisville 39-7.

North Texas scrapped a 7-7 tie with three touchdowns in less than 11 minutes of the second period for a commanding lead.

Billy Christle, a sophomore halfback, took off on a 59-yard touchdown run down the sideline for a 21-7 North Texas lead. It came on the first play by the Eagles' second team when they came on in the second quarter.

The speed of Haynes, Vernon Cole, Bill Groce an Morris Rose proved too much for Louisville's defense. And the Eagle defense proved the best Louisville, which entered the game with a 27 point average, met this year.

36 TO 0

Undefeated Trojans Maul West Virginia

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Southern California counted a second quarter touchdown that would have been enough, then wore down West Virginia's defenses in the second half for a 36-0 victory Saturday that left the Trojans unbeaten in seven games.

Stymied on the ground by the Mountaineers, quarterback Ben Charles went to the air for USC's first score, throwing 28 yards to end Luther Hayes just before the half.

West Virginia's game line really wilted in the final quarter before the savage charges of the Trojan forward wall, led by the McKeever twins—Mike and Marlin — Ron Mix and George Van Vliet.

Halfback Bob Levingston set up Troy's second touchdown, racing 62 yards in the third quarter to the West Virginia 7. Jerry Traynham ran over on the next play.

In the fourth period, USC went 82 yards in 11 plays for the third touchdown, then scored again on Angie Coia's 59-yard punt return. The final touchdown came in the closing minutes, when the Trojans moved 26 yards in six plays.

Mike McKeever, accused of dirty play against California last week, was outstanding in the line, although Coach Don Clark said before the game he feared the accusations might slow down the big guard. Time and again, Mike jammed up the West Virginia running attack.

McKeever, thrown out of his last two games, drew no penalties in this one.

CASH REGISTERS JINGLE

Buying Spree Hits Country

NEW YORK (AP)—Americans are buying as if the store doors weren't going to open again.

Cash registers jingled a merry tune last week with the only somber notes coming from areas hard hit by the steel strike.

Retail trade dollar volume, running strong all through 1959, registered gains of 2 to 6 per cent this week over the like period of 1958—the record buying year — Dun & Bradstreet reported.

The automobile trade reported its sales set a high for October of 527,000 cars although dealers ran into a shortage in the final week because the steel strike was shutting down assembly lines.

Here are some reports illustrating the buying surge:

Sears Roebuck & Co. said its sales topped three billion dollars in the first nine months of this year—the highest for a comparable period in its history.

May Department Stores Co. said it expects to do 675 million dollars in business this year, up 30 millions from last year despite slower sales in the industrial centers of Pittsburgh, Youngstown, Cleveland and Akron.

Expensive items were going fast.

Cadillac reported it sold more cars — 120,736 — in the first 10 months of this year than in any other year in its history.

A New York jewelry store sold out its limited supply of 14-karat gold golf putters at $1,475 each.

The trade magazine Printers Ink estimated advertisers would spend more than 11 billion dollars trying to make 1959 a record buying year.

Buyers are using their credit at a great clip to satisfy their wants. The Federal Reserve Board reported that in September consumers increased their outstanding instalment credit by 485 million dollars, bringing the total at the end of the month to 37½ billion up 4R½ billion from a year ago.

Leaders in the instalment credit field, meeting in New York this week, said if tight money conditions continue into 1960 it may be necessary to be more selective and to require bigger down payments on automobiles and other durable products.

But all wasn't serene on the business scene.

The auto industry's joy over the big October sales turned to gloom as the steel strike clamped a heavy hand on assembly lines this week. With General Motors at a virtual standstill and Ford and Chrysler cutting back, auto output was way off. Ward's Automotive Reports said production this month will be cut 340,000 units.

Railroads were hard hit because of loss of freight due to the strike. Car loadings dropped off again, totaling 588,148 cars for the week, down 3.2 per cent from the previous week and 12.9 from a year ago.

FBI Director Advocates Big Penalty

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover advocated maximum penalties Saturday for bank criminals. He issued a reminder that such crimes have recently been running far ahead of the gangster era of the 1930s.

In a signed editorial in the November issue of the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, Hoover said that during the fiscal year ending last June 30, banks and savings and loans associations were victimized by robberies or thefts on an average of more than twice a day.

"There is every indication that we are well on the way to witnessing in 1960 an even more appalling record of violations," Hoover said.

"Bank robbery is perhaps more readily and naively associated with the (John) Dillinger era, but the 1958-1959 fiscal years far outstripped any prior years for which we have statistics.

"Before 1958, the previous high year for this type of crime was indeed in the days of Dillinger—1932, when some 600 robberies and thefts occurred. In 1958, however, there were an alarming 631 such crimes, and 1959 far surpassed that figure when there were 764 violations."

Hoover said a recent FBI survey of 200 bank robberies showed about 50 per cent were committed by experienced, hardened criminals, another 25 per cent by persons with minor police records, and the remaining 25 per cent by "amateurs with no record at all."

"The 'amateur' bank robbers and thieves—from every social class, from every walk of life—assuredly are not discouraged from lusting for so-called 'easy money' if some professional robbers a given a slap on the wrist by courts after committing one of the most visious of crimes," Hoover wrote.

"To a potential bank robber, the crime is a gamble.—he gambles his freedom or his life for sudden wealth. Then he sees the professional, hardened criminal 'make a strike' and escape severe punishment, the odds, he may conclude, are higher in his favor.

"Until the inveterate 'gamblers' are made to pay maximum penalties, we can see no abatement in these crimes."

California Nun Opens Exhibit Of Art Works

NEW YORK (AP)—A California nun opened a one-man exhibit of her modern art at a Greenwich Village Gallery Saturday. It is the first showing of her work in New York.

The artist is Sister Mary Corita, a professor of art at Immaculate Heart College in Los Angeles.

The work being shown at the Morris Gallery on Waverly Place in Greenwich Village is a collection of Sister Corita's serigraphs, a silk-screen process of creating colored prints. The exhibition will continue until Nov. 28.

While the exhibit is being viewed by New York art lovers, Sister Corita will be viewing art and meeting artists throughout Europe She will leave Sunday by jet plane for Paris and a two-month stay abroad.

Accompanying her will be Sister Magdalen Mary, chairman of the arc department at the Roman Catholic school in Los Angeles. The trip is a gift from one of the adult art students at the school's extension college.

Sister Corita's prints are modern in concept and execution. Some of them, the artist explained were inspired by primitive designs executed by children.

"To people who have not been exposed to modern art, my work appears extreme," Sister Corita said, "but the pictures are realy quite tame."

Hospital Group From La. First With CD Manual

The Louisiana Hospital Association will unveil in Chicago this month what may be the nation's first comprehensive manual on how to set up and operate effectively the 200 - bed civil defense emergency hospitals now being stored throughout the United States.

B. W. Brown Homer, president of the Louisiana Hospital Association, made this announcement yesterday. He said that Joseph Hinsley, Lake Charles, will show the national disaster committee of the American Hospital Association meeting on November 9 and 10 the manual prepared under sponsorship of the Louisiana Hospital Association.

"We are proud of the fact that the disaster planning committee headed by Mr. Hinsley has produced what we believe to be the first such manual," said Brown. "The completion of this manual by Mr. Hinsley's committee and the fact that the national committee of which he is a member has among its goals the preparation of such a booklet are fortunate coincidences."

Committee members from this area are S. E. Burgoyne, Monroe, business manager of St. Francis Hospital, and Paul Kiene, Ruston, administrator of Ruston Hospital, Inc.

CASH REGISTERS JINGLE

Buying Spree Hits Country

NEW YORK (AP)—Americans are buying as if the store doors weren't going to open again.

Cash registers jingled a merry tune last week with the only somber notes coming from areas hard hit by the steel strike.

Retail trade dollar volume, running strong all through 1959, registered gains of 2 to 6 per cent this week over the like period of 1958—the record buying year — Dun & Bradstreet reported.

The automobile trade reported its sales set a high for October of 527,000 cars although dealers ran into a shortage in the final week because the steel strike was shutting down assembly lines.

Here are some reports illustrating the buying surge:

Sears Roebuck & Co. said its sales topped three billion dollars in the first nine months of this year—the highest for a comparable period in its history.

May Department Stores Co. said it expects to do 675 million dollars in business this year, up 30 millions from last year despite slower sales in the industrial centers of Pittsburgh, Youngstown, Cleveland and Akron.

Expensive items were going fast.

Cadillac reported it sold more cars — 120,736 — in the first 10 months of this year than in any other year in its history.

A New York jewelry store sold out its limited supply of 14-karat gold golf putters at $1,475 each.

The trade magazine Printers Ink estimated advertisers would spend more than 11 billion dollars trying to make 1959 a record buying year.

Buyers are using their credit at a great clip to satisfy their wants. The Federal Reserve Board reported that in September consumers increased their outstanding instalment credit by 485 million dollars, bringing the total at the end of the month to 37½ billion up 4R½ billion from a year ago.

Leaders in the instalment credit field, meeting in New York this week, said if tight money conditions continue into 1960 it may be necessary to be more selective and to require bigger down payments on automobiles and other durable products.

But all wasn't serene on the business scene.

The auto industry's joy over the big October sales turned to gloom as the steel strike clamped a heavy hand on assembly lines this week. With General Motors at a virtual standstill and Ford and Chrysler cutting back, auto output was way off. Ward's Automotive Reports said production this month will be cut 340,000 units.

Railroads were hard hit because of loss of freight due to the strike. Car loadings dropped off again, totaling 588,148 cars for the week, down 3.2 per cent from the previous week and 12.9 from a year ago.

FBI Director Advocates Big Penalty

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover advocated maximum penalties Saturday for bank criminals. He issued a reminder that such crimes have recently been running far ahead of the gangster era of the 1930s.

In a signed editorial in the November issue of the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, Hoover said that during the fiscal year ending last June 30, banks and savings and loans associations were victimized by robberies or thefts on an average of more than twice a day.

"There is every indication that we are well on the way to witnessing in 1960 an even more appalling record of violations," Hoover said.

"Bank robbery is perhaps more readily and naively associated with the (John) Dillinger era, but the 1958-1959 fiscal years far outstripped any prior years for which we have statistics.

"Before 1958, the previous high year for this type of crime was indeed in the days of Dillinger—1932, when some 600 robberies and thefts occurred. In 1958, however, there were an alarming 631 such crimes, and 1959 far surpassed that figure when there were 764 violations."

Hoover said a recent FBI survey of 200 bank robberies showed about 50 per cent were committed by experienced, hardened criminals, another 25 per cent by persons with minor police records, and the remaining 25 per cent by "amateurs with no record at all."

"The 'amateur' bank robbers and thieves—from every social class, from every walk of life—assuredly are not discouraged from lusting for so-called 'easy money' if some professional robbers a given a slap on the wrist by courts after committing one of the most visious of crimes," Hoover wrote.

"To a potential bank robber, the crime is a gamble.—he gambles his freedom or his life for sudden wealth. Then he sees the professional, hardened criminal 'make a strike' and escape severe punishment, the odds, he may conclude, are higher in his favor.

"Until the inveterate 'gamblers' are made to pay maximum penalties, we can see no abatement in these crimes."

California Nun Opens Exhibit Of Art Works

NEW YORK (AP)—A California nun opened a one-man exhibit of her modern art at a Greenwich Village Gallery Saturday. It is the first showing of her work in New York.

The artist is Sister Mary Corita, a professor of art at Immaculate Heart College in Los Angeles.

The work being shown at the Morris Gallery on Waverly Place in Greenwich Village is a collection of Sister Corita's serigraphs, a silk-screen process of creating colored prints. The exhibition will continue until Nov. 28.

While the exhibit is being fiewed by New York art lovers, Sister Corita will be viewing art and meeting artists throughout Europe She will leave Sunday by jet plane for Paris and a two-month stay abroad.

Accompanying her will be Sister Magdalen Mary, chairman of the are department at the Roman Catholic school in Los Angeles. The trip is a gift from one of the adult art students at the school's extension college.

Sister Corita's prints are modern in concept and execution. Some of them, the artist explained were inspired by primitive designs executed by children.

"To people who have not been exposed to modern art, my work appears extreme," Sister Corita said, "but the pictures are realy quite tame."

There are now more than 102,000,000 gas appliances in daily service in U. S. homes. About 38,000,000 gas customers make use of these appliances. Make Your Home Happier with a New Appliance.

Lassiter Will Preside At N.O. Baptist Meet

ALEXANDRIA (Special)—Albin P. Lassiter, district attorney for Ouachita Parish, will preside over the State Baptist Brotherhood Convention Monday, at the First Baptist Church of New Orleans. The Convention begins at 7 p.m. Monday. Some 2,500 men from every area of the state, representing 705 Church Brotherhoods, are expected to attend.

Billy Cannon, LSU's all-American back, will be flown to the meeting for a testimony on "What Christ Means to Me".

Dr. W. A. Criswell, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Dallas, which is reputed to be the largest Baptist Church in the world, will deliver the keynote address on the subject "Transformed Men — Holy, Acceptable to God". Veo T. Gray, of the Monroe First Church, will lead the congregational singing.

Of interest to those attending the convention will be the election of officers for 1960. Twelve laymen will give reports of work done in every area of the state. The Business Men's Ensemble of the Queensboro Baptist Church in Shreveport will render special music.

Hospital Group From La. First With CD Manual

The Louisiana Hospital Association will unveil in Chicago this month what may be the nation's first comprehensive manual on how to set up and operate effectively the 200 - bed civil defense emergency hospitals now being stored throughout the United States.

B. W. Brown Homer, president of the Louisiana Hospital Association, made this announcement yesterday. He said that Joseph Hinsley, Lake Charles, will show the national disaster committee of the American Hospital Association meeting on November 9 and 10 the manual prepared under sponsorship of the Louisiana Hospital Association.

"We are proud of the fact that the disaster planning committee headed by Mr. Hinsley has produced what we believe to be the first such manual," said Brown. "The completion of this manual by Mr. Hinsley's committee and the fact that the national committee of which he is a member has among its goals the preparation of such a booklet are fortunate coincidences."

Committee members from this area are S. E. Burgoyne, Monroe, business manager of St. Francis Hospital, and Paul Kiene, Ruston, administrator of Ruston Hospital, Inc.

STEVE CANYON! —SO OL' 'FEEL' ERIE REQUISITIONED YOU TOO!

CAUGHT ME ON THE RISE, ESSAY! I HEARD YOU GOT THOSE COWHAND LEGS JAMMED IN AN F-100 COCKPIT AND COULDN'T EJECT!—SO YOU DIED OF STARVATION!

.. AT AN ALASKA STATION OF THE NORTH AMERICAN AIR DEFENSE COMMAND...

NOW YOU STOP RAGGIN' ME, STEVIE B.—

OR I'M LIABLE TO TELL HOW YOU PUT THAT WATER BUFFALO IN THE GINRUL'S TENT IN INDIA, AN'—

ESSAY SINGLETREE! STEVE CANYON! YOU MEET THE STRANGEST PEOPLE IN THE WIND BUSINESS! WHAT VETS' HOME DID 'FEEL' ERIE FIND YOU IN?

I OUGHTA SLUG YOU AFTER THE WAY YOU MOVED IN ON MY PIGEON AT THAT PLACE NEAR CHANUTE...

I JUST SAVED YOU THE PAIN OF HAVING HER THROW YOU OVER IN FAVOR OF THE FINER THINGS IN LIFE!

HOW DID THE PENTAGON PRY PHIL THE FOX OUT OF SILLY-VILLYAN LIFE?

WE ALWAYS USED TO SAY THAT THE GRAY EAGLE COULD 'FEEL' AN ENEMY MOVE COMING—MAYBE HE'S GOT A HOT LINE ON SOMETHING!

HE COULD ALSO 'FEEL' THAT SOMETHING WAS WRONG IN AN AIRCRAFT! HE ONCE REDLINED A P-40 BEFORE IT WENT ON A MISSION—AND THE CREW CHIEF FOUND A WAD OF RAGS IN THE AIR SCOOP!

HOW DOES THE MAN LOOK AFTER ALL THIS TIME?

YOU CAN'T TELL ABOUT THESE RE-TREAD TYPES... HE'LL PROBABLY HAVE A BEARD DOWN TO HERE!

LET'S RUN OUT TO THE RAMP—HE'S DUE IN!

MY RELIEF CAME JUST IN TIME... I WANT TO SEE WHAT IT IS ABOUT THIS GENERAL PHILERIE!

LOOK AT THAT LANDING! —IS HE EVER HOT!

THEY SAY HE DOESN'T ALWAYS USE AN AIRPLANE WHEN HE TAKES OFF!

WELL—MAYBE THE BEARD IS ONLY DOWN TO ABOUT HERE!

BRINGING UP FATHER

WHERE ARE YOU GOING?

UPSTAIRS TO MY ROOM-- I'M GOIN' TO BED EARLY!

I CAN READ HIM LIKE A BOOK-- HE'S PLANNING TO SNEAK OUT! BUT I'LL BE READY FOR HIM!

I COULD SEE MAGGIE WUZ SUSPICIOUS! HERE'S WHERE I USE A LITTLE STRATEGY!

I KNEW IT! HIS NEXT STEP WILL BE TO USE SOME PRETEXT TO GET OUTSIDE AND PICK UP HIS CLOTHES--

AHA! JUST AS I THOUGHT-- SHE WUZ WAITIN' DOWNSTAIRS WITH HER SCISSORS!

I FORGOT TO TURN OFF THE LIGHT IN THE GARAGE--- I'LL DO IT NOW!

GO RIGHT AHEAD--

THAT WORKED OUT JUST AS I PLANNED-- NOW I'M OFF TO DINTY'S---

I GUESS HE'S STILL LOOKING FOR HIS BUNDLE OF CLOTHES! I'LL LET HIM SHIVER--- SERVES HIM RIGHT FOR TRYING TO FOOL ME!!

MAJOR UPSET

Tennessee Ends Bengals' Streak At 19 Games, 14-13

By FRANK BAILES
Knoxville News-Sentinel
(Special For Morning World)

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—Fired up by a 59-yard touchdown on an intercepted pass by blocking back Jim Cartwright, the first six-pointer of the year against LSU, Tennessee edged Louisiana State's proud national champions, 14-13, here Saturday afternoon in one of the year's major upsets.

The victory ended the longest winning streak in college football at 19 straight, the second time this season the Vols have performed such a feat. They ended Auburn's 24-game spree, 3-0, in the opening game.

The homecoming crowd of more that 47,000 — numbed by the 40-degree weather — forgot about the elements as Tennessee, scrambled from behind to upset the defending national champions.

TRAILING

Tennessee, trailing 7-0 at halftime, scored two touchdowns within two minutes of each other in the third period to become the first team in 10 games to cross LSU's goal line.

Ken Sadler, Cartwright's understudy, pounced on fullback Earl Gros' fumble on the first play after the kickoff following Cartwright's electrifying jaunt. The Vols took over at the LSU 29.

Sophomore Glenn Glass took over at tailback to direct the game-winning drive.

After losing four yards in two plays, Glass fired a strike to end Don Leake for 19 yards and a first down at the LSU 14.

On first down, Glass called on alternate Captain Neyle Sollee on a fullback trap off left guard and the Vols opened up a hole large enough to send a truck through. Sollee Zoomed 14 yards, untouched, for the touchdown.

Cotton Letner added the extra point after both TDs to provide the margin of victory.

LSU's Billy Cannon was every bit as great as he was supposed to be. He went through the left side of Tennessee's line as though he had been shot through, racing 26 yards for a touchdown to put LSU ahead, 7-0, in the second period. He gained 125 yards for the day.

Getting terrific support from right halfback Johnny Robinson,

United Givers Collection Gain Reported Here

The United Givers fund drive for 1960 reached a total of $190,558.13, yesterday ended its fifth week.

Ten new firms were added to the list of 100 percenters with the addition of Scott Truck and Tractor, Holloway and Thompson, Louisiana Veneer, McLemore's Jitney Jungle, Monroe Sand and Gravel, Tyner Petrus, Firestone Store in West Monroe, Bennett's Rexall Drugs, Brooks Drug Store and Humphries Insurance Agency.

Spokesmen for the effort estimated approximately 400 cards were still outstanding and urged that those be turned in this week so that all pledges and contributions could be counted.

"The 100 per cent companies are really the backbone of this drive and the employes of those companies have demonstrated by their generosity the general acceptance of the united way of giving," James W. Moore, chairman, said. He urged managers to make known to their employes the features of the payroll plan of giving.

Ike Marks 3 Days For Summit Talk

Meeting Set To Begin On December 19

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower has set aside three days beginning Dec. 19 for Western summit talks in Paris on strategy for negotiations with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

The White House announced Saturday that Eisenhower will reach Paris on the night of Dec. 18-19, following a three-day Mediterranean cruise on his way back from a tour into the Middle East and southern Asia.

In another development bearing on preparations for summit talks, the White House announced Ambassador Walter C. Dowling is the new U.S. envoy to West Germany. He succeeds David K. E. Bruce, who left the post for private reasons.

KEY

Dowling's position is a key one in the development of a solid front among Western leaders on issues due to come up for negotiation with the Soviets. The U.S. ambassador at Bonn is the chief channel for exchanges of ideas between Eisenhower and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

The President's task at the Western summit session at Paris will be primarily to try to find common ground for bringing together divergent policy lines. Adenauer stands at one extreme and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan at the other. French President Charles de Gaulle and Adenauer generally favor a very tough line in dealing with Khrushchev.

Macmillan is known to be convinced that the major issue for settlement when Eisenhower, De Gaulle and he meet Khrushchev in Geneva next year is the issue of the future of West Berlin. He believes this is a negotiable issue with Khrushchev.

Eisenhower is much less optimistic about finding some way to

Jet Explodes In Oklahoma, Body Found

Debris Strewn, Plane's Base Is Not Known

DUNCAN, Okla. (AP)—A high flying, unidentified, jet aircraft exploded in an orange ball of fire Saturday and fell in scattered pieces within a 30-mile radius of Duncan.

Lt. Harold Hall reported searchers found one body in wreckage 12 miles west of here. But Texas search and rescue headquarters reported the main body of wreckage near Cookietown, Okla., about 30 miles southwest of here.

The plane apparently was not based in Oklahoma. Convair at Fort Worth, Tex., said one of its B58 jets was overdue, but it could not be determined immediately if this was the plane involved.

Scores of persons watched the streaking aircraft as it cut a vapor trail across southwest Oklahoma skies then suddenly exploded.

FARM

Charles A. Robinson, visiting a farm home near Fitzhugh, Okla., said he was watching the jet.

"Then, without a spit or a sputter, it just went up in one big ball of fire as big as the whole plane. I watched streamers of smoke fall to earth," said Robinson.

Curt Lambert, Chickasha, Okla., newsman, said he watched as the vapor trail moved silently over his home.

"It looked like it ended 15 miles south of town in a big orange puff. Then there were five streamers falling out of the sky. Each one left a white streamer and fell in a crazy zig-zag pattern," said Lambert.

Highway patrol dispatcher Paul Oliver at Durant said he was swamped with telephone calls describing the demise of the craft.

Oliver said Air Force search and rescue headquarters at Dallas had ordered personnel flown to the Duncan area to secure the wreckage site.

Authorities at Ft. Sill, Okla., said they would take immediate charge of the clean-up detail on the wreckage site.

Steel Mill Workers Set For Return

WASHINGTON (AP)—By a vote of 8-1, the Supreme Court Saturday upheld the back-to-work injunction in the 116-day-old steel strike.

As a result, the 500,000 steelworkers who quit work on July 15 must return to the mills for 80 days under emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act.

"The Supreme Court has spoken," said David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers Union. "As law-abiding citizens, the Steelworkers Union, of course, will comply with the court's judgment."

McDonald dispatched telegrams instructing the strikers to return to work immediately.

At the end of the 80-day cooling off period in late January, the union may call another strike. But before that can be done, workers employed by each of the major steel companies will vote by secret ballot on whether to accept or reject management's latest offer.

HOPE

President Eisenhower was informed promptly of the court's ruling. He expressed hope the steel mills will get started up again as soon as possible.

Eisenhower also hopes, press secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen, that both sides, "realizing their obligation to the United States," will continue to negotiate and reach a settlement of their differences.

Although the court's order is effective immediately, there was no prospect of an early outpouring of steel. And it may be two weeks or so before new collective bargaining sessions get under way.

FOR MOUNTAIN CLIMBERS

Border Tension Hinders Search

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI) — Indian-Chinese border tension was reported Saturday to be hindering an air search for 32 members of a Japanese-led expedition missing on an attempt to scale a 23,440-foot peak in the storm-swept eastern Himalayas.

The Nepalese government dispatched ground rescue parties to the rugged Gauri Shanker peak to search for members of the mountain-climbing party feared to have been buried by an avalanche or swept away by high winds.

A Nepalese C47 aircraft flew near the peak of the mountain Saturday, circled over a spot where the missing expedition was last reported camped and returned after a two-hour flight without spotting any of the mountaineers. But Nepalese Premier

AF Satellite Whirling In Polar Orbit

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—An Air Force satellite was put into polar orbit Saturday.

Early Saturday evening, the Air Force announced that the Discoverer VII satellite launched at 3:28 p.m. EST attained an orbit.

The satellite, from which the Air Force hopes to recover a capsule Sunday, was picked up by tracking stations in Alaska at 4:57 p.m. as it neared the completion of its first circuit of the earth.

PATH

The Air Force said preliminary information indicated the satellite is traveling in a path which takes it 550 miles high at the peak, and 104 miles at the lowest point of orbit.

Time for completion of one orbit is 95 minutes.

Cuban Major Is Object Of Florida Hunt

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A request from Havana launched an aerial search over south Florida Saturday for Maj. Camilo Cienfuegos, the popular Cuban army commander whose light plane vanished Oct. 28 during a flight across Cuba.

The U.S. air attache in Havana received the request from the Cuban air force and relayed it to the Pentagon in Washington. It was not learned whether it originated with Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

Museum Boat Makes Return

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio (AP) —"Big Mama" passed downriver Saturday in what probably is her last visit to the upper Ohio Valley.

Big Mama is the slang name for the towboat Sprague, largest vessel of her kind on inland waters. She is 350 feet long and once was powered by two 1,600 horsepower steam engines.

Now a floating museum of the Ohio and Mississippi River trade, she is stationed at Vicksburg, Miss. But last summer she was loaned to Pittsburgh for a bicentennial celebration. She is being towed back.

About two decades ago Big Mama was taken out of service because later model towboats with diesel engines were cheaper to operate.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amendment of the television industry's self-regulatory code to permit "any abuse of public trust and confidence" will be proposed at a meeting in Los Angeles on Nov. 16.

Solon Suggests Powerful New Labor Court

WASHINGTON (AP)—A powerful new court to settle nationwide labor disputes before they can lead to costly strikes like the steel walkout was proposed Saturday by Sen. George A. Smathers (D-Fla).

Smathers suggested five members for this court, which he would designate the U. S. Court of Labor-Management Relations.

Such a court, he said in a statement, would have jurisdiction over all national industries and would be used when collective bargaining reached an impasse.

"It would be in the nature of a Supreme Court on labor-management relations, whose findings and judgments would be final and binding on both parties—a court of last resort in this field—so to speak," he said.

COURT

Members of the court would be selected in the same way as other judicial appointments are made. Nominations would be made by the president, subject to approval by the Senate. Cases would be exclusively labor-management.

Smathers said hardships from the prolonged steel strike showed a need for a better way to handle such disputes. He spoke out as the Supreme Court upheld a Taft-Hartley Act injunction ordering Fellows reported the industry policing move in an Oct. 28 letter to Sen. William Langer (R-ND). The letter was made public by Langer Saturday.

Langer had written Fellows that Congress may give the Federal Communications Commission more authority over TV programming if the industry "cannot do a better job of policing rigged television shows than it did in policing violent Western and crime shows on television as was promised at a 1955 Senate subcommittee hearing."

In reply, Fellows wrote that

Death Claims 72-Year-Old Screen Actor

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actor Victor McLaglen, a boisterous giant who lived two lives of adventure with about equal relish, died Saturday at the age of 72 .

The Academy Award - winning master of tough talk succumbed to congestive heart failure at his seaside home in Newport Beach, 40 miles south of the film capital. His son, Andy, with him at his death, said: "He never had a heart attack. It was just a matter of his heart growing old. He never had a pain."

McLaglen, a 220-pounder, 6 feet 3, won an Academy Award for the best actor of 1935 for his classic portrayal of the pathetic Gyppo in "The Informer." He was nominated for a supporting actor's award in 1952 for his performance as a terrible-tempered Irish squire in "The Quiet Man."

He was a hell raiser in many of his films, but he became a bedfellow of adventure long before he brought his enormous energy to the screen.

BORN

McLaglen was born in England, one of eight sons of the Rt. Rev. Andrew McLaglen, an Anglican clergyman. The family spent many years in South Africa,

ACTOR'S LEG AMPUTATED

Surgery Staged In N.Y. Elevator

NEW YORK (UPI)—An intern turned a garage elevator into an emergency operating room Saturday to release trapped British actor Martyn Green by amputating his crushed left leg.

Green, 60, television performer and one of the world's leading Gilbert and Sullivan baritones, remained conscious throughout the hour-long operation, in which the intern was assisted by a neighborhood doctor hastily called in.

After releasing Green from the elevator trap, where his leg had been caught between the moving car and a wall, his rescuers tried to rush him to a hospital. But the ambulance broke down and had to be pushed by a taxi and a police car.

Green's cocker spaniel, "The Gimlet," stood by during the emergency operation in the elevator and, licked his master's face periodically. The dog once tried to nip a policeman who tried to comfort the actor.

The accident was the second elevator mishap to befall a leading actor in less than a year. Nine months ago, Pat Hingle, then star of the hit play "J.B.," fell from a stalled apartment house elevator when he tried to climb to the nearest floor. He was hospitalized for weeks with serious injuries and only recently has been able to return to work.

Both accidents occurred on Manhattan's upper West Side. Green's ordeal began at 12:30 a.m., when he drove his small sports car into an elevator a

GOOD WILL TOUR

Eisenhower's Kin To Make Trip Also

WASHINGTON (AP) — "My pretty little daughter-in-law."

That was the way President Eisenhower introduced her during the final days of the 1952 political campaign, and she always got a big hand.

Now Barbara Jean Eisenhower will again be traveling with the President—she calls him "dad"—on his 19-day good will trip next month to Europe, Asia and Afica.

Eisenhower disclosed Saturday that his son and daughter-in-law will be members of his official party on the 20,000-mile trip, which will take him to nine countries and include a cruise on the Mediterranean. Maj. John Eisenhower, the President's son, is attached to the White House staff.

The President's wife, Mamie, will remain in this country. Eisenhower commented at his news conference last Wednesday that such a trip would be a little bit tough for her.

Barbara Jean, 31, is a tall, slim brunette with hazel eyes and a friendly smile. She spends most of the time as a homemaker and mother of four children, emerging only on holidays and other special occasions into the glamour and limelight that surrounds her in-laws.

The short trip she made on the campaign train—a circle through Pennsylvania during the closing days of the 1952 campaign—is stirll one of her most exciting recollections. It was her first experience with roaring crowds, end-of-train

ON CROP SURPLUSES

Solon Flays View Of Administration

PENDLETON, Ore. (AP)—The Eisenhower administration has assumed that crop surpluses mean too much crop land and too much food, but this is both shortsighted and narrow, Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) said here Saturday night.

In remarks prepared for a Democratic audience in this center of wheat and pea farming, Kennedy said the world's population is increasing at a rate that "threatens to outrun the world's capacity to produce food."

Farm abundance, he said, is "a national asset, not a liability —an asset which the Communists do not and can not have."

But a policy to deal with the abundance, Kennedy said, is dependent on "a program of full employment, sound foreign trade policy, a program of assistance to needy people, both at home and abroad, and a recognition of the need for expanded domestic consumption."

What Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson complains of as a surplus could, Kennedy said, become a permanent food shortage with too few acres of crop land to feed even the expanding American population.

Moreover, he said, there is point in a farm program trying to pursuade farmers to earn less by growing less.

Kennedy's talk here ended the second of four days of campaigning through Oregon in which he has sought to advance his Democratic presidential hopes.

At a Junior Chamber of Commerce luncheon in Bend, he said a free society is at a disadvantage competing with Communist totalitarian countries unless the people show self-discipline, self-reliance and the old-fashioned Spartan devotion to duty, honor and country.

There is fear, he said, that "the slow corrosion of luxury" has begun to sap the nation's strength.

In the Korean War, Kennedy said, nearly one out of three Americans taken prisoner collaborated to some degree with their captors and there was "a geat deal of easy yielding to enemy commands and suggestions and to their own fear and despair.'

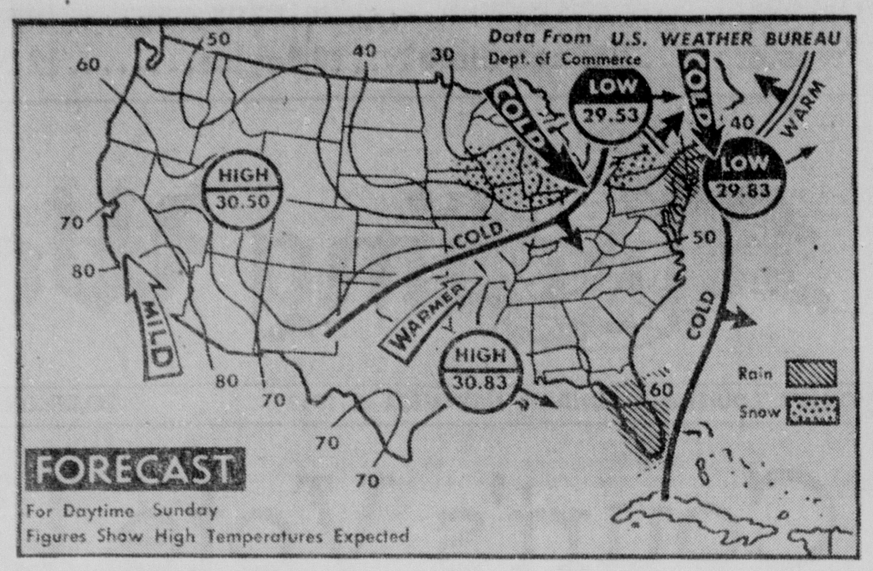
As at nearly every meeting, Kennedy was asked to justify his vote for the labor pact passed by the last Congress.

Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore), who is expected to be in Oregon's presidential primary next May as a favorite son, has gone through the state blasting Kennedy as forsaking labor on the bill and voting with the Republicans.

Kennedy said his disagreements with Morse came over procedure to be followed to prevent Senate passage of the most restrictive features of the House-passed Landrum-Griffin bill.

Kennedy said his view was supported by the AFL-CIO, by such senators as Douglas of Illinois, Magnuson and Jackson of Washington, Humphrey of Minnesota and every member of the Oregon delegation except Morse.

"If I'm wrong, I'm wrong in excellent company," Kennedy said.



WEATHER FORECAST—The outlook for Sunday is rain over parts of the middle Atlantic states and for the Florida peninsula, while light snow flurries are expected in parts of the upper Mississippi Valley and the Great Lakes area. A warming trend is due for most of Mississippi Valley and Gulf coast area up into the Ohio Valley. Elsewhere the temperatures will continue about the same as Saturday. (AP Wirephoto Map)

ONLY NEWSPAPERS SELL TOILETRIES FROM CHEMIST TO CUSTOMER

TOILETRY MANUFACTURERS spent over $34,000,000 in 1958 in newspapers to reach their millions of men and women customers. This kind of spending helps to pay off well for the toiletry business whose sales are highest ever, according to the Census Bureau.

Retailers of toiletries, too, know the value of steady, strong newspaper advertising on the local scene. They can easily see the effects—their sales of toilet preparations are up, also. Most local advertisers are firm believers in the retailers' number one medium, the Total Selling newspaper. Ben-Gurion Stepping Up New Drive

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector (UPI) — Israeli Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion, backed by his strongest popular support in 10 years, Friday launched an intensive new campaign to abolish the proportional voting which he described as a "cancer of division."

"We must not rest until we reform the electoral system which is in deadly danger," Ben-Gurion said in an article appearing Friday in his Mapai (Labor) Party newspaper Davar.

"Though Mapai Party members have good reason to rejoice in their brilliant victory, they must not forget that we've undertaken to outroot from the body of the state the cancer of division involved . . . in the system of proportional representation," he said.

Under current Israeli election laws, voters cast their ballots for parties rather than individual candidates. Seats in the 120-seat Knesset (parliament) subsequently are assigned to political organizations on the basis of their percentage of the vote, and the parties then install as many of their candidates as they are able.

Any group of 750 citizens can enter a list of candidates. In Israel, with its diverse cultural, geographic, and lingual factions, the system has sprouted a host of splinter parties, few of them ever winning a place in Parliament. But all serve to drain away power from the main parties, thereby preventing workable control of the government.

Twenty - four parties were entered in Tuesday's general elections, in which the Mapai gathered about 38 per cent of the popular vote to reach record strength with only 47 Knesset seats, plus three for Mapai Arabs.

Canal Zone Border Quiet

PANAMA (AP) — The Panama Canal Zone border was quiet Friday and Panama's newspapers came up with a unanimous explanation of the anti-American violence that occurred there this week.

The papers said it stemmed from Panamanian resentment over American interpretation and application of treaties between the two countries.

Nationalist demonstrators clashed with U.S. troops Tuesday, Panaman's 56th anniversary of independence from Colombia. The U.S. Embassy was stoned and its flag was torn down. Protests were exchanged between the two countries.

U.S. troops guarding the Canal Zone boundary ith Panama City were withdrawn Thursday and control was returned to police. Barbed wire barricades were removed from intersections and trafic restrictions were lifted. American troops remained on duty at the border between the zone and Colon at the Atlantic end of the canal.

Panamanian complaints over the question of sovereignty in the Canal Zone date back almost to the signing of the 1903 treaty granting the United States a strip of territory for the canal in perpetuity.

Panama consistently contended that the Canal Zone was ceded for specific purposes and, although under U.S. jurisdiction, the territory is Panamanian.

The dispute over sovereignty has been intensified by recent Panamanian accusations that the United States is not fulfilling provisions of the 1955 treaty giving Panamanians equal treatment and equal employment opportunities in the Canal Zone. Panama contends lower wages scales still prevail for Panamanians working for the canal administration.

Another recurrent Panamanian complaint is that the canal administration discriminates against Panamanina businessmen in its purchsing.

The staff of Unique Cleaners this week is noting 20 years of service to customers in the Twin Cities, according to Charles P. Chisholm, owner.

The business began in a small building on Cypress Street in West Monroe with Chisholm and three other persons representing the entire working force. In 1943, the business moved to larger quarters at 401 Cypress Street. Some of the present West Monroe headquarters.

The management attributes the growth of the business to continuous, prompt service and quality. Chisholm pointed out Unique kept up its policies of service and quality even during the war years.

The establishment with its drive in service locations and self service laundry stations has become one of the Twin Cities' larger businesses.

The Massachusetts senator, potential candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, will speak at a luncheon here that day and a statewide dinner of Kansas Democrats that evening at Wichita.

Rep. Newell A. George (D-Kan), chairman of the Kansas City, Kan., luncheon, said Kennedy would go to Independence to call on the former President soon after his arrival here that morning.

AF Firm On Missile Locations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force Friday upheld the practice of locating intercontinental ballistic missile sites in the general area of existing air bases.

It said this does not materially increase the danger that enemy attacks on those sites might endanger populations of cities in the general region.

A spokesman was asked about the protest of Dr. James E. McDonald, of the University of Arizona, against building ICBM launching sites near major population centers.

McDonald contends that this means creation of prime targets for enemy attack and that fallout from nuclear detonations in the attack would endanger the populations of cities in the areas.

Most of the ICBM bases are being built on or near existing airdromes—which already are targets. One reason is that the supplying and operation of the launching sites can be done from the central existing military bases.

In some instances, the land on which launching sites are being built already is owned or controlled by the Air Force as part of the existing base facilities.

The selection of a main support base for missile facilities and the location of launch sites is made only after thorough consideration of all factors, the spokesman said. One of these factors is the safety of residents in the areas and of the military personnel operating the missile bases.

Referring to suggestions that the launching sites should be located far from populated regions, the spokesman said several factors, including money, are involved.

"It must be noted," he said, "that the construction of completely new, self-sufficient missile facilities in such areas as isolated sections of the Rocky Mountains would not be feasible in terms of initial costs, time of construction, high costs of support facilities and other factors of this nature.

"Where costs are reasonable and it is in the best interests of the government, missile facilities are being located at highly selective sites in the Rocky Mountain area. Examples of these are the missile facilities being or to be constructed at Mountain Home, Idaho; Spokane, Wash.; Denver, Colo.; Cheyenne, Wyo.; and Rapid City, S.D."

Davis Cites Past Record As Platform

BERNICE (Special) — Former Gov. Jimmie H. Davis said Saturday that he intends to be governor of all citizens of the state when elected, regardless of past political alignments. He called for an end to political factionalism in the state.

Speaking with Davis were the following candidates: C. C. "Taddy" Aycock, for lieutenant governor; Rufus D. Hayes, commissioner of insurance; Jack, P. F. Gremillion, attorney general; Ellen Bryan Moore, register of state lands; Roy R. Theriot, state comptroller and Jimmy Fontenot, independent candidate for custodian of voting machines.

PAST

"What your politics have been in the past and whom you voted for is no concern of mine," Davis said. "When I am elected governor I intend to serve all of the people of the state without prejudice and without partiality. I am campaigning on the Jimmie Davis record and the Davis-Aycock platform and I am soliciting the support of voters in all walks of life, without regard to previous political alignments."

Davis cited his record as governor from 1944-48 and said his accomplishments would not have been possible without the atmosphere of peace and harmony prevailing at the time. He looked forward to the time when citizens of the state can work together again "to realize the full potential of Louisiana."

Aycock outlined his qualifications for the post of lieutenant-governor, pointing to his record in the house of representatives. He said he supported every single piece of legislation designed to preserve segregation in the state.

Hayes told his audience as commissioner of insurance he worked toward passage of legislation restricting the sale of bogus insurance stocks in the state.

Gremillion blasted the tactics of the civil rights commission in "terrorizing and intimidating" voter registrars in Louisiana and pledged an all - out fight against the federal government for states rights and state ownership of the tidelands.

Mrs. Moore asked for support of her own candidacy and for the members of the Davis - Aycock ticket. She said the ticket is the best qualified in the current race.

Theriot pointed to his election to a second term as mayor of Abbeville as proof of his administrative ability. He said during his term a central purchasing agency was established, representing savings to the town's taxpayers.

Sunday Davis and members of the Davis - Aycock ticket are scheduled to speak at Church Point at 11 a.m.; Rayne, 1:30 p.m.; Lawtell, 4 p.m. and Part Barre, six p.m.

Observance Of Education Week Slated

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 39th annual observance of American Education Week begins Sunday.

Lawrence G. Derthick, U.S. commissioner of education, reminded Americans Saturday they will have a special opportunity during the week to learn what their schools and colleges are doing for them and for their children.

The main theme for the observance is "Praise and appraise your schools."

Derthick cited statistics showing U.S. educational progress since 1920 which included:

"School and college enrollments in that year (1920) totaled 24 million. Today they are 46½ million.

"Secondary schools of today have about four times as many students as the high schools of 1920. Colleges and universities today enroll six times the number of students at the college-university level of 1920."

Derthick said that when American Education Week was launched, children in public schools went to school 162 days a year and that now the school term length is about 179 days.

For each child in attendance at school in 1920, the average annual expenditure was $64 compared to about $460 now, he said.

ROBERT DOUGHERTY

Monroe Man To Lead State Polio March

Robert P "Bob" Dougherty of Monroe has been named Louisiana State Chairman for the 1960 March of Dimes by Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation.

Mr. Dougherty is Personnel Manager of the Forest Products Operations of the Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation.

The new Louisiana Chairman is a veteran of The National Foundation program and served as Arkansas State Chairman for the March of Dimes in 1954, and as a dedicated leader in this field, he declared:

"It is my intention, no matter where I am, to carry on the fight against polio until it is wiped out as a crippling and death-dealing threat to persons of all ages. Vaccination with the Salk vaccine for every man, woman and child will help towards this end, but, in the meantime, we have to provide funds for treatment and rehabilitation for those for whom the vaccine came too late and those who came too late for the vaccine."

Expressing confidence that the people of Louisiana will continue their support of the March of Dimes, Mr. Dougherty revealed plans for a tour of the state to discuss the present polio incidence, vaccination status of the people and rehabilitation of polio patients stricken in previous years, as well as the care for the acute cases.

Mr. Dougherty is married to the former Suzanne Tetley. They have three sons: Bobby, 8; Tommy, 5; and Kenny, 2.

He is a lay-reader in the Episcopal Church and former director of the Area Girl Scout Council in Monroe. A veteran of World War II he still maintains his military status as a Major in the United States Air Force Reserves.

Hindu God Claims Peak As Home

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP)—Legend says the Hindu god of destruction and his wife live atop the 23,440-foot Himalayan peak where a 32-member Japanese mountain climbing expedition vanished last month.

No mountaineer ever has been atop Mt. Guari Shankar, 75 miles east of here on the Nepal-Tibet frontier. Shankar is another name for the Hindu god Shiva. Gauri is his wife.

Officials fear the expedition led by Japanese statistician Hideko Kato perished in recent avalanches on the unconquered peak. But some Alpinists here still speculate that the group may have tried to climb the mountain's northern face in Tibet and been taken prisoner by Communist Chinese troops that probably occupy the area.

In 1954, Swiss Alpinist Raymond Lambert, who unsuccessfully tried to scale the blizzard-swept mountain, said it could not be climbed above 21,000 feet on the Nepali side and suggested climbers try it from Tibet.

A Nepalese aerial search Saturday failed to find any trace of the expedition. Flying at 19,000 feet, a plane circled six times around the area where Kato, his two Japanese companions—Moriake Abe and Mitsuharu Oishi, a Nepalese college student, two Sherpa guides and 26 porters were last heard of after leaving their base camp 18,000 feet up Mt. Gauri Shankar more than three weeks ago.

Although the plane was unable to fly higher, the passengers, including Nepalese Transport Minister Ganeshman Singh, could scan the upper slopes of the mountain. They were accompanied by two Japanese physicians and the Sherpa runner who brought news Friday that the climbers were missing.

Ganeshman said the mountain was clearly visible, "but there was no trace of any living being."

He said the runner located the place where the base camp was pitched, but "a very high wind and dangerous air pockets prepented us from attempting a flight across the ravines, where land search parties may be useful."

Prime Minister B. P. Koirala sent out ground search parties, but they are not expected to report back for 10 days.

32 Persons Gone After Climb Try

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Thirty-two persons — three Japanese alpinists and 29 Nepalese porters—have vanished in an attempt to climb the forbiding face of Mt. Gauri Sankar.

Two runners brought word Friday that the expedition disappeared in mid-October, when avalanches swept the Himalayas in the region of that 23,340-foot peak, and no trace has been found in a three-week hunt.

Premier B. P. Koirala ordered all soldiers and guides in the area to carry on the search.

The 32 men were last reported camped at the 20,000-foot level and cut off by blizzards from a supply base 2,000 feet below them.

Avalanches about the same time carried away two women of an all-woman climbing epedition on Mt. Cho Oyu, farther west.

Two themes dominated speculation here:

1. The entire expedition may have been buried by avalanches on Gauri Sankar, which marks the frontier of Nepal and Tibet about 35 miles west of 29,002-foot Mt. Everest, the world's highest mountain.

2. The men, finding tough going on the Nepalese slopes that experts have described as unclimable, may have tried the Tibetan side and been arrested by Red Chinese troops.

The expedition leader was Hieki Kato, 38, a veteran mountaineer and statistican for the Fukuoka prefectural government, who wished to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the founding of Fukuoka University, his alma mater.

His Japanese companions were Moriaki Abe and Mitsuharu Oishi. The three were reported to have started their trek from Katmandu Nepal's capital, two months ago with four guides and 51 porters.

One of the women lost on Mt. Cho Oyu, Mrs. Claude Kogan of France, declared in 1956 that Mt. Gauri Sankar could not be climbed from the Nepakese side, though it possibly could be from the Tibetan side. This opinion was shared by a Swiss guide, Raymond Lambert.

Idle Total Climbing In Nation

DETROIT (UPI)—General Motors announced plans Friday to lay off another 8,100 workers, boosting the total idled for the duration of the steel strike to 212,865.

The total did not include 50,000 to 55,000 Ford Motor Co. employes who were "furloughed" for the rest of the week as Ford sought to conserve its steel supplies and avoid "duration layoffs."

An undetermined number of Chrysler Corp. employes also were aided for short periods under three- and four - day work schedules and were not included in the total.

Included, however, were 5,850 Chrysler Corp. employes who have been laid off for the duration of the steel strike.

Most of those laid off for the duration were General Motors employes. GM said it has sent home 200,215 employes and will send home at least another 6,800 within the next week.

Only three GM divisions had cars or trucks rolling off the assembly lines. Chevrolet Division said it was still producing Corvairs at two plants and Chevrolet trucks at eight. Production of full-sized Chevrolets was limited to one plant which also was turning out Corvairs.

A trickle of cars was still coming off the Buick assembly line at Flint, Mich., and GMC Truck and Coach Division was producing a limited number of trucks and buses.

Chrysler Corp. scheduled short work weeks at all except two of its plants and Ford maintained full output only at Lorain, Ohio, and Kansas City plants turning out Falcons.

American Motors and Studebaker-Packard had enough steel to continue full operations. S-P scheduled five - day operations while AM scheduled six-day operations at its plant in Kenosha, Wis.

Veterans' Day Celebrations Announced Here

Plans for the observance and celebration of Veterans' Day, Wednesday, November 11, were completed at the last meeting of the L. B. Faulk Post No. 13 of the American Legion in Monroe.

Saul Adler, outstanding Monroe legionnaire, was appointed chairman of the Grand Bar-B-Que event which will be held at the Post Home on Wednesday between the hours of 6 and 9 p.m. Adler and his committee have completed plans to decorate the Home especially for this observance of the signing of Armistice after World War I. For years this commemoration was known as Armistice Day, but after the Korean War the name was changed to Veterans' Day.

Adler reported that this year's observance will be the largest event of late, and is expected to attract many distinguished persons from the area.

Ed Skoog, Jr. is in charge of other special ceremonies in connection with Veterans' Day.

Red Rumors Dubbed As Fairy Tales

CHICAGO (AP) — Rumors that the Soviet Union has developed an experimental atomic-powered airplane and locomotive are simply fairy tales, a top Soviet atomic scientist said Saturday.

Prof. Vasily S. Emelyanov, head of the main administration for utilization of atomic energy in the U.S.S.R., also denied that the Soviets are using small, controlled nuclear explosions to blast out new harbors and improve their watersheds.

"I have never heard of it. It is not being done," he told a news conference.

Emelyanov and eight other Soviet nuclear scientists and engineers are inspecting various atomic power plants and other atomic installations in the United States.

Their tour marks the first mass inspection by Soviet scientists of U. S. peacetime atomic accomplishments. It followed a similar tour of various Soviet atomic installations last month by a delegation of American atomic scientists headed by John A. McCone, chairman of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission.

Arrangements for the reciprocal visits were made during the recent visit of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to the United States.

Emelyanov, spokesman for the visitors, held a news conference during a tour of the Argonne National Laboratory in suburban Lemont. The laboratory, specializing in atomic research, is operated for the Atomic Energy Commission by the University of Chicago.

The Soviet scientist declined to express an opinion as to whether the Soviet Union leads or lags the United States in the development of atomic energy for peaceful uses.

"I have never been to the races myself and I don't think science is like a race," he said.

It is too early, he said, to know whether Soviet scientists are near some breakthrough or developing atomic - fueled electrical power which can compete with conventional coal-fueled electrical power.

He said that both the United States and Soviet Union stand to gain from a program of mutual cooperation in atomic research.

Family Gets Money Offer For Baby

TIMPERLEY, England (AP)—Sheila Winkley said Saturday night she is considering giving her unborn baby to an American family whose offer included $1,000.

Mrs. Winkley said the offer was cabled in the name of Mrs. Robert Anderson of Upper Montclair, N.J. The cable was sent from Jacksonville, Fla.

"It's the most favorable offer we've had so far," said the 27-year-old blonde Mrs. Winkley. She says she will give her fifth baby away because she dislikes washing diapers and thinks the child will have a better upbringing in the United States.

Mrs. Winkley said the cable read:

"Best possible home love and college for baby. Payment 1,000 dollars from us to help your own children and hospital bills. Will come for baby. Letter following."

The message was one of a number Mrs. Winkley and her husband Roy, 29, unemployed engineer, received from the United States.

The Winkleys have two children—David, 8, and Annette, 5—living with them in their neat little house here. A third, Christine, 4, is in a welfare home for special medical attention.

Last year they created a nationwide storm by announcing they were expecting their fourth child and would give it away because they didn't like the job of looking after babies. The child was adopted by an English couple.

This time the Winkleys say baby No. 5, expected in March, will go to an American couple.

"There are better opportunities for children there," Mrs. Winkley said.

Bad Check Artist Jailed

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—A 36-year-old commercial artist who said he wrote bad checks to finance counterfeiting experiments was jailed Saturday on a federal charge.

Secret Service agent in charge LeRoy M. Letteer said Paul Richard Turner had used 20 to 30 aliases while touring 43 states perfecting his technique for making bogus $5 and $20 bills.

Letteer quoted Turner, who has served three prison terms for forgery, as saying, "I knew I couldn't go on forever writing bad checks so I was looking to the future."

Turner was charged with possessing equipment to manufacture counterfeit money. Officers seized a camera, offset printing supplies and plates.

Letteer said Turner had designed a counterfeit bill that was "quite good."

Border Tension Hinders Search

B. P. Koirala ordered the search intensified. The Premier himself was reported going to a checkpoint to supervise the rescue efforts.

REPORTED

At the same time, the government was reported to have requested New Delhi authorities to lend it some Indian Air Force planes that would fly over the expedition's base camps on the mountain in an effort to spot the missing climbers.

New Delhi reports said that the Indian government had agreed to provide the planes for the search but specified that the aircraft could not fly over Gauri Shanker peak because it touched the frontier with Communist China.

The reports said, however, the Nepalese government was seeking to get the Peiping regime's permission for Indian Air Force planes to fly over the border peak.

There was no immediate indication whether permission would be granted by the Communists in view of the deteriorating Indian-Chinese Communist relations stemming from intrusions by Red troops along the disputed border.

News of the apparent tragedy was brought to Katmandu Friday by two porters who climbed from the foot of Gauri Shanker to the 18,000-foot base camp seeking news of the missing expedition, said to have arrived at that level early in October.

The two men reported they had found two porters from the Japanese-led party who had been left behind while the 32 other members of the group climbed up toward the 20,000-foot level.

A Swiss mountaineer, Raymond Lambert, who had made an attempt to scale Gauri Shanker in 1954,, declared that the peak was "unclimable" above the 21,000-foot level.

The missing Japanese expedition, organized by Fukuoka University's mountaineering department, was headed by Hideki Kato, 38, and included two other Japanese, one Nepali liaison officer, two Sherpa guides and 26 porters.

Cuban Major Is Object Of Florida Hunt

of the Florida peninsula and the Florida Keys, tiny islands that string out from the lower coast like stepping stones of a garden path.

Three U.S. Air Force C119 cargo planes and an SA16 searched the wild Everglades which sprawl across the lower portion of the Florida peninsula.

By 5 p.m. the Air Force reported that the Keys had been thoroughly scanned and all of the lower mainland had been crisscrossed except the lonely and watery southwest tip.

The search was then discontinued until Sunday.

Cuban exiles in Miami were electrified by the news of Cienfuegos' disappearance and there was speculation that he had defected from Castro's revolutionary regime like the Air Force Commander, Maj. Pedro Diaz Lanz, who charged that Cuba had been infiltrated by Communists.

Last year Americans purchased 1,550,000 air conditioning units compared with only 89,000 in 1949. Nevertheless, 83 per cent of this country's wired homes are without air conditioners today. Make Your Home Happier with a New Appliance.

Shipments of gas appliances in 1959 are expected to total 8,737,300 units. That would be 9 per cent above 1958. Make Your Home Happier with a New Appliance.

Solon Suggests Powerful New Labor Court

the strikers back to work for an 80-day cooling off period.

What is needed, Smathers' statement said, is a court with powers as great as the Supreme Court's to step in and settle major Labor - Management disputes before a strike develops.

The proposed court's authority should come into play, he said, when it becomes obvious that a collective bargaining impasse has been reached.

He said either side should have the right to call in the court to end the deadlock. The five judges then would hear the testimony and hand down a decision from which there would be no appeal.

Somewhat similar proposals have been advanced before, and have run into heated criticism. Opponents contend the issues are too complex in a free economy. Some Latin-American and European countries do have labor courts. The critics say among other things a settlement invariably must raise the question of price fixing, and that price fixing except in wartime is repugnant to the American way. They also speak of political pressures to which such a court might be subjected.

Smathers, however, said the public is entitled to the protection he believes his plan would provide, and that both employers and employes would benefit.

Steel Mill Workers Set For Return

will be busy for some time with work involved in reopening the long-idle mills.

Joseph F. Finnegan, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said he hopes to know by Monday when contract negotiations will be resumed. They have been suspended pending outcome of the Supreme Court appeal.

Steel officials estimated it will take up to six weeks to get production back to 90 per cent of capacity. They figure it will take three weeks to get new steel rolling in an important way.

Arthur J. Goldberg, union counsel who waged a losing battle to have the back-to-work injunction set aside, said he was naturally disappointed by the ruling.

"From the Supreme Court the only appeal is to God," he was quoted as telling the National Broadcasting Co.

Goldberg said no purpose would be served by trying for a rehearing.

Justice William O. Douglas was the high court's lone dissenter.

The eight other members — Chief Justice Earl Warren and Justices Hugo L. Black, Felix Frankfurter, Tom C. Clark, John M. Harlan, William J. Brennan Jr., Charles E. Whittaker and Potter Stewart—concurred in a five-page unsigned opinion upholding the injunction.

It was the first time the court ever had ruled on the validity of Section 208 of the Taft-Hartley Act, passed in 1947.

This is the section which authorizes the government to seek "coolin-off" injunctions in strikes which "if permitted to occur or to continue, will imperil the national health or safety."

Fifteen times the government has asked a U.S. District Court to issue an injunction under this section. Each time the request has been granted.

In the majority opinion, the Supreme Court rejected all contentions the union made in urging that the injunction be struck down. Among other arguments, the union said Section 208 was unconstitutional on the ground it attempted to confer upon federal courts nonjudicial functions.

"We are of the opinion," said the court, "that the provision in question as applied here is not violative of the constitutional limitation prohibiting courts from exercising powers of a legislative or executive nature."

To the union's argument that the statute was invalid because it does not set up standards of lawful or unlawful conduct on the part of labor or management, the majority said: "But the statute does recognize certain rights in the public to have unimpeded for a time production in industries vital to the national health or safety. It makes the United States the guardian of these rights in litigation."

The majority said Congress, in passing Section 208, was not concerned with the merits of the positions of either side in a labor dispute or with their conduct of negotiations.

"Its basic purpose seems to have been to see that vital production should be resumed or continued for a time while further efforts were made to settle the dispute," the court said.

"To carry out its purposes, Congress carefully surrounded the injunction proceedings with detailed procedural devices and limitations," the opinion said.

"The public report of a board of inquiry, the exercise of political and executive responsibility personally by the president in directing the commencement of injunction proceedings, the statutory provisions looking toward and adjustment of the dispute during the injunction's pendency, and the limited duration of the injunction, represent a congressional determination of policy factors involved in the difficult problem of national emergency strikes.

"This congressional determination of the policy factors is of course binding on the courts."

The Justice Department, acting upon instructions from Eisenhower, obtained the injunction from Judge Herbert P. Sorge in U.S. District Court in Pittsburgh Oct. 21. The U.S. 3rd Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia upheld the action six days later. Effectiveness of the back-to-work order was stayed until the high court acted.

The union said Sorge's findings that the continuation of the strike would imperil the national health and safety were unsupported by the evidence.

The union insisted "national health," as used in the act, meant physical health: the government contended the term comprehends the country's general well-being, its economic health.

"We need not resolve this question, for we think the judgment below was amply supported on the ground that the strike imperils the national safety," the Supreme Court said. "Here we rely upon the evidence of the strike's effect on specific defense projects; we need not pass on the government's contention that 'national safety' in this context should be given a broader construction and application."

In his 14-page dissenting opinion, Justice Douglas said the case should be returned to District Court "for particularized findings as to how the steel strike imperils the 'national health' and what plants need to be reopened to produce the small quantity of steel now needed for the 'national safety.'"

"I am unwilling to take judicial notice that it requires 100 per cent of the workers to produce the steel needed for national defense when 99 per cent of the output is devoted to purposes entirely unconnected with defense projects," Douglas said.

"If 1,000 men, or 5,000 men, or 10,000 men can produce the critical amount the defense departments need, what authority is there to send 500,000 men back to work?" Douglas wrote.

The 116-day strike, longest industrywide shutdown in steel history, has cost an estimated more than six billion dollars in wage and production losses.

More than 350,000 workers in steel-related industries were laid off, resulting in additional wage and production losses running into millions.

satisfy Khrushchev's demand for ending the Western occupation of Berlin and at the same time protecting the freedom of the city through the continued presence of Western forces here.

At the other extreme Adenauer has said he thinks the Western powers should negotiate for a disarmament agreement in the summit meeting. In other words he does not favor negotiations on West Berlin.

Eisenhower has laid down a requirement that anything the West agrees on with Khrushchev must be acceptable to the people of West Berlin.

Eisenhower's travel schedule disclosed that on his swing into Asia he will be accompanied by his son, Maj. John Eisenhower, and daughter-in-law, Barbara Eisenhower. Mrs. Eisenhower will not make the trip.

Eisenhower, the formal schedule showed, will take a rest during his trip by making the portion of the journey from Athens to Paris by U.S. Navy cruiser and by train. He will board the cruiser late on Dec. 15, debark at Toulon, France, on Dec. 18 and arrive at Paris by train around midnight that night.

The schedule published Saturday generally confirmed dates which had become known unofficially earlier in the week. Still not disclosed was the precise detail as to what Eisenhower will do in each place he visits.

Within a space of three weeks beginning shortly before midnight Dec. 3 he will fly from Washington, visit nine capitals, confer with a number of national leaders including India's Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru and the Western European allies, and return in time for Christmas.

He will be in Rome from late Dec. 4 until noon Dec. 6. While there he will have an audience with Pope John XXIII.

On Dec. 6 he will fly to Ankara and spend the afternoon and evening visiting with Turkish officials.

The next morning he will take off for Karachi, Pakistan, arriving late in the day. He will spend the night of Dec. 7 and all the next day and night at Karachi, leaving there on Dec. 9 for a flight to New Delhi, India, by way of Kabul, Afghanistan. He will reach Kabul the morning of Dec. 9 and leave there in the afternoon, landing at New Delhi late that day.

Leaving New Delhi, Eisenhower will fly to Tehran for a 5½-hour visit Dec. 14 and then go to Athens where he will spend the night and most of the following day, until he boards the cruiser. After the Paris meeting Eisenhower will fly home by way of Rabat, Morocco, leaving Paris early Dec. 22.

Surgery Staged In N.Y. Elevator

back from his home.

The elevator is operated by pulling a cable to get it started. Green got out of his car and pulled the cable. Then he stooped to examine a tire. As he bent over, he lost his balance and his left leg was caught between the moving elevator car and the wall.

As the elevator rose slowly, it tore Green's leg. He screamed for help and tried to halt the elevator, but it kept moving until it stopped automatically at the second floor.

Daniel Sabia, 39, a garage attendant, heard Green's agonized cries and rushed upstairs.

"My leg is caught," Green gasped.

Sabia called police who summoned an ambulance from Knickerbocker Hospital. Dr. P. Shamsuddin, 25, of Madras, India, who has been at the hospital for four months as an exchange doctor, arrived aboard the ambulance 15 minutes later.

Shamsuddin examined Green, who was in great pain, and told him "the leg will have to be amputated."

A policeman asked the doctor to wait. The intern stepped back and policemen used heavy iron bars to try to pry Green's leg free. The attempt failed.

"All of the bones in your leg are shattered, Mr. Green," the doctor said. "It is hanging only by some torn muscle. I must amputage."

The doctor told Green that he faced the danger of infection.

"Under those circustances, doctor," Green said, "you have my permission."

lite are loud and clear," the Air Force announced.

The 78-foot projectile's secret payload is in a capsule designed to be ejected from the orbiting second stage on its 17th trip around the earth's poles Sunday.

For the sixth time, Air Force planes will be waiting aloft to try to snatch the parachuting capsule from the sky near Hawaii.

The capsule contains no animal life but a duplicate of it is expected to carry monkeys into orbit later in the Discoverer series.

Discoverer VII blasted away from its pad on the beach shortly after noon (PST).

Atop the first stage Thor booster was a 19-foot second stage made by Lockheed Aircraft Corp. After separation, the second stage is supposed to rocket into orbit on its own power, circling the earth every 90 minutes.

It may be two or three hours before the Air Force announces whether the second stage, carrying the highly instrumented 300-pound capsule in its nose, achieved orbit.

NOT HAPPY

Steelworker Tells Reaction To Ruling

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — "The government can force me back to the mills, but no one—not even President Eisenhower or the courts—can make me say that I'm happy about it."

That was the reaction of steelworker John Iskat to the announcement that the United States Supreme Court had upheld a Taft-Hartley injunction ordering the strikers back into the nation's steel mills for 80 days.

Iskat called the injunction a "one-sided affair"—favoring the steel companies.

"It's not going to mean much to us. Maybe it'll be a couple of bucks but you can bet they'll really work us during those 80 days. The companies will stockpile and will have enough when we go back on strike," said Iskat, a pipe fitter at U.S. Steel's Edgar Thomson works in Braddock, Pa.

Eddie Pavlan, a craneman at Braddocks' open hearth department, said the injunction was "just a shrewd move to try to break the union."

"After a while, steelworkers get used to really scrimping on everything. So what happens now? He (President Eisenhower) tells us we can have some bread in our mouths for a couple of weeks, but then we'll have it taken right out in 80 days. It's senseless."

Pavan thought the President should have acted sooner—"before everyone suffered so much."

"Eisenhower sure took a long time to make up his mind. He waited three months. Why didn't he wait three years?"

Many steelworkers believe the 80-day cooling off period would not accomplish much.

"What's the common steel laborer to get out of it? Nothing—with a capital 'N'," insisted Harry Miller, who works as a stockman in the tin tempering department at U.S. Steel's Irvin works in West Mifflin, Pa.

"This is a pro-industry move if I ever saw one."

Miller was eating lunch at union headquarters when queried by United Press International.

"Do you see this soup line? it's not going to end for a while. We won't get a check for at least a month. Then we'll get off the soup line for a while, and be right back on after this ridiculous 80 days runs out," he said.

CD Officials Give Comment On Fallout

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Civil Defense office said Saturday the problem of providing radioactive fallout protection in metropolitan areas "is certainly not beyond reach, either physically or financially."

Reporting on the first community survey completed by the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, Director Leo A. Hoegh said the findings are encouraging. He added that they "provide sound guidelines for the solid planning and action that is demanded by the thermonuclear age."

Hoegh said the community study conducted in Tulsa, Okla., shows that "significant protection" is offered by existing structures. He listed these other findings:

1. Existing business district shelter capacities can be increased at moderate cost.

2. There is need for additional higher-grade shelter.

3. Added shelter can be developed at least cost in areas of greatest need.

4. Shelter surveys can be made in larger cities at reasonable cost.

Hoegh said these major conclusions are valid even though the Tulsa figures cannot be used for other cities. In fact, he said nearly complete findings from surveys in Montgomery City and County, Ala., and Contra Costa County, Calif., showed wide variations in the percentages of the various qualities of protection.

Hower, he said the major conclusions will be further checked through a fourth survey in Milwaukee, and others to be made.

Demo Council Scores Ike's Leadership

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Democratic Advisory Council blamed Eisenhower administration domestic economic policies Saturday for the nation's unfavorable balance of international trade.

Dr. John K. Galbraith, chairman of the council's economic committee, told a news conference that the administration's tight money policy and what he said were restrictions on investments have caused a drop in exports.

Galbraith said committee members agreed unanimously that there should be no doubt about the soundness of the American dollar—an issue which has worried Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson in connection with the unfavorable trade balance.

He said that the committee agreed the postwar objective of foreign aid and other expenditures abroad was to develop a more competitive international system under which other nations would strengthen their currencies in comparison with the dollar.

"Now that that policy is beginning to become successful, there is no reason to take fright about the stability of the dollar," Galbraith said.

He said the advisory council believes the situation can be met by expansion of international markets, revision of the foreign aid responsibility to bring other countries into the contributing class, and elimination of waste in military and civilian aid.

Galbraith disagreed with Anderson's contention that an unbalanced budget would contribute to weakening the dollar.

Budgetary factors don't contribute importantly to currency stability Galbraith said.

"We are much less concerned with budget balancing than the Republicans are as long as the national economy is operating so much below capacity," he added.

Galbraith said his group is opposed to the "buy America" policy laid down by Anderson for development loans to other countries.

Khrushchev 'Demoted' By President

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower "demoted" Nikita Khrushchev Saturday but it didn't mean a thing.

Eisenhower sent greetings on the anniversary of the founding of the Soviet Union 42 years ago to President Klementi Y. Voroshilov.

He thus treated Voroshilov as the chief of state of the Soviet Union. Less than two months ago he treated Khrushchev the same way.

Khrushchev came to the United States by his own decision as the man in whom Soviet sovereignty rests—comparable to a president or a king.

Such rank entitled him to the full red carpet treatment under the rules of international protocol. He got 21-gun salutes when he arrived and when he left, a state dinner at the White House, and presidential reception at the airport—all the trappings which custom decrees for a visiting sovereign.

Everybody who was interested knew, however, that there was in the formal sense a considerable degree of pretense in all this. Khrushchev's position was and is that of the chairman of the Council of Ministers which gives him the Westernized title by which he is generally known in the outside world, that of "premier"

While Khrushchev is recognized in fact as the real boss and chief of the Soviet government, as well as the huge sprawling Communist empire under Soviet domination, Voroshilov is accepted in world capitals as the formal head of the Soviet Union. This gives him the top rank though he has little if any power. Formally, he is the chairman of the President of the Supreme Soviet.

Amendment Set To Be Proposed

"most assuredly, we share your concern and distress over the unfortunate episode in broadcasting which has occurred in connection with the rigging of certain television quiz shows."

"I believe the fact that the broadcasting industry in general was as surprised at these revelations as was the general public, goes without saying. I can assure you that neither the Television Code Review Board nor I was aware of these behind-the-scenes manipulations," he wrote.

"I realize that some, with the benefit of 20-20 hindsight, will regard this naivete as unbelievable, but these are the facts."

Fellows said that recent statements on the part of both the National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting System indicate their recognition that action is necessary "to assure against any repetition of these unfortunate events."

He continued that the two networks do not agree on the exact approach to the problem, "one choosing to cancel all such quiz shows and the other choosing to be more meticulous in its policing of the shows."

"I believe there is a similar division of opinion both within the industry and among the viewing public as to the best course of action to be taken under the circumstances," he added.

He said he could assure Langer, however, that programs which fall into the quiz category and which could be rigged will be subject to careful study by the networks, the stations, and the board.

Fellows also said, in reference to Langer's complaint about violent Western and crime shows, that the board is doing its best to curtail "excessive violence" in TV programming.

Fall

The fall seems to have landed here. Two days and nights of severe cold, Friday with low temperature of 30 degrees and Saturday morning when at Selman field the lowest reading stood at 27 degrees created havoc with many flower beds. Among the flowers seemingly most delicate were the banana plants and also those plants that boast glorious yellow candle—like flowers. An unkindly temperature ended their seasonal flowering in a few hours time, Friday and Saturday.

Farm-City

In conjunction with "Farm-City Week" in this state, November 20-26, the Monroe Chamber of Commerce Agricultural Committee is offering certain clubs an opportunity to stage a special farm program furnished by the chamber.

Efforts are being made for the Monroe Civitan club to hold a program of this nature, provided a date can be arranged.

Child Star Ends Jaunt

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Evelyn Rudie completed her cross-country jaunt Saturday when she flew home from Baltimore.

The 9-year-old television actress faces a police inquiry about the circumstances of her departure from Hollywood last Wednesday, but she didn't seem worried when she stepped off her plane at Los Angeles International Airport.

"How do you like my coat?" she asked her mother, Mrs. Emery J. Bernauer.

"And look at my boots! I bought them with my own money and they're imported from Italy."

After mother and child embraced, Mrs. Bernauer said she would not reprimand the child for taking the trip.

Evelyn said earlier she took the trip to visit Mamie Eisenhower, figuring the First Lady might be able to help her get a good part in a movie or television series. Evelyn previously has played the "Eloise" role in a TV series.

She never did get to see Mrs. Eisenhower, spending her time instead at the home of friends in Chevy Chase, Md., near Washington.

But her mother said that since the trip she has received invitations to appear on the Jack Parr and Steve Allen TV shows.

A member of the police department's juvenile bureau is expected to talk to Evelyn Monday. There is nothing wrong with pulling a publicity stunt, but filing a false police report is illegal.

Police Chief William Parker said: "We have a signed missing-person report, and we are reconstructing the course of events which preceded the girl's flight."

This suggested that police want to find out if the girl's plans to fly East were known when the report was filed Wednesday.

Evelyn said she broke open her piggy banks to get enough money to take the trip.

Her mother said: "We are not angry with Evelyn. It's only that we're disturbed by the trouble she caused by not letting us know. Evelyn has never gone anywhere out of the house before without asking me. That's why it was such a shock to us."

Death Claims 72-Year-Old Screen Actor

where his father became bishop of Clermont.

Victor, when he was only 14, followed the lead of an older brother and went to London to enlist in the King's Life Guards during the Boer War. His father discovered his whereabouts three years later and brought him home because he was still under age.

But Victor later got permission to go to Canada, where he prospected for gold, worked as a railway policeman, and became a prizefighter. It was while he was boxing that he acquired his flattened nose.

In 1909, McLaglen fought an exhibition with heavyweight champion Jack Johnson and was floored in the sixth round. Victor never really took boxing seriously.

He turned to vaudeville—impersonating sculptured marble masterpieces in one act—and toured the old Orpheum circuit.

When World War I broke out, he got a lieutenant's commission in the British army and served in Mesopotamia, where he was cited for bravery, and twice wounded.

Back in London after the war, he was offered a role in the movie "The Call of the Road." He made several more pictures in Britain, then came to Hollywood in 1924 to play the lead role in "The Beloved Brute" at the request of director J. Stuart Blackton.

This was followed by many successes.

McLaglen won great acclaim for his portrayal of the brawling Capt. Flagg in "What Price Glory," a story of the Marines.

In 1933, he became a U. S. citizen.

His first wife, Enid Lamont McLaglen, whom he married in London in 1918, died in 1942. He married Suzanne Brueggeman, his former secretary, in 1943. Divorce ended this marriage, and in 1948 McLaglen married Margaret Pumphery of Berkeley, Calif. She along with Andy, and a daughter, Sheila, were with him when he died. Andy McLaglen is a television producer.

McLaglen played relatively few roles in the last several years, but he expressed surprise when he heard some people thought he had retired.

"I've never stopped," he said. "I've been 37 years acting, and there's always been at least one picture a year."

His last picture, "Sea Fury," was made in England and has not been released yet in the United States.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at Forest Lawn Memorial Park.

Long Search Fails To Find Judge's Body

CHICAGO (AP)—A search of a mile-long portion of Lake Michigan by more than 100 skin divers failed Saturday to turn up the body of Judge W. Lynn Parkinson of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Judge Parkinson, 57, has been missing since Oct. 26 when he was last seen near Oak Street Beach, the area covered in Saturday's underwater search.

Four divers were taken from the icy water with cramps during the six-hour hunt along the lake bottom. None was seriously affected.

Sheriff Frank Sain who organized and directed the underwater search said he was convinced Parkinson's body is not in the area covered but may have been carried away by currents. Authorities involved in the search say they are convinced Judge Parkinson drowned in the lake.

About 150 divers volunteered for the search but only about 100 entered the water. The others, including at least 15 women drivers, stood on the shore along with hundreds of spectators as a police boat and a Coast Guard utility boat aided the divers.

The lake area searched is directly across the street from the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals where Judge Parkinson served.

Earlier, police scourged the Douglas Park area on Chicago's West Side after a man answering Judge Parkinson's description was reported seen in a restaurant having breakfast. No trace of the man was found.

Three diners in the restaurant and a counterman told police the man closely resembled an artist's sketch of the judge that appeared in a morning newspaper. His clothing, however, was of a different type and color than that worn by the judge when he disappeared.

Lake Charles Man Rescued From Shrimper

TEXAS CITY, Tex. (AP)—A 65-year-old Lake Charles, La., man was rescued Saturday after having been stranded on his grounded shrimp boat for two days.

Five members of the Texas City rescue squad found J. L. Kift aboard the 35-foot shrimper Sue Ann about noon some 100 yards from the entrance to the Intracoastal Canal. The rescue party included Kift's son, J. L. Kift Jr., of Texas City.

The elder Kift said he left Lake Charles alone Thursday to visit his son here. Late that day the boat's steering mechanism broke and the vessel drifted out of the channel and in low tide went aground.

He said he flew a distress flag and waved to passing vessels but "most of them just caually waved back and continued on their way."

Rescuers said Kift apparently suffered no ill effects of his experience.

IN KENTUCKY, COLORADO

Sen. Johnson Makes Big Gain

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas picked up support in Kentucky and Colorado last week, and Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts made some hay in California's sunshine.

These two Democrats, among all those eager or willing to be nominated for president, made the most obvious gains.

The big news among the Republicans — although it surprised nobody—was that Vice Peesident Richard M. Nixon will be entered in the New Hampshire presidential primary.

This primary, March 8, will be the first in the nation. It should formally open Nixon's campaign for the nomination.

Coming up this week is an almost incredible West Coast invasion by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York. Few men would do what he plans: pack 35 public appearances into four days.

What Rockefeller learns in this outing could be a big factor in making up his mind whether to run against Nixon for the GOP nomination.

Johnson's good news from Kentucky came in the winning of the governorship by Democrat Bert T. Combs. Combs was sponsored by a Johnson pal, former Sen. Earle C. Clements, and the outcome could mean a chunk of 1960 convention votes for Johnson.

Kentucky's present governor, A. B. (Happy) Chandler, had supported Combs' opponent in the primary and had his own bright eye on the state's 31 votes in the convention.

The Colorado support for Johnson came in a demonstration by former Sen. Ed C. Johnson (no kin) of how to be polite to everybody and still get your point across.

Listen to Ed C. as he endorsed Lyndon B.:

"He is as self-confident and enthusiastic as Jack Kennedy, as liberal as Hubert Humphrey, as articulate as Adlai Stevenson, as adroit as Gov. Brown, as well-balanced in economics as Stu Symington, and as personable as Happy Chandler."

Lyndon Johnson, after a series of speeches in which he conquered Texas like the Dutch conquered Holland, set his sights on the Midwest. He arranged meetings with fellow Democrats in Kansas City and Iowa Dec. 7-9.

Among those who agreed that Kennedy had done well in his California appearances was California's Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown. And Brown would like to have the last word himself on who gets California's 81 convention votes.

"He had a big success," Brown said. "I admire him very much."

Big crowds, warmly responding, turned out for Kennedy in California, and he hoped for more of the same on his current invasion of Oregon.

Oregon's Sen. Wayne Morse, who has been throwing brickbats at Kennedy, eased off to the extent of promising that if Kennedy does win the presidential nomination, "I shall not campaign against him."

Nixon, visiting homefolks and politicians in California, would not comment when reporters asked him whether he'd welcome Rockefeller into the California primary next June. He did say it was a good idea for party leaders to get around the country.

Nixon also probably annoyed former President Harry S. Truman—almost anything Nixon does annoys HST—by copying a couple of Truman stunts.

The vice president (1) sat down at the piano and played "The Missouri Waltz" and (2) took a "hello, there, folks" stroll around Beverly Hills, joshing with one and all.

Nixon's fellow Californians were indeed glad to see him. At one point, a swarm of autograph seekers so overwhelmed him he had to take refuge in a ladies' rest room.

Results of last week's scattered elections were interpreted by both parties, as usual, as indicating both can be confident about the future. Hopeful, anyhow.

An independent appraisal: The Republicans are hurting in the cities.

The Pennsylvania election disclosed that President Eisenhower is not 100 per cent successful in getting out the vote: He flew up to Gettysburg and voted, But Mrs. E. stayed here.

In New Jersey, the Republicans staved off a Democratic bid for control of the State Senate, which could hurt national prospects for Democratic Gov. Robert B. Meyner.

This could be an aesthetic loss for the public, too, since Mrs. Meyner is a beauty. Women in politics, informed sources report, all too often are dowdy or leathery.

The energetic Sen. Humphrey of Minnesota put in a bid for the PTA vote. He told Des Moines teachers: generous federal aid to schools is inevitable.

Also, friends of Humphrey said they'd enter him in the District of Columbia Democratic primary May 3 in a bid for the District's nine convention votes.

Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill) said the Southern outlook on civil rights plus his oil and gas connections, made Sen. Johnson unacceptable to the North as a presidential candidate.

speeches and motorcades at her father-in-law's side.

In addition to her domestic duties, young Mrs. Eisenhower last month became a member of the Board of Directors of the local chapter of the Red Cross at Gettysburg, Pa., where she and her husband have established a home near President Eisenhower's estate.

Barbara was born at Ft. Knox, Ky., daughter of Col. and Mrs. Percy Thompson. Her father, a professional Army man, is now retired.

She met her future husband in Vienna, where her father was stationed at the time. They were married in June 1947 at Ft. Monroe, Va.

Nobel Winner Sees China With Bomb

LONDON (UPI)— Philip Noel - Baker, winner of the 1959 Nobel Peace Prize this week for his work on disarmament, said Saturday Red China may develop an atomic bomb in the next two years.

He appealed for immediate, total disarmament "to save my grand children from fear of war."

Noel-Baker, a Laborite member of Parliament, said in an interview that Soviet scientists told him they had seen "vast nuclear plants in Red China where hundreds of Chinese Communist scientists are being trained.

"It is estimated Communist China may have the bomb in two years," Noel-Baker said. "It could take longer. But this is not the point.

"If Red China should get the atomic bomb, she would constitute a terrible menace to the world."

(During the Big Four Foreign Ministers Conference in Geneva last May, authoritative sources told United Press International Red China was working on a nuclear weapon and hoped to have it perfected and tested in a relatively short period.)

Noel-Baker said China's drive for membership in the "nuclear club" was one of two major reasons why world disarmament is "most immediate, most urgent now."

He said the other reason was that scientists may soon learn to hide missile launching sites underground to escape "even foolproof detection schemes."

The 70-year-old Nobel Prize winner, who has spent a lifetime in the cause of peace and disarmament, said advances in chemical, and germ warfare techniques demanded immediate world disarmament because controlling such weapons once they are made "could be an insurmountable task."

He said Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev told him in Moscow last December that Red China "would definitely endorse" any world-wide disarmament plan.

Noel-Baker said he favored disarmament by progressive treaties.

The first such treaty would reduce the size of armed forces and ban nuclear weapons tests as well as the manufacture of nuclear armaments. This, he said, would cut American and Soviet armed forces to between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000 men apiece.

"Then a second treaty should be signed as soon as possible, further cutting conventional forces and weapons and aiming toward abolition of all atomic weapons... and then a third treaty and a fourth if necessary.

"Only by eliminating all weapons can we be sure of peace, he said.

OF REVOLUTION

Russians March On Anniversary

MOSCOW (UPI)—A half-million Russians, mostly civilians, marched in Red Square on the 42nd anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution Saturday in a parade stressing peace and prosperity.

The military portion of the parade was the smallest in the history of the celebration.

White doves, symbols of peace, flew over the vast square where Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and other Soviet leaders watched the 3 1-4-hour ceremony. The military display took only 26 minutes and there were no planes, missiles or tanks shown. The only new weapon paraded was a four - wheeled army rocket launcher. It was a far cry from the massive military muscle-flexing of past anniversaries.

Later, Khrushchev gave a reception in the grand palace of the Kremlin attended by Soviet and foreign dignitaries.

The speaker of the day, Defense Minister Marshal Rodion Malinovsky, omitted the usual statement that the Red army was prepared to crush aggressors. He said only that the armed forces were ready to fulfill their duty, if necessary.

In his 15-minutes address Malinovsky said the armed forces had to be prepared for "the reliable protection" of the country as long as foreign (American) bases ring Russia.

In the framework of the current "spirit of Camp David" resulting from Khrushchev's visit to the United States, Malinovsky also stressed "the most important events of the recent past" including Soviet space rockets and the launching of the atomic-powered ice-breaker Lenin."

The vast Red Square, freshly mopped and swept by an army of elderly women, was ablaze with portraits of Lenin, banners proclaiming Soviet desires for peace and models of Sputniks and Lunikes.

Banners carried by marchers in the cold, autumn weather proclaimed "victory in the cosmos," "increase corn production," "steel production—109 percent of the quota," and "crush the ice of the cold war." Some marchers carried pictures of Lenin. A few portraits of Stalin were seen, but only a few.

Khrushchev and the other officials atop the Lenin-Stalin mausoleum overlooking the square were dressed in heavy overcoats and wore snap-brim western-style hats rather than the traditional Russian fur hats.

Rows of gymnasts dressed in bright blue paraded past, doing arm exercises.

Auto Industry Expects Little Quick Relief

DETROIT (AP) — Two auto industries, with more than 250,000 of its workers idled by a steel shortage, expected little immediate relief from the Supreme Court decision which will send the nation's steelworkers back to their jobs.

General Motors, hardest hit by the 116-day old steel strike, said it plans no immediate recall of some 200,000 workers who have been idled by the strike.

Ford which produces 50 per cent of its own steel, also said it planned no immediate production changes. Some 50,000 Ford workers have been idled as dwindling steel stocks hit suppliers.

Chrysler said it plans normal production into the second half of November. But company officials said it appears likely Chrysler's steel supplies will run out before the nation's steel mills can make new deliveries.

The industry's Big Three declined comment on the Supreme Court decision.

Auto production suffered its worst setback this week since the start of the 1960 model run. Production dropped to 67,195 cars and 13,699 trucks from 101,616 cars and 16,185 trucks produced the previous week.

Delhi Firm To Begin On Road Work

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Green-Snider Construction Co. of Delhi has received a $118,606 Louisiana Department of Highways contract for 3.9 miles of blacktopping along the Bastrop-Southeast Hwy., State Rt. 3051, in Morehouse Parish.

Highway Director R. B. Richardson said plans call for grading, drainage structures, aggregate type or soil cement base course and bituminous surface treatment 20 feet wide.

JUNCTION

The project begins at the junction of State Rt. 2 and U. S. 165, three-tenths of a mile east of the east city limits of Bastrop and runs southeast to the junction with State Rt. 138.

Work has already begun and will require five months for completion, the Highway Department said.

The contractor will not be required to provide for and maintain through traffic; however, he shall conduct his operations in such a manner as to cause the least possible interference with traffic at junctions with existing traveled roads.

Fred M. Hill of Monroe is the member of the State Board of Highways from the Fifth Congressional District, in which the project is located.

Richardson said Asa M. Ray of Monroe has been assigned as project engineer, under supervision of Wayne H. Huckaby, Highway Department district engineer at Monroe.

Steel Leader Says Union Will Comply

PITTSBURGH (AP) — United Steelworkers President David J. McDonald Saturday called the Taft-Hartley injunction a strike-breaking order. But he said the union members would comply with it and end the 116-day steel strike.

McDonald called a news conference shortly after the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the Taft-Hartley injunction to end the strike for 80 days.

"I see absolutely no benefit from this 80-day injunction. The companies wanted it and now they've got it. I hope they demonstrate good faith and engage in collective bargaining," he told newsmen.

McDonald, who seeks a new contract for 500,000 basic steelworkers, said the USW and its members will "comply with the law of the land." He told the strikers "to resume work forthwith."

The union's decision-making 171-member Wage Policy Committee will meet in the next couple of days to determine a further course of action in negotiations, McDonald said.

Asked if the workers might engate in slowdowns during the 80-day injunction period, McDonald flushed angrily and replied:

"The steelworkers are loyal citizens and will comply with the law."

McDonald said no negotiating meetings are presently scheduled with the industry. The Federal Mediation Service in Washington said both union and industry negotiators will be contacted soon regarding new meetings.

Shortly after the Supreme Court decision was handed down the USW sent telegrams to all local presidents instructing them to remove picket lines from mills gates and resume work.

Asked if the strike would be resumed at the end of the 80-day injunction period, McDonald said that decision woud halve to be made by the Wage Policy Committee.

"Of this, I am certain. The members have demonstrated devotion to their union and will remain firm, determined and united in seeking a fair agreement," he added.

Discoveries Told About Gravitation

PARIS (AP) — New discoveries of variations in gravitation were described Saturday by Prof. Maurice Allais, who has been conducting experiments in an underground laboratory at St. Germain En-laye near Paris.

Allais told an audience of scientists and civil engineers that he had perfected an improved pantheon pendulum, which was invented by French physicist Leon Foucault (1819-1868) to follow the movement of the earth's rotation.

The improved pendulum, suspended on ball bearings, had made 220,000 tests at St. Germain. The tests have shown, he claimed, that graviy is neither constant nor always oriented in the same direction.

There were variations at the interval of each 24 hours and 50 minutes, which could not be explained by any cause yet known, he said. The nature of these variations were not detailed.

Allais, 48, is a member of the New York Academy of Sciences and a graduate of Johns Hopkins University. He has spent most of his career as a mining engineer and considers his studies of theoretical physics a hobby. He was born in Paris.

Youth Foils Intruder With Bow And Arrow

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Michael Tarrants, 13, has seen an Indian fight or two on television, and he knew what to do when he saw an arm thrust through a broken kitchen window early Saturday.

Michael grabbed his bow and shot an arrow into the arm.

The arm's owner, James Thomas, 37, proceeded into the house. A neighbor boy who had been watching television with Michael ran out and flagged down the car of Dep. Sheriff John Powell.

When Powell came galloping to the rescue, Michael and his brother were busy throwing hot water on the startled intruder.

The event is co-sponsored by the Association of Louisiana Chambers of Commerce and the New Orleans Area Chamber of Commerce.

Worker Glad To Return To Plant

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "It's a wonderful thing to be back at work. I was at the bottom of the barrel and I hope we don't have to go back out again."

That was George Urda talking Saturday as he chipped away at some rust on a blast furnace at the Edgar Thomson works of U.S. Steel Corp. in suburban Braddock.

Urda was among a handful of men called back to work Saturday afternoon—only hours after the Supreme Court upheld a Taft-Hartley injunction halting the steel strike for at least 80 days.

"I hope they get this thing settled during the 80-day period," said William Rothrauff as he helped prepare the No. 2 blast furnace for producing pig iron again.

"I got a few odd jobs during the strike and paid some debts and stalled off others. Getting enough money to eat was a big thing for our family. My wife took the telephone call from the plant today to tell me to come back. I thought she was kidding when she said 'Bill come here and eat and get going.' I got going in a hurry, let me tell you!"

A few feet away from Rothrauff, another maintenance man —Pete Gresko—took time out to say:

"Sure, I feel good to be back at work. Why not? But the idea of this 80-day injunction does not appeal to me. I wish the whole thing was settled now."

"Yes, it does not mean a great deal if we have to go on strike again," chimed in Philip Antrilli.

Harry Heller, a pipefitter with a big grin, smiled and said:

"You can quote me as saying I was ready to come back long ago."

The maintenance men arrived one, to, three at a time. A U.S. Steel spokesman said the back to work call must be on an orderly basis and that workers would be summoned as needed.

Donald Brinkey, a ruddy-faced father of seven, was just a little out of breath as he arrived. Donald, who weighs about 230 and has the cheerfulness which some people associate with fat men, declared with a laugh:

Youth Injured Here In Crash

An eleven-year old youth was injured here yesterday morning when two vehicles collided on Louisville Avenue about 9 a.m.

Rushed to St. Francis hospital by Hixson Brothers ambulance was Russell Davis, 11, of Arcadia. He sustained bruises, cuts, and lacerations in the accident, but was not seriously injured, hospital attendants said.

The mishap occurred as a car whose driver was identified as Rass - Davis, 56, of 1601 South [illegible] was heading west, turning south onto Louisville when his car collided with another being driven by Percy Glenn Savage, 53, 1601 Filhiol, heading east on Louisville.

Both cars were damaged, and police charged Davis with failing to yield right-of-way.

IN BITTERNESS, TOO

Steel Strike Price Tag Comes High In Dollars

Editor's Note — What has the steel strike done to the national economy and the country's wage earners? The following article outlines what the effects have been.

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The price tag on the steel strike comes high. It reads big in dollars, in individual budget pinching, in corporate losses, in bitterness. It has hurt many outsiders and messed up the business boom.

A lot of innocent bystanders are out of work—and many will continue to be for some time to come. Still others will be laid off later because their factories will be running out of metal parts for the things they make.

Consumers may find shortages in goods using metal, from autos to toasters, for some time. Merchants may find this a big Christmas for soft goods and a poor one for hard goods in small supply. In unemployment - ridden areas it could be just a poor Christmas, period.

Steelworkers and others out of work because of the strike will have their hands full for a long time straightening out their personal budgets.

True, as soon as the steel furnaces are heated again, the 500,000 strikers, who have been losing wages at around 70 million dollars a week, will be back on the payroll.

The 20,000 idle coal workers and 60,000 furloughed railway men will follow them back on the job, too. Iron ore barges will be racing the ice in the Great Lakes.

But the auto workers and the appliance and other employes can't work full time until the steel supply lines are filled again.

Here is how the economy was hurting when the Supreme Court ruled:

Most painful is unemployment. Each family has its own problems—some better prepared for the pinch than others—but all set back by the loss of income.

This goes for the strikers, who will have a long time catching up after the paychecks start coming again.

And it's just as rough on families whose income was cut off because idle steel mills don't want what they had been hired to produce, or because they couldn't produce goods for consumers after steel supplies ran out.

The pain stretches out along the nation's economic nerves far beyond this.

Many families are taking a second look at heir budgets because they fear their jobs, too, may be in peril until adequate steel supplies can be assured.

Some merchants report this has already shown up at the sales counters. Some manufacturers say they're beginning to see it in smaller orders from nervous merchants.

And everywhere people are wondering how much bitterness has been engendered by the strike, how long this will carry over, how far it will spread among other workers. For the fight has been over principles — over working rules and who should decide them.

Industrial planning has changed in the last month. There are the questions: When can we be sure to get steel if we go ahead with plans to build? When can we expect delivery if we hire new equipment, if the makers are short of steel? Should we expand now if our earnings are being clipped and our sales prospects for the immediate future dimmed?

At the level of consumer trade the matter is largely regional.

Some sections with few, if any, steel mills; or with few, if any, large payrolls depending on consumption of steel are booming right along. In these areas merchants report trade still good, and predict a big Christmas.

This is far from being a picture of the nation as a whole.

The total of industrial output—previously rising headily — has dropped, and with it the total of individual incomes. The Gross National Product — the dollar measure of all the goods and services produced—has fallen when it was billed to rise.

The strike has put a much more tangible break on the business boom than any effort of the money managers to make money tight to avert a runaway and further inflation.

The boom was supposed to have scaled new heights this month and next. Only the most optimistic now think industry can get on its feet and bring good times to a new pitch before mid-1960.

October saw the point of no return. After that most of the escape hatches were jammed.

Here is why: In the spring most industrialists expected a steel strike in the summer. Users ordered all they could. Many felt the strike might last till Labor Day and planned accordingly. The more cautious put Sept. 30 as deadline. Those in the best positions to lay in stocks got still more and are able to operate—for a time longer.

But since Oct. 1 the layoffs and shutdowns have come ever faster.

And the worst is yet to come. Steel mills can't turn out finished products in quick order. They can't rebuild inventories before the first quarter of next year — and many think it will be well into the second quarter before everything could be normal again.

Imports have climbed this year. Some think foreign steel will hold some of its new market. Others say foreign mills haven't the capacity to supply many needs and much of their output isn't of the special types U.S. manufacturers want. Rising prices of foreign steel haven't set too well. Besides, Europe has been wanting more of its own output and hasn't too much to export.

But steel substitutes have had a big chance to ease in. Aluminum and plastics have taken over some markets. Some users have learned to do with less steel. One example that looks small, but adds up: 17 states don't put out new steel auto plates each year but use small validation tags to change the date on old ones. More states are considering it.

The strike upset the U.S. budget as well as consumers' buying plans. Treasury revenues are trimmed as corporate and individual incomes fall. The budget may slip back into the red after brave attempts to get it into the black. Effects of tha will spread ino he financial markes, especially bonds, including your own school disrict, and could put pressure under more inflation.

Fog Brings Highway Deaths

LONDON (AP) — Bone-chilling fog brought death to four people on British highways Saturday and snarled road, rail and air traffic throughout southern and central England. In London, at least 14 were injured when two electric trains collided in the densest fog of the season so far.

Horse racing at Windsor was called off when the fog settled so thickly spectators couldn't see the back stretch. At London Airport, hundreds of passengers killed time in lounges and tea rooms waiting for the fog to lift. Flights to Paris, Athens, Brussels and Frankfurt were canceled.

Crutchfield's Pay Not Governmental

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charles L. Critchfield, newly named director of the Pentagon's space agency, will be the seventh defense official whose pay comes from outside the government.

Among them is the acting comptroller of the Pentagon, Asst. Secretary of Defense John M. Sprague. The Pentagon supplied the names Saturday in response to a reporter's inquiry.

They hold their defense positions under provision made by Congress in 1951 which permits the Defense Department to employ not more than 10 persons of outstanding experience and ability without compensation by the government.

These officials are barred from acting on any government contracts with private companies with which they are connected or from which they receive salaries. This was done to make possible exemption from conflict of interest laws.

Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy announced earlier this week Critchfield's appointment as director of the Advanced Research Projects Agency. Critchfield is director of scientific research for the Convair Division of General Dynamics Corp.

In Los Angeles Friday, Rep. Chet Holifield (D-Calif) said the staff of his House Government Operations subcommittee is studying a possible conflict of interest in the appointment of Critchfield.

Holifield said "my staff is looking into the picture to find out what all the facts are."

Sprague came to the Pentagon from the Carter Oil Co., of which he was a vice president. As acting fiscal chief of the Pentagon, Sprague was in a budget-making session with McElroy and other top officials Saturday aboard a Navy Yacht in the Potomac River.

Others serving in Pentagon official positions without federal pay are:

Edwin Paxon, assistant director for tactical weapons in the Office of Research and Development whose private position is with Rand, a nonprofit corporation organized for scientific and other technical research;

Dr. Hector Skifter, an assistant director for air defense in the Office of Research and Development and president of Airborne Instruments Laboratories, a division of Cutter-Hammond, Inc.;

John R. Townsend, a special assistant for fuels and materials in the Research and Development Office, who comes from Bell Telephone Laboratories;

George P. Sutton, chief scientist for ARPA, who is a member of the Institute for Defense Analysis, another nonprofit corporation;

Dr. Charles A. Boyd, research director for the Pentagon's weapons systems evaluation group, also a member of the Institute of Defense Analysis.

Dissenting Leader Tells Viewpoint

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice William O. Douglas, dissenting from the eight other justices of the Supreme Court who upheld the steel injunction, favored returning the case to District Court "for particularized findings as to how the steel strike imperils the 'national health' and what plants need to be reopened to produce the small quantity of steel now needed for the national 'safety.'

"There would be open for inquiry and findings any questions pertaining to 'national health' in the narrow sense in which the act uses those words," Douglas said.

He said he thought that when Congress used the words "national health" in emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act, it was "safeguarding the heating of homes, the delivery of milk, the protection of hospitals and the like."

Douglas said he did not feel the broad injunction could be sustained when it rested solely on "national safety."

"I am unwilling," Douglas said, "to take judicial notice that it requires 100 per cent of the workers to produce the steel needed for national defense when 99 per cent of the output is devoted to purposes entirely unconnected with defense projects."

He said that President Eisenhower, in invoking the Taft-Hartley injunctive procedures, construed the word "health" to include the material well-being or public welfare of the nation.

Douglas said the lower courts also construed "national health" to include the economic well-being or general welfare of the country. Then he declared that to read "welfare" into "health" gives that word such a vast reach that the court should do this only under the most compelling necessity.

In a footnote to the majority opinion, Justices Felix Frankfurter and John M. Harlan said that they intended to file an amplification of their views on the case. They said that while they agreed with the majority decision, they could not prepare their explanatory opinions "within the time limitations imposed by the necessity of a prompt adjudication of this case."

Area Woman Says Healing 'Due To God'

RUSTON (Special) — "All the credit belongs to God." This was a mother's comment on her son's remarkable recovery from cancer.

Mrs. F. E. Mayerle, 415 North Homer St. in Ruston, informed the Morning World yesterday that the subject of a picture appearing in the Saturday World was her son. Joseph W. Mayerele of Bremerton, Wash., was pictured with his family, including a three-week-old son, whom doctors said he would never live to see.

Mayerle was discovered to have lung cancer in April and the condition was so bad that physicians said he had less than a few months to live.

But, according to the Associated Press picture, there is no trace of the cancer left and he has gained 30 pounds.

Mrs. Mayerle said that only God could be responsible for such an amazing recovery from the usually- fatal cancer.

Mayerle, his wife, Betty, and two daughters, Wanda, 13, and Denise, 9, were shown with the new members of the family, Joe, Jr.

STEEL

Mixed Sentiments Greet Work Order

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "What good will it do to go back for 80 days and walk back out in the middle of winter?" "I'm tired of loafing." "Nobody likes to be ordered back to work this way." "This should give us a lift for the holidays."

Those were the mixed sentiments expressed by striking steelworkers across the nation on learning the Supreme Court ordered them back to the mills for an 80-day cooling-off period—halting at least temporarily the 116-day steel strike.

David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers Union, issued a statement saying "the Supreme Court has spoken. As law-abiding citizens the Steelworkers Union, of course, will comply with the court's injunction. I have accordingly dispatched telegrams to our striking members directing them, in accordance with the court's order, to resume work forthwith."

But on the picket lines at Buffalo, N. Y.; Homestead, Pa.; Cleveland, Ohio; Worchester, Mass.; Chicago; Atlanta, Ga., and elsewhere the general reaction indicated the 80-day period will not contribute toward settlement of the negotiation deadlock.

"How would President Eisenhower like it if they told him he couldn't play golf for 80 days," a Buffalo striker said.

In Cleveland, Williard Taubee, 52, Republic Steel Corp. employe, remarked: "I'm as tired of loafing as anyone but the order is wrong. It should have been settled once and for all."

Melvin Hampton, 39, employed at Republic for 14 years and the father of seven children, said: "The companies seem to be going all out to break the union but the union is no weaker for the strike. Nobody likes to be ordered back to work this way."

At Homestead, Pa., Joe Dudas, employed at the Homestead works of U. S. Steel Corp., was shopping with his wife, Veronica, and their 7-year-old son, Larry.

"What good will it do to go back for 80 days?" he asked.

"Well at least the children will have something for Thanksgiving and Christmas," interjected his wife.

Charles C. Mathias, union regional representative whose Atlanta locals had some 100 men on strike, said: "The Supreme Court has ruled and that's it."

At Gary, Ind., the union's Philip Murray Hall was crowded with workers early asking how soon they could report back for work.

In the steel capital of Pittsburgh, the order caught many workers in the woods for the small-game season. In Minnesota, the deer season opened.

While pickets and officials of Local 1272 on Pittsburgh's South Side talked over the injunction, a young couple strolled into the union hall, rented for their wedding reception.

Robert Handlovitch, a former steelworker had found other work —and a bride.

Tony Amantea, 56, of Pittsburgh, a motor inspector at the U.S. Steel Corp. Homestead works, said he will be glad to get back to work.

"The old bankroll needs it more than anything else," said Amantea. "I wish we were going back on a new contract, though. With the injunction, we'll just be getting warmed up and we'll have to quit again."

"I'm glad because it will give us a chance to catch up. We have three kids to feed and other steelworkers have even more. After all, half a loaf of bread is better than none at all," Mrs. Amantea said.

Mike Mihalov, 25, of U.S. Steel Clairton works, wasn't happy about the court order.

"I'd rather have a set contract. This injunction gives the steel companies an unfair advantage. Sure I'm glad to have a bank account for 80 days, but what happens after the 80 days are up? The companies are happy but we aren't," Mihalov said.

Jim Peterson, also of the Clairton works just said he'll do what the union wants him to.

"I can use the money," said Peterson. "But I'm not too pleased with the way things went."

A parking lot operator in midtown Pittsburgh said "The government should have gotten that Taft-Hartley injunction earlier. Those poor strikers and their families need some money and need it quick."

A retired advertising man picked up an extra edition of a newspaper and said: "Well, I didn't think this would come until Monday. I guess the court acted today because the stock market wasn't open."

A clerk hurrying to work in a midtown department store said: "Boy, this should give us a lift for Christmas."

A policeman on a busy street corner said: "Sure I'm glad to see the fellows go back to work but I'm wondering if this will really settle anything. You can't settle strikes by injunctions. I hope those negotiators get some sense and get together."

GOVERNMENT QUESTIONS CAMERA-TRICKERY

Is the F.C.C. guilty of allowing camera-trickery to be used on TV commercials? "I'm doing it just to get rich", says Darren McGavin, when asked why he is doing two TV series at the same time. McGavin, star of "Riverboat" (6:00 PM, Channel 10) and "Mike Hammer", thinks money will give him freedom to direct and produce his own stories. Darren's guest tonight is Richardo Montalban, brother - in - law of Loretta Young. A recent episode of "Riverboat" was written by a man and wife team from Eureka Springs, Arkansas. Sunday's special is a two-hour telecast of Ludwig van Beethoven's opera, "Fidelio", which will be sung in English (3:00 PM, Channel 10). "Variety-that's what we want to give", comments NBC on their new color special, "Sunday Showcase" (7:00 PM, Channel 10). In five weeks they have given you just that—a play, a two-part Hollywood drama, an hour with Milton Berle, and a day in the life of Thomas Jefferson. Tonight number six gives a view of man after he has conquered space. Ever been to a rodeo—watched a cowboy rope a wild bull—or seen bareback bronc riding? Imagine this with a good old western square dance, and you'll have a treat as Roy Rogers and Dale Evans' top rodeo performers compete for the championship on "The Chevy Show" (8:00 PM, Channel 10). Swirling, beautifully dressed Loretta Young makes no social engagements when filming "The Loretta Young Show" (9:00 PM, Channel 10). But Loretta, an intense perfectionist, becomes gay, relaxed and gregarious when the filming is completed. Tonight she is both hostess and star for "A New Step". Charlie Price, channel 10's Louisiana representative, wife Janet, and even their little David, like to end a pleasant weekend relaxing to the music of Lawrence Welk (9:30 PM, Channel 10). Incidentally, Lawrence has been beseiged with requests for Alice Lon's return as "Champagne Lady". Will he listen to fans and patch up their misunderstanding? We now take a station break for this paid advertisement.

Modern High School Print Shop

Hot Off The Press

By TOMMY PARKS
Staff Writer

"Looks fine, men. Let's make a couple of thousand more copies."

With these words, the first newspaper was rolled from the press of Louisiana's only complete public high school print shop, located at Neville High school in Monroe.

The print shop, established at the beginning of this semester, resulted from a great deal of research, study and discussion by school officials, including school board members, high school principals and teachers.

The final reasoning was this: A high school print shop could save the entire school system a great deal of money normally spent on commercial printing, as well as furnish a laboratory for school students who wanted "on the job" training.

SAVINGS

At an estimated total cost of around $10,000, the complete, ready-to-go printing department was installed throughout two rooms in the second floor. School officials watched the installation closely, because they figured the shop would eventually pay for itself.

So far, the money - saving and student - training project has "come through with flying colors," school officials say.

In addition to printing the monthly Neville High school newspaper, "The Sizzler," with a circulation of 2,000, the print shop also turns out practically all office forms, letter heads, and other printed materials needed by the city school department.

"And that," commented Sammy Danna, public relations director and head of the print shop, "entails quite a lot of work when you consider that we're printing material for thirteen different schools."

COMMENDED

Sidney Seegers, principal of Neville, noted that the print shop thus far has done "a wonderful job in living up to every expectation and purpose for which it was created."

However, the shop is not expected to print all materials needed by the school system, he pointed out. "Since this is the first semester for the shop to operate, we naturally are trying to go slow with the work. Later, after the project begins to roll smoothly, more work can be turned out by the press."

He explained that the primary purpose of the project was to establish a printing department to serve the growing needs of the city school system. He emphasized, however, that the setup will also serve as an excellent "proving ground" for students to learn the art of the writing and printing industry.

"Although the educational aspects of the idea were not foremost in determining its acceptance, the benefits for the students certainly were not disregarded in considering the project," he pointed out.

BEGINNING

"Already, I understand that some of our students have become pretty adept and efficient with the printing machinery, and this is just the beginning," he said.

Most enthusiastic over the project seems to be the students themselves. "They keep this place buzzing," the shop director said.

"Most of the operations in the shop are very intricate and require skilled operators with plenty of know-how," Danna explained. "And so far, students have rushed in to tackle every process of the printing department. Some are already showing about as much skill as experienced workers, and all of them are improving their work just about every day."

Five completely different steps are necessary before any printed product is completed in the shop.

COPIED

After the initial news or material is written on paper, it is copied on a special machine called a varityper, which is similar to a regular typewriter in appearance.

"Appearance is about as far as the similarity goes," Danna commented. "There's about $3,000 difference in the price of the two."

The varityper automatically sets correct margins as the news material is typed on the paper. In doing so, it saves much valuable time — time which is important in the newspaper business.

After the material is typed on the varityper paper, in any one of six different sizes of print, it is taken to the "light box," a wooden box - like affair with a glass top which makes up the second important process of printing in the shop.

LIGHT BOX

"Our light box was made especially for us by one of the industrial art classes here at school, saving us about $500," Danna said.

At the light box, the printed material from the varityper is pasted evenly on a large make-up sheet. On this same sheet, any larger letters or illustrations used for headlines, etc., are pasted onto the sheet.

After the enitre page is set, or pasted, exactly the way it is to appear in the finished form, it is taken to the photography department next door, where a photograph of the entire page is taken.

"The darkroom is the oldest part of our printshop," one of the students explained. "It has been in use at the high school for about 20 years."

DARKROOM

It is also a very complete darkroom, with enough supplies and equipment to process practically any photographic job needed. Included in the equipment are two professional graphic cameras,two electronic flash units, an enlarger, and a special vertical copy camera, which was reported to be valued at about $2,000.

After the finished full - page negative is completed in the darkroom, it is taken back into the print shop and exposed to flourescent lights in another special piece of equipment called the plate - burning machine. These lights transpose the image, or the picture, on the negative to an ultra - thin aluminum plate sensitized to the light rays. This entire process, which lasts only a few minutes, takes place in a vacuum created by the machine.

REVERSE

This plate, which has a reverse picture of the page transformed on one side, is then de-sensitized to light.

Following this, the final step goes into operation: the actual printing from the press.

For this final step, the metal plate is placed on a special roller of the press, with ink passing onto the thin aluminum where letters, illustrations, etc., appear.

Then, after a number of "trial runs," during which sample copies are checked once more for any mistakes or imperfections.

Then, the presses roll, leafing out pages of printed copy at the rate of five to nine thousand copies per hour.

Report From Pioneers

Editor's note — Remember the 59ers, the doughty band of Michigan pioneers who set out to homestead in Alaska last spring? Here's a report on how they're getting along.

By WILLIAM TOBIN

TALKEETNA, Alaska (AP)— Generous supplies of home-canned food, including porcupine, caribou and moose meat, line the shelves.

There are 65 stacks of homegrown potatoes on hand and plenty of green vegetables.

Snow will soon blanket three newly built cabins of hand - cut birch logs and a handful of other homes—converted Quonset huts and worn house trailers with canvas lean-to extensions.

This is homestead country, where the Michigan 59ers—what remains of them — are buttoning up for their first Alaskan winter of 35 below zero temperatures.

HOPE

"If I'm real good," says pretty Bertha Donaldson, wistfully, "I'm going to get a new washtub and an ax for Christmas."

Ten adults and three children are left from the original group of 42 persons who arrived last March from Michigan to carve new lives in Alaska.

The modern day pioneers attracted nationwide attention on their trouble-plagued motor caravan to the 49th state. Now, after six months, how do they feel?

"No regrets — not yet," says Mrs. Marino Sik, whose husband is head of the remaining group.

After initial troubles in settling on a location, the 59ers took homestead land 10 miles west of here, across the ice - choked Susitna River 80 miles north of Anchorage. About 20 other settlers also live in the area.

No bridge spans the wide river. There is no electric power — the only light in midwinter darkness will come from lanterns and candles. No telephones serve the homesteaders.

Dynamite blasts are the only means of signalling for aid in case of emergency. The explosions, heard in Talkeetna, alert bush pilot Don Sheldon, who has flown several missions for the 59ers.

The homestead settlement is a far cry from the car-clogged expressways the pioneers left back home in the Detroit area. Their homes are spread for 16 miles along a single gravel road running west from the river. After the last homestead comes a 7½-mile stretch to a roadhouse. The road ends 50 miles from where it begins at the Cache Creek gold mine.

Sometimes the only traffic on the road is Bertha Donaldson's bicycle, as she visits her neighbors carrying vegetables in buckets hanging from the handlebars. She feels the clanking buckets keep away any black bears that might come ambling along the road.

Mrs. Donaldson's husband, Gerald, 46, a carpenter, is working on a 28 by 24-foot cabin. Meanwhile they live in a housetrailer sparingly heated with an oil stove. Fuel costs $16.50 a barrel plus $7.50 air freight. A wood stove is used for cooking.

But life is easier since Donaldson dug a well. "It's good to have water," says his wife. "We melted snow for so long at first."

Machinist Raymond Kula, 44, his wife and their son, Francis, 14, already are in their birch log home—a big, sturdy one - room cabin. Kula had to go 40 feet deep for water when he dug his well by hand.

His wife, who helps Francis with his correspondence courses for school, is happy to be homesteading.

"I'm glad to get away from the city," she says. "I got tired of being on the go. The only thing I'd like is a washing machine. The men here get their clothes so dirty it's hard to get them clean by hand."

Bill Orzechowski, 45, a plumber, feels homesteading has been good for his health. His wife and son, William Jr., plan to join him next summer.

Sik, 32, his wife, Carol, and their 14-month-old daughter live in a trailer with a canvas lean-to. Sik has finished a flat-roofed log barn for his livestock—12 chickens, a goose, two horses and a cow.

"I get a little lonesome now and then," says Mrs. Sik. "But my parents are coming up in the spring. If they stay, I won't regret anything."

Also looking forward to the spring breakup is Steve Pankewicz, 46, who is waiting until then to have his wife and two grown sons join him. He has no regrets about life in Alaska—"Not at all. I got away from the rat race."

Pankewicz is living in the Quonset hut of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Rubino, 59ers who moved to Talkeetna for the winter while their 11-year-old son goes to school. Rubino, who cleared land and provided for his bull and two cows, will work at a hotel in Talkeetna.

Two other members of the Michigan party, bachelors Bob Watkins and Eric Eklund built cabins, then had to leave for military service. Both said they plan to return.

Another family of 59ers is at Talkeetna, but not homesteading. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Hoffman, parents of one child, bought into ownership of the Fairview Inn, a roadhouse and hotel, and have taken up permanent residence in this community on the Alaska Railroad.

"Sometimes we do find homesteading a little rough," Mrs. Rubino says, "but I don't know of a single family that wants to give up and go home."

A few of the original 59ers did return to Michigan after initial discouragements over finding suitable land to start new farming careers.

Others settled in the more populous Homer area, on the Kanai Peninsula south of Anchorage. Others became residents of Anchorage, taking up routine city occupations.

OLD SETTLER

An older settler, C. W. (Shorty) Bradley, has been the 59ers' biggest benefactor. He and his wife, Florence, have been homesteading in the area for six years, and on a large spread—a big log house, farmland, livestock and poultry. Bradley gave the newcomers use of two or three acres this summer to grow their first crops of feed and vegetables, helped them out with tools and counseled them on pioneering farm problems.

Television Fraud Laws

When shocking events of any kind, such as the TV quiz show scandals, occur the public reaction always seems to be, "There ought to be a law."

The amusing or pathetic part of this constantly-recurring demand for new laws is that it is made even when there are plenty of adequate laws covering the situation or when the laws themselves might be more objectionable than the condition they were intended to remedy.

One of the newest revelations in the TV quiz show scandal was a statement by District Attorney Frank Hogan in New York that possibly 100 persons had lied when questioned by a grand jury investigating the charges. He said perjury charges would be considered.

It is hardly likely that any laws providing more severe penalties for TV show deceptions than for perjury could be enacted. Most states provide stiff penalties for perjury and this is doubtless true in New York. Thus the necessary law for punishing people for lying under oath already exists. The only question there is whether perjury was committed in a way harmful enough to justify prosecution and fine or imprisonment. Therefore, we don't need any new laws for false testimony under oath.

Revelations of an avalanche television deceptions have been so shocking that President Eisenhower said the department of justice will make recommendations to congress at the next session and that the federal trade commission is studying the question of whether quiz shows involved fraud in advertising.

Aside from the quiz shows, there have been published reports recently that either the federal trade commission or the congressional oversight subcommittee or both may investigate what some consider phony or misleading medical advertising on television.

Investigations under present laws regarding fraud and perjury and under regulations pertaining to the legitimate operation of television networks seem appropriate now in view of the huge fraud, in the sense of entertainment, that has been perpetrated upon the TV-viewing public. There has been no monetary fraud against the people, since they put up no money, and there may have been no monetary fraud against anyone, as there has been testimony that there was collusion between the sponsors, the promoters of the shows and the "actors," which the contestants recently have been labelled.

The contestants undoubtedly are guilty morally because of their conspiracy to deceive the public but apparently only those who testified falsely under oath are guilty of violating the law in such a way as to face possible prison sentences.

Law, in the sense of federal control and regulation of business, should be approached with extreme caution and should be avoided as much as possible.

The proper step is self-policing by the business concerned.

Television has done a little self-policing already on medical advertising and now is engaged in a great deal more on rigged quiz shows.

Frank Stanton, president of Columbia Broadcasting System, said a few days ago that his organization accepted responsibility for "assurance to the American people that what they see and hear on CBS programs is exactly what it purports to be." That is the course that should be followed wherever there is trouble involving deception of the public.

Chairman Earl W. Kintner of the federal trade commission pointed to the values of self-policing as opposed to stringent federal regulation or control in a speech a few days ago before the Audit Bureau of Circulation. This is the organization of advertisers, advertising agencies and publishers which certifies circulations of newspapers and periodicals so that the advertisers know just what they are buying when they take space in any type of publication. This type of self-policing provides better protection for the buying public, the advertisers and the publishers than any federal laws and regulations could offer.

Television has a big job on its hands as a result of the TV revelations but it should be able to do an effective job of self-policing, without the enactment of laws which would hurt the public, the advertisers and the network.

Panama Gets Bolder

Last week's anti-United States uprising in Panama show a bolder approach than was used by persons of similar sentiments in that country several months ago.

The recent disorders — which went so far as to include stoning the American Embassy and injuring a number of persons — appear to have been organized within Panama. It will be recalled the "invasion force" which moved into Panama last spring was trained in Cuba by members of the Castro organization.

At that time, President Ernesto de la Guardia flushed out the insurrectionists shortly after they landed. It was clear his own government was just as high priority target as the U. S. policed Canal Zone.

But this time, President de la Guardia jumped on the anti-American bandwagon and denounced U.S. control of the Canal Zone in a "state of the nation" speech. The more outspoken contenders for the office, perhaps because they were on the "outside," felt their popularity would soar if thy could go beyond the anti-American views expressed by de la Guardia.

So Opposition Party deputy Aquilino Boyd, former foreign minister Ernesto Pimentel and perhaps other factions organized what was termed an Independence Day march into the 10-mile wide zone. They urged that no laws be broken and that as many persons as possible walk or drive into the zone carrying the national flag of the Republic of Panama.

With the fiery nature of the Latin Americans much in evidence in such cases, no one could expect the march into the Canal Zone to be carried out in a peaceful, "orderly fashion" as the leaders had proposed.

Throughout Central and South America, anti-U. S. feelings have grown steadily for the past 10 years. The reception given Vice President Nixon on his trip to Venezuela proved to be far more hostile than any heckling he got in Russian territory. Panama has all this feeling plus the 10-mile belt of territory running across it which the United States calls a possession The big question now being raised in Panama is just how binding is the Treaty of 1903 under which the United States constructed, and set up provisions to operate and maintain the canal.

The United States pays the Republic of Panama $1,930,000 annually for use of the zone. This is the principle source of dollar credits possessed by Panama since that country has let its own agriculture and other money-making resources backslide.

While the government in power seems to realize it has a "good thing" economically in U. S. rentals and sellings to Americans living in the Canal Zone, talk of "nationalizing" the canal persists among parties trying to gain quick favor with the public.

Smith Memorial Dinner

Politicians Place Themselves In Awkward Position Of Exhibiting Wares On Same Platform

Comparisons are odious, until politicians place themselves in the awkward position of exhibiting their wares on the same platform. The Al Smith Memorial dinner, at the Wadorf-Astoria, is not a political enterprise; it exists to raise about $250,000 a year for a hospital and is attended by the principal people in New York. Among them are the Republican and Democratic leaders of New York State which sends the largest delegations to both national conventions. It is also probable that important politicial personalities will be there from other states, particularly Connecticut and New Jersey.

* * *

The speakers are usually political persons, the governor of the State of New York, the mayor of New York City and one other. This time all three speakers are candidates for President or Vice President and the audience was as excited for the competition as before a prize fight.

The first speaker was Mayor Robert Wagner of New York City who delivered an address on Al Smith that was well organized, well spoken and made a good impression. He said all there is to say about Al Smith in one evening and were it not that political speakers write and read what they have to say, which they usually send to the newspapers in advance, the other speakers would have turned to other subjects. Some day, we shall discover a public man in this country who dares to speak without a manuscript and we shall applaud him for his courage in saying what is truly in his mind.

* * *

The diners at the Al Smith Memorial dinner were not so fortunate. Governor Nelson Rockefeller having a really great opportunity, missed it. His speech was written in the style of Adlai Stevenson, a kind of exhibitionistic essay-writing, with long sentences and long words and a wearisome intellectual projection of fancied-up platitudes. Whoever prepared that particular speech need not ever try his hand at speech-writing again. That style went out with Macaulay and need not be resurrected in these days of microphones and baby-sitters.

The American people are accustomed to speeches and styles in oratory constantly change. But one quality about speeches never changes; they must never be dull. Americans like to laugh; they like banter; they prefer a speech to be punctuated by applause at fortunate moments. They prefer a speaker who quickly discovers the terminal point and does not miss it. Herbert Hoover once counted 11 missed terminal points in another speaker.

* * *

Rockefeller's speech had some sound wisdom in it, particularly his emphasis on the need and morality of political participation, but it was overlaid by unnecessary verbiage, supported by rhetorical cliches. While he carries conviction by his personality, his speech wandered.

The audience had eaten too much; the Grand Ballroom was becoming stuffy; the cigars were long and the smoke none too friendly to weary eyes. Rise-Stevens sang three or four songs with an unnecessary microphone to spoil her beauty. Then Cardinal Spellman introduced Senator John Kennedy "from the small State of Massachusetts." Kennedy came on after the seventh inning and there had been no opportunity to stretch. He stole the show.

* * *

Apparently he threw away his manuscript or most of it. At any rate, he looked his audience square in the eye without constantly lowering his head to see if the word he said was exactly the word he read. He bantered and joked and got his ideas across. His surprise paragraph on the candidate who lost practically every state, including his own, was truly startling. Everybody expected him to say Al Smith, Catholic, but it turned out to be Alf Landon, Protestant. At that sally, he woke up the audience, who applauded him 10 times in 9 minutes and the show was on the road again.

* * *

Here was an old campaigner, who understood his audience, realized that it was a tired, weary audience, gave a grand show, said many things that will be remembered and repeated. It reminded one of Harry Truman when he was fighting to win an election which was surely, positively lost —and Harry won.

Oratory is not wisdom nor does one speech make a victory. But what Kennedy did was impressive. He displayed quickness of wit, self assurance in a difficult situation, a sharp mind with keen and good humor. He stopped when the going was still good. It was a smart performance.

Upset Hits Budget

Big Appropriations And Steel Strike To Throw It Out Of Balance

President Eisenhower and his fiscal advisers are examining into two serious budget measures at once. The double exposure to trouble is on the 1960 budget, now in the process of spending, and the 1961 budget now in the process of readiness for presentation to Congress.

* * *

The 1960 budget would be in balance narrowly the Administration estimated when it was submitted to Congress. Many things have occurred since. First, figures by Budget Director Stans show, Congress raised the appropriations a net of $597,000,000 above the amount asked by the President and the amount asked by the President did not constitute penny-pinching.

Then came the unexpected and upsetting long steel strike, which has just about banished any hope of a 1960 balanced budget. Layoff of workers in steel and industries making heavy use of steel and lessened corporate profits make it almost certain that revenue losses will again put the Treasury in the red.

* * *

The 1961 outlook is equally if not more unpromising. As a result the Administration has announced that a hard look is being taken at our foreign aid outlay and a study is being made in an effort to trim American dollar expenditures abroad, including military expenditures.

Even should the cheeriest estimates the Budget Director can conjure up come true, the Eisenhower Administration now realizes that is going into the record books as the spendingest Administration in the nation's history.

How galling this must be to President Eisenhower can be imagined from two episodes of the 1952 Presidential campaign. There was first the famous Morningside Heights Conference between General Eisenhower and Senator Robert A. Taft in New York city on September 12.

When it was finished Senator Taft, speaking for both himself and General Eisenhower, set an immediate party goal of a $70,000,000,000 Budget a year, which by fiscal year 1955 would be reduced to $60,000,000,000. He said they (Eisenhower and Taft) hoped to slash drastically overall expenses. In a typical campaign speech at Columbia, South Carolina on September 3, 1952, General Eisenhower asked:

"Isn't it time we had in Washington an administration which knows how to keep expenditures down; which will put an end to waste; which believes that an unbalanced Federal budget is dangerous to every one of us — and moves to bring that Budget into balance?"

* * *

The record has been startingly different. All Administrations in the 156 years from George Washington through Franklin D. Roosevelt colected taxes totaling $244,100,000,000! Harry S. Truman in seven years and nine months as President collected $342,200,000,000 in taxes.

Tax collectors during President Eisenhoer's eight years will have reached into the pockets of the taxpayers for an estimated total of $562,400,000,000. This would be just $23,900,000,000 — somewhat below 4 months of tax collections at the present rate — less than the total tax take of $586,300,000,000 for all the Presidents who preceded him in the 164 years from Washington through Truman.

Japanese Rearm

Hold That 'Self-Defense' Forces Are Allowed Under Constitution

AIR - BORNE IN PACIFIC — Adult education, as every traveling correspondent knows, begins with the un-learning of misconceptions, such as:

That the missile age is Occidental. Far from being the sole product and concern of the Western half of the world, pilotless aircraft and guided projectiles are much on the mind of the Orient. The Japanese are rearming with "self-defense" forces, holding that this interpretation falls within their Constitution which forbids war-making.

* * *

But Jap officials, now about to exchange their F-86 fighter planes for something more modern, are caught on the fence. Shall they take American advice and invest heavily in new planes, such as the F-100 series or even a French or British model? On the other hand, the Japs want to know why they shouldn't rearm from the skin out — with nothing but missiles. To do this would in the years ahead, give Japan the best air power in the Pacific area. But to do this it would also mean that in the immediate future Japan would continue to be an increasingly prosperous protectorate of American military power.

How do we want it? And how, with Japan feeling the oats of independence, can we get what we want?

That superior equipment decided the 1958 battle of Taiwan Strait in favor of the Chinats or Nationalist Chinese. The word in Washington was that the decisive equipment which turned the battle was the American - made Sidewinder rocket with its heat-seeking guidance system taking the weapons up the tailpipes of the Communist jets. Not so! A careful study by Air Force intelligence reveals that the Sidewinder did its duty but was not the victory factor. Chinat pilots scored a kill - rate of 30 to 3 over the Chinese Communists or Chicoms. But only three or four of the 30 shoot - downs were scored by Sidewinders.

Training did the trick. That and a derring - do spirit in the Chinats, born of their confidence in their American backers. Air Force intelligence says that our equipment was not markedly superior to that which the Russians supplied for the Chicoms, but that the training was. This augurs well for the big hopes we are placing in military assistance programs for Asia. It raises the question of whether the Red Chinese leaders are getting disillusioned about their military partnership with Russia.

That the Korean conflict was an unmitigated loss. It was certainly an American catastrophe in statesmanship and battlefield casualties, but as the Orient closes around a traveler he can sense some other aspects of the tragedy. Out of all the anguish and frustration for our side, there has emerged a not - to - be-doubted, not - to - be - shaken respect for American leadership.

When the fighting reached its climax in Korea and approached the point where the Communists had clearly had enough, the champion of the field was the brilliant American Eighth Army. It was put together by Matt Ridgway and later led by Jim Van Fleet. In the opinion of military writers and experts, this Army was certainly the finest fighting force in action, and may have been the best that our country ever put in the field. Despite the stalling at Panmunjom and the inglorious terms of cease - fire, the Korean war ended in many military minds on the glowing membory of American ability to recover from defeat and to slug it out under the worst possible conditions with the best that Russia and China could throw into the fray. There can't be much doubt in Oriental minds that the American soldier, however he misbehaves back home, is a very tough hombre in battle, and that his field leaders — MacArthur. Ridgway, Walker, Dean, Van Fleet — are wonderful men.

* * *

That the aims of Red China and Red Russia are identical. This is the same sort of fallacy-by-overstatement which caused many people to believe that Hitler was out to conquer "the world." Hitler's aim, of course, was the consolidation of Europe, much as we are trying to accomplish today. He had no intent and no capacity to attempt global conquest.

Neither have the Communist Chinese. Their threat of expansion is confined to Asia. It may take them southward where they are now pushing, eastward toward the American - held periphery, westward against the Russian border. In any event, it is a mistake which leads to miscalculations and misunderstandings to treat the two Communist giants alike. If they should ever fall out, which is not now indicated in any way, the split would probably be over a question of timetable and priority. This gives us a hope, not of a lucky war between China and Russia, but of a chance to fight them separately, if we must, rather than in unison.

Cost Of Living Up

Gentle 'Wave' Likely To Continue Move To Higher Levels

Between now and the end of the year, the cost of living in our nation is likely to creep upward, to continue moving in a gentle "wave" toward the highest levels ever recorded.

By December 1959 the government's consumer price index — the yardstick by which we measure our cost of living — probably will be around 1½ per cent higher than it was in December 1958.

Through the first year of the new decade of the '60s the cost of living is slated to creep upward still more.

The key assumption is that there will be no event in our country or in the world to blow the lid off prices in 1960. On this assumption, the probability is that the consumer price index will be up another 1¼ to 1½ per cent in 1960 to even loftier peaks.

Over the two-year period, therefore, the odds at this date are that the level of prices for goods and services we need and want to live will be up 3 per cent. What it cost you $10 to buy in the market-place in early 1959 will cost you about $10.30 to buy in early 1961.

* * *

And this assumes that the forces now operating to hold down prices keep operating to prevent another upspiral.

"Maybe the rise over the 24-month period will be a little more or a little less," said one of the nation's top experts on price trends when I interviewed him at length on the outlook this week. "But on the basis that 'steel' doesn't start another spiral, there is no farm disaster and no world upheaval, our considered judgment is for a price rise of this degree through 1960"

The flatness of the forecasts for a rise in the 1½ percent range each year may startle you. So here's the background.

Just the relentless climb in the cost of services we are using on an ever-expanding scale is pushing the price index constantly upward. Even during the sharp slump of 1957-58 there was no interruption in the rise in the cost of medical care, repairs, personal services, household operation, etc., et.. There is still no sign of any reversal.

Just the inexorable increase in sales taxes imposed by cities, states, the Federal Government is constantly nibbling at our pocketbooks. These higher taxes show up in price tags on meals, ga., cigarets, hundreds of items we must have or want. There is only one direction for these taxes: UP.

Just the steady advance in the cost of public transportation — rail, subway, bus fares — is constantly adding to living costs These expenses aren't going down; we're lucky when they stay steady.

Right now, seasonal factors and the steel strike are making a price rise to the year-end a virtual certainty. This is a time of year when we almost always pay "regular" prices for clothing, cars, appliances, furnishings, the like. The markdowns come later. And the shortages artificially created by the steel strike have eliminated the chance for price markdowns on many things for months.

The great offset to a big upswing in living costs has been and is the trend of food. As Labor Statistics Commissioner Ewan Clague put it a few days ago, "There is a good prospect that a reduction in the prices food market basket for the average family will offset to some extent increases in other retail prices."

Note, though, that Clague uses the words "offset to some extent increases in other retain prices" That's an honest appraisal.

At this point ask yourself a vital question that experts the nation over are asking:

Is what we're now having REASONABLE price stability?

Although you'll reach your own conclusion, I submit that compared with the price hikes that hit us in the early postwar years, it certainly is "reasonable". It definitely isn't "galloping" inflation.

And no matter what Government officials say publicly, I submit that the Administration would be delighted if the price increase stays within these limits in the next 15 months.

What It Will Do

Labor Measure

By ROGER GREENE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's new labor reform law swings into high gear this week with the federal government towering like a giant watching over the labor - management field.

The controversial statute, which may have widespread repercussions in the 1960 elections, affects literally millions of workers and thousands of employers.

Designed to blast hoodlums, crooks and racketeers out of corruption - ridden labor unions — and simultaneously curb anti-union activities by some employers — the new law in effect sounds this warning: "Uncle Sam is watching you."

Like the 1932 Lindbergh law which threw the power of the federal government into the fight against kidnaping, the new law mobilizes the same formidable weapons into a nationwide clean-up drive on the labor-management front.

Experts say the injection of federal law enforcement authority into the situation is perhaps the most important phase of the labor - reform legislation.

Much of the past trouble, they say, has arisen from a breakdown in local law enforcement.

Under the new law, the goons, extortionists and crooked union officials will figuratively have FBI agents breathing down their necks.

For the first time, the statute makes it a federal crime to embezzle union funds.

For the first time it sets up severe federal criminal penalties —ranging up to a maximum $10,000 fine and 20 years in prison— for extortion, violence, terrorism and other offenses which have blackened the labor-management picture in the last decade.

Top labor leaders have assailed the law as "union busting" legislation which they say will cripple labor's legitimate functions—they particularly dislike the new crubs on picketing—and open the door to further legislative assaults on the trade union movement's hard-won gains.

The first major challenge to the new law—probably the first of many—was raised by Harry Bridges, left-wing San Francisco labor leader, who rejected Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell's request for a report on Communists and ex-convicts in Bridges' International Longshoremen's Union.

The law bars convicted felons and Communists from holding union office within five years after they left prison or quit the Red party.

Bridges said the law violates the First freedom of speech and Fifth protection against self-incrimination amendments to the U. S. Constitution.

Business leaders, while grumbling over some aspects of the new law, say its union-curbing restrictions are long overdue.

Amid the hubbub, Secretary Mitchell says: "No honest trade union or employer has cause to fear this legislation. It will not be used to bust unions or harass management. It will be used only to help labor and management clean their ranks of corrupt elements."

Threats of retaliation at the polls in the nationwide 1960 elections have already been fired by some top - ranking union chieftains.

AFL-CIO Vice President James B. Carey, head of the International Union of Electrical Workers. has called publicly for ballot-box revenge against congressmen who supported the so-called tough Landrum-Griffin bill which formed the backbone of the new law.

The bill was jointly sponsored by Rep. Phil M. Landrum D-Ga. and Rep. Robert M. Griffin R-Mich. Sen. John F. Kennedy D-Mass., currently a front runner for the Democratic presidential nomination, co-sponsored a somewhat milder Senate version.

Technically known as the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959, the law is so complex that it has already been dubbed the "lawyers' refueling act."

Unquestionably it will take years of court tests to determine exactly what the law means. And it will require the services of umpteen thousand lawyers to advise both labor unions and management on how to keep from running afoul of the new statute.

One thing is certain. The new statute will touch off one of the greatest blizzards of paperwork in history. The Labor Department estimates that detailed annual reports will be required from 55,000 labor organizations, 500,000 union officials, and more than 100,000 employers or corporation officials.

Labor unions are required to submit financial statements to the labor department covering all expenditures, receipts, salaries and any conflict - of- interest transactions by union officers and employes.

On the other side of the fence, the law requires employers to report any money paid to union officials and to their own employes, aside from wages.

This is designed to expose so-called "sweetheart" contracts involving a company bribe to union officials to accept substandard working conditions. It is further aimed at discouraging attemps by employers to set up "no union" committees, hire labor spies, or otherwise influence workers against exercising the right of collective bargaining.

The new law is specifically framed to wipe out the much-criticized "no man's land" which left small businessmen and individual union members without any remedy in cases which were deemed too small for the National Labor Relations Board to handle.

Effective next Friday, Nov. 13—60 days after President Eisenhower signed the new law on Sept. 14 — are some of the act's most highly controversial features. These include tight curbs on secondary boycotts, "hot cargo" agreements, and recognition and organizational picketing.

Secondary boycotts, long a thorn in the side of industry, have the effect of dragging an employer who has no direct quarrel with a union into the union's dispute with another company.

The law sets an outright ban against "hot cargo" pacts in which a trucker, for example refuses to handle cargo from another trucker if the union labels it "hot" or forbidden cargo.

The statute further outlaws extortion or blackmail picketing where a union agent, using the picket line as a weapon, attempts to shakedown an employer for personal gain.

It also prohibits an outside union to picket in an attempt to organize workers — 1. where another union has already been lawfully recognized, 2. where the outside union has lost a collective-bargaining election in the last 12 months, and 3. where picketing has been conducted for "a reasonable period" not exceeding 30 days and no election has been asked.

However, the law says a union may picket longer than 30 days without an election if the picketing doesn't halt deliveries to the picketed company, or if the company has entered into a collusive "sweetheart" contract with another union.

The over-all goal is to substitute peaceful persuasion for violence, threats and coercion on both sides.

Facts On Storm That Rocked Bahamas

THE LIFE AND DEATH OF SIR HARRY OAKES. By Geoffrey Bocca. Doubleday. $3.95.

On July 8, 1943, there broke in Nassau, the Bahamas, a murder story so sensational that it filled countless first-page columns usually reserved in those days for the exploits of Americans fighting for their country all around the world.

In his palatial home, Westbourne, Sir Harry was killed by some bludgeon or projectile that left holes in his skull; his body was rolled on his bed; it was soaked in gasoline and set afire. Weather balked the flame, and there remained enough evidence, or so it seemed, to indict the victim's son-in-law. Alfred de Marigny, for the crime. One of the world's richest gold mines, sedate Bowdoin, Syracuse and Bennington, the Duke and Duchess of Widsor, slapstick gumshoe cops, and assorted characters innocently involved or uncrupulously implicated formed a strikingly varied background.

Sir Harry was a Maine boy who set out, he said, to be a millionaire. Graduate of Bowdoin, medical student at Syracuse, he left the effete East at the lure of the Klondike. For 14 years he prospected in this country, Australia and Canada where at last he garnered fabulous wealth from the Lake Shore Mine. When the United States threatened to tax him, he gave up citizenship and moved to Canada; the same threat drove him to Nassau, which Harold Christie was developing as a resort. Whatever his character as a boy, Bocca calls the hardened man "surly, foul - mouthed, suspicious" and charges him with "lack of humility, consideration, understanding," and "absence of grace and insulting manners."

When the Windsors went to Nassau, they lived in Oakes' Westbourne while the government house was being readied. Oakes and the Duke were golfing partners; Marigny, the unwelcomed husband of daughter Nancy, had little respect for either man; when the murder was discovered by Christie, the Duke slapped on censorship — though only after the Associated Press got news of the story to the outer world and took what Bocca brands as the "disastrous" step of calling in two detectives from Miami, Melchen and Barber. By this account, they fouled up fingerprints, ignored evidence that did not seem to incriminate the unpopular Marigny, and did their best to get him a death sentence. The judge finally reprimanded them severely, rebuked the prosecutor for some unethical procedure, and scored local police for inaccurate testimony. Marigny was freed, but ordered out of the Bahamas.

Bocca says Sir Harry "asked to be killed." He supposes the killer is still alive, and is disturbed at the failure of Nassau authorities to press for a solution, indeed, at their antagonism to efforts to find the murderer—two attempts were made later on Marigny's life, and violent deaths have been linked to the case.

The suspenseful story gets you all stirred up. These names and some of these faces are familiar; you take sides, you hiss the Keystone cops, you clap for the loyal wife, you tremble at the lynch mob, you help the crowd lift the acquitted Marigny triumphantly to its shoulders.

Lindbergh The Hero; How He Was Made And Unmade

THE HERO: Charles A. Lindbergh and the American Dream. By Kenneth S. Davis. Doubleday.

It was still the days when newspapers published extras, and still the time of the crystal radio sets — and by one means or the other, millions of ecstatically thankful Americans learned that "Lucky" Lindbergh landed the Spirit of St. Louis at Le Bourget airport outside Paris late Saturday evening, May 21, 1927.

Some men had already flown the Atlantic; others died trying to; other planes were being readied at the very moment Lindbergh took off; but he was the first to fly nonstop New York to Paris and he did it alone — it was "We," he said, including the plane itself — and won the $25,000 Orteig prize. But he won also a fabulous, an incredible, an unimaginable reputation as a flier. If in this century the American people have idolized, apotheosized, adulated and salaamed to any single figure, it was Lindy.

Here for the first time, by the experienced biographer of the much less baffling personalities of both Eisenhower and Stevenson, his story is told in full. He was born in Detroit, Feb. 4, 1902, and brought up in Little Falls, Minn., where his father was Congressman. Dour was the word for the whole family. Graduated from high school in 1918, tall and lanky, he entered the University of Wisconsin; his interests were his motorcycle, and any and all machinery, and he experienced, says Davis, " a growing compulsion toward danger." He learned the hard way to fly, joined the Air Force, barnstormed and stunted, parachuted several times to save his life, flew the mail, and became a phenomenally skilled airman. He had a prodigious appetite; he was an insufferable practical joker; he had nothing to do with girls. He was, that is, 100 per cent pure flier.

Up in the air over Illinois one dark night it occurred to him to fly on and on, to Chicago, New York, London, Paris — and the coveted prize. St. Louis money backed him, he supervised the construction of his own single-motor craft at the Ryan airlines, in San Diego. He flew to St. Louis, then to Long Island, and took off, just missing wires and treetops, from Roosevelt Field.

Within a week after his achievement, offers totaling over five million dollars had been made to him, and were all rejected. He came home in a battleship, was a guest of President Coolidge, met Dwight Morrow and Anne whom he would marry.

But already there had developed the germ of reaction, criticism and opposition. Newsmen with whom he would not cooperate got their stories in spite of him. He followed not the radical social path of his father in America and an earlier forebear in Sweden, but the conservative economics of his father-in-law, helping to make avaition big business, and incidentally collecting a $250,000 check for his services to TAT airline.

After the kidnaping of his son, he withdrew with his family to England. He said some good words for Hitler's air force, some critical ones of the Russians', he accepted the Service Cross of the German Eagle from Goering, and the press reported he might settle in Berlin in apartments made available by the "recent abandonment of many Jewish homes." He opposed Roosevelt and every move toward war, resigned his Air Force commission, was branded pro - Nazi and anti-Semitic — Willkie rated his Des Moines speech in September, 1941 "the most un-American talk made in my time by any person of national reputation." Davis writes: "That was the end of the hero."

He served valiantly after Pearl Harbor, both on the home front and in enemy skies.

Davis sees here some "latent anti - intellectualism," and a dangerous drive to power, a man in effect touched by the amorality of the machinery he mastered. The admirably detailed documentation may not spare this book from the ill temper of dissenters, but it should. This is an unflinching scrutiny of the intricate composition of a hero, how he's made and unmade, and who's to praise and who's to blame.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
OUACHITA PARISH LIBRARIAN

"My Friends, the Miss Boyds" is the title of the new book by Jane Duncan. It is an engaging account of life in a small corner of Rossshire, in the highlands of Scotland. It presents a delightful picture of family life and is one which can be recommended to all readers. "French Leave" by P. G. Wodehouse is another of his delightful accounts of life in high society. If you like Wodehouse, and a great many do, you will certainly want to read "French Leave." "Flight from Ashiya" is the title of a new novel by Elliott Arnold. It is a story of love and heroism, written out of the author's intimate knowledge of the Air Rescue Service of the U. S. Air Force. It makes exciting reading and will appeal especially to men. "The Strong Men" by John Brick is another of his novels dealing with the historical background of our country. This one is concerned with the men who survived the horrors of Valley Forge. This book enlivens the details of a long ago war and makes it live again. "Moura" is a story with an Irish setting written by Virginia Coffman. It is a story which chills the spine, but many people like this type of reading.

"Ada Dallas" by Wirt Williams is certain to be popular, for it is concerned with Louisiana politics. Many of the figures are recognizable and it is certainly a timely book. "Log Jam" by Leslie Turner White has for it's background the logging industry of the west. It is an exciting story which will appeal especially to men and boys. Readers of Paul Gallico will welcome a new book from his pen. It's title is "Too Many Ghosts" and it is a book which you will not want to put down. A new mystery story is "Hit and Run" by Roger Creasey. It is very well done.

Several new novels for adults are in this week's additions. "Drag Strip" by William Campbell Gault has for it's background the sport of drag racing. "Three Is A Family" by Edna Pettigrew is a beguiling novel about a happy Southern family. "Voyagers West" by Margaret Alison Johansen is a good frontier story and "Copy Girl" by Cecil Jane Richmond is an excellent career book.

Bennett Cerf has many admirers who will welcome his new collection of stories, called "The Laugh's On Me." Lawrence Durrell has written a very humorous account of life in the English diplomatic service which he calls "Stiff Upper Lip." He is the author of a number of other books which are very popular and his public will avidly read this one. An interesting collection of short stories is "Best Short Stories from the Paris Review" by William Styron. This is a literary event and should be well-received. An interesting account of life in far away places is "The Frisbies of the South Seas" written by Johnny Frisbie, the daughter of Robert Dean Frisbie. An interesting contribution to the modern history collection is "The Communist Subversion of Czechoslovakia" written by Josef Korbel. It has a lesson for all of us and is worth our reading time.

Several interesting new biographies are among this week's additions. "Family Gathering" is the title of the autobiography of Kathleen Norris and will be avidly read by all her fans. One of the unexplained mysteries of modern times is the death of Sir Harry Oakes. Geoffrey Bocca has written an account of this amazing man, which he calls "The Life and Death of Sir Harry Oakes." It makes very interesting reading. An interesting account of the life of one of the gunmen of the old West is "Fast-Draw Tilghman" written by Dale White. It should have a ready market among the many readers of this type of story.

Truth About Travel Is One You'll Enjoy

The Truth About Travel By Al Murdock (Vantage, $3.95.)

The truth about travel, according to the author, is that there's no place like home . . . but it's tremendous fun to decide that for yourself by exploring every possible nook and cranny of the planet Earth.

The author and his wife have been everywhere. They have helped push a river boat up the Yukon; they have crossed the Atlantic on a ship still wobbling from the empact with an iceberg; they have encountered what seemed to be the world's largest half - starved cat, which slithered over their Moscow hotel room windowsill in search of food.

In this book is zany, irreverent fun. It's down-to-earth talk from a realistic, affectionate cynic.

Harsh, Critical Look At Small Town In U.S.A.

A MIDWEST STORY. By Augusta Walker. Dial. $4.95.

With the head of the family dead, four women and a boy are left to face life in the mid-American town called Mapleville: Mrs. Curtis the mother, her three daughters Enid, Sue and Penny, and the son Mark.

There's a little money—that's no problem; there is a sound family tradition; there are conventions; there even are men. Penny is the first to pick a husband, Don Crecy. Sue meets Ivan. Enid, deciding that men aren't going for her, goes for them and makes the acquaintance of Otto in a bar. Mark returns to Paris.

The steps they all take, the expectable and correct ones to be sure, lead nevertheless to unforeseen results. A woman with a husband can be wretched, or can make him wretched; a woman can be just as wretched if out of a simple - minded propriety she can behave deplorably and be happy. It takes Mark and his Erica together to point out that as soon as people become "sage, they don't understand any more what life is about." He advocates a goal, a purpose and total immersion in life.

This woman author concentrates here on woman's problems and, generously enough, lets a man solve them. I liked her first novel, "Around a Rusty God," and this, her third, though it runs perhaps longer than necessary, shows a decided progress in scope and craft. It does not flatter the American small town, it disapproves of the desire for security. On the positive side, it hails the nonconformist and rebel; it is an invitation to be our own free selves.

Your Sins And Mine Excellent, Unusual Book

YOUR SINS AND MINE By Taylor Caldwell (Caxton, $3). Here, in a story dramatically real, you will read of the end of the world as we know it and of the beginning of a new world none of us will ever live to see. Written by the world's most widely read woman novelist, you will learn of the earth's rebellion against the follies and the greed of man, of the shriveling up of the land and every living thing, While the sun shone cloudless in the sky, the rivers dropped, the seas shrank and the creeks and brooks dried up, and the mountains seared and the valleys yellowed all over the world.

Violators, exploiters of the faithful, gentle land, the land decided that all mankind must die, all innocent living things. The land hated us. Our wars and our hatred had finally sickened the wise earth and we stood indicted as the irreconcilable enemy of all life.

In this novel there is a strongly religious theme. It is, indeeed, an allegory depicting the world as it is, nearly in ruins because of the wars in which we have been engaged, and now restored to vigor and beauty through the power of prayer and the sincere repentance of mankind. While people stood in the fields among the rank, tearing weeds which had engulfed the earth, they watched in silence as a drift of vapor moved over them, thickened, spread, and consumed the weeds, making way for a misty green which soon began to cover the brown earth.

On Going To College

Are You Smart?

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Purely in the interests of science—and because the boss told me to—I took a test to see whether I'm smart enough to go to college.

It was a gruesome experience.

About 100,000 high school seniors will take the same test next Saturday. How they fare will play a part in determining whether they can get into the college of their choice next fall.

Frankly, I don't see how anybody gets into college these days. The test was that tough.

The test I took was put togther by Science Research Associates of Chicago for the American College Testing program. The ACT program is new this year, but like the long-established college Entrance Examination Board, its tests will help colleges determine in advance which students are best quaified for admission.

The test took three hours—180 of the longest minutes I've ever spent—and covered English, Social science, natural science and mathematics. It was given under maximum security conditions (cheating was impossible) by a gentleman named Paul Kosaik. Kosaik is a delightful fellow, but he's nobody's friend when he's giving a test.

The questions are top secret, at least until the high school students take the test next Saturday. I swore not to disclose the questions, and Science Research Associates promised not to reveal my score.

But I was given some samples for your amusement and edification. All the questions are multiple choice, which means if you don't know the answer you can take a wild guess.

For instance, in the mathematics section:

1. How many digits are there to the left of the decimal place in the square root of 692038.42753? (A) 3; (B) 4; (C) 5; (D) 6; (E) 8.

2. When added to both the numerator and denominator of 13-20, what number makes the resulting ratio equal to ¾? (A) 4; (B) 5; (C) 7; (D) 8; (E) 10.

3. Two oil wells pump oil continuously. The first produces 4,000 barrels of oil a day, which is 33 1-3 per cent more than the second. What is the total daily production for oth wells? (A) 5,333 1-3; (B) 6,666 2-3; (C) 7,000; (D) 8,333 1-3; (E) 9,000.

4. If a car travels "A" miles in "B" seconds, how long will it take to travel "C" miles? (A) CB over A; (B) C over A; (C) AB over C; (D) C over B; (E) C over AB.

We'll get to the answers to these questions a little later on.

One of the actual test questions —which I'm allowed to use here because I can't even remember it properly—had to do with finding the area of a right triangle on which two of the sides measured five feet.

A section of the English test involved reading a passage in which parts are placed within parentheses and numered. The test is to pick the suggested answer that makes the numbered portion grammatically correct.

A sample:

"I was born an American: I will live an American; I shall die an American: and I intend to perform the duties (1. incumbent) upon me in that character to the end of my career. I mean to do this with absolute disregard of personal consequences. What are the personal consequences? What is the individual (2. man with all the good or evil that may betide him in) comparison with the good or evil which may befall a great country, and in the midst of great transactions which concern that (3. countries') fate?"

1. (A) no change; (B) recument) (C) inherent) (D) implict

2. (A) no change; (B) man, with all the good or evil that betide him, in; (C) man, with his good and evil, in; (D) man with his good and evil in

3. (A) no change; (B) countrie's) (C) country's; (D) countrys'

To test yourself in the social studies, read the following passage and answer the question about it.

"Your oldest heirlooms are the words you see in everyday conversation for familiar things—sun, moon, water, stars, father, mother. These have been handed down from a tiny, nameless, and forgotten tribe which 5,000 or 6,000 years ago, was the ancestor of our speech today.

"Heirloom words make us the speech cousins of more than a billion people of all races living today in Europe, India, South Africa, and the Pacific Isles, for they use almost the same words spoken and writtten in the Americas,"

On the basis of the above two paragraphs, complete this sentence:

Scholars believe the history of languages indicates that

A All words developed as modifications of Indian words.

B Persian and Swedish have a common origin.

C Sanskrit is the basis of all modern tongues.

D Languages in different parts of the world developed independently.

In the actual test, the passages are much longer and there are 4 or 5 questions at the end. I don't recall a single one that I was sure I had answered correctly.

Students taking the ACT test next Saturday will gather at 80 test centers in 14 states. Those who didn't register in time will be given another chance next Feb. 7, with a different form covering the same fields.

Oh, yes, the answers to those questions above. Mathematics: A, D, C, A. English: A, B, C. Social studies: B.

Story Of Week

By LEON BURNETT

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A clean-cut young man took the counsel of his conscience this week and dredged up from his well-trained memory some very unpleasant facts about himself.

"I have deceived my friends," he said, "and I have millions of them."

By teletype and the airwaves, the news went out to his friends: Charles Van Doren, former invincible man of the isolation booth, won TV fame and a pile of money by cribbing.

Since 1957, he had been carrying this secret guilt. Now he poured out all the details to a House investigating subcommittee.

In his appearances on the old "21" television quiz show, he said, Producer Albert Freedman had coached him on the answers and taught him to act as though he were having to wrestle information from his memory.

Not only that, Van Doren said, Freedman persuaded him to go though with this deception in the first place — convincing him that success on the show would strengthen the cause of education.

The subcommittee heard similar testimony from other witnesses earlier in the fall, and is continuing its investigation. But Van Doren's appearance provided the real drama. For he was the hero of heroes in quizland.

Suspense had built up, too. Up to this climactic moment, Van Doren had insisted to everyone who asked that he had no knowledge of "21" being fixed.

When his moment came on Monday, the soft-spoken scholar opened with a prepared statement disclosing how his first quiz victory had been planned, how he was equipped behind the scenes to vanquish subsequent challengers — and finally how his defeat was mapped out.

He showed little emotion as he was sworn in, took a drink of water and delivered his recital. Later, when subcommittee members were questioning him, the tears came.

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

The state gospel singing convention in West Monroe kicked off a fortnight in the fall musical season which is otherwise loaded with opera and string quartet music.

Monday, the Goldovsky Opera Theatre will present "Rigoletto," at Tech's Howard Auditorium on the La. Tech series. Two performances are scheduled at 2:15 and 8:15 respectively.

Wednesday, the Julliard String quartet will play a recital at Brown Hall on the Northeast campus as the third feature of the college's concert series. The program will get underway at 8:15 p.m.

Down the levee in the Crescent City, the New Orleans Opera House association will give two performances of Puccini's "La Boheme" on Thursday and Saturday of this week.

SAME BREATH

This moves the culture season statewide along at a breathtaking pace which brings to mind the above reference to gospel and string quartets in the same breath.

The remark is not too out of place since the two radically different types of foursomes have taken turns — 200 years apart — at being close to their audiences.

The string quartet of 1760 played close to the listeners and reflected their tastes and requests before moving into the ivory tower a century later. The appeal was emotional as well as intellectual and the latter feeling finally held sway.

Gospel singing — especially in the audience participation programs as last week's state convention in the West Monroe High School auditorium—features professional quartets which also reflect the tastes and requests of a following which has mushroomed in size for the past 25-30 years. The appeal is at once emotional mixed with a strong feeling of belonging since the audience, divided into sopranos, altos, tenors and basses, often sings the same gospel hymns which the pros record or sing before the group.

Videt Polk, master of ceremonies at the convention here, had a pleasant, "let's sing it, folks" manner which brought fine cooperation from the local singers and leaders. About every fourth number, he turned the spotlight on visiting professional quartets for specialties and encores.

Most energetic group of the quartets was the Lone Star group from Texas. Others heard were the Mid-South Gospel Singers and the Blackwood Brothers Stamps quartet.

While these combos are not masters of traditional art of choral singing, they score high in places where more serious music seems to have forgotten it ever went. Gospel music seeks a level of understanding of its public and heads into it with a gusto. It also seeks a strong measure of religious blessing which too many of the arts of a higher brow forget they will perish without.

In meeting the listeners halfway for more than a generation, the gospel song is important historicall; in that each one shows influences of styles which have been in and out of vogue for that many years.

The rhythm of the camp meeting song and the spiritual, the spirit of the old-fashioned revival, the barber shop quartet, the free wheeling pitch of the crooner, the sentiment of the popular ballad with a few touches of ragtime and jazz tossed in — all elements are rolled into the gospel song.

And while its loose standards may keep it out of the "art music" category, its keep it within the realm of well - behaved recreation. With so many other ill-directed forms of music, dancing and parked-car recreation loose in the land, it is an encouraging sign of the times to see gospel music audiences bursting out the backs of big auditoriums all over the South and Mid-West.

The hospital is ideally located on spacious grounds with ample parking space.

Maria Callas Scores Hit

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Maria Callas, scored a hit here Friday night with her role in "Lucia di Lammermoor," and set a new record for box office receipts for opera in Dallas.

The capacity audience of 4,100 paid $35,000 to see the first-night performance with top seats going at $15. The previous high was $29,747 grossed by Metropolitan Opera's 1958 "Rigoletto."

Miss Callas' third act "mad scene" was termed by John Rosenfield of the Dallas Morning News as "finer than New York ever heard in her Metropolitan Opera Days."

While both Rosenfield and Eugene Lewis of the Dallas Times Herald noted she smeared her high notes, they praised her overall performance.

"Callas on the stage is always fascinating. Everything she does is touched with intensity and conviction."

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS

Democrats Launch Drive On Quotas

WASHINGTON (AP) — A financially hard - pressed Democratic National Committee began putting the heat on state party organizations Saturday that are behind in their campaign contribution quotas.

National Chairman Paul M. Butler called the roll on the slow payers, including 30 states and territories he said have not paid a cent toward their 1959 quotas. He said the delinquents will be penalized in seating and housing at the 1960 national convention in Los Angeles if they do not pay up.

In a memorandum to party leaders in every state, Butler said state delegations to the convention will be seated and assigned hotel accommodations on the basis of their states' record of financial support of the national committee during 1957, 1958, 1959 and up to April 1, 1960.

The threat of penalties was expected to be received with something less than enthusiasm in some states, particularly the South where Butler has been under attack for his civil rights views.

Georgia's Democratic state chairman, John Sammons Bell, said only last Thursday that his state's quota of $27,000 for 1959, on which nothing has been paid, would be paid in full within one month after Butler's resignation as chairman.

Butler's memorandum, plus listings of the state rankings, went to members of the national committee, state chairmen and vice chairmen. He also sent a separate memorandum to these leaders and to Democratic governors, senators and representatives.

Tabulations issued by Butler showed the 54 states and territories had contributed only $1,987,282 toward their combined quotas of $3,257,000 for 1957 and 1958 and the first 10 months of 1959.

Ony four of the 54—Maryland (167.4 per cent), the District of Columbia (119.3), South Dakota (118.4) and Nebraska (104.2) have paid their quotas in full for the 34-month period.

Ranked fifth was Idaho (99.9), followed by New Jersey (98.3), California (97.6), Pennsylvania (94.1), Massachusetts (93.6).

In 30th place was New York (49.6). Illinois was 46th (36.6) and Ohio 47th (32.7). South Carolina was in last place (9.9).

As for 1959 quotas alone, a separate table showed only three paid in full. Maryland, Nebraska and the District of Columbia exceeded their quotas.

Thirty states, including Illinois, Missouri, New York, Ohio and eight Southern states, have paid nothing.

Betty Chisum Sweetheart Of FFA Chapter

JONESVILLE (Special) — At the regular meeting of the Sicily Island Chapter of FFA York Sheppard was guest speaker. Sheppard gave an inspiring talk on the value of vocational agriculture in high school in later life.

He emphasized that many jobs today other than farming need boys with farm background. In addition, he said that youth should keep their bodies physically as well as spiritually fit.

Another highlight of the meeting was the election of a Chapter Sweetheart. Miss Betty Chisum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Chisum, was elected as the Sicily Island Chapter Sweetheart. Betty will represent the Sicily Island Chapter at the next annual meeting of the Louisiana Association of FFA.

Billy Barron who recently returned from the National Convention, in Kansas City gave a report on the trip.

The meeting was then adjourned with refreshments served to the members and guest speaker.

Fine Distinction Made In Law

SEATTLE (AP)—Making a fine distinction in a point of law, U.S. Atty. Charles P. Moriarty declined to prosecute a man who had entered a bank with a holdup note on his person, then asked a guard to arrest him.

It started when a man later identified as John W. Mitchell, 57, an unemployed fry cook, walked into a downtown bank Friday with a paper bag in one hand.

The man stood nervously inside the bank door for a few minutes, then walked up to bank guard Clarence Lincoln and asked to be arrested.

"I was going to rob the bank but I've changed my mind," the man told Lincoln.

Lincoln whisked the man to a corner of the bank and looked into the paper bag. It contained only a note, which said "This is a holdup. Put the money in this bag."

Moriarty said Friday night he would not prosecute.

He explained: "The only statute that was possibly involved makes it a crime to enter a bank with intent to rob it. The man obviously had prepared the note beforehand, so he had the intent — at the time he wrote the note.

"But at some point along the line he reached what we call 'the place of repentance,' when he changed his mind.

"There was no damage done. The people win and justice was done."

Jury Declares Negro Guilty Of Murder

CROWLEY, La. (UPI) — A 33-year-old Negro showed no emotion early this morning when he heard an all-white jury declare him guilty of the first degree murder of a policeman, a verdict that carries a mandatory death sentence.

Court-appointed attorneys for Edward Davis said they would appeal. Davis was charged with the shotgun slaying of 53-year-old Ezra Foreman.

The jury delivered its verdict at 1:20 a.m. today after deliberating more than two hours.

Police said Davis shot Foreman with a 20-gauge shotgun while Foreman was answering a routine peace disturbance call. Davis pleaded not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity.

A key point in the prosecution's case was admission of written and a tape-recorded confessions into evidence over defense objections.

The defense held the killing was in self defense. Davis said he not know he was shooting at an officer. He claimed he was frightened and saw lights flashing around his home.

Davis' insanity plea suffered by a lunacy commission report that it found him sane.

NEWSPAPERMAN — Jack Webb stars as a newspaperman in the excitement hit "-30-" coming November 19th to the Paramount Theatre.

Joe Marsala Transferred To N. Orleans

Joe Marsala, assistant manager of the Paramount Theatre, was transferred recently to the Saenger Theatre in New Orleans, it was announced by Kermit Carr, President of Paramount Gulf Theatres, Inc.

Marsala has been employed the past year as assistant manager of the Parmount where he trained under the local manager Ted Hatfield. He is a graduate of St. Mathews High School and attended Northeast State College. He has been active in the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce and local church groups. Marsala recently assisted in planning activities for Monroe's first world premiere of the motion picture, "Hound Dog Man".

Marsala is married to the former Miss Bea Bruscato of Monroe. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Marsala of Monroe.

UNDER CRITICAL EYE

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Preston has a special reason for keeping his lead portrayal in "The Music Man" full of zest.

Having been in the part two years, Preston finds himself "in the funny position of competing with myself."

He explains: "Some people are seeing the show for the fourth or fifth time, and they compare my performances on different occasions. And I can't fall down, because audience response is always so enthusiastic."

LITTLE THEATRE

Things are buzzing around the Selman Field Playhouse, as rehearsals for our next play, "The Caine Mutiny Court-Martial" get underway. This Pulitzer Prize novel, heralded by critics a "Best sea story" and "Best World War II novel" has been adapted by the author, Herman Wouk, in his version which is superior to the novel "in the artfulness of its craftsmanship" — New York Times. It is "a shrewd and shattering condensation of the heart of the novel, presenting one of the most naked revelations of character to have stunned Broadway in years."—New York Herald Tribune. "Enormously exciting it is the modern stage at its best," said the World Telegram and Sun; "Magnificent theatre" echoed the Mirror and Journal American."

This play is built around the court-martial proceedings against a young naval lieutenant, who relieves his captain of command during a crisis on the grounds that the captain was psychopathic and would surely destroy the ship. As the witnesses and experts, some serious, some unwittingly comic, cross the scene of the trial, a devastating picture of the captain is revealed. It bears repeating: "The modern stage at its best!"

Dell Moore is serving as stage manager for the current production and Jo Ann Barber is assistant to the director.

Ivan is still in need of uniforms, uniforms, uniforms. He needs every kind — captains through lieutenants junior grade, and also ensign's uniforms. If you have one or know where any are available, please call Ivan.

The play sounds so exciting I can hardly wait for opening night! But until then, wouldn't you like to hear of some of the goings on in and among the Little Theaterites?

Mrs. Frances McHenry is in New York at this writing, and we know she was excited about her first jet flight. She will see some plays and return to Monroe by way of Louisville, where she will stop over for a visit with her daughter.

Lallage Feazel, Katherine Sloan and Frances Ritter spent the weekend in Dallas, where they enjoyed Cole Porter's "Leave It To Me" at the Margo Jones Theatre on Saturday night. The highlight of the trip, however, was to hear Maria Callas singing "Lucia di Lammermoor" on Sunday afternoon. They report that she is as wonderful as you have heard.

Judy and Bob Evans recently returned from New York where they saw "J. B." and also "The Marriage Go Round." They loved "The Marriage Go Round" in which Charles Boyer and Claudette Colbert are the stars.

Attending "Sabrina Fair" in El Dorado on Friday night, produced by the El Dorado Little Theatre were: Bob and Judy Evans, Mary Gill, Myrtle Carter, Julius Cahn, George and Jo Brian, Lallage Feazel, and Ruth Shipman. Our theatre will produce this play as our next, so everyone is interested in seeing other productions.

Our thanks and appreciation go out this week to a very special Little Theatre member, Grandpa Nobes. He has always been a staunch supporter of Little Theatre, and headed the list this year in selling memberships. Congratulations!

Plans for our new Strauss Playhouse have been approved and bids will be opened within a few weeks. Ground will be broken for the new theatre and construction will begin some time around the first of December. Isn't it exciting!

HUDSON, DAY

'Pillow Talk' Is Rollicking Comedy

The nation's two No. 1 boxoffice stars are united for the first time in "Pillow Talk," the new romantic comedy now showing at the Jim theatre. The picture brings together Doris Day, voted by the theatre owners as the top box-office star of her sex, and Rock Hudson, honored similarly among male stars. As another "first" it also presents Hudson in his first comedy role.

A joint venture of Arwin Productions, Miss Day's independent film company, and of Universal-International "Pillow Talk" is the rollicking story of a career girl and a happy bachelor who share a party-line telephone, but no other interests, and in the process of disliking each other because one is always interrupting the other on the party line, fall in love. Tony Randall and Thelma Ritter are co-starred, Michael Gordon directed the picture, and Ross Hunter and Martin Melcher, Miss Day's husband, are the producers. It was photographed in CinemaScope and color. Six songs are woven through the production, with three of them, including the title song, featuring Miss Day's voice.

Unknown except as a dance band singer prior to 1948, Doris Day today is the top feminine boxoffice attraction of motion pictures. A favorite with disk jockeys from coast to coast, her Columbia recordings are always among the best sellers.

An impressive screen test at Warner Bros. got Doris a contract there, first starring in "Romance on the High Seas." In 1954, after eight years of picture making at that studio, she made her first outside picture as the star of "Love Me Or Leave Me," the story of Ruth Etting. This was followed by the co-starring role with James Stewart in Alfred Hitchcock's "The Man Who Knew Too Much."

Non - singing roles in recent screen - starring performances by Doris Day include "Teacher's Pet" and "Tunnel of Love." She has headlined in more than twenty of Hollywood's top musical film productions.

FAITHFUL FINANCIERS

NEW YORK (AP) — Playwright William Gibson has faithful financial backers.

The production costs of two Gibson projects this season are being underwritten by the same group that backed his initial success, "Two for the Seesaw."

The twin new ventures are "The Miracle Worker," a drama hit of the new Broadway season, and "Dinny and the Witches," which is getting an off-Broadway showcasing.

Pain Killers Among Plants

By MARY JARDINE

KATHERINE M. FOSTER, M.D.
Guest Writer

Paging Dr. Kevin! Emergency Room! There Dr. Kevin finds one of the leading citizens with crushing chest pain which he immediately relieves with an injected pain killer. Behind the doctor are thoughts of the ancient Chinese who accidentally discovered that a very beautiful wild poppy (Papave somniferum) had these pain relieving properties which made his patient feel comfortable.

More than 3,000 medicinal plants are listed in Dr. Materia Medica a pharmocopeia compiled in the first century A. D. by Dioscorides, a Roman physcian. About five hundred of the plants he recommended are still of some medical importance. And so from the flowers that bloom in the spring. Dr. Kevin treats his patients with heart failure, asthma, high blood pressure, gout, and schizophrenia.

OTHER PLANTS

Among the medicinal plants listed today by the United States government, are many with odd names and infrequent use — Apple of Sodom (Solanum carolinense,) Bad Man's oatmenal (Conium maculatum), and old maids nightcap (Geranium maculatum).

Better known and more frequently used, beside the opium poppy, are foxglove (Digitalis pupurea), Belladonna (Atropa belladonna), American falase hellebore (Veratrum viride) and autumn crocus (Colchicum autumnale).

Foxglove, better known in the medical circles as digitalis has other familiar names such as fairy fingers, lady's glove, lion's mouth. In England before the Norman conquest it was used as a household remedy for dropsy. In 1775 an English physician, Witherine, learned of its medical properties and introduced it as a diuretic. Today it is used in the treatment of heart failure. Foxgloves are beautiful hardy biennials easily raised from seels, and produce flowers shaped and spotted like gloxina. They are very showy and used both in beds and borders.

Belladonna, or deadly night shade plant is perennial herb, not a garden subject due to the fact all of the plant is poison except roots and leaves used for medicinal purposes. The blooms are dull purple flowers on intense green stalk reaching height of three feet. This was brought into this country from Europe specifically to be cultivated as a medicinal plant. Since World War II, when sufficient quantities of the drug could not be imported, commercial supplies of belladonna have been grown in California. The leaves are smoked in pipes to relieve asthma. It is used to relieve spasm of the intestinal and urinary tract.

American Flase Hellebore is one of North America's contributions to pharmacognosy, a plant that grows wild in swampy places from eastern Canada to Georgia. Veratum used to treat hypertension is obtained from rootstock of the plant. The American Indians and Europeans used it to treat acute inflammation. The plant is a herbacious perennial with greenish or purplish flowers in panicles at the top of the stalk, the leaves are claspin and ribbed.

TROPICAL TREE

Rawolfia serpentina, genus of tropical tree and shrubs have been used in South America, Africa, Asia as a source of arrow poison, and also presently used in the treatment of certain neuropsychiatric disorders as well as hypertension. This was recognized as useful medicinal plant in 1954 by Muller.

Colchicum, better known as autumn crocus, the unusual hardy bulb which blooms in September without soil or water is today the source of the drug of choice for gout. Its name was derived from the island of Colchis, in the Black Sea, where folklore says the witch Medea discovers its pharmacologic properties while looking for a new poison. It has a vogue with Arabian physicians as a treatment for gout, then abandoned during the Middle Ages until the nineteenth century. The magic Colchicums can also be grown outdoors four inches deep and they will bloom every fall for years.

The age of pharmacognosy has not passed. Drugs may yet be isolated from other plants used in folk remedies, perhaps even from the apple of Sodom, old maids night cap, sweet william or the delphiniums. Think about beauty plus science when you are planting this fall to have the flowers that bloom in the spring.

Publicity-district meeting Nov. 11 in Bastrop. Mrs. M. B. Sotham of Jackson, Mississippi, will do a demonstration program on Christmas arrangements throughout the house. Make your reservations with Mrs. W. P. Stephenson, Cypress St., Bastrop.

Rayville Garden Show, Nov. 12.

THE HOME SHIFT

Preparations For Holidays

By MILDRED SWIFT

When November arrives, we really start counting the days until Christmas. Frosty mornings remind us its time to make preparation for both Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays.

The garden needs to be kept clean if it's to have a holiday look. Leaves will be falling for a month or more and that will keep you busy. But — there are other jobs to do.

Amaryllis can be planted now and on into spring. A raised bed provides good drainage and this bulb likes neutral soil. Some sand worked in the soil will help to give good drainage. Work bone meal in the bed and plant the amaryllis bulb with its nose out of the ground. If you plant deep you encourage bulb rot. Mulch such as pine straw is good protection.

Amaryllis will thrive in some shade or full sun. The blossoms fade less if there is some shade. When growing amaryllis in pots, soak the empty pots from 12 to 24 hours in water to thoroughly saturate them. Regular feeding every two weeks, with a balanced fertilizer dissolved in water, helps the potted bulbs. If you plant now, begin this feeding in January. Amaryllis multiply, so a handful of bulbs can afford a lot of garden pleasure.

DAHLIA ROOTS

It is not desirable to dig dahlia roots until the tops are destroyed by frost. Then they should be cut down to within 6 inches of the ground and lifted. In lifting be careful not to injure the roots by bruising or by breaking them from the crown. Care should also be used in removing as much soil as possible from the roots with a pointed stick, allowing them to dry in the air for a few hours; then store in a dry, cool, frostproof place. If the atmosphere of the storage room is very dry, the clumps should be packed in barrels or boxes in peat moss or sand, or wrapped in newspaper. These also can be hung in old stockings from the ceiling in a dark room. The packing material should be dry when used. It will then tend to take up water from the clumps at first and reduce the tendency to dry out at the end of the storage period. Varieties differ in behavior in storage, some shriveling and others remaining firm under like conditions.

You can plant seeds of Belles of Ireland, anytime. This is a beautiful plant for arrangements in the fresh state, or dried.

Let me remind you again that the white red bud (cercis canadensis van alba) is a beautiful sight in early spring. One small branch makes a spectacular arrangement.

This is a repition but maybe you want to be reminded that it's time to plant bulbs; prune dead wood from trees and shrubs; vtransplant spring blooming perennials (like daisies); plant Easter lily bulbs) put out pansy and calendula plants; plant seed of all early blooming annuals (consult your seed man.)

When broadcasting winter rye grass seed, be careful not to let them fly over in the shrubbery or annual beds. They'll be a headache and give you a backache later on when the grass has to be dug and lifted, bodily.

WATERING

At the time I'm writing this the soil is very dry. Remember plants need water in winter as well as summer. If we were to get a freeze, now, many plants would be completely dehydrated because there is so little moisture in them and in the ground. If we've had a good rain, you're all right.

The susanquas are beginning to bloom and they do add so much at this time of year. There are many new varieties. See them in bloom in the nurseries.

A susanqua needs the same soil and care as a camellia. They're all in the same family. Of course, you know that means acid soil (humus), good loamy soil with lots of humus and water during very dry spells.

A young flower enthusiast, Joe Allen Boothe, transplanted a red cockscomb to a pot and it is growing and blooming nicely. You have no idea what a lovely house plant it makes. I've never seen one brought inside and I thought you'd like to know about this. You can do likewise. We're waiting to see how it is going to thrive, since this plant likes lots of sun and warm weather. We'll keep you informed.

SAFETY FIRST

We all know the old superstition about not walking under a ladder. It's probably safer to walk under a ladder than it is to climb one—unless you're mighty careful.

Here are some safety rules from the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners: When propping a ladder against a wall, be sure the base of the ladder is no farther than a quarter of its length from the wall. Thus a 12 foot ladder should rest about 3 feet from the wall.

Be sure the ladder has a secure footing. By all means avoid using a ladder in front of a door, inside or out, unless the door is locked. Never go above the third rung from the top of a straight ladder.

Never try to work with one foot on the rung of a ladder, and the other foot on a windowsill, table or other object. Don't burden yourself with a lot of tools when going up or down a ladder. You need both hands for holding on. Be sure there's no oil or grease on the soles of your shoes or on the ladder rung.

SHOES

Many of the new walking shoes have stacked leather heels, and no matter what your age or occupation, there is a perfect elevation for you. One company showed a very thin, very high stacked heel on an evening pump of rich moire! The season is full of shoe surprises.

No part of the human anatomy gets less of a break than our feet. They contain one fourth of all our bones. The average salesgirl covers the distance from Juneau, Alaska to Honolulu, Hawaii during her year's work.

So — why not give your feet a regular break? We find co fee breaks relaxing and refreshing, so why not adapt shoe breaks? You rotate the tires on your car —why not rotate the shoes you wear — several times during the day?

If you're a housewife, a "shoe break" will do wonders to make your next task seem less back breaking. Four shoe breaks a day give feet and spirits a lift, cut down fatigue, at no cost and very little time spent.

ELEGANT LOOK

The elegant look for late afternoon and evening has been given an added emphasis with brocades. These brocades that spark the after dark scene are luxurious. Newest are the jewel toned silk brocade suits. The dress may be low necked and often sleeveless and can be worn without the jacked, which often boasts a fur collar.

Many of these brocades are made long sleeved and sheath. Some are shirtwaist with three quarter sleeves flaunting jewel cuff links and matching buttons.

Have you noticed how velveteen now is taking over the daylight fashion scene in new sportswear? Some are in separates that can be paired together. Even velveteen raincoats cut in chesterfield and trench coat styles are at ease in the daytime.

Long gloves no longer are designed almost exclusively for evening wear. This fall they're very much in the daytime picture. This is probably due to the fact so many coat sleeves recede all the way up to mid arm.

Evening gloves are more beautiful and more elaborately trimmed than ever. Some are 24 button lengths. Pink and blue kid and black suede also are popular tones for formal gloves.

Your Open House programs for next week are: Monday, Jackie Mitchell will show flower containers fashioned from ordinary objects around the house; Tuesday, Betty Jane Hodgkins will make a cape from three - quarters of a yard of material; Wednesday and Thursday I'll be with you with marketing and food preparation; Friday a cotton style show with lovely models. See you next Sunday.

NEWMAN THE PRODUCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Paul Newman believes in varying his Broadway stint as the male star of "Sweet Bird of Youth."

Newman between performances has been producing and directing a film based upon Anton Checkhov's satiric playlet, "On the Harmfulness of Tobacco." The 20-minute short is Newman's first film-producing experience.

STAMPS

The sixth of the United States "Champions of Liberty" stamps will honor Thomas G. Masaryk, founder and first president of Czechoslovakia. As in the past, these stamps will be issued in two denominations — 4 cents for first class domestic postage and 8 cents for first class international surface mail.

The Masaryk stamps will be placed on sale at Washington, D. C., on March 7, 1960, the 110th anniversary of Masaryk's birth. Details as to design and colors will be announced in this column soon.

Masaryk's movement for Czech independence dates back to World War I. In 1918 he was chosen that nation's first president and remained in that capacity until 1935.

Said Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield: "These stamps commemorating Thomas G. Masaryk as a 'Champion of Liberty' will thus mark not only the strong friendship of the peoples of the United States and Czechoslovakia, which Masaryk symbolized, but also their common aspirations for freedom."

Previous "Champions of Liberty" have been Ramon Magsaysay (1957), Simon Bolivar and Lajos Kossuth (1958) and Jose de San Martin and Ernst Reuter (1959).

The famed British Commonwealth collection of H. M. Spencer Lewin of Montreal, Canada, was sold for more than $23,000 in a two - day auction in New York recently. The top price went for a Mauritius No. 4, earliest impression of the 1848 2-pence with frame line cut at top right. It sold for $1,050.

Brazil has issued a 2.50-cruzeiros stamp to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the city of Londrina in the State of Parana. This green and white airmail was issued to help publicize the first jet flight of Brazil's airlines. Another airmail is expected soon to honor the inauguration of its first jet flight route.

The postal administration of the Belgian Congo and Ruanda - Urundi each will issue a series of 12 postage stamps. The stamps will show protected animals of the Belgian Cingo and Ruanda-Urundi. ....

The animals featured on each set will be: antelope, white rhinoceros, giraffe, galago, gorilla, black buffaloes, colobe monkey, elephants, okapis, impala, pangolin, eland and zebras.

Fall Pruning, Trimming Time

By AUDREY DAWSON

Last call for saving those caladium bulbs — better get them out of the ground. Dry them, with leaves left on, and store in dry warm place during winter months. It is too late to get them after frost. Even though your bulbs were small ones this year they are worth saving and too you will have bigger bulbs and plants for next year.

PRUNING

Begin now to clean up your trees and shrubs. Prune and cut out all dead, diseased or broken limbs on all plants and trees.

Another job that is needed at this time in the garden to make a better appearance (if your's is anything like yours truly at this season it needs some attention to look better). Cut back all the annuals and perennials that have finished blooming — this will really give a lift to the bed.

I have never seen the susanquas bloom more beauti ully than this season. Now is a good time to make your selection at your nurserymen to be sure to get the color you want. I have never heard so many homemakers comment that they just had to get some susanquas for their garden. I find this plant most satisfying. It grows fast, is an evergreen and fits well into most plans. The only trouble is scale and now that we have Malathion this is easily controlled, so if you need a plant for your garden, I believe you will find this one most satisfying.

Now is an excellent time to collect seed pods from the garden to be used in dried arrangements. Beautiful material might also be found on ditch banks. Material that can be collected now that is fine for arrangements is okra pods, pine cones, cattails, dock, corn shucks and tassels.

SOMETHING NEW

A new seasoning, minced green onion ready for use whenever green onion or chives is required, has been introduced to the food industry. This new product is made from a specially grown variety of onions with a green bloom rather than the usual white on the inside of the onion top. It is flaked, dehydrated and packaged in a cylindrical glass jar that is compact and decorative for the seasoning shelf. One teaspoon of the minced green onion added to an equal amount of water and allowed to stand for five minutes will equal 1 tablespoon of fresh chives. If added to food that contains liquid they need not be reconstituted but can be added directly.

VACUUM CLEANER

Every homemaker is interested in saving money and one way for you to do it is to get extra years of life from your vacunm cleaner. Here are some simple suggestions that can mean money in your pocket by adding some extra years of service to your cleaner: Replace the filter when it becomes clogged; pick up sharp objects like pins, glass and tacks before running over them with the cleaner; always detach the cord from the outlet by pulling on the plug, not by yanking the cord; if the motor requires oiling, follow directions being careful to use the right kind and amount of oil — and don't forget — read the instruction book which comes with the cleaner.

THANKSGIVING

Mrs. Homemaker here's the answer to your question as to what size of turkey to buy for that dinner of all dinners. Yes, Thanksgiving. Plan on 1 to 1½ pounds of ready - to - stuff turkey and 1½ to 2 pounds stuffed turkey per person for first meal helpings with cold turkey left for "encores."

The Music World

NEW YORK (UPI)—The musical exchanges between the United States and Russia are running pretty hot when the newest composition of Russia's leading composer is played in the United States less than a month after its first performance in Russia.

And played by the leading Russian musician for whom it was composed and who was the first to play it at home, what's more. The piece is a 'Cello Concerto' by Dimitri Shostakovich. Mstislav Rostropovich played it with the Philadelphia Orchestra in Philadelphia Friday and Saturday nights.

He gave the concerto its world premiere in Leningrad Oct. 4 and played it again, in Moscow, on October 9. That's tremendous speed for music and especially for a musician attached to the music, to get around. It is evident that musical "cultura exchanges" now run on well-greased slides.

Americans admired the music of Shostakovich even at the height of the cold war, of course, and they have come to admire the playing of Rostropovich since his first American performances, in 1956. One is among the most impressive of living composers; the other is a profound master of his instrument and its music, as any one can tell by listening.

But music never was an issue anyway, and Russia had great composers and great musicians whom Americans admired before there was a Soviet. So soon this newest work of Shostakovich will be on records, (with Rostropovich the soloist, no doubt) and every musical person will be listening to it without giving any thought to non-musical implications.

But musical exchanges now are on a much larger scale than single compositions and single musicians. The New York Philharmonic concertized in Russia late in the summer, and in January and February the Moscow State Symphony will concertize across the United States.

It is the Russian match for America's big and firmly established orchestras, like those in Boston, New York, Philadephia, Cleveland, Chicago, and so on. It has 120 musicians and will bring two conductors Konstantin Ivanov and Kiril Kondrashin who is already known here because Van Ciburn imported him to accompany his playing of the piano concertos with which he won his Russian prize. It will give 34 concerts in all, over a period of six weeks.

This week's concerts of the New York Philharmonic, in New York, offered sentiment as well as music. Robert Casadesus, the French pianist who now is as well known to Americans, played Beethoven's 4th concerto. It was his silver anniversary — he gave his first American performance (of Mozart's "Coronation" concerto) on the same platform with the same orchestra 25 years ago. He is now 60 years old.

Tree Planters Check Spades In Early Fall

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

CHAPPAQUA, N.Y. —Falling leaves are the signal for tree planters to get to work.

Putting in shade or fruit trees in the fall gives them a good start over the winter for springtime leafing. But there are some important precautions:

Be sure of the location. Many people forget that today's little acorn is tomorrow's giant oak. Consider future growth and don't plant a tree that will cut off light and air for the house or sunshine to a vital spot in the garden.

Once you've invested in a tree, put it to use. Sensible planting means it can shade an outdoor eating area, a children's playyard or pool.

Don't put a $50 tree in a 50 cent hole—give it room to grow. The hole must be deep enough and wide enough for the whole root system without overcrowding.

When you dig the hole for a tree or shrub, pile the top soil in one place and the subsoil in another. At the bottom of the hole, break up the soil where the roots will be and mix in a quantity of peat moss.

If the tree is balled and wrapped in burlap, set it in as is, then just loosen the burlap around the trunk. Don't remove it — it will keep the soil packed around the roots for the initial growing period and eventually rot away.

If your tree or shrub has bare roots, spread them carefully, pressing them into the soil, then pack earth in to prevent air pockets.

When you refill the hole, put in the top soil first. Halfway up water generously, letting the dirt settle.

Put in the rest of the soil and tamp it down gently but firmly around the trunk. Then water again.

Brace the tree against winter winds with a length of wire pegged into the ground. Loop it around the trunk with a length of old garden hose or folded rags as a pad against cutting or chafing the bark.

Remember to water newly planted trees, evergreens or shrubs if rainfall is not adequate. The soil should be kept moist until the ground freezes.

This is also the time to give your chrysanthemums pre-winter care. In the changeable autumn weather, protect the plants against early frosts and you'll be rewarded with many more weeks of bloom.

Old sheets, sacks and plastic sheeting make good frost guards. Put the coverings on your plants in late afternoon when frost is forecast or when the temperatures drop sharply.

After the first hard freeze, dig up clumps with a generous amount of soil, cut down the tops to two or three inches and dust the plants with insecticide.

Then set the mums in a cold frame or in a protected area along a house foundation. Mulch with straw, salt hay, dried grass clippings or other porous material.

Shade Houses Help Plants

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Perhaps you have noticed, when visiting some nursery, the good condition of the plants growing underneath the artificial shade of the nursery's "slat house". These structures provide almost ideal conditions for growing plants of many kinds. Camellias bloom, unmolested by the extremes of winter weather, and the foliage of almost all the plants under the "shade" is perfect.

Slat houses are not difficult or expensive to put up. They are very practical for the home gardener. If you will build a small one for yourself, you will never again be without one. The structure can be fitted right into your house or garden plan so that it is a part of either one. In the garden, it can be located in the same places where you might put a grape arbor. Attached to the house, it can be made a part of most kinds of architecture as has been shown by many photographs in gardening and home magzines.

NEARLY IDEAL

In the nearly ideal conditions of the shade house, we in the South can grow plants that, in the open, succumb to the extremes of our climate. Delphiniums grow beauti fully under the shade where they never are exposed to the heat and blazing sunshine we have here. Out in the garden, they last only a season or two, but under the shade house, they are permanent. The sudden and extreme changes of our winter weather kill off many very choice plants which many of us would like to grow. Gerbera is one of these. Many people cannot keep gerberas very long in the open garden, but they are permanent under the shade house. The shade house tempers all the extremes of climate. It reduces the blazing sun of summer. It slows down the violent wind. In winter, when the sudden cold winds sweep in on us with a drop of temperature of as much as ten degrees per hour, the shade house gives just the right amount of protection to plants of many kinds. In heavy rains and hail storms, the slats break the fall of rain and hail and save flowers from damage or destruction.

CAMELLIAS

Many camellia growers have discovered that they get a rich harvest of perfect flowers from their bushes in winter when they grow them under shade houses. The only problem with growing camellias under thees structures lies in the fact that the bushes soon get to be very large, especially under such ideal conditions, and the house has to have its roof raised.

We in the South are just beginning to discover the benefits of shade houses. We used to call them "lath houses" because we made them by nailing the wooden laths used in plastering on the main structures. Architects have improved their designs for us in the last few years, and we shall soon be gardening in the cool shade of these pleasant places.

Distress Calls Received From Gulf Trawlers

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—Several trawlers broadcast distress calls Friday as the first severe norther of the season kicked up stormy conditions in the Gulf of Mexico.

The tugs Pike and Barbara George, out of Galveston and towing an oil barge to Puerto, Mexico, reported a seaman aboard one of the tugs is seriously ill. The Coast Guard was considering sending a flying boat from St. Petersburg, Fla., to evacuate the man.

Waves at the tugs' location 160 miles south of Galveston, were 10 feet high.

The shrimp trawler Butchie Boy of Port Isabel, Tex., was disabled 210 miles south of Port Isabel with a broken steering gear. Another trawler, Laguna, 4, ran hard aground near Port Isabel last night after its pilot house was smashed by heavy seas. All aboard are safe.

The trawler Martha made Port Isabel with Coast Guard assistance after seas smashed the windows in the pilot house.

Dean Urges Methodists To 'Reach Out'

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Methodists were told today Methodism "cannot win the cities nor keep the countryside if we do not identify ourselves more fully with the so-called common people."

Dr. Walter G. Muelder, dean of the Boston University School of Theology, urged members of the Methodist Conference on Christian Education to make a concerted effort to reach the laboring classes, the families with small incomes, and persons of lower educational attainment for church enrollment.

"To this must be added," he said, "an intensified effort to reach more persons who are nonwhite in other ways than through segregated channels."

"The goal," he declared, "is adequate Christian experience and relatedness for all."

"Methodists follow an occupational profile which shows a preponderance of professional men and women and managers as compared with the U. S. population as a whole, based on 1958 census estimates," he said.

"Conversely we have a low proportion of operatives, service workers and laborers. The structure of not adequately churched people so far as Methodism goes can be envisaged partly from this class pattern."

New Minister Takes Post At Local Church

Members of the Southside Baptist Church welcomed the church's new pastor, Rev. A. N. Baum, and his family who have recently moved to Monroe.

Rev. Baum came to Monroe from the Magnolia Church in Crowville. The Southside Church is presently completing its building program and members and officers urged all unaffiliated Baptists to come and take part in the church's development.

Rev. Baum, his wife and three children will reside at 3107 Lee Avenue.

QUESTION: We befriended and took into our home a destitute young man; while I was at work he tried to seduce my wife. He later begged for forgiveness which I granted. However, we do not care to have any more contacts with him. Because of this, he claims he is not forgiven. He says that God has forgiven him and forgotten, and that we should too. He thinks we should open the door of our home to him again. What should we do? T. R.

ANSWER: Let matters stand where they are. This young man should feel fortunate that he tried his capers on people who were so generous and kind to him, and should forget about pursuing the matter further. In my opinion, he might yield to a similar temptation again, for evidently that is some personality maladjustment which drove him to betraying people who were so good to him. If God has forgiven him, and I do not doubt that, then he should be grateful that he has the chance to go straight and prove himself to be of good character. If God has forgiven him, then he should forget about your wife, and seek the company of people his own age.

This incident points up again the abnormal preoccupation this generation has with sex. Sex sins were the downfall of Sodom and Gomorrah, and no nation has ever survived a moral breakdown. We are on the verge of it now. Let us pray that as a nation we shall get our sights higher than the level of sex.

Disarmament 'In Reverse' Says Priest

By BILL W. DEAN

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — We've got the cart before the horse in our disarmament wrangling with the Soviets, says the teacher of what may be the only college course in disarmament in the nation.

There's no use arguing about nuclear warheads, contends the Rev. Edward A. Conway, S.J. We ought to be worrying about the missiles that would deliver them.

"We have let technology get too far ahead of our political accomplishment," says Father Conway, gesturing with a fistful of technical papers in the Jesuit quarters of Creighton University.

"Before long it will be too late to control the missiles. The thing is getting farther out of hand every minute."

The crux of the problem is inspection, the thing on which America has been standing firm. But Father Conway gives it a different twist.

There are three phases to a weapon: production, possession and use. So far as atomic bombs are concerned, argues the Jesuit priest, "You can't inspect for possession any more.

"We would always have the nagging fear they had secreted a sufficient number of nuclear weapons to back up any blackmail."

But you can inspect missiles and their launching facilities, and that's the practical place to try to exercise control, he believes.

"It doesn't matter so much how many atomic bombs you have so long as you don't have the delivery systems."

At 57, white-haired Father Conway is a specialist but not an optimist about disarmament. If anything will prompt it in these days of the cold war, he says, it is fear — fear and the feeling of each side they are about equal in their weapon development.

"I have a feeling now no seriuos attempt at disarmament will be made until both sides get what they need: a real stalemate with both satisfied they are not the underdog."

Milwaukee-born Father Conway started out as a student of Papal disarmament teachings, originated a 1943 "Pattern for Peace" declaration backed by 147 Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders and later lectured for the State Department on the Dumbarton Oaks proposals which led to the formation of the United Nations.

In 1945 he was a leader in an educational campaign for international control of atomic energy, later an official Catholic observer in the United Nations and for six years was foreign affairs editor of America, national Catholic weekly review.

Father Conway has taught at Creighton, Regis College at Denver, Marquette in Milwaukee and St. Louis University.

Four Catholic Parishes To Hold Bazaar

The combined Catholic parishes of St. Matthew's, Our Lady of Fatima, St. Joseph's and Jesus the Good Shepherd will hold a fund - raising bazaar Wednesday and Thursday in the St. Matthew's gymnasium, Msgr. John C. Marsh announced today.

The occasion will mark the 36th year of the bazaar which began as a fund raising project for needy students, Catholic and non-Catholic, who attended St. Hyacinth Academy. "This is the school which later became St. Matthews," Msgr. Marsh said.

This year the bazaar will be used as assistance for the Daughters of the Cross, whose headquarters is at St. Vincent' Academy in Shreveport. Graduates of the academy will serve on faculties and staffs of expanding parochial schools in the Monroe area, according to Msgr. Marsh.

Chairmen for the project were named as: Mrs. Tony Embanato, St. Matthew's; Mrs. Leo Ritter, Our Lady of Fatima; Mrs. J. D. LaDart, St. Joseph's, and Mrs. Paul Goldman, Jesus the Good Shepherd.

MOMENTS FOR MEMORY

Christmas trees and Christmas lights,
Mistletoe and holly,
Packages and such delights
Make this season jolly.

Families gather close around—
Faces bright and glowing.
Yuletide warmth and love abound;
Hearts are overflowing.

These moments you want to save: and pictures tell the story
Of all the joys on Christmas day — all its warmth and glory!

HANDEL, BACH

Christmas Music Had Top Scorers

It's strange but true: Two of the most famous composers of Christmas music were both born in the same year, 1685, lived for many years within thirty miles of each other — and yet they never met!

The composers were Johann Sebastian Bach and George Frederick Handel.

Handel's "Messiah" will be heard, at least in part, in numerous churches and schools throughout the country. "Joy to the World" is taken from the "Messiah." The musical theme of "While Shepherd's Watched Their Flocks" also comes from this master.

From Bach's "Christmas Oratorio" come the themes of several other well known chorales. He is also the composer of "How Brightly Beams the Morning Star."

Bach and Handel both proved themselves masters of Christmas music that is beautiful and easily enjoyed.

No one really knows exactly the origin or even the meaning, of the Yule log. We know, however that it is of pre-Christian origin. The ancient Druids blessed it with great ceremony to celebrate the beginning of the winter season.

In some lands even today, the Yule log is decorated with flowers and wreaths, annointed with wine, then put in the fireplace and set ablaze.

To bring good luck they tell you, the log must not be allowed to burn out during the Christmas season. Besides, a part of it has to be kept to start the fire next year.

It is believed that the ashes of the Yule log have the power to increase the fertility of the land. Thus, in many places the farmers scatter the ashes over their land on New Year's Day.

Another custom that came to us from pre-Christian times, is kissing under the mistletoe. Once the mistletoe was used as a weapon of death. According to a Norse mythology, the god of Evil, named Loki, planned to destroy the god of the life-giving warmth Balder.

Balder's mother who was the most influential of all the goddesses, obtained a promise from all living things that they would not harm Balder. All agreed, except the mistletoe who hadn't been asked. So, it was with a mistletoe arrow that Loki induced a blind man to kill the sun god. However, higher powers intervened, and Balder was restored to life. The mistletoe was placed under Frigga's care and she, the mother of Balder, saw to it that it was never again used to do harm.

"To learn your luck for the year they say,
Burn a bayberry dip on Christmas day.
If the flame burns bright and the light shines clear,
Good luck will be yours through the year."

MAKE IT A BLUE CHRISTMAS and make her happy! This Cerulean (blue) Mink is young-at-heart-styled to appeal to every woman no matter what age. Called the "Up 'n Over," it's designed to go on over the head, though it sometimes comes with a hidden full-length front zipper. Modestly priced!

UPCOMING SEASON

Merriment, Joy Typify Yuletide

"Merry Christmas" . . . these words ring out clearly during this season! Smiles are warmer, handclasps tighter laughter — gayer. Christmas is the time for more merriment.

Though everyone knows the religious significance of Christmas, often the deeper meaning is lost in the round of gift buying, gift wrapping and gift exchanging.

Often the holiday is a trial of anticipating gifts for all potential "givers." It becomes a bit of a "swap" time with "I must get something for Mary this year, after all she did give me that embroidered cloth" . . . or other!

But most important of all, more than 600 million people observe the natal day of He who is considered the greatest religious leader in history.

Although in the 1,959 years following His birth, the Christmas celebration has come to be a potpourri of ancient pagan ceremonials as oft-told Christmas legends point out, the essence of the day is "it is more blessed to give than receive" . . .

And, this simple statement gives credence to the jolly old Santa who represents the spirit of giving at Christmas.

As the Christmas bells ring out the message of peace and goodwill, brotherhood and tolerance, giving and forgiving come to the fore in His name.

Indulgent adults say "Christmas is for the children" . . . but it is the elders who set moods and patterns of the observance.

Make this a real Christmas! Unite the family in tree trimming festivities . . . sing the old carols and listen well to the words . . . and join friends and neighbors at the church of your choice.

Plan to make His day, a family day — the Christmas Story begins with "once upon a time there was a Father, a Mother and a CHILD . . ."

Young Misses Like Jewelry At Christmas

There's a lot of fashion news in the robe story for Christmas giving.

From classic wrap - around flannels, to elegant wide-sweep beauties, the robe story is elegant!

Most popular in both casual and more luxurious fabrics is the loose or fitted style in the duster length.

Smartly printed cottons, cotton flannels and cotton quilts make up into neat novelties for about-the-house wear.

Woven nylon quilts, nylon tricot quilts and nylon chiffon quilts shape up into some of the smartest new robes.

The perennially popular quilted rayon, new handlings in chenille and corduroy, soft wools and fleeces, as well as the more traditional silk, lined nylons and satin-types continue to score in robe styles.

Zippered front, smooth fitting brunch coats . . . patch pocketed, button front dusters . . . semi-fitted or free 'n' loose peignoir styles lead the array with such details as braid trims, smocking, bows, binding and ric rac trims, lavish lace touches, handsome yoke and sleeve handlings, beautiful prints and — above all — wonderful wearability, sofe colors and usually, washability.

This year, say "Merry Christmas" with lingerie for all the gals!

Ornaments Make Large Industry

The fragile Bubbles of glass with which we adorn our Christmas trees are largely a family industry in Europe, especially Germany, and also in Japan.

In the tiny villages that cling to the steep mountainsides, whole families engage in the process of turning out Chirstmas decoration.

Special shapes and designs are the exclusive properties of certain families, the patterns handed down from father to son, for centuries unchanged.

Using a flame, the father carefully blows the thin glass tubing to the desired shape with the aid of an iron mold. His son removes the hot ornament to the cooling table. Next the mother silvers the inside, and the daughters apply painted designs.

BEAUTIFUL HOSTESS or beautiful gift . . for either purpose this hostess gown belongs on the Christmas scene. In luxurious Stehli silk, a year 'round weight. Belt in front or back!

For the "snug as a bug in a rug" feeling, easy goin' balbriggan, cuddly challis and gay flannelettes are ideal chill chasers in sleepwear.

There's a glamour note to the Orient-inspired collection of robes, pajamas and ensembles. The elegance of kimona detailing and mandarin coat lines are interpreted smartly in fine nylons, silks and smooth rich cottons. They are often printed in vibrant colors, trimmed with embroidery or braid.

For Christmas gifting, gown selections are most diversified — they range from dainty, baby-doll shorties to more conservative waltz-lengths and to the floor-length styles.

Make your gift more lavish, ensemble the gown with a matching peignoir . . . cape-like collars, lace by the yard, appliques and embroidery help make the new season crop of ensembles quite exciting.

No matter what style you favor, there's a riot of color, trim, fine silks and nylons awaiting your final choice.

IN INTIMATE APPAREL

The return of the natural waistline heralds a revival of elegant underpinnings — fine nylon tricots, nylon crepes, silks, etc., are used to underscore elegantly detailed slips and half slips.

Applique trims, fine laces, medallion inserts, the daintiest of pleated detail, trapunto trims and scalloping — are but a few of the many accents that make lingerie so lovely, so much wanted at Christmas time.

BOUFFANTS ARE BACK

Shirtwaist dresses, full skirt handlings and a return to more flared skirts make the bouffant petticoat a welcome addition to any wardrobe.

Rufiles, tiers of skirts, lots of pleats, ribbons, lace — all distinguish the underskirts of the season.

Robes Rate With Femmes As Presents

No girl is ever too young for beauty or for fashion, the Jewelry Industry Council claims, and this truth offers some special Christmas gift ideas for the younger set.

Girls of all ages have created a major fashion trend with their passion for the tiny necklaces known as miniatures.

A small design or pearl hanging from a fine gold chain and nestling in the hollow of the throat has proven its power with little girls of six and those over sixteen as well. Even the 3-to-6-year-old set has its own special version of these popular miniatures.

Narrow gold bracelets are another fashion favorite of all ages! And — the power of charms goes on forever. Charms marking every sentiment and every event for every age make a special and lasting gift! Scarab bracelets are big, big fashion among the high school and college set and are often worn two and three at a time.

Bar and circle pins are tops with the younger set and there can't be too many of them. In classic gold for daytime, or set with tiny pearls or stones for dress-up wear, a circle pin is a fashion must.

And, of course, a string of cultured pearls is every girl's most glorious Christmas dream.

Jewelry makes a lady out of a young girl, and a Christmas gift of pure delight.

Scarves Make Pleasing Gifts

Holiday fashions square-off in a new and delightfully different medley of scarves that make ideal gifts for every gal on your list.

Whether she's school-girl, matron, or in-between, it's easy to find just the size and color to accent her individuality.

Whether as a colorful extra or a cherished gift, scarves fill the bill in every way.

Child's Portrait Is Welcome Gift

Portrait photographs make wonderful, personal gifts as warm and alive as a handshake and as welcome as a sprig of Christmas cheer on a blustery December day.

Children especially make stunning portraits, as they pass a new milestone each Christmas.

Here are some tips to remember when having the small fry photographed:

Be sure the child is well rested and fed. Hair should be simply styled and natural looking. Avoid the plastered down style for boys; too tight curls for little girls. Dress the child in snug-fitting clothes — perhaps last year's — so they will have a smooth line. Be sure they are neatly pressed; avoid ruffles or flounces that detract.

If the child has a favorite toy, take it along; it will help the child relax. Many photographers suggest that the best portrait can be made if the child is not told he is to have his picture taken until he arrives at the studio.

Although most photographers prefer to have mother or parents in the studio during the sitting, by al' means let the photographer take the picture. He can get the best expression in a portrait when he wins the child's confidence.

New Idea For Gift For Home

A good looking yard lantern which keeps "an eye to the sky" and turns itself off and on automatically may prove to be the ideal gift for the homeowner who seems to have everything.

Adding charm and utility to the front or back yard, patio or porch, the lantern has a photo electric cell which turns the lamp on when the sun goes down; turns it off at sunrise to provide economical lighting even when the homeowner is away.

An electric outlet built into the base of the lantern provides a handy plug-in for Christmas lights, outdoor tools, barbecue equipment, etc.

PICK A TIE TO SUIT not only his outfits, but his personality as well. A design such as a bold foulard is good for an extrovert; a dark toned solid with small motif for the ultra conservative, and for the Ivy type a repp.

AT YULETIDE

Instrument Gift Hits Good Note

A gift of a musical instrument can be a key to "solo" or group enjoyment whether for a child, teenager or adult and is a present that is treasured long past the holidays!

Here are some pointers from the American Music Conference to start you on your way to select your gift of music!

A family gift? The instrument best suited for multi-purpose use by all members of the family is the piano or organ.

Spinet pianos with good tone and action, range from $500 to $2,000. Table model electric organs suitable for home use run to $4,000.

Instrument for a child? Easy-to-play instruments are popular with even the youngest children and are an excellent way to introduce them to the fun of music.

For the young fry the most popular are melody bells, xylophones, triangles, colorful drums and rhythm sticks. Give five to seven-year-olds plastic flutes, harmonicas or ukeleles. These instruments are available for from $1 to $10.

A teenager's fun? Instruments that go where the fun goes — such as guitar, ukelele, accordion, concertina or banjo — are most popular with teens. All of these fit in well with group song fests.

A new semi-accordion with limited range is being sold for about $40; the full 130-bass starts at about $250. Guitars may be purchased from $20 to $500; concertinas, $35-$400; banjos, $45-$300; ukeleles, $4-$75.

Gift for school? If you know a youngster who is interested in school bands or orchestras, a talk with the school instrumental instructor and a dealer will help you select a particular instrument. But the youngster's preference is most important.

School-quality instruments most often recommended are woodwinds in the $125 range and brasses in the $150 range. Violins begin at $50; cellos at $90; and bass viols at $250.

An adult hobby? The serious-minded, quiet person is usually a natural for the piano, violin, flute and classical guitar.

The gregarious, "life of the party" type may prefer a recreational instrument — guitar, ukele'e, accordion!

For the fellows who's active in civic groups, a band instrument will put him in the swing of of things whenever there's a hometown parade or community concert.

Shoes Make Fine Gifts For The Boys

Shoes make fine Christmas gifts. They're bound to be a sure hit this year. There are many new styles available, from square-toed slip-ons to straps and buckle.

Most men have just about all the clothes they need, but eight out of ten are short of shoes.

Heading the high-fashion category, is the shoe with the new slimly tapered and squared - off toe.

Seen most often in leathers with a fine grain, this silhouette is featured in many variations of the slip-on styles or in two or three eyelet ties for both street and casual wear.

Soles are made of lightweight, supple leather, detailed with the new inverted moc seams. This seaming adds an elegant and lighter look and will be featured in a great many shoes.

Men who like casual attire will be easy to please with handsewn moccasins or the popular ankle-high "chukka" boot, available in soft brushed leathers with flexible leather soles.

Handsome effects are achieved in the deep brown shades, all of which contain less red than in the past, as well as in the neutral tones.

Greeting Cards Must Be Signed With Some Care

One of the most warm-hearted traditions of the Christmas season is the exchange of greeting cards. At this time of the year close friends and casual acquaintances take time out to express their best wishes.

However, sometimes it can be pretty confusing to receive a card from somebody you've never heard of. The proper way to sign a Christmas card often poses a problem for many people.

In the first place, one should never forget to put the complete return address on the envelope.

In the second place, the signature you use should be determined by the type of card and the person who receives it.

If you have chosen a gay, casual greeting for close friends, you can sign it simply with your first name. If you're married sign the first name of both, followed by the last name.

With married couples, the one signing the cards, always writes his or her name last.

If you prefer to have your cards printed, the wife's name comes first.

Capture Fun Of Holidays With Movies

Santas with shifting stomachs, saucer-eyed cherubs, carrot-nosed snowmen and the pyramids of packages that all punctuate Christmas — make it a shutterbug's paradise.

To help you capture the small fry and Santa in action on movie film, Bell & Howell passes along a few movie-making tips.

First, allot no less than 1½ feet of 8mm film or 3 feet of 16mm film for any single scene. That's approximately five second's shooting time. Anything shorter whips across the screen too quickly to identify and may add a comic note you didn't plan or want.

You can always edit an overlong scene, but one that's too short is lost.

Mother hanging the holly wreath on the front door, Gramps stringing colored lights around the house, the family's tree-hunting safari or Daddy trying an outsize Santa Claus costume are all good shots.

Second, remember that variety adds tang — variety of angle, scene length and distance between camera and subject. Plan to mix up closeups, medium and long shots.

You'll Make Hit With Good Record

A gift of records is a gift that promises hours of pleasure for years to come.

Happily, today records are made for every age and every musical taste. There are even records for tots, though not all are musical; some are the telling of stories.

The reading of poetry and many classics in literature now appear on record.

For that matter, it is possible to learn a foreign language, improve your golf game or study other subjects by record.

There have been vast improvements in the quality of recordings within just the past few years . . . the new stereophonic records are something our parents scarcely hoped to dream about.

Original Broadway shows, the finest operas and orchestras may now resound throughout our own living rooms.

Modern record covers are so attractive that you will find it a pleasure to just browse through a record shop as you might in an art gallery.

Plan for a record Christmas this year. Everyone will love you for it!

Melted Snow Brought In By Chemistry

All the snowy splendor of a traditional White Christmas can be yours in holiday decorations this year at the flick of a finger — whether the outside temperature is way up high, or very low!

Unlike nature's uncertain product, this man-made snow lasts till the end of the holiday season — still looking as fresh and cool as a new snowfall. The artificial snow is the result of blending several resins with a fluorinated hydrocarbon — the coldness or freezing action in most mechanical regrigerators.

In the snow cans the hydrocarbon acts both as a solvent for the resins and, because of its ability to expand rapidly when released under pressure, as a propellent for the resins.

Wintry effects can be created both indoors and out with these man-made snows. The chemical is harmless and does not deteriorate under ordinary temperatures and humidity conditions.

This snow can be used to "frost" window panes or will simulate fresh - fallen snow on evergreens!

Other novel effects can be propaper or cardboard cutouts of Christmas figures may be made, and placed on the glass while the "snow" is sprayed around them. Either a negative or positive print of the mask may be made.

Cut-out cardboard Santas, for example, can be sprayed in several snow colors to make inexpensive but eye - catching place cards for holiday parties.

There is also a welcome note for the housewife who faces the task of cleaning up after the holiday season. All she has to do is wipe the coated areas with a warm, damp cloth and off comes the snow.

French Cuff Shirts Seen On Increase

French cuffed shirts are increasing in popularity. This will help in solving your Christmas gift problems for the men on your list. With the return of the French cuff, cuff links are increasing in popularity too.

An exciting, greater-than-ever collection of cuff links is waiting to bring an extra touch of elegance to the discriminating man's wardrobe.

Just to name a few: there's colored Italian pearl carved into any number of shapes . . . highly shaded ceramic tiles . . . raised designs on enamel and intricately etched metals. All these give the cuff link a place of honor in men's jewelry.

Use is made of braided fabrics and leathers. There are carved bone buttons to go with sportswear. For Christmas giving this year there will be cuff links to match every man's taste.

Then, of course, there are tie clasps to match. A visit to a men's store will show you a never-ending variety of jewelry for the man on your list. Look for matching belt buckles, key chains, too.

Gift Package Sure To Please

Keyed to helping a man appear his best is the new gift package idea . . . attractively wrapped combinations of accessories, in matching colors and patterns.

These gift combinations boast great eye-appeal for Dad or Junior, and . . . they're practical, too. They save a shopper time, and the man or boy receiving them can be sure that the colors and patterns are properly coordinated.

Plan Festive Home Exterior For Holidays

The real spirit of Christmas is in giving — so share part of the home's holiday mood with passers-by and neighbors. Give your entrance way a true Yule look!

Your doorway will sparkle a gay Christmas greeting if you capture the traditional mood with an ornament bedecked spray of evergreen, gaily tied up with a bright red bow.

Fresh or plastic wreaths with berries, nuts and pine cones add that special holiday happy note to doorways, too.

Colorful variations are an oversize "candy-type" cane, tied with a big, big bow; a huge stocking — possibly filled with pretend gifts — or a miniature Christmas tree that can be made by mounting flat branches in a tree shape and decking them with baubles.

Santa Claus cut-outs can be made or purchased; easy to handle "snow" sprays lend interest to glass panels . . . cut-out snow-flakes can be mounted on the door.

An outline of your door made with tree lights extends your greeting into the late hours. Evergreen trees on the lawn, low placed shrubs and planter boxes at the front of the house — all lend themselves well to colorful night lighting!

And, friends and neighbors will enjoy the "warm hello" of your outdoor decor!

SOMETHING NEW!

The Christmas holiday brings with it a wealth of stately religious hymns and heart-warming carols Even pop tunes add note of listening pleasure. And, gift recordings can extend that pleasure through the whole year.

Music lovers this Christmas have a special treat awaiting them in sterophonic sound, the new tonal magic now available for home high fidelity music systems.

KIMONO CHRISTM that's what it will be the man who recei this smart robe. Sure be his favorite gift! all-wool jersy, more t a yard wide.

EVERYBODY SLEEPS so you can't go wrong with a gift of sleepwear, especially when it's as gay as this no-iron pajama set. Made in a blend of cotton and Avisco rayon, its new cropped top and slim pants have a jaunty Spanish air!

Be Sure And Wrap Gifts Of Money

We may often find that cash or a check is the best solution for problems on the gift list.

The question usually is how to give it. Why not put it in a billfold, or wallet? There are any number of styles in pocket and purse accessories which make ideal "gift wrappings" for money.

A man will appreciate a coat wallet which also holds forms, stamps, etc. For a teenager, a mulitple-picture passcase on a cofcolorful billfold is most useful. And women, accustomed to using a coin purse, will love the new French wallets.

Put checks, or "cold" cash in a billfold . . . it's a warm way to say, "Merry Christmas"!

Mailed Gifts Must Be Good In Traveling

If you're sending your gift through the mail . . .

Protect the fancy wrappings, bows and frills with corrugated cardboard or a swash of tissue paper . . .

Protect the gifts with a strong cardboard box or wrap in heavy corrugated cardboard . . .

Pack the contents tightly. If the items in the box shift around, the post office can refuse to accept your package.

Packages going to foreign countries MUST be sealed. Domestic mail packages MAY be sealed, provided they bear a label which says, "May be opened for postal inspection."

Use strong, plain, new wrapping paper. Tie large or heavy packages with enough string to encircle package both ways at least twice.

Use two printed mailing labels one on each side of package. Be sure to print name and COMPLETE address of person the package is going to. Don't forget your own name and address.

Take your time when printing names and addresses. Don't make things difficult for the mail man and the people in the post office.

Above all . . . don't let your Christmas gifts wind up in the dead letter office!

FOR MISS, MISSUS

Apparel Makes Top Notch Gift

No matter what her age, you're sure to make a real hit with the Miss and the Missus on your gift list — if you give her something glamorous to wear!

Tops on most wist lists are "tops" — sweaters and blouses.

All the many virtues the ladies love in fine sweaters are brought to the fore for Christmas! Yarns are softer, smoother, bulkier and lovelier than in seasons past.

Colors are truer, more diversified and flattering in the whitest whites to the deepest blacks. A wide range of exciting browns, blues and greens are being shown everywhere.

In styling, there are big rolled collars, big flat collars, tiny neckline bows and jewel necklines with yoke or shoulder trim.

Sweaters most often are longer than before in sport styles — somewhat shorter in more dressy styles.

News in sweaters are the shaggy smoothies (shaggy to the eye, so-smooth to the touch); in eye compelling solid colors, bold argyles, jacquards and novelty patterns.

For the sportswoman there are hooded sweaters, dramatic ski types and long, deep and cuddly coat styled sweaters.

BLOUSES BEAUTIFUL

Fashion's decided emphasis on the smart suit sharply brings into focus a wonderful line-up of blouses — especially "presentable" for Christmas.

Overblouses, tuck-in pretties, tailored shirts and shirtwaists are all gifted for the gals in your life . . .

Cottons, silks, orlons, and a host of magnificent blended fabrics take to rich colors, lavish embroideries, patterns, ruffles and laces with smart aplomb!

Old-fashioned in mood prints, such as paisleys, tie-prints and provincials give a demure look to young-spirited blouses.

If you're in doubt as to whether to choose a "plain" or "fancy" blouse for her, then the right and happy compromise is a handsomely tailored pure silk shirt with short, elbow length or French-cuffed long sleeves.

AND—CAR COATS

Something extra-special for your "Christmas She" might very well be a versatile car coat!

In the few years since these coats leaped into fashion prominence, there has been an upsurge of exciting variations on the car coat theme . . .

Utilitarian poplins, melton taken on fanciful fur or fake fur cloths, narrow and wide wale corduroys and heavy body knits have collars, cuffs and linings . . . other coats show off with popcorn, shaker and novelty knit trims; details such as plaid or patterned linings, peg buttons, leather accents, stitched trims and seamings — all give fashion importance to these coats.

So, double check her size, keep in mind her favorite hue, and take your cue for giving with something she can wear!

Men, Women Alike Want Good Gifts

The line of new lightweight leather luggage ensembles for Christmas giving is just out-of-this-world.

Something really new and distinctive this year is the "Velour a" or brushed leather luggage. This is leather that has been finished on the flesh side, producing a scuff-resistant bag with a soft and luxurious suede finish. The smooth grain side of the leather becomes the lining. In addition to its handsome appearance, it can take all the rough treatment that traveling affords without being marred. The surface can simply be brushed to its original state with a stiff brush or sandpaper.

FOR THE GUYS

Also very new and very lightweight are the soft leather suitcases with only a light magnesium frame. The flexible leather sides allow room for a suit, sports jacket and four or five pairs of slacks without wrinkling, and still leaves room for a man's other needs.

According to luggage retailers, the luggage pieces most wanted by men include a 'suiter bag and matching companion case.' Usually these are either in suntan or ginger but there are many other styles, coverings and colors for the less conservative traveler to choose from.

In fact, subdued plaids, small houndstooth checks, and gabardines in blue, grey and even red are gaining in popularity.

Luggage should be selected to give the receiver every convenience. Although a two-suiter bag is the most popular size, one-, three- and four-suiter bags are also available. Check for sturdy handles, even stitching, carefully fitted linings and evenly coated hardware.

If the luggage is to receive extra hard use, bear in mind that sturdiness may be preferable to lightness in weight, because a good investment in luggage that can "take it" will mean fewer replacements.

FOR THE GALS

Women of all ages travel more than ever, according to statistics, so a luggage gift is both practical and luxurious.

Which pieces to buy are usually decided upon according to the travel habits of the receiver, but a basic group generally includes three cases to which other specialized designs may be added later.

Most useful are the pullman or wardrobe (hanger case), a weekender or overnight bag, and a train box or fitted case for cosmetics.

Other additions are the hat-box, the combination hat-and-shoe case compartmented shoe bag, hanging garment carrier, duffle bag, etc.

Any of these in combination, or singly to match luggage already owned, will be found in great variety of coverings and colors from one-piece molded styles to high-fashion toned leathers.

Skiers' Ranks On Increase

The ranks of skiers are growing year by year and if your "gift problem" is among them, buy something for the slopes.

For instance' a colorful parka, a pair of sleek stretch pants, lined leather gloves that extend well above the wrist to keep the snow out, or a handy leather pouch that fastens to a belt to hold car keys, cigarettes, etc.

BY EVERYONE

Gifts Of Books Always Welcome

Look to books if you are having difficulty in deciding about a sure-to-please gift in a price range of from 25 cents to as high as you want to go.

Paper back books are the answer to less than a $1 gifts and to what to include in stockings. These range from Westerns through 'how-to-do's" to classics.

Better than giving a book of fiction, which you can't be sure the recipient hasn't read, give them a book along the reference lines . . . a good dictionary, atlas, Thesaurus, etc.

Of course, fiction is most enjoyable and makes a grand gift if you choose wisely. Select books that are "hot off the press" and you can be pretty sure that they won't have been read.

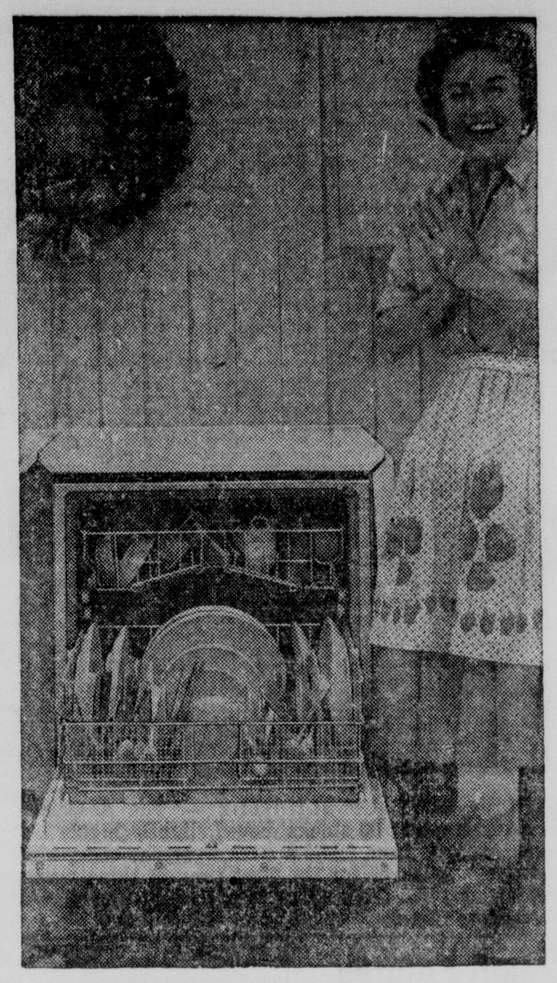
In the luxury class, a gift of a classic, bound in leather and stamped in gold, is possibly the grandest gift you can choose. Though even more expensive and naturally nicer are sets of this kind.

Another big-gift idea — membership in a book club and enough cash to carry it for a year.

The "bedside" books are good, too . . . these are usually collections of short stories by various authors and often include some poetry. They make lovely pick-up-and-read,-at-any-time, books.

Within a person's particular field of interest there are usually dozens and dozens of books that would fit in and not duplicate what they may already own.

Pick books and you will have picked a really grand gift.



SHE KNOWS you love her if you give her something that makes life easier. Gift her with this "Convert-Table" dishwasher unit. It's portable, can later be installed. Doubles as handy breakfast bar or bonus working surface.

TO OBSERVE

Rules For Safe Tree Light-Up

Everyone should have a beautifully decorated Christmas tree, but . . . everyone should remember that same beautiful tree can be dangerous.

If you don't follow a few simple rules, your gay Christmas tree can become a grim fire-hazard!

Mount the tree in a stand that holds water. This will keep the tree fresh and green.

Keep the tree away from open fireplaces, radiators, TV sets and electric lights.

Don't overload the tree's circuit by putting too many lights on one circuit. Make sure that the wires are not frayed! Turn off the lights when there's nobody around to watch them!

Trimmings should be fire-proof. Keep the base of the tree free from combustibles such as loose papers and ribbons.

Lighted candles are a menace as well as outmoded. Don't use them!

Be sure to dispose of the tree in a fire-safe area. If you intend to burn it in the fire-place, don't leave it untended, as more than just the tree may go up in smoke.

Yes — you can make certain that you and your family really do have a safe and happy Christmas!

Old Carols Still Ring At Yuletide

Christmas season—clear, crisp nights, stars and sparkling lights . . . and Christmas Carols ringing across the scene!

Many of the carols we hear this Christmas have been handed down generation to generation, century by century.

Changes have been made in words and music, according to the changing times, but most of the Christmas songs will be just as you might have heard them hundreds of years ago.

According to the Bible story of Christmas, the first carol was sung by a chorus of angels—the "Gloria in Excelsio Deo," "Glory to God in the Highest."

The early settlers in America brought many of the old European carols to our country, thus giving us a heritage of songs as no other country in the world enjoys.

"Adeste Fidelis" which we also sing with the words 'Come All Ye Faithful," long a traditional hymn, has an unknown origin.

"Away in a Manger," Luther's hymn, came to us from Germany. "God Rest Ye, Merry Gentlemen" from England and the lovely "O, Holy Night" from France. From Austria came "Silent Night, Holy Night."

Americans, too, have contributed to our rich heritage of Christmas songs. The Unitarian minister Edmund H. Sears composed "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear."

Perhaps the best known and most beloved of all American carols, "O Little Town of Bethlehem" was written in 1868 by Phillips Brooks, a young Episcopalian minister.

The gay holiday song, "Jingle Bells," has been popular for almost a century and was composed by another American, churchman, John Pierpont.

Our big selection of Christmas songs, hymns and carols express the friendly, joyful spirit of the season . . . and are loved by all!

Choose Baby's Gift Directly From Counter

If there's an infant or toddler on your gift list, we suggest you don't make up your mind about what to give until you have visited one of the Baby Departments or Shops.

Here's the "why": infants' and toddlers' fashions have moved up into the "designer class." Items for this age are right in style and you'll want to give something very "new."

For example, the popular-with-all-ages stretch tights are now in sizes for the very smallest young ladies. They serve the purpose of showing that this young lady knows someone who is in the know about fashion . . . and they keep her dainty legs warm as well!

The toddler can carry through with the look of the season by covering her tights with a short, pleated, plaid skirt.

Dresses trimmed with colors to match tights are being shown too and are as cute as can be. Throughout the fashion scene for this age are up-to-the-minute styles.

Back to the wee ones: even the infant girl can be shown off in miniature plaids and good-for-fall bright red is on the rise. Dainty prints and bulky knits too are offered for this age group.

Mother is going to be especially delighted with the new easy closure features found in many styles; new grow features too.

Professional Touch Nice In Packaging

Ribbons and designs on gift packages are wonderful "icing on the cake" . . . but they look best when the paper is smoothly and attractively wrapped around the box.

Here are the steps a professional uses in wrapping packages:

Place the paper face down on the table. Put the box, upside down if possible, on the paper. Place it so the design will show to the best advantage when the package is wrapped and tied.

If the box cannot be turned upside down, cut the paper about ½" wider than is needed and turn the raw edge under. Arrange so that the overlap will come under the ribbon or trim you plan to use.

Cut the paper wide enough to go around the box and overlap 1½in (less for a very small box), and long enough to extend a little more than half the depth of the box at the ends. This extending length will have to vary slightly according to the shape of the box and should be a trifle more for a deep box than for a shallow one. Don't scrimp.

Bring the paper up over the sides, overlapping as near the center of the box as possible, and fasten with a gummed seal or with tape.

Finish one end at a time. Fold the sides in smoothly. Fold the top, which is to be the bottom of the package, down first, then bring up the fold that is on the table up over all the folds, securing with tape or sticker.

Turn the box over. You are now ready to add your own special trims.

BOOTS FOR SPORTSMEN

Boots rate high as gifts with the sportsman. Check his shoes for the size—or if in doubt, you can always give him a gift certificate and he can select his own.

Sturdy leather boots with flexible soles, that protect feet from rough terrain and yet allow freedom of movement for comfort over long stretches of walking or standing are preferred. Hunting boots, ski boots and hiking boots come into this category.

VERY FITTING GIFT! Want to give him shoes?—these will fit if you come close to the size! Very smart casuals too. Left to right: golf shoe in polished leather with removable kilte; ultra rugged brushed leather; slip-on with the popular buckle-and-strap in the new lightweight, three-eyelet tie in soft but square toe; new high chukka boot in polished grained leather; and a three-eyelet in grained leather with decorative side-stitching.

Toppings For Gay Belles, Dressing-Up

Earrings dramatize both the story of texture and the power of color. Button earrings take the lead for classic wear, and the upsweep and dangle designs are splendidly related to the "dress-up" look in after-dark fshions.

An important trend in jewelry accessorizing this season calls for mixing as well as matching. This is seen in gold earrings worn with pearls, and colored stones with a gold necklace. The traditional "'matched look" of necklace and earrings will continue strong, and has been elaborated to include the pairing of earrings with pin or bracelet.

Place Gay, New Boots In Stocking

Perfect answer to both "cold feet" and "hot fashion" is the new leather city boot that takes nasty weather in stride. They're also the perfect answer to what to give your favorite gal for Christmas.

Designed in soft, supple leathers in top fashion colors, city boots are a joy to wear, and to behold. Lightweight and water-repellent, they have slim and trim leather soles that completely eliminates the clumsy old overshoe look.

Starting at the ankle and "climbing up" as high as the knee — these boots are styled for city or casual wear and evenings on the town.

Casual boots are most often made of soft, brushed leather or finely textured grain with comfortable low or mid-heel. Novelty closings such as buckled straps, side zippers, or buttons add interest. Colors are many . . . the most popular being vivid reds, greens, neutral tans and browns.

For afternoon wear, the boot goes dressier with finely tapered toe and slim high heel in soft, smooth leathers.

Featured in all high fashion colors, these are designed to truly complement a woman's smart daytime apparel.

The elegant evening boot is seen in ultra-soft white, pastel, gold and silver leathers. These are usually slipon styles with tops that curve up over the ankle with soft draping — or with higher tops that can be crushed down softly toward the ankle. Heels, high and very thin, frequently are aglitter with studded rhinestones.

Mexican Fire Plant Merely Poinsettia

More than a hundred years ago our Ambassador to Mexico Joel Roberts Poinsett, took a fancy to a brilliant tropical plant, known as the Mexican Fire Plant.

Returning to his home in South Carolina, he started growing the plant from cuttings he brought from Mexico. Soon the scarlet-leafed plant came to the attention of American botanists, and under the name "poinsettia," it was destined to become symbolic of Christmas.

In tropic climates, poinsettia is grown in varietes of white, pink and yellow, but by far the most popular is the bright red that carries out the color scheme of Christmas.

FOR CHRISTMAS

Jewelry Makes Hit With Ladies

This year, all types of necklaces, pins, bracelets and earrings will be high on every woman's most-wanted list of Christmas gifts, says the Fashion Coordination Institute.

The deep - plunging neckline, bracelet sleeves and the many other "fashion-focus" notes in this year's style scene all combine to provide an emphatic and beautiful foil for jewelry.

For the important classic look, symbolized by the tailored suit, the handsome adornment of jewelry, particularly good, is almost a fashion necessity.

And, since the major fashion colors are distinctly neutral ones, jewelry is of stellar importance either as the tailored accent of glistening sheen or as the dash of color.

The bracelet - length sleeves have inspired new and wonderful variety in bracelets of both flexible and rigid designs. In narrow, color-sparked bangles . . . richly textured twists and gleaming, polished curves often set with multi-colored jewels — bracelets offer opportunities for the really wonderful gift.

Since many of the new bracelets are born to be worn one on each arm — a gift of paired and matching bracelets will be most appreciated.

The year's new charm bracelets are massively designed with richly textured, chunky charms dashed with brilliance and jewel colors.

New necklaces underscore the beauty of new necklaces with mounted stones linked together in flashing colors, crystals with gold beads, pearls combined with the sleek and handsome look of pronged, linked or woven gold.

Chains, beads and pearls look smart in high-placed, flat-lying chokers and in deep necklace "bibs" from 22 to 27 inches in length.

Pins poised at the waistline, scattered at a dropped shoulder line, used to center a midriff or to dramatize the length of a jacket do wonder-work with the season's new styling.

Versatile and significant, jeweled or "solid gold" pins are presented in many sizes and with fashion rightness for every "placement."

The beloved circle, leaf, plume and literally dozens of other gracefully shaped pins arrive this year in new texture and double-texture interest that is fashion-fresh with the new fabrics and colors.

"Pins-in-groups," or the long-favored "scatter pins" return in enchanting new guises. In plain and jeweled designs they are important in all-of-a-size groups and in "set" that vary size, colors and shapes for a related rather than identical look.

Another special "pin note" of fashion import this winter is the "accent" pair of pins worn on the left evening glove.

Gift Variety Makes Giving Inexpensive

It's easy to give wings to a woman's wishes at Christmas time . . . especially when local shops are showing hundreds upon hundreds of desirable, wished-for giftable items!

Most often the primary and determining factor is the price you have to pay — but you can flatter her wishes and pamper your budget too, with a bit of careful pre-planning.

GIVE HER JEWELRY — you can choose the finest diamonds at extravagant prices if you can afford it, but simple costume jewelry items nowadays are crafted with all the precision and beauty of rare pieces!

FURS — perhaps she's dreaming of a full length mink . . . but if your choice is a "man-made" precious pile fiber one, she'll cuddle into it with pleasure. Perhaps her yen for mink doesn't extend to coats — she may be thrilled with a gift of a handsome mink (or other fur) collar, a cape, a stole or perhaps a rich-looking fine orlon or cashmere sweater with a real fur collar.

NEW WATCHES — you needn't spend a fortune to find a glamour watch for your special "she" There's the greatest line-up ever, of frivolous fancies in dependable timepieces. With fancy bracelet bands, novel faces, colors of the rainbow and striking designs, it's difficult to tell whether these novelty watches cost under twenty-five dollars or over a hundred!

FINE PERFUMES—Of course, she loves the finest, and you do want to give her the best. But you don't have to buy the exorbitant decanter size, when her favorite fragrance will thrill her equally when you give her that smart purse size flacon (and you'll help her make it last longer when you complement it with a twin cologne, so much less expensive, too).

So, if she wants the moon on a silver platter, shop around carefully — and give it to her on a "sparkle-like silver" aluminum!

Card Exchange Is Over Century Old

One hundred and sixteen years ago, the English educator and art patron Henry Cole, asked his friend J.C. Horsely, an artist of the Royal Academy in London, to design a card for him. On it he wrote the now classic greeting, "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to You." He printed a thousand lithographed copies, which were then hand-tinted by a professional "colorer."

That December early in the month, Cole posted some of the cards to his friends, and offered the remainder for sale in a London stationers shop. These, in all probability, were the very first Christmas Cards ever printed

Christmas Cards appeared in America only shortly thereafter. Their early origin is uncertain, but one story gives credit for the first Yule greeting to a New York State dry goods merchant, R. J. Pease of Albany.

Pease designed, printed and mailed one of the first examples of American Christmas Cards as an advertisement for his goods.

Each of the gifts received by the Infant Jesus from the Three Wise Men had a symbolic meaning: gold expressed the royalty of the Babe; frankincense for His priesthood; myrrh for Christ's entombment.

New Earrings Are Exciting And Different

Exciting and different are the brand-new hoop-type earrings that stay on, fit comfortably without clasps, clips or screwbacks!

No, they're not glued on! They nestle comfortably at the back of the ear above the lobe; front view makes them look as though they go through the ear.

A wide, wide variety of classic, tailored and more dressy stone-studded styles will be shown in time for holiday gifting.

MOMENTS FOR MEMORY

Christmas trees and Christmas lights,
Mistletoe and holly,
Packages and such delights
Make this season jolly.

Families gather close around—
Faces bright and glowing.
Yuletide warmth and love abound;
Hearts are overflowing.

These moments you want to save: and pictures tell the story
Of all the joys on Christmas day — all its warmth and glory!

HANDEL, BACH

Christmas Music Had Top Scorers

It's strange but true: Two of the most famous composers of Christmas music were both born in the same year, 1685, lived for many years within thirty miles of each other — and yet they never met!

The composers were Johann Sebastian Bach and George Frederick Handel.

Handel's "Messiah" will be heard, at least in part, in numerous churches and schools throughout the country. "Joy to the World" is taken from the "Messiah." The musical theme of "While Shepherd's Watched Their Flocks" also comes from this master.

From Bach's "Christmas Oratorio" come the themes of several other well known chorales. He is also the composer of "How Brightly Beams the Morning Star."

Bach and Handel both proved themselves masters of Christmas music that is beautiful and easily enjoyed.

"To learn your luck for the year they say,
Burn a bayberry dip on Christmas day.
If the flame burns bright and the light shines clear,
Good luck will be yours through the year."

No one really knows exactly the origin or even the meaning, of the Yule log. We know, however that it is of pre-Christian origin. The ancient Druids blessed it with great ceremony to celebrate the beginning of the winter season.

In some lands even today, the Yule log is decorated with flowers and wreaths, annointed with wine, then put in the fireplace and set ablaze.

To bring good luck they tell you, the log must not be allowed to burn out during the Christmas season. Besides, a part of it has to be kept to start the fire next year.

It is believed that the ashes of the Yule log have the power to increase the fertility of the land. Thus, in many places the farmers scatter the ashes over their land on New Year's Day.

Another custom that came to us from pre-Christian times, is kissing under the mistletoe. Once the mistletoe was used as a weapon of death. According to a Norse mythology, the god of Evil, named Loki, planned to destroy the god of the life-giving warmth Balder.

Balder's mother who was the most influential of all the goddesses, obtained a promise from all living things that they would not harm Balder. All agreed, except the mistletoe who hadn't been asked. So, it was with a mistletoe arrow that Loki induced a blind man to kill the sun god. However, higher powers intervened, and Balder was restored to life. The mistletoe was placed under Frigga's care and she, the mother of Balder, saw to it that it was never again used to do harm.

MAKE IT A BLUE CHRISTMAS and make her happy! This Cerulean (blue) Mink is young-at-heart-styled to appeal to every woman no matter what age. Called the "Up 'n Over," it's designed to go on over the head, though it sometimes comes with a hidden full-length front zipper. Modestly priced!

UPCOMING SEASON

Merriment, Joy Typify Yuletide

"Merry Christmas" . . . these words ring out clearly during this season! Smiles are warmer, handclasps tighter laughter — gayer. Christmas is the time for more merriment.

Though everyone knows the religious significance of Christmas, often the deeper meaning is lost in the round of gift buying, gift wrapping and gift exchanging.

Often the holiday is a trial of anticipating gifts for all potential "givers." It becomes a bit of a "swap" time with "I must get something for Mary this year, after all she did give me that embroidered cloth" . . . or other!

But most important of all, more than 600 million people observe the natal day of He who is considered the greatest religious leader in history.

Although in the 1,959 years following His birth, the Christmas celebration has come to be a potpourri of ancient pagan ceremonials as oft-told Christmas legends point out, the essence of the day is "it is more blessed to give than receive" . . .

And, this simple statement gives credence to the jolly old Santa who represents the spirit of giving at Christmas.

As the Christmas bells ring out the message of peace and goodwill, brotherhood and tolerance, giving and forgiving come to the fore in His name.

Indulgent adults say "Christmas is for the children" . . . but it is the elders who set moods and patterns of the observance.

Make this a real Christmas! Unite the family in tree trimming festivities . . . sing the old carols and listen well to the words . . . and join friends and neighbors at the church of your choice.

Plan to make His day, a family day — the Christmas Story begins with "once upon a time there was a Father, a Mother and a CHILD . . ."

Melted Snow Brought In By Chemistry

All the snowy splendor of a traditional White Christmas can be yours in holiday decorations this year at the flick of a finger — whether the outside temperature is way up high, or very low!

Unlike nature's uncertain product, this man-made snow lasts till the end of the holiday season — still looking as fresh and cool as a new snowfall. The artificial snow is the result of blending several resins with a fluorinated hydrocarbon — the coldness or freezing action in most mechanical regrigerators.

In the snow cans the hydrocarbon acts both as a solvent for the resins and, because of its ability to expand rapidly when released under pressure, as a propellent for the resins.

Wintry effects can be created both indoors and out with these man-made snows. The chemical is harmless and does not deteriorate under ordinary temperatures and humidity conditions.

This snow can be used to "frost" window panes or will simulate fresh-fallen snow on evergreens!

Other novel effects can be propaper or cardboard cutouts of Christmas figures may be made, and placed on the glass while the "snow" is sprayed around them. Either a negative or positive print of the mask may be made.

Cut-out cardboard Santas, for example, can be sprayed in several snow colors to make inexpensive but eye-catching place cards for holiday parties.

There is also a welcome note for the housewife who faces the task of cleaning up after the holiday season. All she has to do is wipe the coated areas with a warm, damp cloth and off comes the snow.

Plan Festive Home Exterior For Holidays

The real spirit of Christmas is in giving — so share part of the home's holiday mood with passers-by and neighbors. Give your entrance way a true Yule look!

Your doorway will sparkle a gay Christmas greeting if you capture the traditional mood with an ornament bedecked spray of evergreen, gaily tied up with a bright red bow.

Fresh or plastic wreaths with berries, nuts and pine cones add that special holiday happy note to doorways, too.

Colorful variations are an oversize "candy-type" cane, tied with a big, big bow; a huge stocking — possibly filled with pretend gifts — or a miniature Christmas tree that can be made by mounting flat branches in a tree shape and decking them with baubles.

Santa Claus cut-outs can be made or purchased; easy to handle "snow" sprays lend interest to glass panels . . . cut-out snow-flakes can be mounted on the door.

An outline of your door made with tree lights extends your greeting into the late hours. Evergreen trees on the lawn, low-placed shrubs and planter boxes at the front of the house — all lend themselves well to colorful night lighting!

And, friends and neighbors will enjoy the "warm hello" of your outdoor decor!

SOMETHING NEW!

The Christmas holiday brings with it a wealth of stately religious hymns and heart-warming carols Even pop tunes add notes of listening pleasure. And, gift recordings can extend that pleasure through the whole year.

Music lovers this Christmas have a special treat awaiting them in sterophonic sound, the new tonal magic now available for home high fidelity music systems.

Young Misses Like Jewelry At Christmas

There's a lot of fashion news in the robe story for Christmas giving.

From classic wrap-around flannels, to elegant wide-sweep beauties, the robe story is elegant!

Most popular in both casual and more luxurious fabrics is the loose or fitted style in the duster length.

Smartly printed cottons, cotton flannels and cotton quilts make up into neat novelties for about-the-house wear.

Woven nylon quilts, nylon tricot quilts and nylon chiffon quilts shape up into some of the smartest new robes.

The perennially popular quilted rayon, new handlings in chenille and corduroy, soft wools and fleeces, as well as the more traditional silk, lined nylons and satin-types continue to score in robe styles.

Zippered front, smooth fitting brunch coats . . . patch pocketed, button front dusters . . . semi-fitted or free 'n' loose peignoir styles lead the array with such details as braid trims, smocking, bows, binding and ric rac trims, lavish lace touches, handsome yoke and sleeve handlings, beautiful prints and — above all — wonderful wearability, sofe colors and usually, washability.

This year, say "Merry Christmas" with lingerie for all the gals!

For Christmas gifting, gown selections are most diversified — they range from dainty, baby-doll shorties to more conservative waltz-lengths and to the floor-length styles.

Make your gift more lavish, ensemble the gown with a matching peignoir . . . cape-like collars, lace by the yard, appliques and embroidery help make the new season crop of ensembles quite exciting.

No matter what style you favor, there's a riot of color, trim, fine silks and nylons awaiting your final choice.

IN INTIMATE APPAREL

The return of the natural waistline heralds a revival of elegant underpinnings — fine nylon tricots, nylon crepes, silks, etc., are used to underscore elegantly detailed slips and half slips.

Applique trims, fine laces, medallion inserts, the daintiest of pleated detail, trapunto trims and scalloping — are but a few of the many accents that make lingerie so lovely, so much wanted at Christmas time.

BOUFFANTS ARE BACK

Shirtwaist dresses, full skirt handlings and a return to more flared skirts make the bouffant petticoat a welcome addition to any wardrobe.

Rufiles, tiers of skirts, lots of pleats, ribbons, lace — all distinguish the underskirts of the season.

Robes Rate With Femmes As Presents

No girl is ever too young for beauty or for fashion, the Jewelry Industry Council claims, and this truth offers some special Christmas gift ideas for the younger set.

Girls of all ages have created a major fashion trend with their passion for the tiny necklaces known as miniatures.

A small design or pearl hanging from a fine gold chain and nestling in the hollow of the throat has proven its power with little girls of six and those over sixteen as well. Even the 3-to-6-year-old set has its own special version of these popular miniatures.

Narrow gold bracelets are another fashion favorite of all ages! And — the power of charms goes on forever. Charms marking every sentiment and every event for every age make a special and lasting gift! Scarab bracelets are big, big fashion among the high school and college set and are often worn two and three at a time.

Bar and circle pins are tops with the younger set and there can't be too many of them. In classic gold for daytime, or set with tiny pearls or stones for dress-up wear, a circle pin is a fashion must.

And, of course, a string of cultured pearls is every girl's most glorious Christmas dream.

Jewelry makes a lady out of a young girl, and a Christmas gift of pure delight.

Ornaments Make Large Industry

The fragile Bubbles of glass with which we adorn our Christmas trees are largely a family industry in Europe, especially Germany, and also in Japan.

In the tiny villages that cling to the steep mountainsides, whole families engage in the process of turning out Chirstmas decoration.

Special shapes and designs are the exclusive properties of certain families, the patterns handed down from father to son, for centuries unchanged.

Using a flame, the father carefully blows the thin glass tubing to the desired shape with the aid of an iron mold. His son removes the hot ornament to the cooling table. Next the mother silvers the inside, and the daughters apply painted designs.

BEAUTIFUL HOSTESS or beautiful gift . . for either purpose this hostess gown belongs on the Christmas scene. In luxurious Stehli silk, a year 'round weight. Belt in front or back!

AT YULETIDE

Instrument Gift Hits Good Note

A gift of a musical instrument can be a key to "solo" or group enjoyment whether for a child, teenager or adult and is a present that is treasured long past the holidays!

Here are some pointers from the American Music Conference to start you on your way to select your gift of music!

A family gift? The instrument best suited for multi-purpose use by all members of the family is the piano or organ.

Spinet pianos with good tone and action, range from $500 to $2,000. Table model electric organs suitable for home use run to $4,000.

Instrument for a child? Easy-to-play instruments are popular with even the youngest children and are an excellent way to introduce them to the fun of music.

For the young fry the most popular are melody bells, xylophones, triangles, colorful drums and rhythm sticks. Give five to seven-year-olds plastic flutes, harmonicas or ukeleles. These instruments are available for from $1 to $10.

A teenager's fun? Instruments that go where the fun goes — such as guitar, ukelele, accordion, concertina or banjo — are most popular with teens. All of these fit in well with group song fests.

A new semi-accordion with limited range is being sold for about $40; the full 130-bass starts at about $250. Guitars may be purchased from $20 to $500; concertinas, $35-$400; banjos, $45-$300; ukeleles, $4-$75.

Gift for school? If you know a youngster who is interested in school bands or orchestras, a talk with the school instrumental instructor and a dealer will help you select a particular instrument. But the youngster's preference is most important.

School-quality instruments most often recommended are woodwinds in the $125 range and brasses in the $150 range. Violins begin at $50; cellos at $90; and bass viols at $250.

An adult hobby? The serious-minded, quiet person is usually a natural for the piano, violin, flute and classical guitar.

The gregarious, "life of the party" type may prefer a recreational instrument — guitar, ukele'e, accordion!

For the fellows who's active in civic groups, a band instrument will put him in the swing of of things whenever there's a hometown parade or community concert.

Shoes Make Fine Gifts For The Boys

Shoes make fine Christmas gifts. They're bound to be a sure hit this year. There are many new styles available, from square-toed slip-ons to straps and buckle.

Most men have just about all the clothes they need, but eight out of ten are short of shoes.

Heading the high-fashion category, is the shoe with the new slimly tapered and squared-off toe.

Seen most often in leathers with a fine grain, this silhouette is featured in many variations of the slip-on styles or in two or three eyelet ties for both street and casual wear.

Soles are made of lightweight, supple leather, detailed with the new inverted moc seams. This seaming adds an elegant and lighter look and will be featured in a great many shoes.

Men who like casual attire will be easy to please with handsewn moccasins or the popular ankle-high "chukka" boot, available in soft brushed leathers with flexible leather soles.

Handsome effects are achieved in the deep brown shades, all of which contain less red than in the past, as well as in the neutral tones.

Greeting Cards Must Be Signed With Some Care

One of the most warm-hearted traditions of the Christmas season is the exchange of greeting cards. At this time of the year close friends and casual acquaintances take time out to express their best wishes.

However, sometimes it can be pretty confusing to receive a card from somebody you've never heard of. The proper way to sign a Christmas card often poses a problem for many people.

In the first place, one should never forget to put the complete return address on the envelope.

In the second place, the signature you use should be determined by the type of card and the person who receives it.

If you have chosen a gay, casual greeting for close friends, you can sign it simply with your first name. If you're married sign the first name of both, followed by the last name.

With married couples, the one signing the cards, always writes his or her name last.

If you prefer to have your cards printed, the wife's name comes first.

Capture Fun Of Holidays With Movies

Santas with shifting stomachs, saucer-eyed cherubs, carrot-nosed snowmen and the pyramids of packages that all punctuate Christmas — make it a shutterbug's paradise.

To help you capture the small fry and Santa in action on movie film, Bell & Howell passes along a few movie-making tips.

First, allot no less than 1½ feet of 8mm film or 3 feet of 16mm film for any single scene. That's approximately five second's shooting time. Anything shorter whips across the screen too quickly to identify and may add a comic note you didn't plan or want.

You can always edit an overlong scene, but one that's too short is lost.

Mother hanging the holly wreath on the front door, Gramps stringing colored lights around the house, the family's tree-hunting safari or Daddy trying an outsize Santa Claus costume are all good shots.

Second, remember that variety adds tang — variety of angle, scene length and distance between camera and subject. Plan to mix up closeups, medium and long shots.

French Cuff Shirts Seen On Increase

French cuffed shirts are increasing in popularity. This will help in solving your Christmas gift problems for the men on your list. With the return of the French cuff, cuff links are increasing in popularity too.

An exciting, greater-than-ever collection of cuff links is waiting to bring an extra touch of elegance to the discriminating man's wardrobe.

Just to name a few: there's colored Italian pearl carved into any number of shapes . . . highly shaded ceramic tiles . . . raised designs on enamel and intricately etched metals. All these give the cuff link a place of honor in men's jewelry.

Use is made of braided fabrics and leathers. There are carved bone buttons to go with sportswear. For Christmas giving this year there will be cuff links to match every man's taste.

Then, of course, there are tie clasps to match. A visit to a men's store will show you a never-ending variety of jewelry for the man on your list. Look for matching belt buckles, key chains, too.

Gift Package Sure To Please

Keyed to helping a man appear his best is the new gift package idea . . . attractively wrapped combinations of accessories, in matching colors and patterns.

These gift combinations boast great eye-appeal for Dad or Junior, and . . . they're practical, too. They save a shopper time, and the man or boy receiving them can be sure that the colors and patterns are properly coordinated.

PICK A TIE TO SUIT not only his outfits, but his personality as well. A design such as a bold foulard is good for an extrovert; a dark toned solid with small motif for the ultra conservative, and for the Ivy type a repp.

Child's Portrait Is Welcome Gift

Portrait photographs make wonderful, personal gifts as warm and alive as a handshake and as welcome as a sprig of Christmas cheer on a blustery December day.

Children especially make stunning portraits, as they pass a new milestone each Christmas.

Here are some tips to remember when having the small fry photographed:

Be sure the child is well rested and fed. Hair should be simply styled and natural looking. Avoid the plastered down style for boys; too tight curls for little girls. Dress the child in snug-fitting clothes — perhaps last year's — so they will have a smooth line. Be sure they are neatly pressed; avoid ruffles or flounces that detract.

If the child has a favorite toy, take it along; it will help the child relax. Many photographers suggest that the best portrait can be made if the child is not told he is to have his picture taken until he arrives at the studio.

Although most photographers prefer to have mother or parents in the studio during the sitting, by all means let the photographer take the picture. He can get the best expression in a portrait when he wins the child's confidence.

You'll Make Hit With Good Record

A gift of records is a gift that promises hours of pleasure for years to come.

Happily, today records are made for every age and every musical taste. There are even records for tots, though not all are musical; some are the telling of stories.

The reading of poetry and many classics in literature now appear on record.

For that matter, it is possible to learn a foreign language, improve your golf game or study other subjects by record.

There have been vast improvements in the quality of recordings within just the past few years . . . the new stereophonic records are something our parents scarcely hoped to dream about.

Original Broadway shows, the finest operas and orchestras may now resound throughout our own living rooms.

Modern record covers are so attractive that you will find it a pleasure to just browse through a record shop as you might in an art gallery.

Plan for a record Christmas this year. Everyone will love you for it!

KIMONO CHRISTMAS, that's what it will be for the man who receives this smart robe. Sure to be his favorite gift! Of all-wool jersy, more than a yard wide.

EVERYBODY SLEEPS so you can't go wrong with a gift of sleepwear, especially when it's as gay as this no-iron pajama set. Made in a blend of cotton and Avisco rayon, its new cropped top and slim pants have a jaunty Spanish air!

FOR MISS, MISSUS

Apparel Makes Top Notch Gift

No matter what her age, you're sure to make a real hit with the Miss and the Missus on your gift list — if you give her something glamorous to wear!

Tops on most wist lists are "tops" — sweaters and blouses.

All the many virtues the ladies love in fine sweaters are brought to the fore for Christmas! Yarns are softer, smoother, bulkier and lovelier than in seasons past.

Colors are truer, more diversified and flattering in the whitest whites to the deepest blacks. A wide range of exciting browns, blues and greens are being shown everywhere.

In styling, there are big rolled collars, big flat collars, tiny neckline bows and jewel necklines with yoke or shoulder trim.

Sweaters most often are longer than before in sport styles — somewhat shorter in more dressy styles.

News in sweaters are the shaggy smoothies (shaggy to the eye, so-smooth to the touch); in eye compelling solid colors, bold argyles, jacquards and novelty patterns.

For the sportswoman there are hooded sweaters, dramatic ski types and long, deep and cuddly coat styled sweaters.

BLOUSES BEAUTIFUL

Fashion's decided emphasis on the smart suit sharply brings into focus a wonderful line-up of blouses — especially "presentable" for Christmas.

Overblouses, tuck-in pretties, tailored shirts and shirtwaists are all gifted for the gals in your life . . .

Cottons, silks, orlons, and a host of magnificent blended fabrics take to rich colors, lavish embroideries, patterns, ruffles and laces with smart aplomb!

Old-fashioned in mood prints, such as paisleys, tie-prints and provincials give a demure look to young-spirited blouses.

If you're in doubt as to whether to choose a "plain" or "fancy" blouse for her, then the right and happy compromise is a handsomely tailored pure silk shirt with short, elbow length or French-cuffed long sleeves.

AND—CAR COATS

Something extra-special for your "Christmas She" might very well be a versatile car coat!

In the few years since these coats leaped into fashion prominence, there has been an upsurge of exciting variations on the car coat theme . . .

Utilitarian poplins, melton taken on fanciful fur or fake fur cloths, narrow and wide wale corduroys and heavy body knits have collars, cuffs and linings . . . other coats show off with popcorn, shaker and novelty knit trims; details such as plaid or patterned linings, peg buttons, leather accents, stitched trims and seamings — all give fashion importance to these coats.

So, double check her size, keep in mind her favorite hue, and take your cue for giving with something she can wear!

Men, Women Alike Want Good Gifts

The line of new lightweight leather luggage ensembles for Christmas giving is just out-of-this-world.

Something really new and distinctive this year is the "Velour-a" or brushed leather luggage. This is leather that has been finished on the flesh side, producing a scuff-resistant bag with a soft and luxurious suede finish. The smooth grain side of the leather becomes the lining. In addition to its handsome appearance, it can take all the rough treatment that traveling affords without being marred. The surface can simply be brushed to its original state with a stiff brush or sandpaper.

FOR THE GUYS

Also very new and very lightweight are the soft leather suitcases with only a light magnesium frame. The flexible leather sides allow room for a suit, sports jacket and four or five pairs of slacks without wrinkling, and still leaves room for a man's other needs.

According to luggage retailers, the luggage pieces most wanted by men include a 'suiter bag and matching companion case.' Usually these are either in suntan or ginger but there are many other styles, coverings and colors for the less conservative traveler to choose from.

In fact, subdued plaids, small houndstooth checks, and gabardines in blue, grey and even red are gaining in popularity.

Luggage should be selected to give the receiver every convenience. Although a two-suiter bag is the most popular size, one-, three- and four-suiter bags are also available. Check for sturdy handles, even stitching, carefully fitted linings and evenly coated hardware.

If the luggage is to receive extra hard use, bear in mind that sturdiness may be preferable to lightness in weight, because a good investment in luggage that can "take it" will mean fewer replacements.

FOR THE GALS

Women of all ages travel more than ever, according to statistics, so a luggage gift is both practical and luxurious.

Which pieces to buy are usually decided upon according to the travel habits of the receiver, but a basic group generally includes three cases to which other specialized designs may be added later.

Most useful are the pullman or wardrobe (hanger case), a weekender or overnight bag, and a train box or fitted case for cosmetics.

Other additions are the hat-box, the combination hat-and-shoe case compartmented shoe bag, hanging garment carrier, duffle bag, etc.

Any of these in combination, or singly to match luggage already owned, will be found in great variety of coverings and colors from one-piece molded styles to high-fashion toned leathers.

Be Sure And Wrap Gifts Of Money

We may often find that cash or a check is the best solution for problems on the gift list.

The question usually is how to give it. Why not put it in a billfold, or wallet? There are any number of styles in pocket and purse accessories which make ideal "gift wrappings" for money.

A man will appreciate a coat wallet which also holds forms, stamps, etc. For a teenager, a mulitple-picture passcase on a cofcolorful billfold is most useful. And women, accustomed to using a coin purse, will love the new French wallets.

Put checks, or "cold" cash in a billfold . . . it's a warm way to say, "Merry Christmas"!

Mailed Gifts Must Be Good In Traveling

If you're sending your gift through the mail . . .

Protect the fancy wrappings, bows and frills with corrugated cardboard or a swash of tissue paper . . .

Protect the gifts with a strong cardboard box or wrap in heavy corrugated cardboard . . .

Pack the contents tightly. If the items in the box shift around, the post office can refuse to accept your package.

Packages going to foreign countries MUST be sealed. Domestic mail packages MAY be sealed, provided they bear a label which says, "May be opened for postal inspection."

Use strong, plain, new wrapping paper. Tie large or heavy packages with enough string to encircle package both ways at least twice.

Use two printed mailing labels one on each side of package. Be sure to print name and COMPLETE address of person the package is going to. Don't forget your own name and address.

Take your time when printing names and addresses. Don't make things difficult for the mail man and the people in the post office.

Above all . . . don't let your Christmas gifts wind up in the dead letter office!

Skiers' Ranks On Increase

The ranks of skiers are growing year by year and if your "gift problem" is among them, buy something for the slopes.

For instance' a colorful parka, a pair of sleek stretch pants, lined leather gloves that extend well above the wrist to keep the snow out, or a handy leather pouch that fastens to a belt to hold car keys, cigarettes, etc.

BY EVERYONE

Gifts Of Books Always Welcome

Look to books if you are having difficulty in deciding about a sure-to-please gift in a price range of from 25 cents to as high as you want to go.

Paper back books are the answer to less than a $1 gifts and to what to include in stockings. These range from Westerns through 'how-to-do's" to classics.

Better than giving a book of fiction, which you can't be sure the recipient hasn't read, give them a book along the reference lines . . . a good dictionary, atlas, Thesaurus, etc.

Of course, fiction is most enjoyable and makes a grand gift if you choose wisely. Select books that are "hot off the press" and you can be pretty sure that they won't have been read.

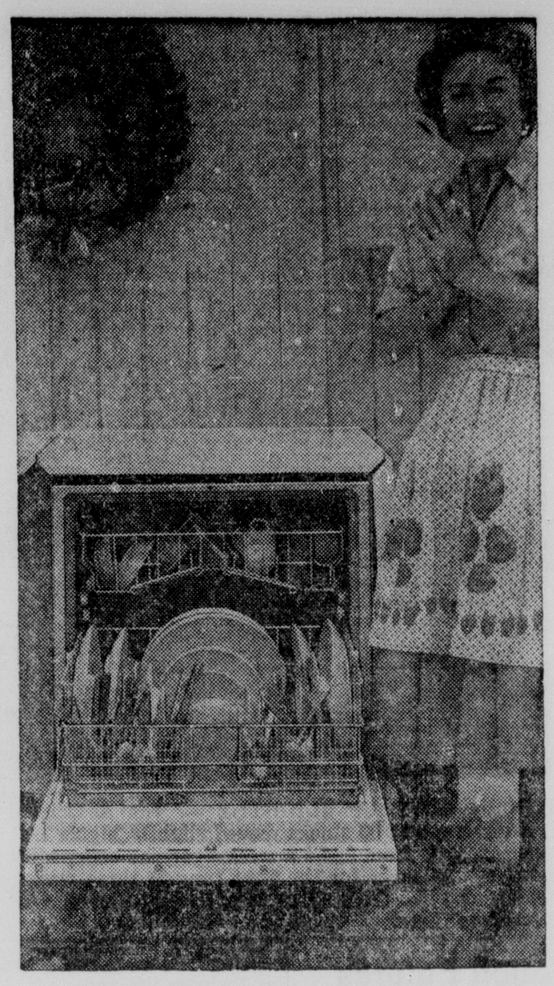
In the luxury class, a gift of a classic, bound in leather and stamped in gold, is possibly the grandest gift you can choose. Though even more expensive and naturally nicer are sets of this kind.

Another big-gift idea — membership in a book club and enough cash to carry it for a year.

The "bedside" books are good, too . . . these are usually collections of short stories by various authors and often include some poetry. They make lovely pick-up-and-read,-at-any-time, books.

Within a person's particular field of interest there are usually dozens and dozens of books that would fit in and not duplicate what they may already own.

Pick books and you will have picked a really grand gift.



SHE KNOWS you love her if you give her something that makes life easier. Gift her with this "Convert-Table" dishwasher unit. It's portable, can later be installed. Doubles as handy breakfast bar or bonus working surface.

TO OBSERVE

Rules For Safe Tree Light-Up

Everyone should have a beautifully decorated Christmas tree, but . . . everyone should remember that same beautiful tree can be dangerous.

If you don't follow a few simple rules, your gay Christmas tree can become a grim fire-hazard!

Mount the tree in a stand that holds water. This will keep the tree fresh and green.

Keep the tree away from open fireplaces, radiators, TV sets and electric lights.

Don't overload the tree's circuit by putting too many lights on one circuit. Make sure that the wires are not frayed! Turn off the lights when there's nobody around to watch them!

Trimmings should be fire-proof. Keep the base of the tree free from combustibles such as loose papers and ribbons.

Lighted candles are a menace as well as outmoded. Don't use them!

Be sure to dispose of the tree in a fire-safe area. If you intend to burn it in the fire-place, don't leave it untended, as more than just the tree may go up in smoke.

Yes — you can make certain that you and your family really do have a safe and happy Christmas!

Old Carols Still Ring At Yuletide

Christmas season—clear, crisp nights, stars and sparkling lights . . . and Christmas Carols ringing across the scene!

Many of the carols we hear this Christmas have been handed down generation to generation, century by century.

Changes have been made in words and music, according to the changing times, but most of the Christmas songs will be just as you might have heard them hundreds of years ago.

According to the Bible story of Christmas, the first carol was sung by a chorus of angels—the "Gloria in Excelsio Deo," "Glory to God in the Highest."

The early settlers in America brought many of the old European carols to our country, thus giving us a heritage of songs as no other country in the world enjoys.

"Adeste Fidelis" which we also sing with the words 'Come All Ye Faithful," long a traditional hymn, has an unknown origin.

"Away in a Manger," Luther's hymn, came to us from Germany. "God Rest Ye, Merry Gentlemen" from England and the lovely "O, Holy Night" from France. From Austria came "Silent Night, Holy Night."

Americans, too, have contributed to our rich heritage of Christmas songs. The Unitarian minister Edmund H. Sears composed "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear."

Perhaps the best known and most beloved of all American carols, "O Little Town of Bethlehem" was written in 1868 by Phillips Brooks, a young Episcopalian minister.

The gay holiday song, "Jingle Bells," has been popular for almost a century and was composed by another American, churchman, John Pierpont.

Our big selection of Christmas songs, hymns and carols express the friendly, joyful spirit of the season . . . and are loved by all!

Choose Baby's Gift Directly From Counter

If there's an infant or toddler on your gift list, we suggest you don't make up your mind about what to give until you have visited one of the Baby Departments or Shops.

Here's the "why": infants' and toddlers' fashions have moved up into the "designer class." Items for this age are right in style and you'll want to give something very "new."

For example, the popular-with-all-ages stretch tights are now in sizes for the very smallest young ladies. They serve the purpose of showing that this young lady knows someone who is in the know about fashion . . . and they keep her dainty legs warm as well!

The toddler can carry through with the look of the season by covering her tights with a short, pleated, plaid skirt.

Dresses trimmed with colors to match tights are being shown too and are as cute as can be. Throughout the fashion scene for this age are up-to-the-minute styles.

Back to the wee ones: even the infant girl can be shown off in miniature plaids and good-for-fall bright red is on the rise. Dainty prints and bulky knits too are offered for this age group.

Mother is going to be especially delighted with the new easy closure features found in many styles; new grow features too.

Professional Touch Nice In Packaging

Ribbons and designs on gift packages are wonderful "icing on the cake" . . . but they look best when the paper is smoothly and attractively wrapped around the box.

Here are the steps a professional uses in wrapping packages:

Place the paper face down on the table. Put the box, upside down if possible, on the paper. Place it so the design will show to the best advantage when the package is wrapped and tied.

If the box cannot be turned upside down, cut the paper about ½" wider than is needed and turn the raw edge under. Arrange so that the overlap will come under the ribbon or trim you plan to use.

Cut the paper wide enough to go around the box and overlap 1½in (less for a very small box), and long enough to extend a little more than half the depth of the box at the ends. This extending length will have to vary slightly according to the shape of the box and should be a trifle more for a deep box than for a shallow one. Don't scrimp.

Bring the paper up over the sides, overlapping as near the center of the box as possible, and fasten with a gummed seal or with tape.

Finish one end at a time. Fold the sides in smoothly. Fold the top, which is to be the bottom of the package, down first, then bring up the fold that is on the table up over all the folds, securing with tape or sticker.

Turn the box over. You are now ready to add your own special trims.

BOOTS FOR SPORTSMEN

Boots rate high as gifts with the sportsman. Check his shoes for the size—or if in doubt, you can always give him a gift certificate and he can select his own.

Sturdy leather boots with flexible soles, that protect feet from rough terrain and yet allow freedom of movement for comfort over long stretches of walking or standing are preferred. Hunting boots, ski boots and hiking boots come into this category.

VERY FITTING GIFT! Want to give him shoes?—these will fit if you come close to the size! Very smart casuals too. Left to right: golf shoe in polished leather with removable kilte; ultra rugged brushed leather; slip-on with the popular buckle-and-strap in the new lightweight, three-eyelet tie in soft but square toe; new high chukka boot in polished grained leather; and a three-eyelet in grained leather with decorative side-stitching.

Toppings For Gay Belles, Dressing-Up

Earrings dramatize both the story of texture and the power of color. Button earrings take the lead for classic wear, and the upsweep and dangle designs are splendidly related to the "dress-up" look in after-dark fshions.

An important trend in jewelry accessorizing this season calls for mixing as well as matching. This is seen in gold earrings worn with pearls, and colored stones with a gold necklace. The traditional "matched look" of necklace and earrings will continue strong, and has been elaborated to include the pairing of earrings with pin or bracelet.

Place Gay, New Boots In Stocking

Perfect answer to both "cold feet" and "hot fashion" is the new leather city boot that takes nasty weather in stride. They're also the perfect answer to what to give your favorite gal for Christmas.

Designed in soft, supple leathers in top fashion colors, city boots are a joy to wear, and to behold. Lightweight and water-repellent, they have slim and trim leather soles that completely eliminates the clumsy old overshoe look.

Starting at the ankle and "climbing up" as high as the knee — these boots are styled for city or casual wear and evenings on the town.

Casual boots are most often made of soft, brushed leather or finely textured grain with comfortable low or mid-heel. Novelty closings such as buckled straps, side zippers, or buttons add interest. Colors are many . . . the most popular being vivid reds, greens, neutral tans and browns.

For afternoon wear, the boot goes dressier with finely tapered toe and slim high heel in soft, smooth leathers.

Featured in all high fashion colors, these are designed to truly complement a woman's smart daytime apparel.

The elegant evening boot is seen in ultra-soft white, pastel, gold and silver leathers. These are usually slipon styles with tops that curve up over the ankle with soft draping — or with higher tops that can be crushed down softly toward the ankle. Heels, high and very thin, frequently are aglitter with studded rhinestones.

Mexican Fire Plant Merely Poinsettia

More than a hundred years ago our Ambassador to Mexico Joel Roberts Poinsett, took a fancy to a brilliant tropical plant, known as the Mexican Fire Plant.

Returning to his home in South Carolina, he started growing the plant from cuttings he brought from Mexico. Soon the scarlet-leafed plant came to the attention of American botanists, and under the name "poinsettia," it was destined to become symbolic of Christmas.

In tropic climates, poinsettia is grown in varietes of white, pink and yellow, but by far the most popular is the bright red that carries out the color scheme of Christmas.

Practical Gifts For Christmas

"Come out of the kitchen . . ." can well be applied to the newest small appliances!

Smart Santas will note that these convenient time - savers have bossomed forth with a sparkling beauty of modern design that makes them "at home" on dining, buffet, supper or patio table, as well as in the kitchen work-center.

Making table - cooking easier is the single - unit heat control plug and cord which fits all appliances interchangeaby.

GIFT HE'LL WEAR RIGHT AWAY — The foulard patterned robe is wash and wear of "Dacron" polyester fiber and cotton in burgundy red with burnished gold. Waffle-stitched ski sweater of "Orlon" acrylic fiber can be hand or machine washed without danger of shrinkage. Handsome Scandinavian design.

TAKE "THE PAUSE THAT REFRESHES" during your Christmas tree-trimming party with an easy-to-set-up snack buffet. Cold drinks, pickles, olives, mixed nuts, crackers and chips are zesty nibblers. To your favorite cream cheese dip, add the Christmas touch by thinly slicing bright green bell pepper, gay parsley and fine strips of holly-hued pimiento.

FOR CHRISTMAS

Jewelry Makes Hit With Ladies

This year, all types of necklaces, pins, bracelets and earrings will be high on every woman's most-wanted list of Christmas gifts, says the Fashion Coordination Institute.

The deep - plunging neckline, bracelet sleeves and the many other "fashion-focus" notes in this year's style scene all combine to provide an emphatic and beautiful foil for jewelry.

For the important classic look, symbolized by the tailored suit, the handsome adornment of jewelry, particularly good, is almost a fashion necessity.

And, since the major fashion colors are distinctly neutral ones, jewelry is of stellar importance either as the tailored accent of glistening sheen or as the dash of color.

The bracelet - length sleeves have inspired new and wonderful variety in bracelets of both flexible and rigid designs. In narrow, color-sparked bangles . . . richly textured twists and gleaming, polished curves often set with multi-colored jewels — bracelets offer opportunities for the really wonderful gift.

Since many of the new bracelets are born to be worn one on each arm — a gift of paired and matching bracelets will be most appreciated.

The year's new charm bracelets are massively designed with richly textured, chunky charms dashed with brilliance and jewel colors.

New necklaces underscore the beauty of new necklaces with mounted stones linked together in flashing colors, crystals with gold beads, pearls combined with the sleek and handsome look of pronged, linked or woven gold.

Chains, beads and pearls look smart in high-placed, flat-lying chokers and in deep necklace "bibs" from 22 to 27 inches in length.

Pins poised at the waistline, scattered at a dropped shoulder line, used to center a midriff or to dramatize the length of a jacket do wonder-work with the season's new styling.

Versatile and significant, jeweled or "solid gold" pins are presented in many sizes and with fashion rightness for every "placement."

The beloved circle, leaf, plume and literally dozens of other gracefully shaped pins arrive this year in new texture and double-texture interest that is fashion-fresh with the new fabrics and colors.

"Pins-in-groups," or the long-favored "scatter pins" return in enchanting new guises. In plain and jeweled designs they are important in all-of-a-size groups and in "set" that vary size, colors and shapes for a related rather than identical look.

Another special "pin note" of fashion import this winter is the "accent" pair of pins worn on the left evening glove.

Gift Variety Makes Giving Inexpensive

It's easy to give wings to a woman's wishes at Christmas time . . . especially when local shops are showing hundreds upon hundreds of desirable, wished-for giftable items!

Most often the primary and determining factor is the price you have to pay — but you can flatter her wishes and pamper your budget too, with a bit of careful pre-planning.

GIVE HER JEWELRY — you can choose the finest diamonds at extravagant prices if you can afford it, but simple costume jewelry items nowadays are crafted with all the precision and beauty of rare pieces!

FURS — perhaps she's dreaming of a full length mink . . . but if your choice is a "man-made" precious pile fiber one, she'll cuddle into it with pleasure. Perhaps her yen for mink doesn't extend to coats — she may be thrilled with a gift of a handsome mink (or other fur) collar, a cape, a stole or perhaps a rich-looking fine orlon or cashmere sweater with a real fur collar.

NEW WATCHES — you needn't spend a fortune to find a glamour watch for your special "she" There's the greatest line-up ever, of frivolous fancies in dependable timepieces. With fancy bracelet bands, novel faces, colors of the rainbow and striking designs, it's difficult to tell whether these novelty watches cost under twenty-five dollars or over a hundred!

FINE PERFUMES—Of course, she loves the finest, and you do want to give her the best. But you don't have to buy the exorbitant decanter size, when her favorite fragrance will thrill her equally when you give her that smart purse size flacon (and you'll help her make it last longer when you complement it with a twin cologne, so much less expensive, too).

So, if she wants the moon on a silver platter, shop around carefully — and give it to her on a "sparkle-like silver" aluminum!

Card Exchange Is Over Century Old

One hundred and sixteen years ago, the English educator and art patron Henry Cole, asked his friend J.C. Horsely, an artist of the Royal Academy in London, to design a card for him. On it he wrote the now classic greeting, "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to You." He printed a thousand lithographed copies, which were then hand-tinted by a professional "colorer."

That December early in the month, Cole posted some of the cards to his friends, and offered the remainder for sale in a London stationers shop. These, in all probability, were the very first Christmas Cards ever printed

Christmas Cards appeared in America only shortly thereafter. Their early origin is uncertain, but one story gives credit for the first Yule greeting to a New York State dry goods merchant, R. J. Pease of Albany.

Pease designed, printed and mailed one of the first examples of American Christmas Cards as an advertisement for his goods.

Each of the gifts received by the Infant Jesus from the Three Wise Men had a symbolic meaning: gold expressed the royalty of the Babe; frankincense for His priesthood; myrrh for Christ's entombment.

New Earrings Are Exciting And Different

Exciting and different are the brand-new hoop-type earrings that stay on, fit comfortably without clasps, clips or screwbacks!

No, they're not glued on! They nestle comfortably at the back of the ear above the lobe; front-view makes them look as though they go through the ear.

A wide, wide variety of classic, tailored and more dressy stone-studded styles will be shown in time for holiday gifting.

Mrs. R. C. Camp, Phil Fishman, Scherck Bogen, Miss Ruth Kelso and N. J. Laudenheim attended the American Fashion Association's early spring and resort market in Dallas, Tex., Nov. 1.

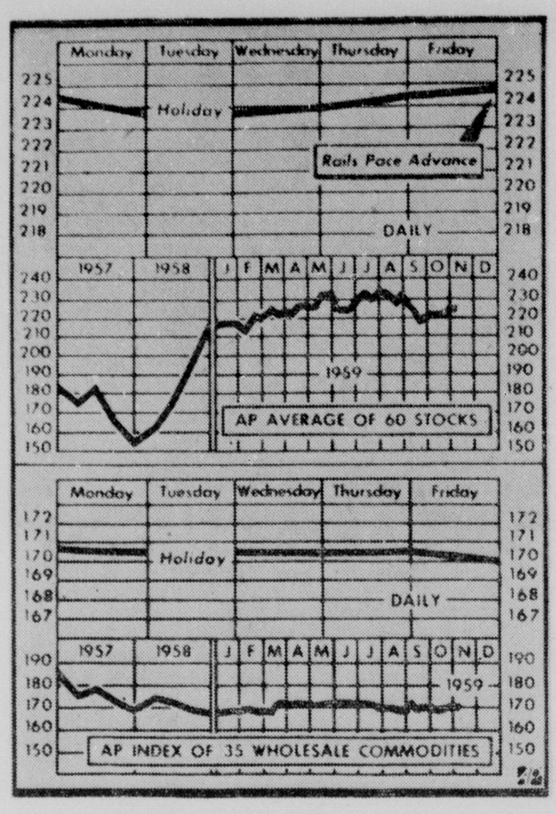
The showings featured "New Shapes, New Faces" and were reported to have expressed feminity in women's fashions.

Recording contracts are being issued by the Star-Crest Recording Co. in Hollywood for a song composed by Burton Myers, route 3, West Monroe.

Myers' composition is called "Sugar Cane Blues."

Citizens may again enroll in Mutual of Omaha's Senior Security Plan, it was announced today by Claude Gilliland, local division office manager.

Plans of insurance for senior citizens were pioneered in the southwest by Mutual of Omaha last January. Gilliland said the plan was offered only during special enrollment periods. It is a health insurance plan for senior citizens.



STOCKS MOVE UP SLIGHTLY — The Associated Press average of 60 stocks moved slightly higher last week to 224.8 from 224.4 a week ago. The commodity index moved lower for the first time in three weeks, closing at 170.0 from 170.6 in preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Soybeans, Corn Stage Gains, Others Drop

CHICAGO (UPI)—Soybeans advanced as much as 6 1-4 cents this week on the Board of Trade. Corn also gained, but other grains declined.

Compared with last week, wheat was off ⅜ to 1⅞; corn up 1¾ to 3; oats off 1⅜ to up ¾; rye off ½ to 1¼; soybeans up 3⅝ to 6¼; and lard unchanged to up 32 points.

Unfavorable weather was a major factor in trading. General buying pushed many corn, oats and soybean futures to new highs for the season.

The wheat market was mostly quiet, with small commission house selling out - weighing export and mill buying. Prices closed firm Friday on the belief that export trade would soon pick up. Cash wheat was unchanged.

In corn, the December delivery led the market with a 3-cent advance. Elevator houses, shipping interests and commission houses bought, while cash houses sold on the bulges. Spot corn sold up 2¼ to 3¼ cents.

Nearby oats contracts were firm on continued cash buying, while deferred deliveries were easier. The market encountered liquidation and stop loss selling Friday. Commission houses also bought. Cash oats ended 2¼ cents higher.

The rye trade was sluggish, with some liquidation and a lower Winnipeg market pushing prices down.

Wet weather, higher meal prices and drought reports from Europe inspired general buying in soybeans. November led the market, but other months also advanced sharply. Commission, commercial and local traders bought, while longs sold on the advances. The spot trade gained 9¾ cents.

Cotton Futures Close Higher

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures closed 45 cents to $1.10 a bale higher on the New York Cotton Exchange this week.

At the beginning of the week, interest was limited with the sustaining effects of mill and trade price fixing being offset by light hedge selling. After the election day holiday, activity increased and prices moved up.

The New York Cotton Exchange service bureau estimated exports during the week ended last Tuesday at 47,000 bales, compared with 82,000 bales a week earlier and 40,000 bales for the same week last year.

Through Nov. 3 exports had an estimated 521,000 bales, compared with 620,000 a year ago.

The trade was looking forward to the release Monday of the government's fourth forecast of the crop. Most observers were of the opinion that the report would show a small decrease from the Oct. 1 official indication of 14,692,000 bales.

Wall Street Gains Show Irregularity

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks scored an irregular gain during the past week with Wall Street apparently discounting an early return of the steelworkers to their jobs.

The market closed Friday with a burst of strength that involved railroad shares which made their best gain since Aug. 20. Railroads have been hardest hit of outside industries by the steel strike.

Prices dipped Monday in line with the normal reaction before a holiday. It was closed for election day and after that daily gains added momentum until on Friday the industrials showed a 3.35-point rise and rails 2.49 points.

Trading again averaged more than three million shares a day but was under the previous week. Sales for the four days totaled 13,883,970, a daily average of 3,470,992 shares.

Only Utilities Fall

At the close of the week, the Dow - Jones industrial average stood at 650.92 up 4.32 points on the week; rail 154.10 up 0.40; utility 87.06 off 0.41 and 65 stocks 213.46 up 0.58. In the previous week the industrials had gained 13.53 points while rails lost 2.45 points.

Trading was somewhat uncertain until Friday with market men awaiting the Supreme Court decision on the constitutionality of the Taft-Hartley Act.

There were many dividend increases or extras in such issues as Stauffer Chemical, Maytag, American Standard, Motor Products, and Simonds Saw. Goodyear, Eagle Picher, and Adams-Millis directors voted for stock splits. Cooper prices firmed and this helped the metals. Aluminums picked up late in the week.

Automobile production sagged and car loadings fell off again. Coal production showed little change. Retail trade held high. Steel output of the companies still producing showed little change.

Net changes in the main list held to moderate amounts for the most part. Some issues managed to show wide gains and there were a few wide losses, most of them in the volatile electronics group. In the latter, Texas Instruments netted 3½ points on the week while Motorola lost six.

Selwyn Lloyd Wants Early Summit Meet

PARIS (AP) — British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd said Saturday night Britain feels that if a summit meeting is delayed too long, a chance of progress will be lost.

Lloyd was interviewed in London by a reporter for the French television network.

"Our feeling is," Lloyd said, "that following our visit to Moscow, the Geneva (foreign minister's) conference this summer and the visit of Mr. Nikita Khrushchev to the United States a better atmosphere has been created, little by little, and we do not want to let the occasion pass and lose its benefit.

"We think that if one waits too long, one loses the chance for progress later. There is no disordered haste. It is only that we don't want to lose an opportunity."

Twenty Years agon the Unique Cleaners and Laundry of the Twin Cities was born. It was located in a small building at 501 Cypress Street, just one block from its present location.

At that time the owner, Charles P. Chisholm, his wife, Mrs. Sarah Kate Chisholm, Hugh Taylor and a colored man were the only employees of that young business.

Through continuous, prompt, courteous service and quality work, the business grew rapidly. Soon, this little building was too small for this fast growing business. The building that now houses the main plant at 401 Cypress Street was secured and moved into on November 1, 1943, just two and one half years after its opening. That is when UNIQUE really got underway. They consolidated with the cleaners that formerly occupied that building and became one of the Twin Cities fastest growing businesses.

During the war years UNIQUE kept up its policy of service and quality which many of the service institutions had to abolish. Even at that hectic time UNIQUE was able to give "next day" service.

Later UNIQUE came through with its "firsts" in the cleaning and laundry world. UNIQUE was "first" to give emergency one to four hour service. Another "first" was their in by nine out by five service, which has become a "by-word" in all cleaning and laundry establishments today. UNIQUE was also "first" to use "drive-in windows" for your convenience. In later years, starting in 1953, UNIQUE expanded to its drive-in locations to better serve you, our customers. Starting first with their location at 1301 Cypress Street, then expanding to 401 Coleman Street.

Next, UNIQUE came to Monroe with their convenient College Town location at 3800 DeSiard Street. Another location in north Monroe is in the Forsythe shopping center at 1908 Forsythe. Their newest location at 2940 Cypress Street, next door to Hogan's Grocery was opened to better serve the people of West Monroe in that area.

It has always been a policy of the Unique Cleaners and Laundry to give service and quality to their customers. Service and quality are their main objectives. So through the years, even during the war, the object of service and quality has been their goal.

Now UNIQUE is truly one of the large institutions of the Twin Cities. Growing from four employees to over forty now, and contributing thousands annually in payroll to the Twin Cities, it is keeping up with our cities growth and progress.

WORLD WAR I HERO

Worries, Illness Plague Sgt. York

PALL MALL, Tenn. (AP) — It was raining in east Tennessee's Cumberland Mountains, and the old soldier's bones ached.

"But if a fellow's able to kick," he said, "I guess he oughtn't to holler."

With that, America's most celebrated hero of World War I sat upright and dangled his feet over the side of the bed.

"I haven't been out of this bed for five years," said Sgt. Alvin C. York. "Not since I suffered a stroke."

Actually he did leave once last year when nearby Jamestown, Tenn., held a celebration in his honor. But the observance ended hastily after Sgt. York collapsed from exhaustion and was hurried home by ambulance.

Now 71, the once - vigorous doughboy lives in a bedroom-sitting room converted from a sunporch at the rear of his farm home.

His meals are served to him in bed by his wife, the former Gracie Williams. She is the childhood sweetheart to whom York hurried home after European countries and the United States awarded him their highest honors for bravery. He singlehandedly killed 25 Germans and captured 132 more.

With a twinkle in his blue eyes, York said, "It's pretty good, isn't it, to come through all that and then be captured by someone like her?"

Mrs. York, who looks remarkably like her wedding picture, blushed.

The walls in York's bedroom are covered with framed photographs. Captions read: "Sgt. York gets Croix de Guerre from France," "Sgt. York gets Medal of Honor from Congress," "Sgt. York gets Croca de Guerre from Italy." There are other medals, other photographs.

At the foot of the narrow bed are several rifles, including the squirrel gun with which he learned to shoot, and the Army Springfield rifle with which he picked off a charging squad of Germans.

York's biggest worry these days is about a federal income tax claim that he hopes will just fade away. "I haven't heard anything from them for awhile."

The government claims York owes $85,442 for the tax year ended Dec. 31, 1943, on income he received for the rights to the movie about his life in which Gary Cooper played the title role. York received about $150,000 by government estimate.

York has appealed to the Federal Tax Court. The case since has been continued from time to time because of his illness.

His 395-acre farm, he said, is now mostly just a place to live and receive the many visitors who stop to chat. And his chief income is a $60-a-month disability pension, plus an additional $10 as a Medal of Honor winner.

Most of his money has gone for medical expenses, he explained.

In addition to the stroike in 1954, York suffered an attack of pneumonia in 1942 and has had an ailing heart since 1950.

Man Held On Charge Of Murder

MIAMI (UPI)— James Jerome Seitz, 23, was held on first degree murder charges today in the death of Chelcie Raymon Tidd Jr., whose body was found floating in the patio swimming pool of his plush suburban Miami home Oct. 25.

Laundry marks on a blood-stained shirt led to the capture of Seitz, who police said confessed the bludgeon-stabbing slaying. He told police Tidd had made sexual advances toward him.

The victim's skull was crushed with a blow from a small statue of a Mexican goddess, and a foot-long butcher knife protruded from his back.

Seitz was picked up early Friday as a suspicious person. Officers said his initials matched the laundry mark on a bloody sports shirt found at the scene of the slaying, and that a palm print on Tidd's car also matched Seitz's.

The son of a New York Central Railroad switchman in Cincinnati, Seitz has an FBI record dating back to 1955 of 17 arrests, including one connected with the robbery last December of the Farmer's State Bank in Miamitown, Ohio.

The 32-year-old victim was in charge of production for a local aluminum products company.

"Tidd grabbed a cigarette lighter off the table and swing at me," Seitz told repoers. "I grabbed a statute of a Mexican goddess and hit him with it. I hit him several times and he jay there on the floor. . .

"I was real scared, and I went in the kitchen and got a knife . . . It was him or me, and I killed him."

Authorities said murder charges against Seitz may be reduced to manslaughter if it was determined he was fighting for his life.

Blind Lovers Trial Slated For Finish

AIX - en - PROVENCE, France (UPI) — Final arguments were scheduled today in the trial of a blind woman and her blind lover accused of the hammer murder of her blind husband in the climax of a sordid affair.

Anna Barbini, 47, and wealthy Maximilien Levesque, 23, were charged with murdering Albert Barbini, 52, in August 1957.

Lecesque admitted on the stand that he killed the husband of the woman he said "has given me happiness that I had never known." But he waved his white cane and said he had "just provocation."

Levesque and Mrs. Barbini claimed Barbini had forced his wife into prostitution in order to get money to support his mistress.

Slim and handsome Levesque testified he fell in love with Mrs. Barbini "the moment I heard her voice."

"I had never been in love before, but I love her more than anything in the world," he told the court.

The grey-haired and pudgy Mrs. Barbini, however, insisted that she loved only her dead husband. As for Levesque, she said, "I pitied him."

"It was my husband who pushed me toward him," she testified. "I didn't love him. I loved my husband in spite of his wickedness."

She quoted her husband as telling her: "You must be obliging to men in the street. They will give you money and we will be happy."

She said that after she met Levesque, her husband began giving away her furniture to his mistress. She said she was "heartbroken" and asked for a divorce whereupon her husband locked her out of the house.

Levesque testified that they went to Barbini and confronted him in the kitchen of the house. The two men began struggling, and Levesque said he pulled out his pistol and shot Barbini twice.

But Barbini continued to fight and Levesque said he picked up a hammer and smashed in his skull.

Color Adds Splash To A Bathroom

Don't neglect the bathroom if you are refreshing your home for the coming indoor season. Even if the permanent fixtures are in good condition, many of the smaller accessories undoubtedly will need some attention.

Check over your linen supplies first. Replace those that are thin and getting ragged. If a large number need replacing, this would be the time to introduce a fresh color scheme to the room.

It isn't difficult. Since many wall areas are being done in neutral or soft tones now, your accessories could easily establish the predominant color theme. Today, guest and bath towels, face cloths, mats and shower curtains come in a wide selection of colors to meet various decorating plans. They are being color coordinated, too.

Remember, though, no single color need be carried out in all of the accessories. Bathroom decorating trends today lean toward the two-tone effect in small rooms, one dominant and the other a soft pastel. In larger bathrooms you can successfully combine three colors.

Teen Lament: Where Does My Money Go?

AP Newsfeatures

"What happens to money?" writes an 18-year-old student. "I worked like a slave all summer, then didn't have a cent when school started. My tuition isn't much and I made $200 above it, but when school began I had nothing left. I don't know what happened to the money. I didn't spend much on myself."

That's a familiar theme in adolescense and a good time to profit by the lesson, especially if a girl plans to handle her own finances. Bank surveys show that money skill is just as important to women as it is to men. The family finances, in most cases, are handled by women, another reason to learn how to take care of money.

DOLLARS AND SENSE

Good money management could be learned early in life. A million teen-agers have gone from high school off to the cold hard working world, and are trying to get along on their income. A budget is the only answer, and it doesn't make a miser or skinflint out of you. It can be fun. It can help plan your spending, keep you out of debt, and help you live, within your income, maybe even help to create a rainy day fund.

Here are some suggestions offered by the American Banking Assn. for a budget for young people. This may be used by the full time worker, the student who works part time or the student who lives on a plush allowance from the family.

BUDGET RULES

Expenses: First step is to figure out how much it costs you to live. How much are your various needs and recreation? Lump these expenses into groups such as school, clothing, personal care, recreation, donations and gifts. (This can be approximated by listing birthday and Christmas presents, and costs that you coped with last year.) Transportation and hobbies should be included in expenses.

Income: Income may vary from week to week depending on job earnings — overtime, part time or extra money from home such as an allowance or gifts of money for birthdays, Christmas, other occasions. This may be estimated by apportioning your income and estimating gifts based on those received last year.

Weekly spending plan: Refer to your yearly expense list, decide what items you need to buy or pay for each week. You could pay bills by bank check: your cancelled checks are proof of payment, and a checkbook provides a record of expenses and income. Special checking accounts are designed for small depositors. You pay by the cehcks you use.

Savings: Don't laugh. It can happen even on a small income. Deposit rainy day money a little at a time. Put it in the bank where it will be out of easy reach and earning interest. Even small sums add up.

Left-over cash: When you learn how to budget, you will find that certain weeks you will have a little money left over, when your expenses are less than you anticipated. Put it away for something special — a car, sailboat, hi-fi equipment or perhaps a camera. You can put it in a special bank account or make out a check to yourself for that amount each time, and hold it until needed or deposit it.

Once you learn how to budget, and how much security it gives you, the rest is easy. You may evolve a budget system to fit your own way of life.

A budget is essential if you live alone and must meet such expenses as rent, utilities, food bills.

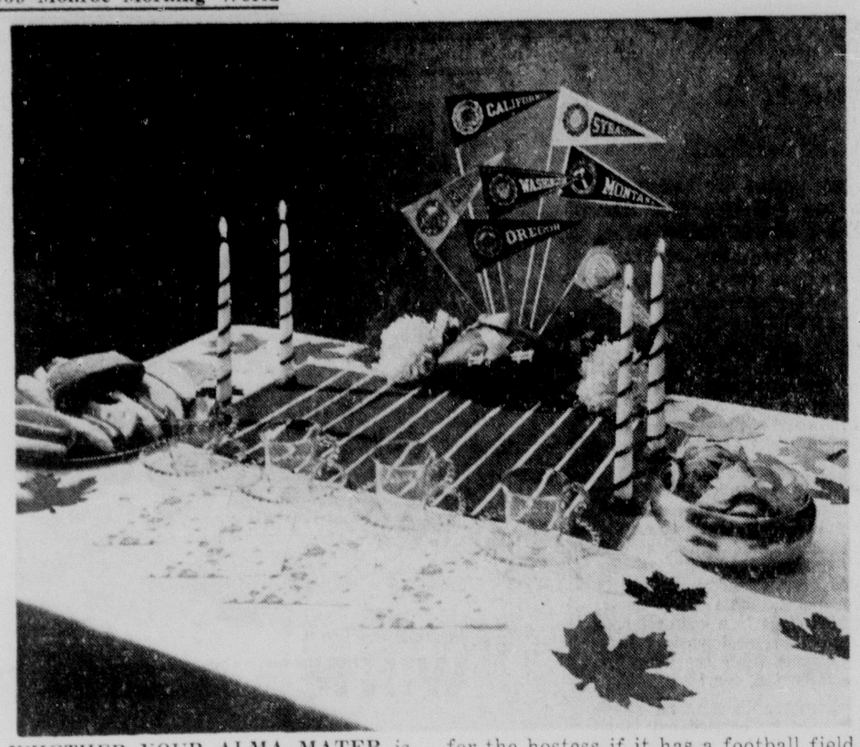
A Touchdown Party Brings Hostess Cheers



Rah! Rah! Rah! Zis Boom Bah! Let's have a Touchdown Party, say the entertainment planners.

The touchdown party can have all the pep and joie de vivre of the big game itself with just a little advance thought and training on the part of the coach-hostess.

The idea is to create a miniature scene of the triumph to come — a tiny football - field complete with yard lines and goal-posts, right on the dining room table.

To make the field, buy a large sheet of velour paper from the nearby stationery or hobby store. This paper has a nice grassy-looking texture and gets across the idea at a glance.

Cut strips of white sticky tape in quarter - inch strips and arrange across the field, measuring half way for the 50-yard line and then spacing out the other yard lines to leave adequate room for the goal-posts on the field beyond the goal line.

After putting on the white strips the sides of the field should be cut in an inch or two to give the right proportion to the shape of the field.

For the goal - posts use candles wound in spiral - fashion with quarter-inch black satin ribbon and held in place either with clear tape or glue. Be sure to let the spiral stop low enough to permit easy burning of the candle without interfering with the ribbon.

Bases for the goal - posts are simply made of small balls of green modeling clay fitted around the base of each candle and then pressed firmly on the "field" to keep the candles erect and steady.

The cross bars are slightly wider pieces of black satin ribbon fastened to the candle goal - posts with clear tape.

In the background, a junior-sized football makes the ideal center for an appropriate arrangement of team pennants and mums typical of the team to be rooted for. If the party is a pre-game lunch, it's a nice touch to have enough mums for each "coed" guest attractively tied in the school colors and presented to them to be worn as the gang leaves for the game.

The pennants are the small gummed-back variety which are found inexpensively at any near-campus store. Just moisten the long side and press onto quarter to eighth-inch sticks of various lengths.

A small flower - arranging mesh makes a very efficient way to support the pennants or they may be held in a lump of molding clay hidden behind the football. A few vari-colored autumn leaves, either real or the paper or cardboard kind scattered around the table complete the festive setting.

Now, light the candle "goal-posts," bring on the hot dogs, potato chips and hot coffee and give a big cheer for the team.

WHETHER YOUR ALMA MATER is from the east, midwest or Pacific coast, the touchdown party will be a victory for the hostess if it has a football field setting marked by goal-posts.

Career Woman Becomes Cook By Trial, Error

United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) —How does a career woman who never had baked a pie become a profession cook and cookbook author?

By chance, mistakes, and pressure to produce, says Elsie Masterson, whose second book, "Blueberry Hill Cookbook," recently has been published. Her first book, "Nothing Whatever To Do," dealt with her life on an 800-acre Vermont farm turned summer resort, 1600 feet up in the Green Mountains.

Mrs. Masterton was a doctor's secretary before her marriage to John Masterton, a lawyer and former government administrator and assistant district attorney, the couple left Manhattan to run a ski area near Brandon, Vt.

"I was going to have nothing to do with the ski area except write letters," Mrs. Masterton said in an interview during a trip to New York. "But for four or five years, we didn't have any snow, so the place never functioned as a ski area. We decided to take summer guests. That's how I came into the picture—I had to feed them."

The Mastertons had no money to provide entertainment facilities, so they billed the farm as a resort with "Lucullan food and nothing whatever to do." It was so successful that today they still have "no television and a radio that doesn't work too well, but a phonograph in perfect order, beautify scenery, good conversation and good food."

The pretty brunette discovered a hidden talent for cooking. When the couple ran a restaurant in Florida for three winters, she did all the cooking and still does in Vermont. In season, she prepares three meals a day for 20 house guests and dinner for 10 to 20 persons who come an average of 60 miles for the meal. Busy weekends, she may serve 60 persons.

"I didn't swoop in the kitchen with a shaker of garlic and become a chef. No one can, with a background such as mine," she said. "I've made all the mistakes in cooking, but the thing that has saved me is pressure to create something as a substitute. I've never had time to sit down and cry."

Dorothy Kirsten Turns Fireman

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Dorothy Kirsten turned fireman after a brush blaze sprang up in fashionable Palos Verdes estates, briefly threatening her home and several dozen others.

The fire nearly reached the yards of residences in one block of Palos Verdes Drive West, but was controlled before it could cause any structural damage.

Some residents left their homes. Miss Kirsten protectively squirted a garden hose on the roof of her house.

The fire, visible for miles, destroyed about 50 acres of brush. Palos Verdes estates is a city on the Palos Verdes peninsula some 25 miles south of downtown Los Angeles.

This was Los Angeles County's second brush fire in 24 hours. An earlier blaze wrecked one home and burned about 100 acres of brush in the Malibu Canyon area.

Thirty-five per cent of all record players and radios are purchased as gifts. Make Your Home Happier with a New Appliance.

This weekend is a little fuller than some of those just past have been — there are more people in town. This place really had the ghost town look last week when such numbers took off for Baton Rouge and what was surely the Greatest Game Ever.

A number of affairs this week have centered around visitors - in - town, always a good reason for a party. On Wednesday CAROL LAYTON PARSONS was honored at a luncheon hosted by JUNE M'HENRY, JERRY OAKLEY, and BARBARA EASTERLING. The porch of the Bayou DeSiard country club was the scene of the party. A mauve cloth covered the table, which was centered with mauve chrysanthemums. Fifteen guests enjoyed the meal which included chicken amandine and creme de menthe par'ait. Carol, who has been visiting her parents, the ROBERT LAYTONS, leaves today for New Orleans where she will spend a few days before flying home to Greenwich, Connecticut.

On Wednesday CLARA MONTGOMERY invited a foursome for lunch at the Lotus club and a visit with ANN SHAFTO NOEL, here from Port Arthur, Texas. Ann has been here with her parents, the WESLEY SHAFTOS, and returns home today. Others joining Clara and Ann for lunch were OLIVE SARTOR and CAROL McDONALD.

The J. W. ADCOCKS drove to New Orleans Sunday to meet the KILGORE MACFARLANES, who flew in from Buffalo, New York. They returned here Monday and stayed until Wednesday, when they went to Tulsa. The Adcocks came home Friday, and the MacFarlanes flew home from Oklahoma.

LOUISE and CHARLES BIRD were hosts at a dinner party Monday night in honor of the MacFarlanes. Decorations in the living - dining room of the Bird home were carried out in shades of yellow and gold. Yellow chrysanthemums, cattails and wheat were arranged in the living room. Yellow candles in brass candlesticks flanked the yellow dahlias placed on the buffet. Dinner was served from the dining table, which was covered with a cutwork cloth and centered with yellow candles and chrysanthemums. The fourteen guests were seated at individual yellow-covered tables which were centered with a single candle wreathed with small chrysanthemums and ivy.

After dinner, the guests moved into the den, which was decorated with periwinkle. Coffee was served in this room. With the coffee was passed a three - tiered tray of cookies and confections.

Tuesday morning LEE BOOTH was host at a boat ride. The MacFarlanes enjoyed the trip upriver on a day which was bright enough for the scenery and nippy enough for jackets, coffee and doughnuts . . . Following the boat trip, CHARLOTTI DENT invited the ladies to lunch at the Paragon.

Guest-of-honor Libby MacFarlane was wearing a navysilk suit with a corsage of white carnations. Charlottie used yellow chrysanthemums in a footed brass container on the luncheon table. There were eight guests.

JAN ADCOCK has had guests this weekend for the Homecoming activities at Neville High school. Former Monroyans BETTY ANN INABNETT now of Jackson, Tennessee, and JUDY PORT, now of Yazoo City, Mississippi, were here. They attended the game Friday night and the dance which followed.

Flowers at the morning coffee Thursday were outstanding. Hostesses for this party, which was held at the CLYDE BROWN residence, were ANN WESTROM, ANN TERZIA, and CAROLINE SMITH. Specimen white chrysanthemums were used with palmetto in a tall arrangement placed on the piano. An English silver biscuit box on a side table held Governor Mouton camellias and butterfly lilies. And red roses, beautifully arranged in a crystal and silver epergne, centered the dining table.

Back from a trip to Miami Beach and Nassau are the CONWAY CROSSLANDS, the LEE VANDERPOOLS, and the JOHN SHERROUSES JR. First on the schedule was a professional meeting in the Florida resort, which meeting was also attended by J. W. ROBERSON and HARVEY M'DONALD. The three couples then proceeded to Nassau, getting back last week after about ten days away.

The November meeting of the Monroe Garden club, scheduled for tomorrow in the yearbook, has been postponed until November 23, two weeks away. The program theme is "Harvest o' the Future," and will feature arrangements made by children of garden club members. The new meeting date will fall on Monday of Thanksgiving week, when the children will be out of school. Tea will be served at the meeting, which will be held in the Louis Locke room of the Ouachita parish public library.

Junior Miss, TRUE GUERRIERO was hostess at a real Halloween party last Saturday night. The invitations were black witches' hats lettered in white with the time and date. The life-size witch figure which guarded the front door was so realistic that one little trick - or - treater announced that he was really looking for the house next door and scurried away treatless. The living room and dining room were decorated with corn stalks, large squash, and jack-o-lanterns cut from outsize pumpkins. The thirty - four little girls who attended played the traditional Halloween games of biting the apple and passing the hot potato.

The dining table was covered with a Halloween cloth and centered with paper figures of witches and black cats. On the buffet was a sugarplum tree with marshmallow pumpkins for the "plums." Supper of hot dogs, homemade chili, doughnuts and soft drinks was served. A fortune teller came in later to read palms and tell stories.

Another Halloween party was that planned and carried out by brothers TOBY and WILL FRAZIER. The boys invited eight little neighbors to come for a hamburger supper before they went trick - or - treating. The guests ducked for apples and went through the spook house assembled and decorated by the young hosts. After supper the whole group made their rounds in the neighborhood.

On Wednesday JERRY HILL celebrated his seventh birthday with a cowboy party in the teen age room of the Bayou DeSiard country club. Each guest received a favor as he arrived, and a turn at playing the real little hand organ. Prizes of pop guns for the boys and skip ropes for the girls were given to each player in the pin-the-tail-on-the-donkey game. SUSAN ANDERSON and RICK TAYLOR were prize-winners.

The refreshment table was centered with yellow chrysanthemums arranged in a cowboy hat. Mounted cowboy and Indian figures surrounded the centerpiece. The birthday cake was decorated with a Western scene, complete to covered wagon, cactus, cowboys, and Indians. Harmonicas were the favors at the places for the forty children attending.

Our poem today is by William Butler Yeats:

When you are old and gray and full of sleep,
And nodding by the fire, take down this book,
And slowly read, and dream of the soft look
Your eyes had once, and of their shadows deep;
How many loved your moments of glad grace,
And loved your beauty with love false or true;
But one man loved the pilgrim soul in you,
And loved the sorrows of your changing face.
And bending down beside the glowing bars,
Murmur, a little sadly, how love fled
And paced upon the mountains overhead
And hid his face amid a crowd of stars.

MR. AND MRS. DEWEY O. EZELL of Wisner announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Jo Ann, to Matthew Julian Batey, Jr. of Baton Rouge. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Batey of Wisner and is a member of the faculty of the Monte Sano Elementary School in Baton Rouge. The wedding will be solemnized in the First Baptist church at Wisner on Sunday, November 22, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The Rev. Carlton Vance will officiate.

30,000 Women Philanthropic Money Raisers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Look what's happened to the housewife. She's become a tycoon in a multi-billion - dollar business — raising money for philanthropic causes.

About 30-million women—most of them housewives—will have volunteered their services to one or more philanthropic projects by the end of this year, reports the American Association of Fund-Raising Counsel, Inc. The total number of volunteers is expected to reach a record 45-million persons.

These volunteers will round up more than seven billion dollars—about four billion dollars more than in 1950. By 1970, the association expects fund-raising drives to bring in 14-billion dollars.

Why so many women in fund-raising?

"Because they have the time and convictions and are vitally related to problems, especially in the health field," said David Church executive director of the association.

"Women are pretty effective when work is laid out for them. And they're apt to investigate a cause before they go to work," Church added.

Women are good salesmen, and when armed with the facts and a strong belief in their cause, they can accomplish more with men than men can. Women also are effective public speakers and letter writers. Their positions in fund raising range from top policy makers to door-bell ringers.

Fund - raising in the United States began in colonial days, the association said. Men such as Benjamin Franklin and Thomas Jefferson helped through their writings.

Seven Members Of Baptist Board Replaced

ROUND ROCK, Tex. (AP) — A former Baptist children's home board member says seven board members were replaced for permitting teen-agers to attend a school dance.

But the Rev. M. B. Carroll of Dallas, Texas Baptist Convention president, said the members were replaced "in the light of some reported internal conditions in the Round Rock home, one of which was the board permitting students to participate in dancing. But dancing was not the whole picture."

He declined to give the other reasons.

"Baptists generally frown upon dancing," Dr. Carroll said.

The action was taken this week by the convention, which names boards to the convention's many institutions.

All seven of the 21-member board who were up for re-election were replaced.

Louis M. Henna, one of the ousted members, defended the board's decision last spring to let the high school boys and girls attend school sponsored and chaperoned dances. The 140 children who live in the home have attended public schools here since 1950.

Questions And Answers Guide For Homemakers

BETTY PEPIS ANSWERS

Q. — My living room rug is light gray green, walls are painted slightly deeper. Sofa is gray, one chair is light green, the other is red. Fireplace is painted white with large wall mirror above. I plan to make new draperies and wonder what color to use. Also whether or not to repaint the white cornices I now have or make valances to match.

A. — If you can find a print or stripe that combines the green and white already in your room use it for draperies and keep your white cornices. Preferably the print should be on a white ground and contain no third color. The type of one color design known as a toile would be ideal. An alternate would be full white curtains, but be sure in this case that cornices are painted the same white.

Q — Please suggest what to do with a long narrow hallway, 3 feet x 30. It has a window at one end and door at the other. Four doors lead off it to the bedrooms. How can I brighten it? What would you use for floor covering?

A. — One of the most effective hallways I have seen had the doors painted in bright colors, each a different shade, thereby making a decorating asset out of a disadvantage. The safest way to achieve this is to work with several shades of the same color. You might paint the hallway itself pale yellow, make all the doors a bright chrome yellow. With this scheme, have cork flooring of the kind that is protected by a vinyl film which will eliminate the former problems of scuffing. The brightly colored hanging glass Italian light fixtures would add a gay touch. Get them in a yellow and white stripe.

Q. — I would like to have your ideas on a bedroom color scheme. We have red and pink splattered floor covering, blond wood furniture. I would like to know what colors to use for walls, draperies and bedspread.

A. — You already have your color scheme. Take it from the pink and red floor. Paint the walls pink and hang a paler pink drapery at the window. For the bedspread use a pink and red floral print. Cotton throw rugs could be red and use ruby red glass for lamp bases and other accessories.

Q. — Please help me with a color scheme for a small bathroom which doesn't get much light and has only one small window. I would like suggestions for wall tile, floor tile, woodwork, upper walls and ceiling.

A. — In dark rooms use warm colors. For an unusual scheme in this room you might work with the combination of yellow and rust and add orange towels and bath mat. Use the rusty tone for floor tile, the yellow for wall tile and paint ceiling, woodwork and upper wall a lighter tone of the yellow.

Woman Better After Suffering Fireant Bite

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—Doctors reported Mrs. Vera Breedlove, 54, improved Saturday after suffering partial paralysis as the result of a fireant bite.

Mrs. Breedlove suffered muscular paralysis in the shoulder, arm and hand after being bitten last Sunday by the imported ant.

Mrs. Breedlove said the bite was like a "spark of fire."

An entomologist from the Louisiana Extension Service examined the area and found one bed of fire ants, which he destroyed.

'Malice' Accused In Crime

CORINTH, Miss. (AP) — Eight white boys charged with murder in the Halloween shotgun-slaying of a Negro youth are accused of commiting the crime "with malice aforethought."

The boys, ranging in age from 14 to 17, are also charged with upsetting the "peace and dignity of the state of Mississippi" through the crime.

H. M. Ray, Alcorn County attorney, said Saturday affidavits against the teen-agers charge they "did willfully, unlawfully, feloniously and of their malice aforethought kill and murder William Roy Prather, a human thing, against the peace and dignity of the state of Mississippi."

Authorities said their investigation showed that before the shooting some white boys threw firecrackers at Negroes who in retaliation tossed rocks back at their pickup truck. Not long afterward, officers said, the eight accused drove through the Negro residential section and shot at three Negro youths. Prather, 16, suffered fatal head wounds. One companion was also wounded.

A Negro leader, who declined to be identified, said the relationship between the white and Negro population in Corinth has always "been a good one."

He said he thought most Negroes in the town trust the white population to give the accused "whatever punishment they deserve."

Most of the whites were agreed the boys should be punished to the fullest measure.

Ray said the charges "established the state's intent in this case as do the charges in any other case."

A murder conviction carries a penalty of death or life imprisonment.

Police Chief Harold Hinton said 17-year-old Darnell Glidwell admitted firing the 16-gauge shotgun last Saturday night from the moving truck. However, under Mississippi law, an accessory before the fact shares the guilt with the person who actually committed the crime, Ray explained.

Officers, after a four-day investigation, Wednesday arrested Glidwell, Paul McCann, 18, John Hinson, 16, Lary Latch, 16, James Scott 16, James Butler 16, Danny Woods, 15, and Jimmy Kiddy, 14.

Camera Notes

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

From a camera columnist's notebook:

Looking ahead. . .now's the time for camera fans to start on their photographic Christmas cards . . . the Yuletide season has a habit of sneaking up on you.

Looking further ahead: cross off Yugoslavia as a 1960 vacation possibility. Returning West German tourists report new roadside warning signs in Yugoslavia — a black camera silhouette on a round metal plate crossed by two diagonal bars — meaning "Snapshots Forbidden." Reported located in many areas not near obvious strategic spots. Penalty if not observed: camera confiscated.

Press reviews of cameras soon available:

HIGH SPEED: the new Graflex 1000 shutter in the Super Speed Graphic 4 x 5 camera is the fastest, most efficient between-the-lens shutter unveiled. . top speed 1-1000th of a second at full one-inch aperture. Ingenious feature: cocking shutter by turning lens shade. Engineers designed new four-leaf shutter principle and operation to make top speed possible . . . previously obtainable only with focal plane shutter.

ELECTRIC DRIVEN: An electric motor, completely enclosed in the film take-up spool, winds the 35mm film, cocks the shutter and takes either a single exposure or a sequence of pictures in the Graphic 35 Electric camera. Two penlight batteries, good for 1,000 exposures, provide the power and can be changed even with film in camera. Other features are interchangeable lenses, automatic exposure control by adjusting a pointer, an exposure value coupling system to maintain correct exposure if aperture or shutter speed is changed.

WIDE ANGLE: A 90-degree angle of view and close-up focusing to 12 inches without accessories are features of new Hasselblad Super Wide C camera. Takes 120 roll film size, with interchangeable magazine backs for switching types of film at any time. Zeiss Biogon 38mm f-4.5 lens. . . coupling of shutter and diaphragm through exposure value system . . . automatic visual depth-of-field indicator . . . automatic shutter cocking when rapid wind crank advances film. Built-in spirit level . . . on extreme wide-angle camera, absolutely necessary to keep it level to prevent distortion of horizontal and vertical lines.

INSPIRATIONAL ITEM: Mrs. Carrie Turner of Cleveland, Ohio, is a camera fan who loves to travel. Her memory and her photo albums are filled with pictures of Mexico, Bermuda, Canada, New England and the national parks out west. Nothing unusual about that, of course . . . until I read that Mrs. Turner has been blind for 31 years.

Her sightseeing is done with her other senses . . . listening to people commenting on the scenes . . . hearing the sound of nature or of the locale . . . feeling the architecture.

How does she take pictures? By pointing a simple box camera at the scene with the help of a guide or fellow sightseers. Why does she take pictures? "Why, to share my trips with my friends back home," she replies.

Mrs. Turner may not have the eyes but she certainly has the heart of a real camera fan.

Room Within A Room Is Created At Style Show

By BETTY PEPIS

The National Home Furnishings Show on view in New York City's Coliseum this week and next has come a long way since its original debut just 10 years ago.

Directed then, as now, by S. Robert Elton, the show originally served as a catch - all for new ideas with very little editing out of bizarre material. Highlights of that first show were a stove in fire engine red, a modernistic printed fabric by artist Salvador Dali and a deep purple sectional sofa.

The current show reflects the trend away from bizarre novelties which had a brief spurt of popularity in the earlier years of this decade. Instead, a series of settings arranged by members of the American Institute of Decorators quite sensibly sets the stylish tone of the exhibits. These rooms also point up the elective taste of our time which rules that no one period or style is either in good or bad taste.

The range of room styles runs the gamut from an unconventional Portuguese patio by Melanie Kahane through a French provincial bed - sitting room by Blaine and Booth, to a compact contemporary study set into a corner of a bedroom by Ruth Strauss.

Some of the settings, like this last, make a practical point, in this case by showing how to create a room within a room, a useful notion in these days of limited space. Others present "fun" ideas that the amateur decorator can apply to her own home. An example is room by William Pahlmann which is planned for color changes in each of the four seasons.

Still another room, by John Wisner, will be used to introduce new furniture as well as new ideas. A feature will be a day bed made of rattan with a formal light finish of white rubbed with gray. This room, like that by Mrs. Strauss, also serves double duty. It functions normally as a game room but will comfortably accommodate an overnight guest.

The currently popular mixture of many things is the note set in a breakfast room by decorator Lloyd Bell. He has combined a seventeenth century Italian sideboard with sixteenth century Dutch chairs and added, also, four French chairs.

Leftover cranberry sauce or mincemeat makes a festive topping for ice cream sundaes. To serve flaming, touch a match to a cube of sugar that has been dippedi n lemon extract.

SURVEY SHOWS

Necking Selected As Favorite Hobby

WEDNESBURY, England (AP) —Citizens here got the results Saturday of a survey they sponsored to find out what the town's teenagers like to do in their free time.

They like to neck, the survey shows.

The survey came as no surprise to many, but Mayor George Stokes took a dim view.

"This survey is rubbish," he declared. "The youth of this town are hard working and industrious. You only have to go into night schools and technical colleges here to see that."

Alderman Arthur Bissell, chairman of a local youth center, reacted differently.

"A spot of necking does the youngsters good," he said. "The brain can become overworked with too much study and that sort of relaxation helps a lot."

The survey was conducted by a Roman Catholic Church organization known as the Young Christian Workers. Backed by the townspeople, the organization distributed 100 questionnaires in coffee bars frequented by teen-agers and in local youth clubs. The purpose was to establish how teenagers in this midland English town spend leisure hours, for Wednesbury, one of Britain's big iron towns near Birmingham, has 34,000 citizens and its fair share of youth problems.

The survey showed that boys look for a combination Brigitte Bardot-Marilyn Monroe type as their type of ideal girl. Girls seek kindness, patience and understanding in their boy friends.

Mayor Stokes conceded Wednesburh youngsters "may do a spot of necking," but added: "This is an international hobby not peculiar to Wednesbury. To suggest that it is all they do in their leisure time is bunk."

Said Alderman Bissell: "What's wrong with necking as a hobby? As long as the youngsters behave themselves, it's a jolly good thing. It helps them get to know each other's habits and mix together better."

Teen-Ager Killed In Gun Battle

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa (AP) — A California teen-ager was killed Saturday as he shot it out with two policemen in a dead-end street where he had been cornered.

He was identified from a draft card as Keith Eugene Hayes, 19, Redding, Calif. There was no immediate indication why, after being stopped in a routine traffic check, he chose to bolt and resorted to the wild gun duel.

Hayes was stopped in Omaha, immediately across the Missouri River from Council Bluffs. But he sped away with officer Donald C. Rice, 30, in pursuit.

The chase crossed the river and ended suddenly in a dead-end street in a Council Bluffs trailer court. Terrified residents said the teen-ager leaped from his car, drew a .22 caliber revolver, and got the drop on Rice as the officer got out of his car.

The youth ordered Rice to loosen and drop his gun belt, but the patrolman let go of only one end and held on to the other.

Another officer who had joined in the chase and had halted his car some distance away, at this point appeared between two trailer houses.

The youth was distracted for a moment and Rice swung his gun belt at Hayes who turned on him and fired.

The second policeman, John J. van Hessche jumped behind a fence and emptied his gun at Hayes. The youth fired back but fell with a bullet in the heart and another in the arm.

The teen - ager's shots had struck both policemen. They were taken to an Omaha hospital where their conditions were not immediately established.

Police said the car the youth had been driving was registered to Iva McDonough, West Union, Iowa. A hotel receipt showed the youth had stayed in West Union for several days last monh.

Committee Raps Plans Of Kremlin

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Internal Security subcommittee said Saturday the Kremlin's leaders are promoting Soviet-American cultural exchanges as part of a poisonous propaganda offensive.

"Soviet hoaxsters are playing us, individually and nationally, for suckers," the subcommittee said in a report on its 1958 investigations.

The report, although not published until now, was written prior to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's recent visit to this country.

In a section on Soviet-American cultural exchanges, the report said that from ballet dancers to scientists, every Soviet is thoroughly screened by Soviet authorities for political reliability before being allowed to come to this country.

"If the individual has shown any traces of pro-Western sympathies, that fact is sufficient to blackball him regardless of any scientific or artistic merit," the report said.

It also said that every member of a Soviet cultural mission is an observer for Soviet military intelligence and is duty bound to use every contact with the American public to acquire information useful to the Soviet government.

Furthermore, the report said, each such mission includes at least one official representative of Soviet intelligence.

"The profusion of Soviet delegations to this country, the lavish propaganda for cultural exchanges and coexistence, is primarily a phase of Soviet psychological warfare," the report said.

It added that the stepped-up drive for cultural exchanges "comes at a time when the Kremlin is particularly anxious to mislead the American people into the belief in the currently pacific aims and desires of the Soviet leaders, with a view to promoting American unpreparedness and disarmament."

"This is a poisonous propaganda offensive, which, if successful, could well be a prelude to a sudden military attack," the report said.

It recommended that the results of the cultural exchange program be reappraised by an appropriate Senate committee to determine what, if any, advantages to this country have accrued from the experiment.

Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss) is chairman of the eight-member group. Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R-NY) said he did not participate in preparation of the report since he was not a member of the group during the period covered.

Ancient Ship Spotted Under London Street

LONDON (AP)—The backened remains of what is believed to be an ancient Roman galley ship have been unearthed in mud 15 feet below a bustling riverside London street.

But the 1,700-year-old vessel may have to stay buried—digging it up would disrupt traffic and construction in the busy southward section of London, alongside the River Thames.

A corner of the boat was spotted in excavations for a new building by Peter Marsen, an archaeologist for London's Guildhall Museum. Marsden, only 19 prowls building sites in his spare time looking for ancient remains.

He believes the boat to be 60 to 80 feet long and perfectly preserved from the early years of the Christian era when the Romans settled in Britain. It could have been big enough to carry 30 men.

"I hope to get out a complete rib and part of the keel." Marsden said, "but prefer to leave most of the ship intact. We know where it is now and we can record it in case somebody can dig it up completely — perhaps in 100 years."

Probe Group Fails To Find Laos Proof

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—A U.N. fact-finding group reported Friday it failed to uncover proof of charges by Laos that it had been invaded by Communist troops from North Viet Nam.

But the four-nation subcommittee told the U.N. Security Council it did discover evidence that rebels in the restive Asian kingdom had received equipment, arms, supplies and the help of political advisers from the Communist regime across the northern border.

The long-awaited report to the 11-nation Council had these immediate repercussions:

1. A U.N. spokesman said Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold was considering making a visit to Laos, but it would have no connection with the report to the council.

2. A spokesman for the U.S. delegation hailed the report as one that would "enable the Security Council to better understand the danger that confronts Laos." He said the United States was considering what additional steps might be taken in the United Nations "to further help the Laotian people maintain their freedom and independence."

3. The Soviet delegation declared the report caused the collapse, "like a card-castle, of the entire heap of absurd charges advanced by the Laotian government and by those who are pursuing it to hamstring the peaceful settlement" of the Asian kingdom's problems.

4. Members of the Latian delegation said they had no comment, but asserted the question of foreign in Laos' dometsic affairs had been amply demonstrated in previous declarations of Laotian officials.

5. Ambassador Jorge Illueca of Panama, president of the Security Council, said consultations were taking place on the next step. The Council set up the subcommittee last Sept. 7 over Soviet objection.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov told reporters Thursday night, his country took a negative view of a visit to Laos by Hammarskjold. Kuznetsov stressed that any Laotian settlement should be based on the 1954 Geneva agreement setting up an international control commission for Laos.

High Court Still Eyeing Steel Deal

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Steel Workers Union and the strike-bound industry watuhed and waited Friday while the Supreme Court continued to weigh the legality of a back-to-work order.

One small firm — the Lalede Steel Co. of Southern Illinois — reached a tentative agreement with the union.

But otherwise there were no discussions between the union and the industry it has kept shut down for 115 days.

The Supreme Court's nine justices conferred in secret for seven hours, but made no announcement of when a decision might come in the steel case.

Presumably the justices devoted most of their time to the steel case since it is the only major case pending disposition.

Ther was no word when the court would hand down its ruling on a union appeal from the back-to-work order issued by a U. S. District Court Judge in Pittsburgh.

The justices began studying the case late Tuesday after hearing arguments from union and government lawyers.

The Federal Mediation Service scheduled no new bargaining talks. The most recent meeting between union and industry negotiators was held Wednesday. It lasted only half an hour and produced no progress.

Union President David J. McDonald returned to Pittsburgh Friday and R. Contrad Cooper, the chief industry negotiator, went to Hot Springs, Va., to speak to the Virginia Manufacturers Assn.

Announcement of the Laclede settlement did not go into detail on terms of the new contract covering about 3,500 production workers in Alton and Madison, Ill. Members of two locals will vote on ratification next Thursday.

A spokesman for Laclede said the firm accounts for about one-half of 1 per cent of national steel production.

The Steelworkers previously worked out settlements with the Kaiser Steel Corp., the Detroit Steel Corp., and the Granite City Steel Co. of St. Louis. All are small companies, turning out only a fraction of the country's steel.

Mother Finds 'Loophole' In Adoption Law

TIMPERLEY, England (UPI)—A British mother who wants to give Americans her unborn child said Friday she has found loopholes in the law which would make such a move possible.

Mrs. Sheila Winkley, 37, said she had talked with her lawyer about possible legal difficulties in offering her unborn child to a "nice American" couple.

"I have heard that any American couple would have to stay with the child for not less than six months before the could adopt it," she said. "They would also have to get viases to take the child to America and have to provide proof to an American court that they were suitable parents.

"We have found a loophole in these difficulties," she said. "I am not saying anything because if the authorities know what we are doing they may jump in and stop us."

Mrs. Winkley said she had received two cabled offers from American couples. They came from Mr. and Mrs. May Thurn, of Crestview, Fla., and Mr. and Mrs. Gootfried Peakma, of Kent, Wash., she said.

Mrs. Winkley, who gave away two of her children previously because she "just doesn't like the trouble connected with babies," said she had received another telegram today from the United States. She declined to reveal the sender.

"I've gotten about a dozen of the usual nasty letters," she said. "People say it is a terrible thing to give a baby away.

"But when you read the letters asking to adopt the child it makes you think it is worth while. I wish I had more to give away because it is helping them."

ABOUT IKE, GOLF

Alanbrooke Says 'Got Him Wrong'

LONDON (AP)—Viscount Alanbrooke wrote a footnote Friday to his wartime memoirs: He didn't mean to accuse President Eisenhower of actually playing golf while World War II hung in the balance.

The bespectacled wartime chief of Britain's general staff said everyone got him wrong when he declared in his recently published diaries that Eisenhower was "on the golf links at Reims" just before the crucial Battle of the Bulge in 1944.

Alanbrooke's diaries make plain his antagonism toward the strategies employed by Eisenhower as supreme commander of Allied armies.

"I had no intention of suggesting that the President actually played golf at that time," he told The Associated Press.

What he really meant was that Eisenhower was at his "forward headquarters," situated on a disused golf course in Reims, Alanbrooke added.

The sentences that stirred the controversy occurred in a diary entry by Alanbrooke dated Nov. 24, 1944. It said there was a "very unsatisfactory state of affairs in France with no one running the land battle."

"Eisenhower, though supposed to be doing so, is on the golf links at Reims—entirely detached and taking practically no part in the war," it said.

Alanbrooke went on to say in the diary that things became so bad a delegation of high-ranking American officers called on Eisenhower to tell him he "must get down to it and run the war, which he said he would do."

The White House Thursday said Eisenhower never had a golf club in his hand from the time of the invasion of Europe until the defeat of Germany. Alanbrooke, at home in the Hampshire village of Hartley Wintney, was told of the White House statement.

"If you look in the diaries you'll see there was no accusation that he (Eisenhower) had any golf clubs and there was no accusation that he was playing golf," Alanbrooke said.

"You might just as well say that I was accusing Eisenhower of drinking champagne because he was at Reims."

Reims, in addition to having had a disused golf course during the war, is noted for its output of champagne.

Alanbrooke said his diaries had mentioned the fact that Eisenhower maintained an official camp on the Reims links, a tightly knit base away from the vast Allied invasion headquarters at Versailles.

But he refused to discuss the impression given by his diary entry about Eisenhower being on a golf course "entirely detached" from the running of the war.

Alanbrooke's diaries were published last weekend as a book, edited by Sir Arthur Bryant, called "Triumph in the West." It was the second volume of his wartime memoirs. Running through both is a line of criticism of both American and British war leaders, including Sir Winston Churchill.

Several British newspapers, politicians and soldiers have criticized Alanbrooke for his condemnations.

In a broadcast Thurdsday night, Lord Beaverbrook, the Canadian-born press baron, had this to asy: "I never knew Lord Alanbrooke was the war hero until I read his book."

Accord Reached By Another Steel Company

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—The Laclede Steel Co., which employs about 3,500 production workers in nearby Alton and Madison, Ill., reached a tentative agreement Friday with the United Steelworkers Union on a new contract.

Members of Local 3643 at Alton and 1785 at Madison were to vote on ratification Thursday.

No details were available on the agreement.

The company and the union said they reached partial agreement covering "many substantial areas" prior to Aug. 31, when the old contract expired. The company had continued in operation despite the national steel strike, now in its 115th day.

"The remaining items were left open awaiting settlement of the Big Steel negotiations," Local 3643 President Buddy Davis said in a statement.

Shifting Of Linebackers Helped Vols Defeat LSU

By BILL RAWLINS

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee Coach Bowden Wyatt said that shifting his linebackers to stop All-America Billy Cannon in the second half was partly responsible for Tennessee's 14-13 upset of Louisiana State Saturday.

But Wyatt gave full credit to the brilliant work of blocking back Jim Cartwright, who returned an interception 59 yards for the first touchdown given up by LSU in 10 games.

"As far as I'm concerned," Wyatt said, "Cartwright played the finest game of his career." In addition to his scoring interception, Cartwright hauled down another pass in the fourth period to halt an LSU drive.

"He played a tremendous game," Wyatt said of the 190 pound junior from Athens, Tenn.

In the dressing room of the losing Bayou Bengals, dejected Coach Paul Dietzel said Cartwright's interception and fullback Earl Gross' fumble a few minutes later told the whole story as far as he was concerned.

Asked if it was any relief for the tension of maintaining a 19-game victory streak to be ended, Dietzel shook his head glumly, and added:

"It's never any relief for me to lose a ball game."

"I can't say that Tennessee is the best team we've faced all year," Dietzel added. "They all were tough."

Was it a letdown from Mississippi?

Dietzel said he couldn't say, adding, "It's always tough to maintain a schedule against top competition week after week."

Bernie Moore, Southeastern Conference commissioner and former LSU head coach, said Cartwright's interception was the turning point of the game.

"That pass interception changed the complexion of the game," Moore asserted. "Tennessee got its head up then and really went to war."

Tennessee Ends Longest Streak

Cannon & Co. opened up with a all-out offensive push in the third period, a force which would have taken the heart from a lot of football teams.

Tennessee's defensive forces rose to the occasion as the Tigers pushed them into the shadow of their goal posts.

Cannon's 35-yard kickoff return opening the second half, quarterback Warren Rabb's 21-yard pass to fullback Donnie Daye and a 15-yard display of power and speed by Cannon, move the Tigers to the Vol 13 with a first down.

Coach Paul Dietzel sent Wendell Harris in to attempt a field goal from the 5. With the ball at the Tennessee 12, Harris kicked the ball high and long but it was just wide to the right. It was his second miss of the year.

The next time the Tigers got the ball, Rabb ran off to the right on first down, tossed to pass intended for Robinson in the flat and Cartwright snared it. He made a jumping, twisting catch of the ball, coming down with it at the Vol 41 and raced down the left sidelines 59 yards to score.

Cotton Letner kicked the point to make it 7-7.

Gene Etter kicked off to Purvis on the 11 and the little Tiger came back to the 22. Gros, after gaining seven yards, fumbled at the 29 and Sadler was there to recover for the Vols. The Vols turned it into the winning TD.

The Tigers got a TD in the fourth period. Cannon blasted a 49-yard punt. It hit Bill Majors inside the 20 and rolled goalward. Ed McCreedy recovered at the Tennessee 2.

Three plays later Durel Matherene scored on a quarterback sneak. Going for two points — and a victory — on the extra point, Cannon was halted just short of the goal and that ended streak.

LSU, still trying to pull the game out, drove to the Vol 16 in their last real thrust but Cannon fumbled on the Tennessee 20 and guard Jack Kile recovered to preserve Tennessee's victory.

LSU got its first touchdown the second quarter, going 74 yards in 11 plays. Cannon and Robinson grounded out most of the real estate and Cannon, taking a handoff from Rabb, caught the Vol defenders relaxed and raced 26 yards unmolested to score. Harris kicked the extra point and the Tigers led, 7-0, until Cartwright's pass interception turned the tables.

Mich. State Cops 15-0 Win Over Purdue

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Dean Look hit two touchdown passes for Michigan State and drove his team to within field-goal kicking distance in leading the Spartans to a 15-0 victory over Purdue that killed any Boilermaker Big Ten title hopes Saturday.

The second loss against two victories and a tie automatically eliminated Purdue from the dog-eat-dog Western Conference honors battle.

Michigan State now 3-2 in the Big Ten also is out of contention. But the victory before 58,203 Spartan Stadium fans made up for humiliating defeats by the Boilermakers the last two seasons.

The Michigan State quarterback completed only two passes in the first half but both were good for touchdowns.

Michigan State was stopped on the Purdue 28 and set up an apparent field goal try on the 35. It was a well-concealed fake and Look passed instead to Gary Ballman, who pulled down the floater just at the goal line for the score in the first quarter.

Look connected with a second quarter scoring pitch from the Purdue 48. End Jim Corgiat grabbed it on the 17 and skirted down the sidelines to score.

Art Brandstatter missed both extra point tries but made up for it by kicking a field goal from the 13 with 20 seconds to go in the third period.

Russell, Stilt Even In Pro Cage Battle

BOSTON (AP) — Bill Russell and Wilt Chamberlain played each other to a gasping standstill, Boston had the best of the rest and the world champion Celtics took their sixth straight National Basketball Assn. victory, 115-106 over Philadelphia, Saturday night.

It was Philadelphia's first loss and increased Boston's Eastern Division lead to two games.

Chamberlain and Russell played the entire game, and appeared to be tiring badly in the later stages of their inaugural duel.

Chamberlain, Philadelphia's 7-1 rookie wonder, outscored Russell 30 to 22, but it was his lowest point production of the season.

Russell, at 6-10 the acknowledged defensive standout of the league, beat Wilt 35-30 on rebounds.

The Celtics forged an 8-0 lead and Philadelphia simply could not catch up. The closest the Warriors ever came was a five-point difference on three occasions.

Chamberlain's 30 topped the scoring, with teammate Paul Arizin pumped in 29. Bill Sharman and Bob Cousy led the winners with 25 and 24, respectively.

Boston never was in serious difficulty after Cousy hit two quick drive shots, Sharman added one from the floor and Cousy and Russell sank free throws for the Celtics' opening lead.

Boston widened its margin to 21-7 before Philadelphia began making any show at all.

The Warriors close within seven points, 24-17, at the first quarter mark and stayed within five to 12 points until midway in the final quarter.

The Celtics at that point broke the Warriors' full court press and moved out to a lead that once got as high as 14 points.

13-6 Decision

SEATTLE (AP) — Washington had its troubles with Oregon State's rugged defense Saturday before the Rose Bowl hopeful Huskies put away a 13-6 victory on a recovered fumble and an 87-yard scoring march.

With 5 minutes left in the first half, end John Meyers fell on a State fumble at the Beaver 35 and in seven plays Washington had its TD. Schloredt got it, plunging the final foot.

The other Washington touchdown came in the third period after Oregon State's first serious threat fizzled on an incomplete fourth down pass.

Field Goal, PAT Looked Good--Dietzel

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Louisiana State University Coach Paul Dietzel made it clear Saturday he wasn't challenging any decisions but said two LSU scoring attempts looked like good points to him.

Dietzel said he though a field goal attempt by Wendell Harris in the third quarter "was good." The youthful mentor added "but my position from the bench didn't afford a perfect view."

The LSU coach also said he thought Billy Cannon was on the goal line when he attempted to run for two conversion points following the Tigers' second touchdown. "I thought he may have gone in but certainly wouldn't make an issue of it," Dietzel said.

He added "we were naturally sick with disappointment — this breaks a 19-game winning streak for us, you know — but its like I told the fellows in the dessing room talk: 'We've been good winnes for a long time, now let's be equally good losers.'"

"Our offense was about as sharp as it has been all season," Dietzel commented.

Iowa Romps To 33-0 Win

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Quarterback Olen Treadway set a collegiate passing record and led Iowa's swift Hawkeyes out of the Big Ten cellar in a 33-0 romp over Minnesota Saturday.

Treadway, who blossomed into a star only in his senior year, set a national record for passes attempted without an interception with a 7-yard toss to end Jeff Langston in the second period for the go-ahead touchdown.

The scoring toss was Treadway's 10th without an interception, breaking the old mark of 106 set by Florian Helinski of Indiana during the 1953-54 seasons. Treadway ran the mark to 111 without a steal before the game was over.

The win was Iowa's second in five starts in the Big Ten and broke a cellar-dwelling tie between the Hawkeyes and three other teams. The victory was the fifth in a row for the defending Big Ten champs over Minnesota, which was pushed further into the league basement with a 14 mark.

SCORE IN LAST TWO MINUTES

Demons Use Indian Fumble For 24-19 Gulf States Win

By JIM CALHOUN
Staff Sports Writer

NATCHITOCHES, La. — Trailing with less than two minutes to play, Northwestern turned a Northeast fumble into the winning touchdown here Saturday afternoon to take a 24-19 homecoming victory.

Senior halfback Ralph Conrad, the Demons' "old pro", bulldozed over from two yards out for the touchdown that snatched an apparent victory from Northeast after a goal line stand had held firm only seconds before.

Controversy marked the fumble recovery that turned the tide for NSC. After the Indians had held on the 10-yard line and Jim Griffin's last-ditch field goal attempt was wide, the Indians took over on their own 20 with three minutes remaining.

Quarterback Bob Randel, attempting to run out the clock, moved through the line for one yard and then dropped the ball on the following play.

When the pileup was untangled, Indian Jim Laudadio and Demon Jimmy Williams were still battling for the ball. One official ruled the Indians had retained possession and another called it Northwestern's ball. After short discussion, the Demons were awarded the ball on the Demon's 19.

Then Conrad, who earlier streaked 58 yards for a first quarter touchdown, took command. He alternately skirted the ends for 11 and three yards before Randel saved the day temporarily with a driving tackle on the two. On fourth down, Conrad knifed over right tackle, was hit on the one and fell on the goal line for the clincher with 1:05 remaining.

Griffin kicked the PAT.

A desperation pass from Northeast's John O'Conner was intercepted by Dan Deen of Northwestern with a half minute left in the game and the Demons ran out the clock.

Northeast almost salted away its second Gulf States Conference victory with a fourth quarter touchdown by reserve fullback David Barnes and a rock-like goal line stand.

End Pete Covington, who accounted for the first Northeast score on a pass from Randel, opened the door for Barnes' six-pointer when he recovered Conrad's bobble on the NSC 20.

Curtis Cook bucked for four yards, Stewart Stover was held for no gain and O'Conner's pass to Cook in the end zone fell incomplete.

Covington gave Northeast a first down on the five with diving catch of an O'Conner pass. Barnes, fresh off the bench, plunged to the three and Cook crashed to the one. On third down, Barnes moved off tackle for the score. O'Conner's' point after put the Indians ahead, 19-17.

NSC took the following kickoff and moved almost the length of the field behind the pin-point passing of quarterback Dale Hoffpauir. All-GSC end Billy Booth of Farmerville grabbed on aerial for 18 yards and caught another for a 35-yard advance before O'Conner pulled him down from behind on the Indian 21. Three rushes carried for a first down on the 10 before the Redskin defense stiffened and held for three downs.

With an opportunity to go into the lead, the Demons went for a field goal with Griffin trying. The boot went wide to the left and left Northeast ahead.

Then came Randel's fumble and Conrad's clincher.

The Demons struck for the first touchdown in the opening two minutes of the contest. Northeast took the opening kickoff and picked up a first down before being stopped on the Demon 38.

Booth blocked Covington's fourth down kick, scooped it up on the 45 and raced untouched for the initial touchdown. Griffin's kick made it 7-0 with 13:35 left in the period.

Northeast got a big break moments later when tackle Delmas Thorne recovered a fumble by Jimmy Aldredge on the NSC 17. On the first play from scrimmage, Randel threw to the rangy Covington for the touchdown. Laudio's kick was wide.

Northeast kicked off and the Demons stormed back to widen their margin. Aldredge started the drive, returning Laudadio's kickoff from the 18 all the way to the Northwestern 38 where Covington made the tackle. Freshmen halfback Raymond Eddy got four yards on a pitchout and then Conrad broke away for a 58-yard scoring gallop.

Aldredge took out Joe Thrialkill on the Northeast 35 to shake Conrade loose. Griffin split crossbars and the Demons were ahead, 14-6.

Northwestern put together a 61-yard penetration late in the opening stanza and Griffin climaxed it with a 15-yard field goal. Sub quarterback Larry Crow's 20-yard pass to Jackie Smith and Conrad's 15-yard thrust led the way.

With Hoffpauir connecting consistently, Northwestern drove to the Tribe one early in the second period. Hoffpauir hit Charles De Sadier on 14-yarder and pitched to West Monroyan George Smith for 36 yards. On second down from the Redskin two, Eddy fumbled and Laudadio dropped on it at the one to bar the door.

Northeast then drove 99 yards for its second touchdown with O'Conner passing to Terry Reeves for the final 36 yards. Laudadio started the march with a 12-yard burst and added eight more. O'Conner pitched to Reeves for 11 and connected with Covington for 11 more to the Tribe's 42.

O'Conner then faded to pass, couldn't find a receiver and reeled off the third consecutive 11-yard advance on a sparkling run. With first down on the 36, O'Conner again threw to Reeves who hauled it in on the 15 and broke away from two defenders to dash over. Stover, attempting to run the extra point, was snowed under and NSC led at halftime, 17-12.

The heart-breaking defeat shackled Coach Jack Rowan's Indians with their third loss against one victory in GSC competition. Northwestern moved into a second place with Southeastern with a 2-1 record.

The Northeast defensive effort received a blow when end Charley Barnes, an apparent fixture in the Demon backfield, left the game early in the second half with an injury.

Center Perry Beaver, guard Alfred Feeney, and tackle Thorne headed the Northeast defense. Robert Powell, George Smith and Earl Phillips starred defensively for the Demons.

Laudadio was the top carrier for Northeast with 35 yards in eight tries. Covington caught three passes for 39 yards and Booth pulled in the same number for 63 yards.

Northwestern utilized a jumping-jack lineup frequently, drawing offside several times.

TREMENDOUS RECEPTION

10,000 Fans Say LSU Still No. 1

BATON ROUGE (AP) —"We're No. 1! We're No. 1!" echoed acros Ryan Airport here Saturday night as an estimated crowd of 10,000 jammed the field to welcome LSU'S TIgiers, returning from their first defeat after a 19-game winning streak.

The spontaneous outburst kept the team from landing for over a half hour as fans crowded onto the landing strip and mobbed a charted plane with 107 local fans aboard.

Because of the LSU supporters on the feld, Delta Airline officials had the Convair carrying the team circle the field from 7:45 to 8:24 p.m., then roll up to the ramp with propellors stopped.

"That was the greatest reception I have ever seen," Head Coach Paul Dietzel said after he was back on the campus. "It was wonderful for the people to turn out like that.

"The players," he added, "really appreciated the townspeople backing them in defeat as well as in victory."

Actually, Saturday night's reception following the 14-13 loss to Tennessee was larger than any the team received after their out-of-town victories.

The crowd took local law enforcement officers by surprise, with only a few sheriff's deputies being on hand at first. City Police and state troopers were forced to go to the airport as reinforcements.

Fans parked their cars haphazardly in the vicnity of the airport and walked to the landing area because of the tremendous traffic jam.

Roars and cheers rocked the arport terminal as the team filed off its plane. Players, some stopping to sign autographs, boarded a bus and were whisked with a police escort to the university campus.

The calls to the airport requesting the time of arrival of the plane were so numerous that Delta Airlines hooked its phones to a recording device which repeated the estimated arrival time of the team plane and then provided another number if a caller was seeking other information.

Television and radio announcers called on Baton Rouge residents to turn out for the team arrival after the game ended.

No parade was staged as the players were taken to the university immediately and the heavy traffic blocked plans of fans who wanted to start an impromput motorcade.

West Jefferson Beats McDonogh

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Lou Blanda scored one touchdown and tossed two scoring aerials to Lionel Boudreaux Saturday night to pace West Jefferson to a 26-12 victory over McDonogh.

Russell Galliano scored the other West Jeff touchdown and scored one conversion. Blanda made the other conversion.

McDonogh's touchdowns were made by Gene Reyes and Joel Fazzio.

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

Louisiana politics of not many years ago gave "double dipping" a bad name even if the kids did, and still do, look upon it with favor in bidding for that extra scoop of cream. It depends on what you mean.

Monroe football fans, disregarding politics and as happy as the ice cream-hungry kids, are shooting for their first double dip in Louisiana high school football.

When the Ouachita Parish High Lions polished off the Byrd Yellow Jackets in Shreveport Thursday night, it left the charges of Coach Bob Ellen needing only to sack the Bossier Bearcats here next Friday night to clinch the district triple-A championship.

But Bossier is out to upset Ouachita's cart and do something about picking up all the marbles. The Bearcats' defeat of West Monroe Friday night left them standing alone as the lone threat to the Lions.

The Neville High Tigers, with supporters who think Bill Ruple's Boys can lick any schoolboy outfit in any class in the state, led the way in the state's district championship races when they reclaimed the 2-AA title with the defeat of Ruston three weeks ago.

While Ouachita's hasn't nailed down a championship in over a decade, Neville has (including this year's district crown) won the district in four of the last five seasons, was runner-up for the state double-A title last year and won the first state championship to be claimed by a Monroe team in 44 years when Ruple's 1955 club went all the way, beating Reserve in the title final, 27-14.

Never has two teams of the city won titles the same year.

Once, before organization of triple-A or double-A, Ouachita and Neville finished in a tie with Ruston and Bolton of Alexandria for the district Class A title. That was in 1936 when Bolton beat Neville, Ouachita bounced Ruston and then Bolton eliminated Ouachita in the district playoffs.

Ouachita last won a district championship as a double-A (the triple-A classification was yet to be organized) team in 1948 when such former Lions of ex-coach Jim Hodgins as Wayne McDonald, Tommy Wilson, Bert DeLoach, Johnny Goodwin, Jack Smith, Gayle Ward, Robert Parker, Ken Greer, Billy Joe Milstead, E. J. Sievers, Harold Phillips, Mark Boatright, Bob Carter, Bobby Bruce, Wayne McCarty, and Herman DeLoach were getting in their licks for the Red and White.

If the Lions reach the district goal it will be because it has been made possible by boys like Ervin Bates, Tommy Winkler, Johnny Roach, Bill Rambin, Bill Solomon, William Matkins, Phil Youngblood, Don Ellen, Bobby Hendrix, R. W. TENSE STRUGGLE

Syracuse Beats Penn State In East's Big Game, 20-18

By JACK HAND

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Syracuse virtually clinched the Eastern football title and a likely bowl bid Saturday by edging Penn State 20-18 in a savage battle of unbeaten clubs.

The Orange victory came despite a dazzling 100-yard touchdown run by sophomore Roger Kochman of Penn State on a kickoff return.

This tense struggle, witnessed by 32,800 fans, the largest in Beaver Field history, hung in doubt until the final minutes as Penn State charged back with two touchdowns in the final period.

After Kochman's 100-yard gallop through the entire Syracuse team, State burst through with tackle Andy Stynchula blocking Bob Yates' punt. Penn State took over on the Syracuse 1 and Sam Sobzak plunged into the end zone with 4:15 to go.

Trailing 20-18, quarterback Richie Lucas sent Kochman into the middle of the line, trying for the two points that would have meant a tie. Kochman was stopped about two yards short.

Kochman startled Syracuse by running 17 for a touchdown in the first period as underdog Penn State jumped into an early lead.

Syracuse took charge in the second as Ger Schwedes swept six after taking apitchout from Dave Sarette. Yates put the Orange out front to stay by kicking his first of two placement attempts.

Sarette connected with a 5-yard scoring pass to Art Baker in the third and sophomore flash Ernie Davis rammed home from the 1 in the final period before Penn State awakened for its last ditch effort.

Penn State tried to kick for the first extra point but Sam Stellatella's boot was wide. After Kochman's 100-yard run, Lucas failed with a pass.

TOP SCORE SINCE 1935

Ole Miss Buries Chattanooga, 58-0

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI)—Mississippi ran its biggest score since 1935 Saturday, slaughtering Chattanooga 58-0 before a crowd of 14,500.

Quarterbacks Doug Elmore and Billy Brewer and Halfback Jimmy Hall were the chief butcher-boys, figuring in two touchdowns each. The victory enhanced the bowl prospects for sixth-ranked Mississippi, and set up a battle royal with Tennessee in Memphis this coming weekend.

It was Mississippi's seventh victory in eight starts, the lone loss a 7-3 decision by LSU which was upset 14-13 by Tennessee Saturday.

Chattanooga got past mid-field only once, marching 77 yards to the Mississippi 13 late in the final period on the play - calling of quarterback Ron Houshalter.

It was Mississippi's highest point score since a 92-0 decision over Memphis State in 1935.

Mississippi scored in every period. Brewer got things under way with an 85-yard punt return with four and a half minutes left in the first period. Bob Khayat kicked the first of four conversions.

Mississippi shifted into high gear in the second period. Charlie Flowers went over from the one seven plays after halfback Dewey Partridge had recovered Dan Washburn's pitchout on the Chattanooga 40. Jake Gibbs scored on a three-yard run, climaxing a 54-yard drive and Hall scored on a 23-yard pass from Elmore.

Mississippi got three more touchdowns in the third period. Billy Ray Adams scored on a one-yard run, Hall got his second TD on a three-yard pass from Elmore, and Gibbes Goodwin tallied on a 26-yard pass from Brewer.

Quarterback Bobby Franklin wound things up with a 16-yard run in the final minutes of the game.

Techmen Clinch Share Of GSC Title With 14-0 Win

HAMMOND, La. (Special) — Louisiana Tech captured at least a share of the Gulf States Conference title by shutting out Southeastern, 14-0, here Saturday afternoon.

It was Tech's fourth straight GSC win without a setback. The Bulldogs will now be able to win the championship outright if they can take their final conference contest over Northeast State at Ruston No. 21.

The loss was the first in GSC action for the Southeastern Lions who now stand 2-1 in league competition.

In winning Southeastern's homecoming day game, the visiting Techsters pushed across touchdowns in the first and fourth periods. The first came on a one-yard plunge by fullback Max Rudd and the second on a four-yard rush by halfback Rudd. Slack picked up a first on a 13-yard run, Slack got another first on the 14 and then Rudd, Slack and Hynes worked it to the four from where Slack went across.

Southeastern came right back after the second Tech score and aided by a 45-yard pass play from Elbert Harris to halfback Talmadge Lee, drove to the Tech 18-yard marker. The Lion drive was cut short, however, when the Techsters intercepted a Harris pass.

Next game for Tech will be the Bulldogs' homecoming battle Nov. 14 against Memphis State.

Texas Rallies To Nip Baylor, 13-12

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)— Texas came from behind Saturday with a late fourth period running surge by Jack Collins, Rene Ramirez and Mike Dowdle to squeeze a 13-12 victory over upset-minded Baylor.

Texas, nationally fourth ranked, eked out the narrow victory on a 39-yard scoring drive set up by a fumble recovery and enabled the Longhorns to keep their undefeated string at eight games this season.

Coach Darrell Royal's Longhorns also maintained leadership of the Southwest Conference on a 4-0 record with the hard - fought win over archrival Baylor.

Baylor rode the bullet passing arm of sophomore Ronnie Stanley to a 12-7 lead late in the third period. Stanley, who guided the Bears to both their touchdowns, plunged over from the 2 to climax an 80-yard drive.

The margin of victory proved to be the toe of quarterback Bobby Lackey, who kicked the extra point after Texas' first touchdown early in the first quarter.

Texas needed to move only 19 yards for its first touchdown, after a short Baylor punt. Lackey plunged over from the 1 for the score.

Baylor drove 74 yards late in the second period to score. Stanley contributed 23 yards on a keeper run, and sophomore halfback Ronnie Bull, on his first pass of the season, flipped a wobbly 23 - yard aerial to halfback Austin Gonsoulin in the end zone.

The Bears bounced back with Stanley's passing attack to move into the lead, with Gonsoulin and end Sonny Davis as his favorite receivers, and a tight Baylor defense thwarted Texas' efforts until late in the fourth period.

Baylor's hard - driving fullback Jim Evans fumbled at the Bears' 39 and Texas end Larry Cooper recovered to set up the Longhorns' game-winning drive, climaxed with fullback Clair Branch's plunge over from the 2.

Army Takes 14-0 Triumph Over Inept Villanova

WEST POINT, N.Y., (AP) — Army's bread and butter players — Joe Caldwell, Bill Carpenter and Bob Anderson — teamed up for a touchdown that gave the Cadets a first period cushion Saturday and the Cadets went on to beat Villanova 14-0 in their last home game of the season.

It was an inept exhibition by an Army team that was favored by some 30 points over Villanova, which now has lost seven of its eight games.

Using substitutes freely, often players who weren't even listed in the three-deep line-up, Army was able to mount only two consistent drives that paid off with touchdowns. And there was a lapse between them of some 35 minutes of playing time.

Fullback Don Bonko made the first score on a plunge after two Caldwell-Carpenter passes, a toss from Anderson to Glen Blumhart and a couple of runs by Anderson had paved the way. The second came at the start of the fourth quarter on a 10-yard pass from Glen Adams, a third-string halfback, to end Frank Gibson.

DARTMOUTH, 22-0

NEW YORK, (AP) — Dartmouth defeated Columbia 22-0 in an Ivy League football game played in mud and rain played before a scant 5,000 Saturday.

Tribe Fourth In Brownwood Cross Country

BROWNWOOD, Tex. (Special)— Northeast finished fourth in the annual Howard Payne cross country run here yesterday.

Host Howard Payne won the 10-team meet with 33 points, Emporia (Kan.) State was second with 42 points, Brooke Medical Center was third with 105 and Northeast fourth with 115.

Texas University (123), Oklahoma Baptist (127) and McNeese (162) brought up the rear. Three schools, Texas Christian, Arlington State and Odessa College, were not counted because all of their runners did not finish the four-mile run.

Northeast's Buddy Eiland finished third behind Emporia's Paul Whitney, defending NAIA champion and record holder in the mile and two-mile, and Warren Wirta, also of Emporia.

Whitney finished the race in 20 minutes, 35 seconds, Wirta in 20:58 and Eiland in 21:02.

Bill Frye of Northeast was 19th, George Abbot 24th, Jack Williams 28th and Randall Walker 31st.

Penn Takes Over Ivy Lead With Win Over Yale

PHILADELPHIA, (AP) — Penn capitalized on three breaks Saturday and a brilliant individual performance from Fred Doelling to defeat Yale 28-12 and vault into the Ivy League football lead.

A light rain fell during part of the game.

Quarterback Tom Singleton, standout for Yale on offense all day, nevertheless was the goat. One of his passes was intercepted by Larry Purdy to set up the first Penn touchdown after the Quakers' trailed 12-0. Two fumbles by Singleton also were turned into Penn scores.

Doeling swept right end for 10 yards and the first Penn touchdown. After sprinting 58 yards late in the final period he rambled 9 yards for his second TD.

Penn scored three times on the ground. This was significant since Yale hadn't given up a touchdown through its line all year.

Missouri In 13-0 Triumph Over Falcons

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — The Missouri Tigers, triggered by the passing and running of quarterback Phil Snowden, Saturday shot down the Air Force Academy, 13-0 in the first meeting in history between the two teams.

A crowd of 32,000 watched Snowden, a 187-pound senior from Kansas City, guide the Tigers to their upset victory.

Snowden passed for one touchdown, set up the second with his passing and running and three times made the necessary yardage on fourth down gambles to keep the Tiger attack moving.

The defeat was only the second in two years for the Air Force Academy and its first shutout since Utah administered a 34 - 0 licking late in the 1957 season.

A hard - rushing Missouri line, led by ends Russ Sloan and Danny LaRose and tackle Mike Magac, bottled up the Air Force Academy's vaunted running attack limiting the Falcons to 53 yards rushing.

Quarterback Rich Mayor kept the Falcons in contention, however, with his passing. The talented Air Force Academy signal caller completed 18 of 36 tosses for 143 yards.

Missouri's first score came with three minutes left in the first half, Snowden hitting halfback Norris Stevenson with a 39-yard pass for the touchdown which climaxed a five-play, 60 - yard march.

Stevenson grabbed the ball away from two Air Force defenders at the Falcons' 22, spun and raced over untouched. Eddie Mehrer tacked on the conversion.

Illinois Falls To Michigan In 20-15 Upset

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Michigan, a 10-point underdog, turned two pass interceptions into last half touchdowns to defeat its Big Ten football arch rival, Illinois 20-15 Saturday.

The Wolverines, gaining their first victory over the Illini in three years and boosting their conference record for the season to 2-3, spotted Illinois a 9-0 first quarter lead then scored in each of the next three periods.

Gerry Smyth's interception of Mel Meyers' pass early in the third gave Michigan the ball on the Illini 32. In three plays, Darrell Harper barreled across from the 7 and converted to put the Wolverines ahead 13-9.

In the final minutes of the third, Alex Callihan intercepted another Meyer's toss and ran it back 43 yards to the 27. Injured Bill Burrell, Illinois' fine linebacker, entered the game for the first time but Michigan forged to another touchdown. Fred Julian eventually plunged from the 1 and Harper again booted the point in the opening minutes of the last quarter.

Illinois' Gerry Wood had kicked a 36-yard field goal and Johnny Counts ripped 37 yards for a touchdown after a pass interception in the first quater.

The Illini finally got going again in the fourth period. Johnny Easterbrook's 40 yard pass play to Starks carried a 64-yard drive in eight plays. Bill Brown drilled over from the 1.

The loss, before 45,573 fans, ruined the Illini's title hopes leaving them with a 2-2-1 Big Ten mark.

Sessions Leads Houston Over Wichita, 28-13

WICHITA (AP) — Quarterback Don Sessions led Houston to three touchdowns in a 22-point third period Saturday as the Cougars defeated Wichita 28-13 in a Missouri Valley Conference football game.

Wichita led 7-6 at the half.

Houston's big third quarter started as Ken Bolin hit a hole over right tackle and ran 8 yards for a TD. Sessions, who completed 11 of 19 passes for 112 yards, then hurdled the middle of the line for a touchdown from the one. With only 52 seconds left in the third, halfback Don Mullins, on a double reverse, loped around left end 32 yards for a touchdown.

Vandy Upsets Kentucky In 11-6 SEC Tilt

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Vanderbilt combined a first quarter field goal with Tom Moore's 62-yard touchdown gallop in the third period to upset Kentucky 11-6 in a Southeastern Conference football game Saturday.

Russ Morris, junior quarterback from Louisville, Ky., booted the field goal from 21 yards out when a Commodore drive bogged own near the end of the first quarter.

Moore, Vanderbilt workhorse, broke through the Wildcat line after a fake handoff shifted the defense out of his path. He streaked down the field for a score. A conversion pass put the game out of Kentucky's reach.

A late fourth quarter drive, featured by quarterback Jerry Eisaman's passing, produced Kentucky's touchdown. The score came on a 15-yarder by Eisaman to end Ronnie Cain.

The score followed two other pass completions from Eisaman to halfback Calvin Bird for 22 yards and to Cain for 4. The try for two points failed on a pass.

A crowd of 25,000 chilled fans saw Vanderbilt win its third game of the season and its second conference decision. The loss left Kentucky with an over-all record of two victories and five defeats.

Moore, the game's leading ground gainer, wrapped up 117 yards in 16 tries.

LONE RETURNING STARTER — Ronald Doyle, Calvert, Ken., senior, is the lone returning starter on Northeast's basketball team. The Indians open their season Dec. 4 at Commerce, Tex., against East Texas State. (Staff photo by Bill Coleman)

TOUGH SCHEDULE

Northeast Basketballers Little Bigger, Greener

Its fabled "racehorse runts" gone, Northeast's basketballers Dec. 4 open what Coach Lenny Fant calls the "toughest schedule in the history of the school" a little bigger and a little greener.

Forward John Freeman and guards Sid Bradley and Mickey Kitchens, all 5-11 and fast, have graduated along with the big Indian, 6-6 Billy May and Fant will probably start against East Texas State Dec. 4 a quintet averaging an inch taller than the outfit which won 12 and lost 13 last year but two of them will be freshmen.

In fact, nine of Fant's 16 squad members are first-year men.

The two freshmen who'll probably start are guard Freddy Marzura and center Robert Cook, in his second year of college but a redshirt last season.

Marzura will team with Lanny Johnson at guard replacing Kitchens and Bradley, the smallest — and one of the best— backcourt combinations in the Gulf States conference last year.

Ronald Doyle is the only returning starter and he'll open at forward. Cook is expected to open at center and Fred Bradley, a reserve who saw a lot of action last year, will join Doyle at forward.

Northeast will face a 24-game schedule including home-and-home games with East Texas, Lamar Tech, Mississippi Southern and Arkansas State plus a single game with Memphis State in the Tennessee city.

Ten conference games are on tap, plus the Northeast Invitational Tournament in Monroe Dec. 28 and 29. Lamar Tech, defending champs from last year, will be back for the tourney, along with Northeast Oklahoma. Nicholls College has been added to the list, with Northeast rounding out the teams.

East Texas, Mississippi Southern and Nicholls are the three new teams on the Indian schedule.

After opening Dec. 4 against East Texas State in Commerce, the Indians move to Lamar Tech in Beaumont the next night. Their first home game is Dec. 7 against William Carey of Hattiesburg.

Northeast is working out both at its own gym and also at the new Ouachita High School gym, which the Indians will use as their home court. Game times will be 8 p.m., and general admission tickets costing $1 will be on sale at the door. No reserved - seat tickets will be available, the Athletic Department announced.

Fant feels that Northeast and McNeese will be the question marks in the Gulf States Conference.

Last year Northeast finished fifth in the GSC and Fant, entering his third year as basketball coach, feels the conference will be a strong one this season.

Louisiana Tech, last year's champion, is stronger, as are Southwestern and Southeastern. Northwestern is at least as strong or perhaps stronger.

Despite Northeast's over - all 12-13 record, the Indians lost but two games at home last year— to Tech and Northwestern. Five of the six non-conference foes were strong enough to land in the Kansas City tournament, but Northeast defeated each of the five at least once.

Fant says he felt last year's squad was a good team but had the misfortune of meeting strong opponents who had their best quintets in years.

Doyle was the second leading rebounder last year on the Indian squad, averaging about 10 per game. A senior, he's being relied on by Fant to teach some of the freshmen, and to form a basis for the squad.

Doyle, a transfer from Holmes Junior College in Mississippi, is from Calvert City, Ky., and stands 6-2.

Bradley is a junior college transfer from La Grange Junior College in Hannibal, Mo., and the brother of Sid and Bill Bradley, who also played here. Bradley, a 6-1 senior, is effective at driving and jump shooting.

Cook, a 6-4½ freshman from Jonesboro, was held out last year, and Fant says Cook has made more progress in the one year than any other freshman. He's big and quick and a strong rebounder. Fant is expecting a great deal from Cook before he leaves Northeast.

Johnson is a 6-1 Ouachita High graduate from Monroe. He's quick and a good jump shooter and was one of the top subs last year. Fant describes the sophomore guard as an outstanding hustler.

Mazura, from Elizabeth City, N. J., is just out of service. Standing 6-2, Mazura is described as quick and a good ball handler and playmaker. Fant considers Mazura as another freshman who will be outstanding before he leaves Northeast.

Other good prospects:

Cozine — 6-4, from Lesterville, Mo., a junior who'll be used at forward and center. Quick and a good jumper.

Harkins — 6-5, a sophomore from Hico, La., an all- stater in high school who'll be used at center or forward.

Edmiston — 6 feet even, from Simsboro, an all- American and all-stater in high school. Hampered by intestinal flu last year, Edmiston is an outstanding sophomore prospect.

Segall — 5-11, a senior from Desloge, Mo., who has a good two-hand set shot from outside. He'll be used at guard.

Linder — 6-3, a freshman from Fort Necessity, an all - stater who led his team to the state Class C championship last year and who was considered one of the outstanding high - schoolers in the state. He's a good shooter, good feeder and smooth mover who does everything easily.

Others working out include Malcolm George, 6-3½, a freshman from Quitman; Stewart Toms, the shortest man on the squad at 5-10, also from Quitman; Bobby Lockwood, a 6-3 freshman from Spearsville and a good prospect; Gerald Meeks, a 6-4 freshman from Cumberland, Md., rough on the boards and an outstanding high- school football player; Jerry Miller, a 5-11 Marion, La., boy, well - grounded in fundamentals; and Eddie Smith, an eager, 6-4 Spearsville youth.

A 17th man who is being held out this year is John Hagan, 6-8, a Colradoan. Fant says Hagan is making a great deal of progress and considers the youth a bright future prospect if his good work continues.

HUNT IN COMMAND

Auburn Smashes Miss. State, 31-0

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Sophomore Quarterback Bobby Hunt, running his favorite keeper play almost at will, romped 42 and 51 yards for touchdowns to power Auburn to a 31-0 win over Mississippi State Saturday before 38,000 fans.

Hunt, who won the starting job for the Tigers early in the season, ripped through the porous Maroon defense for 214 yards in 16 tries for an average 13.4 yards per try.

Two other sophomores turned in six pointers, halfback Jackie Spencer on a 38-yard punt return, and John McGeever on a one-yard drive, while Ed Dyas added a 30-yard field goal.

Auburn, twice stopped in the first quarter within the Mississippi State 10, controlled the game throughout with its big, fast line led by guard Zeke Smith and a host of capable hands. The Maroons got out of their own territory only once while Auburn had to punt only twice.

It was the sixth straight victory for the ninth-ranked Tigers after an opening season loss to Tennessee, and their fourth in the Southeastern Conference.

The 170-pound Hunt was trapped only once on his one-man rampage, being thrown for a nine yard loss late in the fourth quarter. On the next play, he faded to pass, found himself trapped and cut loose on his 51-yard scoring dash behind savage blocking.

His first touchdown came on a keeper play over right tackle as he cut into the middle, then out again to race for the right corner of the end zone 41 yards away.

After Auburn was stopped once on the Maroon seven and again on the four, Spencer took a quick kick that traveled only 26 yards, started toward the left sideline and cut into the center of the field to go the rest of the way untouched.

McGeever's score came at the end of a 61 yard drive in 13 plays in the third period.

Dyas added his field goal in the last second of the first half after Johnny Kern had returned an intercepted pass to the Auburn 39. The Tigers marched to the State 13 and Dyas dropped back to add the three pointer.

In their only offensive gesture of the game, the Maroons crossed the 50 against Tiger reserves as the final quarter ran out, but were stopped on the Auburn 21.

Monroe Man Wrestles At B&B Arena

Duke Scarbo, crying "raw deal" and a masked Monroe rookie called "The Bat" meet Mickey Sharp and Ken Cooper in a tag team main event at B&B Monday night.

Claiming he was treated unfairly by Cooper and Sharp in a relay match last week, Scarbo demanded a return bout and wanted to name his own partner. Promoter August Baumgartner obliged and Duke chose "The Bat", a Monroe man who learned his wrestling during a service hitch.

The main event will go 60 minutes with two falls to win as will the semi-final, a bout matching two veterans, Firpo Zybysko and Mac Kennedy.

Kennedy is an experienced hand from Dallas and Zybysko is a former state champion. Eggbald Firpo is a rough grappler and Kennedy is expected to come up with a few tricks of his own.

In the night's opener, a 15-minute affair, Cooper and "The Bat" will tanble.

TROUBLE BREWING

AFL May Compete With NCAA For Television Spot

By JIM KENSIL

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Football League, oil-rich newcomer to the pro game, may be heading for unexpected trouble from the nation's colleges.

The Associated Press has learned that the proposed AFL has offered the major television networks a virtual blank schedule to facilitate as much profitable nationwide television exposure as possible. One TV source said, "The AFL will play Sundays, Saturday nights or even Saturday afternoons — whenever the air time can be cleared and sold."

And an AFL spokesman said openly recently, "There are four or five ad men who want to sponsor the games already" and that games of the New York entry "will go network every Saturday outside of New York. It's a cinch to make dough."

It will also make trouble if the AFL's television collides with the carefully nurtured controlled-TV policy of the National Collegiate Athletic Assn.

For 10 years the NCAA has painstakingly regulated college football TV on Saturday afternoons and practically all the major schools have endorsed the policy which protects the gate receipts of the small schools as well as some of the big ones.

Lamar Hunt, organizer of the league heavily backed by oil money, says, "we don't want a war with the National Football League, but we won't be stepped on."

Spokesmen in collegiate circles are still talking privately, but they've made it clear that although they have no desire to open a second front, they won't be stepped on either.

So while the AFL and the established NFL may be able to play side by side peacefully, the NFL may gain a powerful ally in the colleges.

The National League and the colleges have no written agreement or pacts, but the NFL, regarding the colleges as a wonderful free farm system, has been careful to foster cordial relations.

The NFL does not permit any member team to sign a college player until the athlete's original class has graduated. This protects the college teams from being "raided," and is the policy college baseball would like to see the major leagues adopt.

The NFL, except for a few games on Saturday nights this season, has never pitted its TV against the colleges directly. Even the nationwide pro telecast on Thanksgiving starts two hours earlier than the college game of the day. And NFL Saturday afternoon games are played and televised only in December after the colleges have finished for the year.

The Philadelphia Eagles are tenants of the University of Pennsylvania at Franklin Field and the Pittsburgh Steelers last season played at the University's Pitt Stadium. And while the NCAA recommended against such arrangements, the powerful collegiate body did not forbid them.

Of course, the colleges would have no legal recourse and could do nothing positive about stopping competing AFL telecast, if the young league should telecast Saturday games. But in its hundreds of athletics directors and coaches it would have an army of advisors to greatly influence the future of the college players.

The AFL plans to start operation in 1960 with teams in New York, Dallas, Los Angeles, Denver, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Houston and two other major cities. This year's college seniors will be in its first draft call. Certainly it will include many of the same players drafted by the NFL.

Should the AFL and NFL go to war over these prospects, the battle very well could be won on the playing fields of the colleges.

FIFTH ACC WIN

Clemson Defeats Blue Devils, 6-0

CLEMSON, S.C. (UPI) —Lowndes Shingler, second string Clemson quarterback, pitched a 30-yard strike to Ed Bost with 27 seconds left in the first half Saturday to give Clemson a 6-0 Atlantic Coast Conference win over Duke before a sellout crowd of 40,000.

The victory, Clemson's sixth against one loss and fifth conference victory against no losses, moved the Tigers closer to a second straight ACC championship and a post season bowl trip.

Clemson and Duke had met only four times in the past and Saturday's win was Clemson's first over the Blue Devils.

Clemson converted a second period break into the game's only touchdown. Tackle Ronnie Osborne pounced on a fumbled pitchout by Duke halfback Joel Arrington at the Duke 45 with less than two minutes remaining in the first half.

With 27 seconds, Shingler fired a long pass from the 30 down the middle which Bost, a sophomore end, grabbed in the end zone.

Clemson penetrated to the Duke five and one-yard lines but could never push over another score. The Tiger defense, in registering its fourth straight shutout and fifth of the season, never let Duke cross midfield until 10 minutes before the end of the game.

The Blue Devils then moved 79 yards to the Clemson 12, with Arrington's 31 yard run the big gainer. On third down, tackle Harold Olson threw Duke quarterback George Harris for a 10 yard loss and on the next play teamed with tackle Lou Cordileone and guard Crout to throw Harris again seven yards back.

Clemson halfback Harold Smith fumbled two plays later, and Bunny Bell recovered for Duke at the 26. The Blue Devils made one first down to the 15, but the Clemson line stiffened at the nine to put the game on ice. The loss was Duke's fifth against three wins.

Tries To Line Up Title Bout For Detroit

DETROIT (AP)—Michigan Boxing Commissioner Floyd Stevens said Saturday he is trying to line up a Detroit title fight between heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson and Floyd Patterson.

"I'm looking for 10 substantial businessmen to help me bring the bout to Detroit," Stevens said. "And I'd prefer to have some of them friends of Gustav von Reis, the businessman who is a close friend of Johansson."

The bout originally was set for New York. But that state was eliminated Friday when the New York Boxing Commission revoked the license of Rosensohn Enterprises Inc., which was to have staged the bout.

Stevens said his plans had not matured sufficiently to pick an arena for the bout.

"Let's get an organization first," he said, "and then we'll start thinking about an arena."

Stevens said he is trying to bring the bout here because he is disturbed about the boxing situation in Michigan. Detroit has not had a major bout in 18 months.

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)—Tailback Bill Kilmer passed for two touchdowns and scored another as the hard-hitting, ball - hawking UCLA Bruins smothered Stanford in a 55-13 upset Saturday.

Three times the Bruins turned Stanford fumbles into touchdowns. They scored another after intercepting an Indian pass on a sunny afternoon before 35,000 fans.

SECOND HALF RALLY

Tibbetts Leads Engineers To 14-10 Nod Over Irish

By GENE BLUDEAU

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Marvin Tibbetts, the Georgia Tech quarterback who prefers running to passing, scored two touchdowns Saturday in a second half rally which beat Notre Dame 14-10.

A capacity crowd of 588,575 braved 30 - degree temperatures and a stiff 15-mile-an-hour wind to watch the Yellow Jackets score their sixth victory of the year. It was the first for Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Dodd over Notre Dame in an inter - school rivalry that goes back 37 years.

The game was marked by fumbles and pass interceptions, by both teams, but Notre Dame paid a heavier price for its mistakes.

Tech, trailing 3 - 0 at the half, matched the Irish in fumbles three for three, as the third period opened. But Billy Williamson, a "goat" in an earlier fumble got the Yellow Jackets on their first scoring drive when Don White's pass bounced off Monty Stickles' hands into the arms of the Tech halfback.

Taz Anderson reeled off 32 yards and Tibbetts went through the line for 10 for the big gains in a drive that pushed to the Irish one-yard line. Tibbetts sneaked over for the score.

Frank Nix, a junior halfback, put the steam into the winning drive for Tech when he sprinted 41 yards on a kickoff return midway in the fourth period.

Then Anderson and Tibbetts clicked off short, steady gains, winding up on the Notre Dame six, where Tibbetts blowled over for the touchdown. Tommy Wells kicked both extra points.

Tibbetts, a substitute for the injured regular quarterback, Fred Braselton, threw only two passes, completing one for six yards. But he carried the ball 11 times and gained 33 yards on the ground.

Stickles, whose toe has saved three games for the Irish in three years, booted a 41-yard field goal in the second period after Williamson helped the Irish cause with a fumble on Tech's 30.

Stickles also scored Notre Dame's only touchdown, snaring the 41-yard toss from White in the fourth period and running the remaining two yards for the touchdown.

BOWL-MINDED BULLDOGS

Georgia Tumbles Florida, 21 To 10

By JAMES WARTERS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—Charley Britt scored once on a 100 - yard pass interception and threw for another touchdown on a soggy field Saturday to pace bowl-minded Georgia to a 21-10 victory over Florida before 40,000 fans.

Britt's interception in the third period turned the tide for the Bulldogs, who now have a 7-1 record and are undefeated in the Southeastern Conference.

The Gators, trying to win for Coach Bob Woodruff whose job may be at stake, drove to the Georgia nine-yard line with the Bulldogs holding a 12-point lead. But Britt snared Dick Allen's pass at the goal line and outraced two Florida pursuers into the far end zone.

Britt already had tossed a 35-yard scoring pass to halfback Bobby Towns in the first period, and was a thorn in the side of the Gators all afternoon.

It was Georgia's first win over Florida since 1954. It also marked Florida's fourth straight loss, a string of which has brought report that Woodruff might lose his job if he didn't beat Georgia.

Florida's touchdown came on a 54-yard interception of Britt's pass by halfback Jack Westbrook in the fourth period. The Gators also scored a second period safety.

Georgia was never in serious trouble, driving 43 yards for a score the first time it owned the ball. The touchdown came on a 14-yard pass from halfback Bobby Walden to end Gorden Kelley, who made a leaping catch in the end zone.

Britt's scoring pass to halfback Bobby Towns came with about 30 seconds remaining in the first period.

Florida's safety was set up on a 70-yard pass play from Dick Allen to Hobby Joe Green, who gathered in a perfect strike on the Georgia 48 and was caught from behind at the two.

Georgia's Don Soberdash pounced on a Clyde Butz fumble on the two, but on the next play, the pass from center to punter Bobby Walden was over his head and out of the end zone.

Georgia was driving for another score in the last period when Westbrook leaped up and grabbed Britt's pass. He broke for the east sideline and went over standing up.

Score by Periods

Florida	0	2	0	8—10
Georgia	1	0	7	0—21

Scoring Summary:

Georgia — Kelly 14, pass from Walden (Pennington kick), Towns 35, pass from Britt (Pennington kick), Britt 100 pass interception (Pennington kick).

Florida — Safety, center pass out of end zone, Westbrook 54 pass interception (Allen run).

Strong-Armed Hurler Japan's Newest Hero

TOKYO (AP) — A quiet, unassuming college graduate with an amazing right arm, who almost gave up baseball, is Japan's latest hero.

He is be-spectacled Tadashi Sugiura who became the first pitcher in Japanese baseball to win four straight games. The 23-year-old right-hander sparked the Nanakai Hawks to their first national crown in five years as they downed the Tokyo Yomiuri Giants in four straight last week in Japan's version of the World Series.

The scores were 10-7, 6-3, 3-2 and 3-0.

Sugiura hurled 31 innings over a six-day period in what was supposed to be a best-of-seven series.

After his amazing feat, newsmen asked Sugiura which game he thought was the toughest. The 5-7 pitcher, who weighs 156 pounds, gave it some thought, then replied:

"All of them. I gave everything I had in every game."

Sugiura is a cool, deliberate submarine hurler whose underhand shoots stopped some of Japan's heaviest hitters.

He carefully analyzes each batter before unleashing his pitch which includes a slider as well as the customary fast ball and curve.

Sugiura was voted the Pacific League's most valuable player award this year with a fantastic 38-4 record.

HARVARD, 14-0

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Harvard scored Saturday its first victory over Princeton since 1955 thumping the Tigers 14-0 in this 52nd meeting of the ancient members of the Big Three, Albie Cullen and Charlie Ravenel registered the touchdowns.

Ohio State, Indiana Fight To 0-0 Tie

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Underdog Indiana broke a seven-game losing streak to Ohio State Saturday as the Hoosiers battled the Bucks to a scoreless tie in a Western Conference fray before 82,075.

Indiana came within two inches of turning in a big upset when its 85-yard, 23-play ground surge, spanning the first-second period intermission, died practically on the goal line as fullback Vic Jones' final plunge failed to gain.

It was Ohio State's third shutout of the season, and left both the Buck and Hoosiers with 3-3-1 records for the campaign.

Dave Kilgore, Ohio's place - kicking specialist who has booted four 3-pointers this season, failed on 48 and 50-yard efforts in the Buckeyes' lone scoring threats. The Bucks' farthest advance was to Indiana's 31 and 15-yard lines, but the latter came on a 30-yard pass play on the last gasp of the first half.

Ohio was unable to solve Indiana's single-wing attack, and the Hoosiers rolled to 210 yards on the ground, to Ohio's 101.

Ohio took to the airways seven times, completing three for 50 yards.

Navy Rallies To Defeat Maryland

BALTIMORE (AP) — Joe Bellino spun loose in the fourth quarter on punt returns, one for 59 yards and the deciding touchdown, to spring Navy from behind for a 22-14 football victory over Maryland Saturday night.

The game ended with Maryland on the Navy one.

Bellino, ever dangerous junior halfback from Winchester, Mass., set up Navy's tying touchdown early in the fourth quarter with a 33-yard punt return before taking one all the way for the victory.

Until Bellino tore loose, the Middies were on the verge of suffering their fifth defeat of the season from a neighborhood rival they had beaten 40-14 last year.

Navy now is 3-4 in Wayne Hardin's first season as head coach. Maryland is 3-5 under Tom Nugent, also a rookie.

The Terrapins jumped to a 14-0 lead in the first quarter on a fluke touchdown pass play and a 30-yard punch ater a recovered fumble by tackle Curt Schwarz.

Navy, in complete control in the second half except for Maryland's dying gasp, got one touchdown back in the third quarter on an 86-yard drive. The Middies still were in a hole, however, when Schwarz blocked a two-point conversion pass try by quarterbock Joe Tranchini, leaving Maryland ahead 14-6.

Maryland threatened to run Navy out of Memorial Stadium before an announced crowd of 32,845 in the opening quarter.

On the Terps' second play, quarterback Richie Novak let fly a weak pass from the Navy 49. Navy halfback Ronnie Brandquist tried to grab it, but it bounced off him and fullback Joe Matalavage into the hands of Maryland end Vince Scott at the 20. Scott went over the goal and kicked the first of his two conversions.

After Schwarz fell on Matalavage's fumble, Novak and fullback Jim Joyce ran the ball to the Navy 1, from where Joyce plunged into the end zone.

Bellino, who has been hampered by leg trouble all season, took things into his own hands at the start of the fourth period by returning a punt from his 32 to the Maryland 35 and then running 28 yards around right end. Tranchini threw a nine-yard pass to halfback Dick Pariseau and plunged a yard for the score, then passed to Jim Penbrook for the two points that tied it 14-14.

After Bellino took another punt at his 41 and ran down the sideline for the decisive score and Tranchini ran for two extra points Maryland drove from its 34 to a foot from the goal with second-string fullback Pat Drass carrying nine times for 40 yards.

Wisconsin Hands Wildcats Year's First Defeat, 24-19

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Wisconsin fought off repeated fourth quarter efforts by Northwestern Saturday and toppled the Wildcats from the ranks of the undefeated 24-19 to climb into a first place tie in the Big Ten football race.

Rated second nationally, Northwestern blew its big chance late in the fourth quarter when a lateral to halfback Ron Burton went astray and Wisconsin center Bob Nelson pounced on the loose football on the 8-yard line.

Wisconsin piled up 17 points in the second quarter on a pair of touchdown passes by Dale Hackbart and then turned a Northwestern fumble into another touchdown early in the third quarter for its sixth triumph in seven games.

The outcome left the teams tied for the Big Ten lead with 4-1 records and two games to play.

Trailing by 11 points in the fourth quarter, Northwestern scored a touchdown when Burton, who in the first half had scampered 69 yards for a touchdown, went 47 yards from scrimmage to set up a touchdown scored by little Bobby Eickhoff.

A couple of minutes later, Elbert Kimbrough picked off a pass by Jim Bakken and ran 51 yards to the Wisconsin 11. Two plays netted the Wildcats six yards before Burton fumbled Bobby Eickhoff's pitchout and Nelson recovered.

Northwestern got its hands on the ball two more times but the tough Badger defense managed to hold off the desperate Wildcats.

A record crowd of 55,282 saw the Badgers, running and passing out of a short punt formation, score 17 points in the second quarter on a 26-yard field goal by Karl Holzwarth and Hackbart's pair of 14-yard passes.

The Badgers, unknowingly, iced the contest early in the second half when Northwestern's Mark Johnston fumbled on the second play from scrimmage and Ron Perkins recovered on the Wildcat 26. Wisconsin moved to the 15, and on a fourth down play Hackbart lateraled to Ed Hart, who rambled to the 3. Hart then whipped around end for the touchdown and Holzwarth added the point for an 11-point lead.

The big factor was that Northwestern lost the ball four times on fumbles and three times on interceptions. Wisconsin lost the ball once on a fumble and once on an interception.

DRAMATIC

U.S. Wins Back Golf's Ryder Cup

By WILL GRIMSLEY

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP)—The United States won back the Ryder Cup from the British Saturday with a dramatic, overpowering performance by Capt. Sam Snead and his teammates in the closing singles matches.

The margin of victory was 8½ to 3½, giving the Americans victory for the 10th time in 13 meetings with their overseas rivals since 1927 and preserving their record of never losing in the famed professional golf series on U.S. soil.

Although it remained for Masters' Champion Art Wall Jr. to score the clinching point, with a resounding 7 and 6 triumph over Ireland's Christy O'Connor, old slam-bang Sam Snead stole the show.

Ever spectacular and almost always good, the 47-year-old Snead holed out a chip shot from 30 feet to beat Dave Thomas, longhitting Welshman, 6 and 5.

Bob Rosburg, the Professional Golfers' Assn. champion from San Francisco, used his baseball grip to advantage in beating Harry Weetman, the controversial Englishman, 6-5.

Other American victories were scored by muscular Mike Souchak of Durham, N. C., who won 3 and 2 over Ken Bousfield, and Dow Finsterwald, who triumphed 1-up over Dai Rees, the gallant little captain of the invaders, who made a strong comeback.

The only clearcut British victory was registered by Eric Brown, slender Scotsman, who kept intact his record of never having lost a singles match in this competition by beating ailing and erratic Cary Middlecoff 4-3.

Two matches were halved—Jay Hebert, of Sanford, Fla., playing his first Ryder Cup match, gambled on the final hole, hit his approach in the water, and finished in a tie with Peter Alliss.

Doug Ford, of Yonkers, N. Y., dissipated a 4-hole lead and finished in a tie with Norman Drew, who sank a 15-foot putt on the 36th hole to knot the match.

The Americans led 2½-1½ after Friday's team matches. Saturday's victory was a pleasant one since the British had upset the Yanks two years ago in Sheffield, England, winning the cup for the first time in 24 years.

Snead played some of his finest golf in rolling up a four-hole lead over Thomas, shooting a 67, three under par, in the morning round.

The closest and most exciting duel was waged between Hebert and Alliss, called "England's Sam Snead," because of his beautiful swing.

On the morning round, Alliss scored a birdie deuce on the sixth hole and sank consecutive putts of 30, 35, 40 and 10 feet. Hebert, however, hung on grimly and held the Englishman to a one hole advantage at the end of the morning round.

The two played almost stroke for stroke through the afternoon. Hebert going into a two-hole lead at the 32nd, but losing the 33rd to a birdie three. He took a six on the final hole after getting into water. Allis won the hole with a four.

Wall closed out his match with a birdie two on the 30th hole, where he sent an approach within 3 feet of the pin and sank his putt.

Porkers Rally To Hand Rice 14-10 Setback

HOUSTON (AP) — Billy Kyser, a senior halfback who had gained only 25 yards in seven games, led Arkansas on two touchdowns drives Saturday as the Razorbacks came from behind and defeated winless Rice 14-10.

Rice limited Arkansas to a net of 18 yards while taking a 10-0 lead on a 74-yard touchdown run by Billy Bucek and a 26-yard field goal by Gordon Speer.

Arkansas retaining a chance for a share of the Southwest Conference title, struck quickly, however, after Speer's three-pointer midway in the second period. The Razorbacks took the kickoff and moved 57 yards in five plays in a drive kept alive by Kyser's spectacular pass reception on the Rice 22. Quarterback George McKinney then scored from the one two plays later.

Kyser's third period touchdown from the one put the Porkers in front and climaxed an 80-yard Arkansas surge in which the 175-pound halfback carried five times for 39 yards and caught one pass for 27.

Kyser finished with 52 yards in seven carries.

My Dear Girl Wins Frizette At Aqueduct

NEW YORK (AP) — My Dear Girl virtually wrapped up the 2-year-old filly title Saturday with a victory in the $101,525 Frizette Stakes at Aqueduct.

The speedy equine miss from Mrs. Frances A. Genter's stable scored by a nose over the Wheatley Stable's Irish Jay for her second rich triumph in two weeks. My Dear Girl also won the Gardenia at Garden State Park.

Ogden Phipps' Sarcastic, who ran coupled in the betting with the Wheatley Stable entry, was third, seven lengths back.

A comparatively small crowd of 31,582, held down by the rain and cold, saw My Dear Girl overtake Irish Jay in the final strides after trailing the Wheatley horse all the way. Flower Bonnet, owned by the Pebblebrook Farm, finished fourth, after running second most of the way. Jockey Mike Gonzalez rode the winner.

The victory was the fifth in seven starts for the lightly - campaigned Florida - bred juvenile miss, who picked up $65,991.25 for her victory. Favored in the betting, My Dear Girl paid $3.10, $2.40, $2.30. The Wheatley Stable entry of Irish Jay and Sarcastic paid $3, $3.70.

The time for the Frizette, run for the first time at a mile, was 1:40.1 on a sloppy track. All starters carried 119 pounds.

This was My Dear Girl's third stakes victory and brought her winnings to $185,662. She won the Florida Breeders at Hialeah and was second in the Arlington Lassies.

Miss. Southern Tips N.C. State

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Mississippi Southern's rangy halfback Rene Lorio caught a 37-yard scoring pass with 55 seconds left to play Saturday for a 19-14 Southerner triumph over luckless North Carolina State before 12,000 fans.

Lorio pulled the "small-college" powerhouse Southerners back from the brink of defeat almost singlehanded. He twisted and dodged on a kickoff return into N.C. State territory, then took the winning pass from sophomore quarterback Morris Meador and sped into the end zone.

The Wolfpack from Raleigh, losing its sixth straight game, rolled 80 yards on the passing of quarterback Gerry Mancini and went ahead on a two - yard scoring plunge by halfback Ron Podwika and a two point conversion talkon a Podwika pass to halfback Bernie Latusick.

The Southerners had to come from behind twice in the teeth of a cold, 25-mile an hour wind whipping this Gulf Coast city's memorial stadium.

They turned an intercepted pass into a touchdown in the third period. Then, when State tallied its eight points with the clock running out, Lorio made it a personal show.

The Wolfpack went ahead early, snatching a fumble by Southern fullback Buddy Supple deep in Southern territory. Fullback John Stanton took a handoff a play later, cut through the secondary and scored from 17 yards out.

Meador intercepted a State pass in the third, took to the air himself and passed 20 yards to the State nine and the Southerners stabbed the rest of the way, sending Meador sneaking one yard for the score.

End Hugh McInnis kicked the extra point that put Southern ahead 7-6. Then Southern scored again in the fourth on a two-yard plunge by fullback Arnold Spence, but McInnis' kick into the wind was no good.

Texas Team Spoils Tiger Homecoming

GRAMBLING, La (Special) — Texas Southern University caught Grambling unprepared here Saturday and the Tigers went into reverse gear for the third straight week, drooping their homecoming encounter, 15-14.

Berated by fumbles in previous loses, Grambling handled the ball adhesively in spots, but this was about their only point of real consequence.

The Tigers scored the first time they got the ball. Sticking to the wing-t balanced-line offense and demonstrating good power inside tackles, Grambling drove 67-yards for the opening marker.

Texas Southern stormed back with a touchdown of its own, and added the two-point conversion.

The Houston eleven used its favorite weapon — the long pass — to crop off the yardage. Quarterback Charles Green fired a 33-yard pass that Clarence Caldwell grabbed going away for the score.

William Gulley ran the conversion and promptly introduced Grambling to an afternoon of despair.

Halfback Roosevelt Taylor ran a crooked 76-yard course for a second period TD for the locals, but thereafter TSU grew stronger and the Tigers faded miserably.

Texas Southern surged ahead with the winning marker early in the fourth quarter, and blunted a Grambling thrust that penetrated to the 30-yard line.

Coach Alex Durley's team drove 76-yards for the winning TD and were equally opportunistic, containing ground assaults and checking passing with timely interceptions. Green bulled over from the four-yard line.

BRYANT'S 100TH VICTORY

Alabama Barrels Over Wave, 19-7

By BILL KING

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)—Alabama found an offense equal to its famed hard-nose defense Saturday night as it trampled Tulane, 19-7, before 29,000 thoroughly chilled fans.

The Crimson Tide mauled Tulane with the running of quarterback Pat Trammell, the passing of sophomore quarterback Bobby Skelton and some fancy twisting by senior scatback Marlin Dyess.

But, the passing of Greenie quartebacks Phil Nugent and Bob Cornett and some early mistakes very nearly denied 'Bama Head Football Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant his 100th victory.

It was Nugent's passing that knotted the game at halftime, 7-7, and Cornett's throws in the dying minutes that thew a score into the Crimson Tide for awhile. Two interceptions stopped the threats.

It was Trammell and Dyess who put Alabama ahead in the first minutes of the second period as the Tide rammed 67 yards in 11 plays. End Fred Sington kicked the conversion to give 'Bama a 7-0 edge.

But Nugent tried six passes in the dying minutes of the half, hit on three and got a break when Alabama interfered with a receiver. The final toss was a 10-yard connection to end Pete Abadie. Howard Kisner added the conversion.

The first three times the Crimson Tide had the ball there were two fumbles, and one blocked quick-kick but the Greenies could not cash in on the early breaks.

Dyess took the second half-kickoff on his five yard line, and scampered and twisted 38 yards to set a new kickoff return record for this year. He also contributed 24 other yards, 13 on a pass from Skelton, in the march for the Tide's second touchdown.

'Bama covered the distance in five plays from scrimmage with Dyess scooting 11 and then Skelton hitting end Tommy Booker for 22 yards and the score. Sington missed the kick.

Trammell and Dyess led the Tide for 27 yards on the ground in the final two minutes that was capped by a ten-yard jaunt by halfback Billy Richardson. A run for the conversion failed.

It was Alabama's first victory over Tulane in three years and gives the Tide a 4-1-2 record overall this year.

Prep Player Slugs Official After Penalty

DETROIT (AP) — A burly high school football player slugged an umpire after the official called a penalty during a game Friday night.

Louis D. Bertsos, the official, said he was caught by surprise when attached by Vince Frigerio, a 210-pound junior guard for Dearborn.

"I was dumbfounded," Bertos declared. "He must have hit me four or five times before I could figure out what was happening. "He belted me good, too — on the forehead, nose, mouth and below the eye."

The flare-up occurred during the game between Darborn and Wayne High Schools at Wayne. It was in the last minutes of the game which Wayne won 39-18.

"I really don't know what got into Vince," said Dearborn Coach Bob Bridges. "I do know he's all broken up over it. But that's a little late now."

Bridges said Frigerio told him after the incident that "some guy pust called a penalty I didn't think was much good. So I slugged him."

Bertsos had called a clipping penalty on Dearborn after the team had intercepted a Wayne pass. The entire play was nullified, however, because the game's head linesman and the referee already had dropped penalty flags against both teams at the line of scrimmage.

What disciplinary action, if any, to be taken against Frigerio will be decided next week by the State High School Athletic Assn. and Dearborn school authorities.

Bertsos said he planned no "But I certainly believe he should court action against Frigerio. "But I certainly believe he should be disciplined in some way," The official declared.

Oklahoma Stuns Kansas State In 36-0 Runaway

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)—Oklahoma walloped Kansas State 36-0 Saturday, rolling over tired Wildcat defenses for 29 points in the second half as the Sooners started a new Big Eight conference streak.

Playing under wraps because of next week's date with Army, Oklahoma relied on basic plays while bouncing back from last weekend's defeat by Nebraska that ended the Sooners' conference unbeaten string at 74 games.

Fullback Ronnie Hartline totaled 14 points for the Sooners, now 4-3. He scored two touchdowns, added two extra points and more than doubled the yardage of his mates with 102 yards on 12 carries.

Three times in the first half Kansas State chopped down Oklahoma drives — once a half yard short of the goal, another time at the 6 and another at the 13.

But with No. 1 quarterback John Soloms playing only briefly because of an ankle injury, the Wildcats never threatened. Three times Oklahoma set up scoring drives with interceptions.

Oregon Defeats California, 20-18

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Little Cleveland Jones wrested a 35 - yard pass out of California's hands in the waning minutes for a touchdown that kept Oregon in the running for the Rose Bowl with a 20-18 victory Saturday.

Oregon quarterback Dave Grosz lofted the desperation pass and California quarterback Wayne Crow and Jones went up to get it on the goal line.

They wrestled until they hit the ground but the 5-4 Jones had the ball in his arms, just two inches into the end zone.

LSU Frosh Defeat Miss. State, 33-12

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Louisiana State freshmen rolled to a 33-12 victory over Mississippi State's baby Maroons before a shivering crowd of 6,000 Saturday night.

LSU's Tommy Thompson and Peter Ascani each had two touchdowns and Danny Neumann had one.

Johnny Baker scored both Mississippi State touchdowns on passes from Bobby Bullock and Laurin Collins.

Baker tallied in the second period when he caught Bullock's 16-yard pass on fourth down after Hilton Marcum intercepted Lynn Amedee's pass on the LSU 28.

Baker caught Collins' pass from the 31 on the two and fell over for the second touchdown.

Thompson ran over from the six for LSU's first touchdown early in the first period to cap a 72-yard drive. Steve Ward ran the two-point conversion.

Early in the third period, LSU drove 62 yards in five plays with Thompson scoring from the 12. Amedee converted. Ascani recovered a fumble by State's Joe Bailus on the LSU 21 and on the next play scampered around right end to score.

Ascani went over from the three to cap a 79-yard march in 11 plays.

SMU Rallies For 14-11 Win Over Aggies

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., (AP) — Break-away sprints by Tiery Wilemon set up both Southern Methodist touchdowns as the Mustangs came from behind for a 14-11 victory over Texas A&M Saturday.

SMU, hanging on in the Southwest Conference football race, scored both TDs within five minutes early in the final quarter. Don Meredith passed five yards to Jim Jones for the first, and ran a yard himself for the second.

Wilemon rammed through center for 45 yards to the Aggie 19 to set up the first score. And the next time the Mustangs had the ball, Wilemon's 21-yard run carried into Aggie territory in a seven-play march.

The Aggies led 3-0 at the end of three periods as the result of two interceptions of Meredith passes. The first, by Gordon Leboeuf, led to a 23-yard fied goal by Randy Sims. The other, by Bob Sanders, chilled a SMU threat.

After the Mustangs' fourth period outburst, the Aggies rolled 64 yards in nine plays, scoring on Charlie Milstead's pass to Russ Hill from the 3. Milstead, whose 38-yard pass set up the touchdown, also passed to Sims for the conversion.

Baylor's Bucket Defeats Pistons

DETROIT (AP)—Elgin Baylor's basket with 20 seconds left gave Minneapolis a comeback, 113-111 overtime victory over the Detroit Pistons Saturday, ending the Lakers' losing streak at five in the National Basketball Assn.

It was the second overtime battle between the two clubs within 24 hours. Detroit won 118-113 in double overtime at Minneapolis Friday.

Baylor, who led the scoring with 40 points, and Ed Fleming were the heroes for Minneapolis. The Lakers trailed from the first moment of play until Fleming's basket sent the game into overtime at 103-103 with 19 seconds left in regulation play.

Fleming twice tied the score with key shots in the overtime before teammate Tom Hawkins squared it at 111-all with 50 seconds left. Then Baylor bagged it.

Hagan, Pettit Lead St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Hawks, led by Bob Pettit's 28 points, saw a 14-point lead almost wiped out by New York's fiery full-court press before Cliff Hagan rescued a 117-113 National Basketball Assn. victory Saturday night for the Western Division leaders.

The Knicks, led by Richie Guerin and Willie Naulls with 26 points each, grabbed a 54-53 halftime lead and widened it to 62-56 early in the third period.

Then Pettit, Hagan and Si Green went to work. The lead changed hands six times in about three minutes before Pettit's goal put the Hawks ahead to stay at 73-71.

St. Louis pulled ahead 86-78 after three quarters and owned a 14-point bulge, 102-88, in the last quarter when New York's little men — Ron Sobie, Jack George, Johnny Green — with help from Naulls and Guerin, surged back to pull up 110-107 with 1:40 left.

The Hawks appeared disorganized by the Knicks shock troops until Hagan delivered a fantastic left-handed driving hook shot and a tip in for a 115-111 lead. Jack George's two free throws made it 115-113 with five seconds left, but Al Ferrari's two foul shots closed it out.

The speed of Haynes, Vernon Cole, Bill Groce an Morris Rose proved too much for Louisville's defense. And the Eagle defense proved the best Louisville, which entered the game with a 27 point average, met this year.

36 TO 0

Undefeated Trojans Maul West Virginia

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Southern California counted a second quarter touchdown that would have been enough, then wore down West Virginia's defenses in the second half for a 36-0 victory Saturday that left the Trojans unbeaten in seven games.

Stymied on the ground by the Mountaineers, quarterback Ben Charles went to the air for USC's first score, throwing 28 yards to end Luther Hayes just before the half.

West Virginia's game line really wilted in the final quarter before the savage charges of the Trojan forward wall, led by the McKeever twins—Mike and Marlin — Ron Mix and George Van Vliet.

Halfback Bob Levingston set up Troy's second touchdown, racing 62 yards in the third quarter to the West Virginia 7. Jerry Traynham ran over on the next play.

In the fourth period, USC went 82 yards in 11 plays for the third touchdown, then scored again on Angie Coia's 59-yard punt return. The final touchdown came in the closing minutes, when the Trojans moved 26 yards in six plays.

Mike McKeever, accused of dirty play against California last week, was outstanding in the line, although Coach Don Clark said before the game he feared the accusations might slow down the big guard. Time and again, Mike jammed up the West Virginia running attack.

McKeever, thrown out of his last two games, drew no penalties in this one.

CASH REGISTERS JINGLE

Buying Spree Hits Country

NEW YORK (AP)—Americans are buying as if the store doors weren't going to open again.

Cash registers jingled a merry tune last week with the only somber notes coming from areas hard hit by the steel strike.

Retail trade dollar volume, running strong all through 1959, registered gains of 2 to 6 per cent this week over the like period of 1958—the record buying year — Dun & Bradstreet reported.

The automobile trade reported its sales set a high for October of 527,000 cars although dealers ran into a shortage in the final week because the steel strike was shutting down assembly lines.

Here are some reports illustrating the buying surge:

Sears Roebuck & Co. said its sales topped three billion dollars in the first nine months of this year—the highest for a comparable period in its history.

May Department Stores Co. said it expects to do 675 million dollars in business this year, up 30 millions from last year despite slower sales in the industrial centers of Pittsburgh, Youngstown, Cleveland and Akron.

Expensive items were going fast.

Cadillac reported it sold more cars — 120,736 — in the first 10 months of this year than in any other year in its history.

A New York jewelry store sold out its limited supply of 14-karat gold golf putters at $1,475 each.

The trade magazine Printers Ink estimated advertisers would spend more than 11 billion dollars trying to make 1959 a record buying year.

Buyers are using their credit at a great clip to satisfy their wants. The Federal Reserve Board reported that in September consumers increased their outstanding instalment credit by 485 million dollars, bringing the total at the end of the month to 37½ billion up 4R½ billion from a year ago.

Leaders in the instalment credit field, meeting in New York this week, said if tight money conditions continue into 1960 it may be necessary to be more selective and to require bigger down payments on automobiles and other durable products.

But all wasn't serene on the business scene.

The auto industry's joy over the big October sales turned to gloom as the steel strike clamped a heavy hand on assembly lines this week. With General Motors at a virtual standstill and Ford and Chrysler cutting back, auto output was way off. Ward's Automotive Reports said production this month will be cut 340,000 units.

Railroads were hard hit because of loss of freight due to the strike. Car loadings dropped off again, totaling 588,148 cars for the week, down 3.2 per cent from the previous week and 12.9 from a year ago.

FBI Director Advocates Big Penalty

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover advocated maximum penalties Saturday for bank criminals. He issued a reminder that such crimes have recently been running far ahead of the gangster era of the 1930s.

In a signed editorial in the November issue of the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, Hoover said that during the fiscal year ending last June 30, banks and savings and loans associations were victimized by robberies or thefts on an average of more than twice a day.

"There is every indication that we are well on the way to witnessing in 1960 an even more appalling record of violations," Hoover said.

"Bank robbery is perhaps more readily and naively associated with the (John) Dillinger era, but the 1958-1959 fiscal years far outstripped any prior years for which we have statistics.

"Before 1958, the previous high year for this type of crime was indeed in the days of Dillinger—1932, when some 600 robberies and thefts occurred. In 1958, however, there were an alarming 631 such crimes, and 1959 far surpassed that figure when there were 764 violations."

Hoover said a recent FBI survey of 200 bank robberies showed about 50 per cent were committed by experienced, hardened criminals, another 25 per cent by persons with minor police records, and the remaining 25 per cent by "amateurs with no record at all."

"The 'amateur' bank robbers and thieves—from every social class, from every walk of life—assuredly are not discouraged from lusting for so-called 'easy money' if some professional robbers a given a slap on the wrist by courts after committing one of the most visious of crimes," Hoover wrote.

"To a potential bank robber, the crime is a gamble.—he gambles his freedom or his life for sudden wealth. Then he sees the professional, hardened criminal 'make a strike' and escape severe punishment, the odds, he may conclude, are higher in his favor.

"Until the inveterate 'gamblers' are made to pay maximum penalties, we can see no abatement in these crimes."

Hospital Group From La. First With CD Manual

The Louisiana Hospital Association will unveil in Chicago this month what may be the nation's first comprehensive manual on how to set up and operate effectively the 200 - bed civil defense emergency hospitals now being stored throughout the United States.

B. W. Brown Homer, president of the Louisiana Hospital Association, made this announcement yesterday. He said that Joseph Hinsley, Lake Charles, will show the national disaster committee of the American Hospital Association meeting on November 9 and 10 the manual prepared under sponsorship of the Louisiana Hospital Association.

"We are proud of the fact that the disaster planning committee headed by Mr. Hinsley has produced what we believe to be the first such manual," said Brown. "The completion of this manual by Mr. Hinsley's committee and the fact that the national committee of which he is a member has among its goals the preparation of such a booklet are fortunate coincidences."

Committee members from this area are S. E. Burgoyne, Monroe, business manager of St. Francis Hospital, and Paul Kiene, Ruston, administrator of Ruston Hospital, Inc.

California Nun Opens Exhibit Of Art Works

NEW YORK (AP)—A California nun opened a one-man exhibit of her modern art at a Greenwich Village Gallery Saturday. It is the first showing of her work in New York.

The artist is Sister Mary Corita, a professor of art at Immaculate Heart College in Los Angeles.

The work being shown at the Morris Gallery on Waverly Place in Greenwich Village is a collection of Sister Corita's serigraphs, a silk-screen process of creating colored prints. The exhibition will continue until Nov. 28.

While the exhibit is being fiewed by New York art lovers, Sister Corita will be viewing art and meeting artists throughout Europe She will leave Sunday by jet plane for Paris and a two-month stay abroad.

Accompanying her will be Sister Magdalen Mary, chairman of the are department at the Roman Catholic school in Los Angeles. The trip is a gift from one of the adult art students at the school's extension college.

Sister Corita's prints are modern in concept and execution. Some of them, the artist explained were inspired by primitive designs executed by children.

"To people who have not been exposed to modern art, my work appears extreme," Sister Corita said, "but the pictures are realy quite tame."

Lassiter Will Preside At N.O. Baptist Meet

ALEXANDRIA (Special)—Albin P. Lassiter, district attorney for Ouachita Parish, will preside over the State Baptist Brotherhood Convention Monday, at the First Baptist Church of New Orleans. The Convention begins at 7 p.m. Monday. Some 2,500 men from every area of the state, representing 705 Church Brotherhoods, are expected to attend.

Billy Cannon, LSU's all-American back, will be flown to the meeting for a testimony on "What Christ Means to Me".

Dr. W. A. Criswell, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Dallas, which is reputed to be the largest Baptist Church in the world, will deliver the keynote address on the subject "Transformed Men — Holy, Acceptable to God". Veo T. Gray, of the Monroe First Church, will lead the congregational singing.

Of interest to those attending the convention will be the election of officers for 1960. Twelve laymen will give reports of work done in every area of the state. The Business Men's Ensemble of the Queensboro Baptist Church in Shreveport will render special music.

The $55,000 price includes a livable 5 room and bath home, two tractors, planting and cultivating equipment. You'll agree it has unlimited potential for you, Mr. Farmer, Business Man, Sportsman, or speculator, so let's discuss details.

I REALLY WANTED TO TRUST YOU, JUNIOR! BUT IT SEEMED ONLY PRUDENT TO REMOVE THE FIRING PIN FROM THAT GUN!

AND I FELL FOR IT AND SHOWED MY HAND! AREN'T YOU GOING TO SHOOT ME NOW?

"GOOD NIGHT, GOOD NIGHT! PARTING IS SUCH SWEET SORROW." SHAKESPEARE-
OH, YEAH? SO, OFF GOES PLINY THE ELDER, JR., AND, "THEY FOLLOWED STILL HIS CROOKED WAY."
SAM WALTER FOSS

HONESTLY, JUNIOR, I DON'T FEEL THAT YOU'RE SMART ENOUGH TO BE TOO DANGEROUS! OF COURSE, I'LL KEEP A SHARP EYE ON YOU!

FROM NOW ON, PAL, YOU CAN TRUST ME!

OH, SURE, SURE! HM-M! PRETTY BIG TOWN UP AHEAD! LIGHTS COMING ON. BE LATE WHEN WE GET THERE!

... SO, IN THE DARK OF NIGHT .....

WELL, HERE WE ARE! JUST AS WELL TO HAVE NO "PAST," IN A RIVER TOWN LIKE THIS! SO, LET'S TAKE ONLY WHAT WE CAN "WEAR" WITHOUT IT SHOWING!

WHAT DO YOU MEAN?

HOW, "DADDY"?

THROW OVERBOARD THE GUNS, CANNED STUFF, EVERYTHING THAT WILL SINK. HIDE THE OTHER STUFF IN THE BUSHES, THEN SCUTTLE THE BOAT, AND STROLL CASUALLY INTO TOWN, AS IF WE LIVE THERE!

BUT THE MONEY YOU WON FROM ME IN THAT POKER GAME, AND THE DIAMONDS! WOULD YOU LEAVE ME PENNILESS IN A STRANGE TOWN?

AH, YES! HERE, ANNIE! STUFF THIS CASH INTO YOUR DRESS, WHERE IT WON'T SHOW!

I'LL BE ABLE TO SECRETE MOST OF THE DIAMONDS ABOUT MY TATTERED RAGS! AS FOR YOU, JUNIOR! HERE! TAKE THIS CASH AND BUY SOME PANTS AND A SHIRT, EH?

AND I'LL EVEN GIVE YOU A FEW DIAMONDS! NOW, YOU'RE ON YOUR OWN! AND I SUGGEST YOU GO, AND SIN NO MORE!

YOU COULD HAVE KILLED ME, PAL! THANK YOU! THANK YOU! I'LL NEVER FORGET YOU!

ALL RIGHT, ANNIE! LET'S NOT LET HIM GET OUT OF SIGHT!

I'LL BET HE WON'T, AT THAT!
